WILL RECEIVE CITY HALL REPORT TONIGHT

But Only Action of Council Will be to Set Date for Public Hearing.

PROBABLY NEXT MONDAY.

MAJORITY OF COMMON COUNCIL FAVORS A CITY HALL.

Arguments That are Being Advanced for and Against the Proposition to Build at Once—The Mayor Favors a City Hall.

No new developments in the movement to secure a City Hall for Plainfield are expected at the meeting of the Common Council this evening. The special committee, appointed to find a site and consider the question, will make its report. The substance of the report is already known. There will be no recommendations at all. The committee will not express itself for or against the proposition. It will simply present to the Council the five most available sites and suggest that a public hearing be given to the proposition next Monday evening.

A month ago ten out of the eleven Councilmen had practically expressed themselves as favoring the immediate erection of a municipal building for the city. Councilman Dumont took a stand against it at the very first and has been steadfast in his opposition to the scheme. Then came the question of a site on which the views of the Councilmen are divided. Six of the Councilmen, Messrs. Buckle, Gloak, Tolles, Corlell, Smith and Craig, were understood to favor an East Front street site. The others wanted the City Hall on Park avenue. If the advocates of the Front street site stand firm in their opinions, Plainfield's City Hall is assured.

The question of a City Hall has gone outside of politics. A majority of the Republican leaders in the city favor the idea, but there is some opposition from Republicans, principally from the Third Ward. All except the most unreasonable of the opponents of the City Hall scheme admit that a majority of the people of Plainfield favor the immediate erection of the City Hall. They claim that the wishes of the largest taxpayers should bear more weight than the sayings of those who only pay a poll tax and don't always pay that.

Property owners are not all arrayed against the City Hall scheme by any means. Many of them wish for its immediate erection. Councilman Buckle is one of the heaviest taxpayers in the Council. He owns much property both in city and borough and realizes that a City Hall this year will mean a slight increase in taxation. If it is the wish of the people of the city that such a building should be built, Mr. Buckle has expressed himself as being willing to support the measure in the Council and then pay the increase in the taxes. I 's a public improvement and Mr. Buckle is not the kind of a man to stand in the path of any progressive act that will benefit the city.

Mayor Rockfellow also favors a City Hall and he, too, owns considerable property here. An ex city official, at one time prominent in local affairs, expressed it as his opinion that the City Hall was needed as much now as it had been for the past ten years when a great cry had been been continually raised for such a building. The high price of materials was, in his opinion, the only obstacle to immediate action. It was a question, however, in his mind whether the city would ever be able to build one at much less cost than for what it could be built today.

The opposition that has suddenly appeared from those who advocated the scheme when it was first suggested has its humorous side. One of the advocates of the City Hall called attention to it.

"As long as the actual cost of the City Hall was indefinite," he said, "they loudly proclaimed that the City Hall was needed and that this was the time to build it. When it appeared that $65 000 was needed to build it, they were aghast and called the idea one of rank extravagance. What did they think, that a City Hall could be built for nothing or that some citizen overburdened with funds was going to make a gift of it to the city? It is laughable."

The case of the News is a parallel one. Advocating the plan when little was said about the cost, but now that the question of the necessary funds is confronted, the News now hesitates and feebly wonders if, after all, it would be a good thing to build the City Hall now.

The only action that the Council is

CROSS COUNTY TROLLEY.

EXACT ROUTE OF THE LINE WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

Work Started This Morning on the Extension From Westfield to Springfield by Staking Out the Route.

Work was started this morning by the Riker-Hine trolley syndicate on the cross county electric railway that is designed to run between Rahway and Springfield, crossing the Plainfield-Elizabeth line at Westfield.

The exact route of the line has not been definitely known till today, when it was announced by the officials of the company in this city that commencing at Westfield the tracks would branch off the main line at Mountain avenue in Westfield and run out Dudley avenue to private property. They will cross Broad street at the rear of D. G. Fink's house and then run on a private right of way to the county road to Springfield, striking the latter thoroughfare near Abner Stiles' farm, thence running direct to Springfield. John Cock, of this city, and J. M. C. Marsh, of Westfield, commenced the work this morning of staking out the curved line.

From Westfield to Rahway the line will run from Central avenue in the former place to parallel the county road, crossing the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks at Picton, and then running on a private right of way to the county road leading to Rahway, entering that place near Lambert's Hotel and tapping the trolley line running there now, and which was recently bought up by the Riker-Hine syndicate.

It is calculated to have the new line in operation by the end of the summer months.

A PLAINFIELDER'S WORK.

Ernest A. Lowe Designed a Fine Electric Light Plant in Big New York Firm's Store.

An electric lighting and power plant has just been established at the store of James McCreery & Co., Broadway, New York, that is unsurpassed in that city at present. A young Plainfielder, Ernest A. Lowe, of 67 Fairview avenue, is the designer of this plant, which has attracted much attention in electrical and engineering circles. The installation of the plant was contracted by Lowe & Leveridge, of New York.

The plant consists of two American Ball direct current generators, directly connected to American Ball duplex compound engines, supplying lighting and power to the entire building. The lighting system comprises about 135-150 hour 1,200 candle power inclosed arc lamps and about 1,200 to 1,500 incandescent lamps, besides several motors supplying power throughout the building.

In the generating apparatus and its accessories for this installation there are many novel improvements of particular interest, not only to the enthusiast, but to the commercial man. The first departure from the beaten track is that of compound duplex engines; a radical change from all previous types of compound engines.

There are some twenty-five switches distributed on the surface of the switchboard, ranging from fifty amperes to four thousand light capacity. One of the prominent features of this installation is the extreme flexibility and convenience for the quick handling of the various circuits leading throughout the building.

FUNERAL OF MISS HOWARD.

Loyal Temperance Legion Members Attended the Obsequies.

The funeral services of Miss Amelia Howard were held yesterday afternoon from Hope chapel, and were very largely attended by the many young friends of the deceased, including the members of the Loyal Temperance Legion, of which Miss Howard was a member. The legion took part in the services by singing a favorite hymn.

Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of the chapel, officiated, and he spoke tenderly and affectionately regarding the young life so suddenly called away. His words to the bereaved ones were affecting and full of consolation.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, one set piece coming from the Loyal Temperance Legion. After all had viewed the remains, interment took place in the cemetery on Plainfield avenue.

Other Cities Appealed to.

Newark, April 2—James Reilly, secretary of the New Jersey Industrial Exhibition, which is to be held in this city in 1902, forwarded Friday to the managers of recent exhibitions in Philadelphia, Omaha, Atlanta and Nashville a circular inquiring concerning the methods of organizing these exhibitions and soliciting general advice.

AMATEUR DETECTIVES IN SCOTCH PLAINS.

They Maintained a Weary Vigil Over the Barrooms of Local Hotels.

EVERYBODY "ON" TO THEM.

PARADED THE STREETS THE WHOLE DAY THROUGH.

Hotel Keepers Were Scared, Though, and Kept Their Barrooms Closed Tight in Fear of Being Caught.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 2.—One of the most amusing farces the residents of the village have had to laugh at for some time, was the attempt made yesterday to watch the local hotels for violating the excise law. About 10 o'clock in the morning three strangers arrived in town and began looking over the ground in a rather half-hearted manner. A consultation of war was held and the three amateur detectives soon decided upon their plan of action.

The plan agreed upon was to make a weary all day's march up Park avenue and down Front street and vice versa. This plan had not been in action an hour before not only the hotel keepers but every one else in town knew of their mission and the public on the outside enjoyed the joke while the local places were as dry as a desert in a short time.

The usual crowd from out of town came by trolley but were obliged to return as "dry" as when they arrived, unless they were "on" and well-known. A short recess was taken by the amateurs between 1 and 2 o'clock for dinner. After satisfying the inner man the weary vigil was again taken up and the farce ran well on into the afternoon. The three strangers seemed to make no attempt to gain access to any of the hotels for evidence and before the day was over their faces assumed the aspect of martyrs instead of detectives.

No one seems to know who was responsible for the appearance of the men. But the residents cannot help but think from the plan of action that the whole thing was a farce from beginning to end. The men seemed to be satisfied to earn their day's pay by walking and they certainly earned it.

CHANCELLOR M'GILL ILL.

Has Suffered a Relapse and is Confined to His Bed in His Home.

Chancellor Alexander T. McGill, of New Jersey, is reported to be very ill again at his home, in Mercer street, Jersey City. He has been confined to his bed for several days, and his friends are more worried over him than they have been at any time since his return from Europe last fall.

He seemed improved by his trip, and for some time was able to do a portion of the work of his office in his own home. His friends felt encouraged and confidently expected that he would resume his full duties as Chancellor. The present relapse, which has compelled him to take to his bed, has greatly alarmed his friends and relatives.

FOUND BOX OF GOLD IN CHIMNEY.

Warren County Farmer's Discovery While Tearing Down an Old House.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, N. J., April 2.—William Gingles, a farmer, while tearing down an old house on his farm near Bridgeville, recently found a box in the chimney that was filled with old gold coins.

The chimney was built about 150 years ago. The box contained several hundred dollars' worth of coins, some of which are worth more than their face value.

FIRE ON THE MOUNTAIN.

Back of Dunellen the Flames are Burning Away Fiercely—Looks Pretty From a Distance.

Forest fires are raging on the Watchung mountains north of Dunellen. The fire started Saturday night and burned rapidly all of Saturday. Last night the blaze made a pretty scene as the fire skirted along the edge of the wood, leaving a firey trail for a distance of fully a mile square. It is believed that the fire has destroyed many cords of wood besides doing great injury to young trees and shrubbery. The fire is still burning and rapidly increasing its devastation. A heavy rain will be necessary to check the flames. It is not believed that any buildings are in danger of being burned, although Wilson's stone crusher lies directly south of the burning woods. The fire is thought to have been started by boys. The woods are owned by various people and much of the timber destroyed is of small growth.

SUPERVISOR MUDDLE CLEARED.

John Stothoff to Have the Place the Late J. N. Voorhees Was Slated For.

The New Brunswick Home News says that the muddle over the appointment of a road supervisor for the road from that city to Millstone has been settled, Road Commissioner Budd appointing John Stothoff, a well-known farmer, as a supervisor. Somerset county will macadamize this road. Commissioner Budd first appointed Charles Welsh, of East Millstone, as the supervisor. Pressure was brought to bear upon him by Senator Reed and others and he revoked the appointment of Mr. Welsh and gave it to J. Newton Voorhees, of Middlebush.

Mr. Voorhees died soon afterwards. Messrs. Welsh and Voorhees had been the only contestants for the position, and it looked for a time as if Mr. Welsh would get the office after all, but Mr. Reed's opposition to him was so strong that the Commissioner would not appoint him, naming Mr. Stothoff in his place.

This road is an important one, connecting New Brunswick with Middlebush and Millstone, and running through a beautiful stretch of country.

Manning, and she is a most estimable person. She is a member of Trinity Reformed church. Mr. Fishler is well-known at Trenton, where he has an excellent business, and is highly esteemed by his fellow-townsmen.

FISTICUFFS USED TO RESENT INSULTS.

A Regular Battle Royal Fought Between Boulevard Factions Saturday Afternoon.

POLICE WERE SENT FOR.

NO ARRESTS MADE, BUT BATCH OF WARRANTS ISSUED.

Another Scrap Occurred on North Avenue and a Big Hammer Was Hurld at One of the Participants—Two of Them Arrested.

A factional feud has developed on the Boulevard. The factions came together at the corner of Third and Liberty streets late Saturday afternoon and a mighty battle ensued in which much blood flowed and many clothes were torn. The sight of the police put a sudden ending to the affray and the factions retreated to continue operations some other day.

All the trouble started over a conversation that took place on John street a week or so ago. One is said to have made an insulting remark about the sister of the other. Saturday afternoon one of the men went to a saloon at the corner of Liberty and West Third streets. He found the other man there. There was some high words in the saloon, and the men went outside. A blow was struck and several others joined in the fight.

The fighters were finally separated and the trouble appeared to be over. One of the invading faction hastened away when the fight started and came back with reinforcements. The battle was immediately renewed with vigor. Coats and shirts were ripped and torn, while blows were exchanged between the combatants. In a minute there were twenty men scattered about the four corners engaged in a lively conflict.

Meanwhile the police had been telephoned for. Chief Grant and Roundsman Frederickson arrived on their wheels while Patrolman Freleigh came down on the trolley car. Then the two factions separated and departed without delay. No arrests have yet been made but a great batch of warrants is soon to be issued.

Another fight occurred earlier in the afternoon on North avenue in front of The Press office. Joseph J. Green and John Kerns, both blacksmiths, were together. There was some words between them and John Keiterling, the horse clipper. It is said Green charged Keiderling with a debt that the latter denied and that Green then applied some insulting terms to the other. Keiterling, it is alleged, promptly resented the insult by landing his right fist on the point of Green's chin and knocking him into the centre of the street. His left was then delivered to Kerns who fell to the sidewalk, cutting open his cheek.

Keiderling hurried through a North avenue barbershop and over the track to a blacksmith shop on East Fourth street. Green followed. Green went into the shop in time to see the other man departing out of the back door. Then, it is alleged, Green hurled a hammer that missed Keiderling's head by an inch.

Green and Kerns were arrested later in the afternoon by Roundsman Frederickson and locked up for the night. Keiderling had not been found by the police. Green and Kerns were arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning and held on their own recognizance for trial Saturday morning. A warrant has been issued for Keiderling.

His Farewell Sermon.

Rev. William C. O'Donnell preached his last sermon at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church yesterday before his departure for his new charge at Flemington. He reviewed the five years he had spent in Plainfield and thanked his congregation for the loyal support they had given him during that period. At the close of the service Rev. Mr. and Mrs. O'Donnell were surrounded by the members of the congregation to say good-bye.

BASEBALL SEASON OPEN

LEAL'S AND NORTH PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS PLAYED.

Game was Called on Account of the Sun, but Will be Continued at a Later Date.

The baseball game that was begun on the Washington avenue grounds Saturday afternoon between the Leal School and the North Plainfield High School teams will be continued at a later date. For a time both nines claimed the game, but friendly counsels prevailed and the match will be finished some other day. The trouble was with the sun. It was very disobliging and insisted on shining directly in the eyes of the catcher and batsman. That happened in the beginning of the seventh inning. The Leal's School team was ahead, but the North Plainfielders were at bat, had two men on bases and none out. Naturally the High School boys wanted to continue. Umpire Guinee called the game, but the captains agreed to complete it later.

Both teams played fairly well but showed a need of more practice. The match opened the season for both teams and they will improve after a game or two. The batting order of the teams was as follows: Leal's School, Tilney, c.; McGee, c. f.; Dupee, p. and 3b; R Schoonmaker, 3b. and p; Stewart, l. f.; Millar, 2b.; W. Schoonmaker, r. f.; Brown, 1. b. North Plainfield High School, Overton, l. f.; Jacot, 1b.; Blatz, 2b.; Schuck, 3b.; Hamilton, s. s.; Crite, p.; McCollough, c. f.; McLoughlin, l. f.; George, c. Guinee and Thompson were the umpires and G. C. M. Smith and T. Pond the scorers.

The score by innings up to the time the game was as follows:

North Plainfield..1 1 0 0 2 0 2—6
Leals.....0 1 3 0 4 0 —8

CAROLINE SUYDAM DEAD.

Her Death Recalls Murder of Her Husband in New Brunswick in 1849.

In the death at New Brunswick of Mrs. Caroline E. Suydam, at the age of ninety-one years, the most notable murder in the history of Middlesex county is recalled. It was the assassination, in 1840, of her husband, Abraham Suydam, a man known from one end of New Jersey to the other.

Mrs. Suydam died from old age at her home in Clifton avenue. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. D. Randall, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Theodore B. Boorean, the wife of a prominent New Brunswick lawyer.

Abraham Suydam was president of the Farmers and Mechanics' Bank at New Brunswick. With James Lorimer Graham he was joint owner of nearly all the land west of George street. He was very wealthy, and was prominently identified with many business interests.

He was murdered while sitting in a chair by a window, and for months the community was searched for his murderer. Peter Robinson was finally arrested and convicted, and his execution was attended by scores of persons now living.

"FOUNDER" WANTS DEAL CLOSED.

Applications Pour in for Places on Asbury Park Boardwalk.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, April 2.—As the result of a conference held with "Founder" Bradley in New York it is likely that the beach front and sewer system will pass to the city this spring. Mr. Bradley is anxious to close the deal at once, and when a committee of the Council called upon him, so expressed himself.

In the absence of a referendum clause in the bill recently passed by the Legislature authorizing the purchase of the beach, a public meeting was held Saturday night in Educational Hall, at which the people was given a second opportunity to approve the bill and the purchase.

A question not yet settled is whether Mr. Bradley as a member of the Council can serve on the Board of Beach Commissioners. Mayor Ten-Broeck, it is understood, desires to appoint the "Founder" on this commission. There have been numerous applications for business privileges on the boardwalk.

Trip To Washington.

The Honeyman excursion to Washington will be just as pleasant as the many others given heretofore. The party will leave April 19th. A trip of three days, including everything, will cost $15.50, and a five days' trip will cost $21. The trip will include Mt. Vernon and other nearby points of interest. Anyone wishing to join the party should signify so at once by communicating with Mr. Honeyman.

Townsend H. Fellows, brother of Miss Blanche Fellows, of this city, has been secured to sing at the Church of the Incarnation, New York.

DR. SCHENCK AGAINST PORTO RICAN TARIFF

Vigorous and Earnest Words Heard From Trinity Church Pulpit.

PERVERSENESS OF JUSTICE.

MANY CIVIL WRONGS WERE TOUCHED UPON.

Deprecated the Use of a Political "Pull" in Court and Scored the Trust Business in New Jersey.

Those who had the pleasure of listening to Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of the Trinity Reformed church, last evening, were well repaid. The earnestness of Dr. Schenck and the able way in which he handled a subject of much interest and of vast importance to all citizens, held the close attention of the congregation.

Dr. Schenck's theme was "Some Modern Perverseness of Justice." He chose the words of his text from Ecclesiastics 5:8.

The speaker began his discourse by the statement that he believed the poor to be greatly oppressed by reason of the unequal taxation that is forced upon them. The people as a whole were taxed too much and the time was approaching when they will rise in their indignation and resent this unjust taxation, even to the extent, as in olden times, of causing blood to flow. Dr. Schenck said he believed the plan of assessment as now in vogue was altogether radically wrong and manifestly unfair. He said he did not have reference to Plainfield. The Assessors of this city he considered did their duty in an impartial manner and he had heard no complaint.

In this connection Dr. Schenck took occasion to refer to the poll tax and the fact that there were $1,700 of uncollected poll taxes that were due the city from a class of men who evidently had either neglected or evaded the payment of the same. Out of 3 000 voters, he said, but about 1 300 had paid their poll tax. He believed it might be a good idea to publish the list of delinquents, thereby letting the citizens know just who are the men who have not the manliness to come forward and show their appreciation of citizenship by paying up.

Dr. Schenck also refered to the perverseness of justice as is noticeable in certain courts of the State. Particularly was that true he said with regard to the granting of liquor licenses. The ward heeler had often too much influence with the magistrates of courts and frequently nine men out of twelve who were arrested received but a reprimand while but three went to jail, though possibly all deserved severe punishment.

With regard to the great monopolies and trusts Dr. Schenck had considerable to say that was interesting. He referred to the recent act of the Standard Oil Co., which had been able to declare a dividend of more than twenty-seven millions of dollars, all brought about by the increase of kerosene oil. The steel trust, the lumber trust, and the newspaper trust also come in for a share of the speaker's attention. He said that New Jersey was the home of trusts that was working great injustice to the people of this State. Syndicates that were refused recognition in the State of New York had but to cross over to New Jersey to become incorporated and were then in a position to prey upon the people. This he considered one of the great injustices of modern times, and should be checked at once.

In closing Dr. Schenck referred to the Porto Rican troubles and the wrong being done those people by imposing a tax upon them. All goods to that country ought of a right to be free of duty. He said he spoke not as a politician but as a citizen and as a minister of God, who would certainly condemn in unmeasured terms the persecution that was being attempted by Congress toward these half-starved people.

Before bringing to a close his most interesting discourse, Dr. Schenck briefly called attention to the introduction in the Philippines of the American saloon and its baneful influences. He believed it would in time reflect to the discredit of the United States government and might eventually result in bringing about a plague among the soldiers and inhabitants that would cause a dire calamity. The fact that since the saloon had been established in the Philippines, soldiers of the United States Army had been seen upon the streets of Manila and other cities in a drunken condition, was one to cause shame to suffuse the

NEW VIEWS OF CUBA

Senator Platt Tells of Special Committee's Work.

INDEPENDENCE GENERALLY DESIRED.

Praise For Governor General Wood's Management—Great Possibilities and Marvelous Recuperation. American Capital Needed.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The subcommittee of the senate, consisting of Senators Platt of Connecticut, Aldrich and Teller, which went to Cuba for the purpose of personally investigating conditions on the island with a view to intelligent action by congress with respect to Cuba has returned to Washington. Senator Platt, chairman of the subcommittee, authorizes the following statement concerning the subcommittee's observations:

"We inquired as carefully and completely as we could with the limited time at our disposal into the condition of the people of the island, their needs and the prospect of the establishment of an independent, satisfactory and stable government by and for the people of Cuba. We were in Havana in all five days. We also visited the provinces of Pinar del Rio, Matanzas and Santa Clara, being unable to go to Santiago and Puerto Principe, as we very much wished. We saw and conversed with a great many prominent and leading men from all portions of the island, men who represented different ideas and interests from intense conservatism to decided radicalism, and return with a much better understanding of the problem to be solved and the steps to be taken in its solution than we could possibly obtain otherwise than by a personal visit. It may be said of all classes in Cuba that they are looking to the establishment of an independent government, a Cuban republic. A few are impatient and wish for immediate and complete independence. Others are less impatient, believing that sufficient time should be taken to avoid mistakes and to set up the new government upon such a firm basis as to insure its success and permanence. All are looking forward to the municipal elections that are to take place in the latter part of May, regarding such elections as the first step toward the establishment of the new government. Much will depend upon the result of these elections.

"We were much impressed by the evidences of good administration of the affairs of the island under Governor General Wood. He has a very difficult and complicated problem to deal with. Conditions growing out of 300 years of Spanish misrule and the consequent character of the people of Cuba make every step in its solution embarrassing, but we are convinced that he is the right man in the right place and that his administration, though firm, is as gentle as possible and calculated to lead the people wisely to the establishment of an independent government which shall have close relations with our own and in which the interests both of the people of Cuba and the United States shall be surely subserved.

"There are great possibilities in the land. It is fertile, has great natural resources and is capable of supporting a population four or five times larger than it numbers at present. On the whole, there has been marvelous recuperation since the declaration of peace, but it needs American capital and American enterprise, which hesitate as yet to go there."

To Send Athletes Abroad.

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—The athletic association of the University of Pennsylvania has already begun to raise funds for sending a team of track athletes to the English championships at London and the Olympic games at Paris this summer. It is estimated that the cost of such a trip will be at least $10,000, and from assurances which have been received from the alumni and supporters of Pennsylvania there is no doubt that the entire amount will be raised.

Two Strikes.

MUNCIE, Ind., April 2.—Fifty men employed in the grinding department of the Ontario Silverware works are on a strike because one of their number was discharged for insubordination. Seventy-five men employed on the scrap furnaces at the Indiana Iron works are on strike. They claim that the company was paying them heavy scrap prices for light scrap work, making a difference of 51 cents per ton.

Successful Cable Laying.

HALIFAX, April 2.—The cable steamer Faraday has arrived from sea, cable laying. Six hundred miles of the new cable from Canso, N. Y., April 2.—The miners at Arnot, Pa., who struck again last Wednesday returned to work Saturday after a consultation with Superintendent Lincoln, who assured them that the Blossburg Coal company would keep all agreements made with the miners at the termination of the former strike, which continued 11 months.

Schooner Sunk In Collision.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., April 2.—The schooner Abraham Richardson of Bangor, Captain Pomeroy, from South Amboy for Rockland, Me., was sunk by a collision with the barge Alaska off East Chop, Vineyard sound, yesterday. All hands were saved, but the schooner is a total loss.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., April 2.—Barns on the stock farm of William Gilson were burned Sunday with a valuable herd of Jersey cows and two Kentucky bred horses. The fire is supposed to have been started by tramps. Loss, $6,000.

New Plague Cases.

SYDNEY, April 2.—Eleven fresh cases of bubonic plague were officially reported yesterday. Two additional deaths have occurred.

Weather Probabilities.

Fair; fresh southerly winds.

WHAT WE IMPORT.

More Than One-half Our Outlay Is For Sugar and Coffee.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—An interesting statement showing the sources of the agricultural imports of the United States during the five fiscal years 1894 to 1898 has been prepared by Frank H. Hitchcock, chief of the foreign markets section of the agricultural department. Some of the more interesting statements it contains are as follows:

"During the five fiscal years 1894 to 1898 the agricultural imports of the United States had an average annual value of $368,748,457. Sugar, coffee, hides and skins, silk, vegetable fibers, fruits and tea were the articles imported most extensively. Measured in value these eight items formed over four-fifths of our total import trade in agricultural products for the period mentioned, their combined value averaging about $300,000,000 a year. Of this sum more than one-half was paid for two commodities, sugar and coffee. The average yearly value of the sugar imports for 1894 to 1898 amounted to $90,418,685 and coffee $83,570,106.

"Brazil, which furnishes about two-thirds of the coffee imports, headed the list. The agricultural imports from Brazil during the five years had an average value of $59,617,524. Aside from coffee the imports from Brazil were inconsiderable.

"Cuba, the principal source of the sugar purchased by the United States, ranked next to Brazil in importance. The average yearly value for 1894 to 1898 of our agricultural imports from the island amounted to $37,403,232, or 10 per cent of the total. After sugar the most important items were tobacco and fruits.

"The agricultural imports from the United Kingdom averaged annually $33,084,065, a large part being produce of British dependencies re-exported by the mother country. Wool and hides were the leading articles. From Germany the average annual imports were $23,604,787, beet sugar forming the principal item; from China, $17,278,849, tea and silk being the principal items.

"Of all the tea imported more than half came from China. From Japan the imports were $16,892,735, silk being the most important item, about one-half of the total silk importations coming from that country. Japan also furnished over a third of the tea imported. From France the average yearly imports were $16,606,847, wines, hides, wool, silk, fruit and nuts and vegetable oils being the leading items."

CHINESE HAVE SETTLED.

How They Propose to Atone For the Murder of Brooks.

PEKING, April 2.—The Chinese government has "settled" the controversy arising out of the murder on Dec. 3 last of the Rev. Mr. Brooks of the Church Missionary society on the following terms:

Two of the murderers will be beheaded, one imprisoned for life, one for ten years, another for two years, a memorial chapel will be erected upon the site of the murder, and a tablet will be placed in Canterbury cathedral, England, at the expense of the Chinese government.

The Rev. Mr. Brooks at the time of his murder was stationed at Ping-Yin, in the province of Shangtung. He was captured in that vicinity and killed by members of the seditious society known as "Boxers," who had been very active in destroying villages and slaughtering native Christians. The governor of the province had dispatched a force of cavalry to the scene of the disturbance, but the soldiers arrived too late to save the life of Mr. Brooks.

Wood Studies Economy.

HAVANA, April 2.—Governor General Wood has ordered all heads of departments in the island to furnish a list of the employees in the various branches of the state service, setting forth their respective salaries and duties and also offering an opinion with reference to what changes, if any, ought to be made in their compensation and as to whether any of the employees are superfluous. These lists will be submitted to a special committee, who will inquire into each case and will submit recommendations accordingly. General Wood intends to look carefully through the lists himself. He is taking this step with a view to economy.

Army Promotions.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate; For promotion in the regular army, First lieutenants to be captains, Charles Miller, Sixteenth infantry; John R. Breckinridge, Seventh infantry; G. McCaskey, Twenty-fifth infantry; Volunteers, Gustave Morte of Porto Rico, late acting assistant surgeon, U. S. A., to be assistant surgeon with the rank of first lieutenant.

Connecticut Lawyer Dead.

BRISTOL, Conn., April 2.—John J. Jennings, one of the most prominent of Hartford county lawyers, is dead at his home on High street after a week's illness with pneumonia, aged 45 years. He leaves two sons. Deceased was born in Bridgeport, Conn., graduated from Yale in 1876 and was a classmate of President Hadley. Since 1891 Mr. Jennings made patent and corporation law a specialty and at that time was admitted to practice before the United States supreme court.

The Porte's Way of Settlement.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 2.—The Ottoman government has addressed a note to the Russian embassy declaring that, in the event of the porte not constructing lines in the Black sea districts bounded by railways already conceded to others, then concessions will be granted to Russia. It is considered that the porte in this way settles the Russian demands in the premises.

Old Cannon Found.

SAVANNAH, April 2.—The dredge Babcock, dredging in the river for the terminals of the Georgia and Alabama railway, a few days ago picked up two old type English cannon in the man-of-war wreck it is pulling out nearly opposite the foot of Bull street. One gun weighs about 1,000 pounds and the other about 850 pounds.

Torpedo Boat Boiler Explodes.

CHERBOURG, France, April 2.—The boiler of a French torpedo boat exploded during forced draft trials, and five of the crew were terribly burned. One died, and another, unable to bear the agony, jumped into the sea and was drowned.

BRIDGE WORK
in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

ELECTRIC AMBULANCE.

Built Not Long Ago for St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, and Successfully Operated.

A motor ambulance is set down as the latest thing in horseless vehicles and one that has just been put in operation by St. Vincent's hospital, New York, is said by its maker to be the first automobile ambulance to be built and put in service in this or any other country. "An ambulance of this kind," he says, "possesses many advantages over its horse drawn prototype. A greater speed is attainable; there is more ease and safety for the patient; it may be stopped within its own length when running at full speed, and on account of its weight it runs with greater smoothness."

MOTOR AMBULANCE.
(Built for a New York Hospital and Now in Daily Use.)

The gears in use are an adaptation of the carriage gear, but improved and made identical with the pedestal gear used on locomotives. The wheels are of wood, and are furnished with three-inch solid rubber tires. The rear wheels are 42 inches, and the front wheels 36 inches in diameter. The motors which drive the rear wheels are mounted on the rear axle. The steering is done with the front wheels by means of a small handle close to the driver. Under the body, in a box, is carried the 44 cell storage battery, which has sufficient power to drive the vehicle 25 miles on one charge, and at a rate of speed varied by a controller from a slow walk to 15 miles an hour.

The ambulance, as described by the New York Tribune, is trimmed inside with leather, and has room for two patients besides the surgeons. Twenty candle power lamps are fixed at either side of the driver's seat, and another lamp of the same power is placed in the roof and lights the interior. The windows and the back door are plate glass. A new feature about the ambulance is the bed. This is arranged so that it may be pulled out and still remain attached to the body of the ambulance. When the vehicle backs up to the sidewalk the bed is drawn out and rests like a shelf over the sidewalk; when the patient has been lifted to it the shelf is moved back into its place.

The new ambulance is supplied with all the modern fittings, and on a trial run it made a 14-mile trip to the perfect satisfaction of the builders.

SATISFIED AT LAST.

Wilhelmina, Holland's Young Queen, Expresses Herself Pleased with This Medallion.

An Amsterdam correspondent writes: This city is preparing to celebrate its six hundredth birthday, which occurs this year. The wealthy burghers, who are proud of their town, mean to make the festival a magnificent affair. The queen will come down from The Hague in great state and, of course, will be the honored guest. A flock of kings, princes, dukes and other nobles will be in attendance from all parts of Europe.

A DAINTY MEDALLION.
(The Only Likeness Which Satisfies Queen Wilhelmina.)

The young queen, who takes a justifiable pride in her own personal appearance, is at last satisfied with a medallion of herself. The lucky artist is Hans Jansen. So pleased is the young ruler with the work that she has ordered the likeness put on all the coins and postage stamps. This necessitates the destruction of all the dies at the mint and all the plates at the postage stamp factory.

This is the third time that the queen has done this. She has never been satisfied heretofore with the likenesses of herself that adorn the currency.

"They make me look 50 years old," she said to the trembling postage stamp factory superintendent. "Perhaps I may look like that when I am a grandmother, but the thing is a libel on me now."

Magnetic Force in Bricks.

From time to time experts have noticed certain unexplainable peculiarities in magnetic instruments in various buildings. Electricians now declare, as the result of experiments and investigations, that the vagaries are due to the presence of magnetism in bricks.

BRITISH AMBUSHED.

Convoy and Six Cannon Caught In a Boer Trap.

RAPID RETREAT FROM THABA N'CHU.

Colonel Broadwood's Force In a Perilous Position at Bloemfontein Waterworks—General Colvile Sent to the Rescue.

BUSHMAN KOP, April 2.—The British force commanded by Colonel Broadwood, consisting of the Tenth hussars, Household cavalry, two horse batteries and a force of mounted infantry under Colonel Pilcher, which had been garrisoning Thaba N'chu, was obliged in consequence of the near approach of a large force of Boers to leave Friday.

Colonel Broadwood marched to the Bloemfontein waterworks, south of the Modder, where he encamped at 4 the following morning.

At early dawn the camp was shelled by the enemy from a near point. Colonel Broadwood sent off a convoy with the batteries, while the rest of the force remained to act as a rear guard.

The convoy arrived at a deep spruit, where the Boers were concealed, and the entire body walked into ambush and was captured, together with six guns.

The loss of life was not great, since most of the British had walked into the trap before a shot was fired.

General Colville's division, which left Bloemfontein early Saturday morning, arrived here at noon, and he began shelling the Boers.

THE NEWS IN LONDON.

Hope Expressed That the British Reverse May Be Retrieved.

LONDON, April 2.—General Buller's anxious inquiry whether British officers will ever learn the value of scouting comes back with enforced emphasis to the British public today on receipt of the tidings that a convoy with guns has walked deliberately into a Boer ambush within about 20 miles of Bloemfontein.

Lord Roberts' own report of the affair, if yet received by the war office, has not been published, and no account of the affair is available to the public except the dispatch from Bushman kop. Nothing can be said, therefore, regarding the exact extent of the British misfortune.

Evidently Colonel Broadwood thought it necessary to retreat in haste from Thaba N'Chu as he marched all through Friday night, apparently followed by a considerable force of the enemy. The convoy and guns had to pass through a deep spruit which the Boers had occupied.

Six of 12 guns, comprising two batteries, all the wagons and, it is feared, many men fell into the hands of the wily Boers, whose daring, displayed so near Bloemfontein, shows that they are rapidly recovering heart after their recent reverses.

The hope is expressed here that General Colvile will recover the convoy and guns, but this is hardly likely in such a difficult country, and it is probable that the next news will be that after a stiff fight General Colvile has extricated Colonel Broadwood from his difficult position.

Great things are expected by the Boers of the new commander in chief, General Botha, who has made his reputation wholly during the present campaign. Foreign officers serving with the Boers have expressed surprise at his clever tactics.

The Lisbon correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"The Portuguese government has wired orders to Beira that British troops and ammunition be allowed to pass through freely to Rhodesia.

"The minister of foreign affairs, Senhor Voiga Beirao, has announced in the chamber of deputies that the government is in possession of railway bonds with which to pay the award of the Delagoa Bay railway arbitration tribunal."

Mr. Spenser Wilkinson, in The Morning Post, says:

"The attack on Thaba N'Chu and the convoy is a sample of the mode in which the Boers will try to conduct the war. It is a legitimate mode and the most effective for Boer purposes. So long as the Boer army keeps the field such attacks will harass the British, and perhaps the best way to get rid of the difficulty would be a swift advance and decisive blows against the main Boer army."

Boer Prisoners Start for St. Helena.

CAPE TOWN, April 2.—The first batch of Boer war prisoners started for St. Helena Saturday. The departure of the British transports with the Boer prisoners for St. Helena has been delayed in consequence of the increased sickness among the prisoners. Twelve have died during the week. Arrangements are being made to prevent overcrowding. The prisoners do not complain of their treatment or their food. Many of General Cronje's men when captured were completely worn out with the hardships they had undergone, and little strength was left them for fighting disease. Moreover, the confinement on shipboard is very irksome to men who have been accustomed to outdoor life. Army orders have been issued declaring the abolition of the title "Free State railways" and superseding this by the title "International Military railways."

Mr. Steyn's Mission.

MASERU, Basutoland, April 2.—Mr. Steyn is reported to have gone to Ladybrand to stir up the burghers there to renewed resistance. The Boers have removed from the immediate vicinity of Plattberg and taken up a commanding position adjacent. The Dutch who surrendered their arms at Ladybrand are now suffering seizures of their live stock.

It Was Joubert's Request.

PRETORIA, April 2.—President Kruger publicly states that the last expressed desire of the late Commandant General Joubert was that he should be succeeded as commandant general by Louis Botha.

Husband and Wife of One Mind.

LACONIA, N. H., April 2.—Clara B. Gardiner, aged 45 years, widow of Harvey Gardiner of Belmont, committed suicide by hanging at her home. Her husband took his life by hanging in the barn of the same premises about eight months ago.

AMERICAN SHIPPING.

Business Demands Increased Transportation Facilities.

AMENDED BILL BEFORE THE HOUSE.

Its Object to Give This Country Her Share of World's Carrying Trade by Encouraging Shipbuilding and Educating Sailors.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Representative Grosvernor of Ohio, chairman of the house committee on merchant marine and fisheries, has presented to the house the amended shipping bill and the report in its support by the majority of the committee, constituting all the Republican members. The report says in part:

"Our abundant natural resources and our industrious and increasing population make it of great value to increase the means of profitably disposing of our surplus productions, and as our export trade is increased so will be home consumption and employment.

"Our exporting competitors have for a long time been devoting themselves to increasing their export trade and getting possession of markets. Africa is an example of the methods pursued of partitioning territory or recognizing 'spheres of influence,' possibly eastern Asia being eventually destined to receive similar treatment."

"China," the report continues, "may be left open to fair and equal competition with respect of trade with the United States," in which event, the committee believes, "one of the largest, if not the largest, fields for the trade and commerce of other nations will be open to those possessing the facilities for taking advantage of opportunity."

The nation first in the field "with its own productions and its own means of transportation" will achieve the largest success, for which reason China must remove the barriers which now almost entirely exclude foreign intercourse." Other parts of the world in which our commerce holds so small a share would repay particular study.

The need of abundant establishments for the construction, docking and repairing of ships, "an adequate navy" and "a great fleet of merchant vessels," all in readiness for any exigency, is asserted by the report to be "a self evident proposition." On these grounds other nations have fortified themselves by increasing their sea power in all of the ways referred to, with the double object "of strengthening their facilities and power for carrying on foreign commerce." After giving the statistics on the extent of tonnage the world over, the cost of shipbuilding, wages, etc., Mr. Grosvenor's report sums up "the cardinal purposes of the bill" as follows:

"First.—To aid in a real, practical way—and no doubt under existing conditions the only possible way—in bringing to the greatest extent possible our own foreign trade back into our own hands, and thus saving to our country certainly more than $100,000,000 transportation money annually which now goes to increase the wealth of other nations.

"Second.—To greatly increase the exportation and sale of all kinds of our superabundant productions and especially in the vast regions of eastern Asia, evidently very soon to be opened to the trade of the world. This is a trade that the nation best prepared to engage in will necessarily get the greater proportion of by its own ships under its own flag and with its own postal facilities and its own commercial establishments for the disposal of its productions.

"Third.—To bring into existence at the earliest possible time a great American fleet of merchant vessels, built in our own country, with our own material and by our own labor, as a most necessary means of national aid and national safety in times of international war or other disturbances, the probability of which is unhappily not small even now.

"Fourth.—To increase the number of our citizens who will be educated in seafaring work and who will thus have the skill and be better able to defend the honor and interests of our country on the seas however suddenly the occasion may happen.

"Fifth.—The bill we think will, if the proposed compensation is large enough, accomplish these great and important purposes."

General Grosvenor's report concludes:

"It will, of course, take a considerable time to reach the desired end, but the sooner the policy is entered upon the sooner and easier will be its accomplishment.

"The means proposed are open to the capital, the enterprise and the skill of all our citizens alike and on equal terms. There is no ground for any form of monopoly."

Immense Catch of Seals.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 2.—The sealing steamer Newfoundland has arrived with 21,000 seals. She reports that the remainder of the fleet are adding daily to the catches already reported. The steamer Iceland is so heavily loaded that several thousand seals are carried on her deck. She left the icefields yesterday and will probably arrive tonight. The weather continues good, and no casualties are reported.

Cocking Main Raided.

GUTTENBERG, N. J., April 2.—Officers of the Hudson county S. P. C. A. raided a cocking main at this place early Sunday morning. They arrested 58 men, every one that had remained in the building; secured 38 live birds and a number of dead ones, as well as some money and a supply of gaffs. The men were taken before a justice of the peace, and their fines and costs amounted to $722.

The Sherman Leaves Manila.

MANILA, April 2.—The United States transport Sherman sailed yesterday with a battalion of the Fourteenth infantry, Captains Richard T. Yeatman, Armand I. Lasseigne and William S. Biddle, Lieutenants Robert Field and Oliver, 175 military prisoners and 25 insane.

Two Firemen Killed.

OWOSSO, Mich., April 2.—Two firemen were killed by falling walls in a fire which destroyed the Central High school of this city. Three other firemen were seriously injured, and two pupils of the school were quite badly hurt. The building was valued at $125,000.

Hammer Throwing Record Broken.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Alfred Plaw of the University of California smashed all amateur college records for the 16 pound hammer throw, sending the missile 156 feet 6 inches.

TUB TRUTHS.

A DROP of ink will color a whole glass of water. It is an inch of yeast which makes a pan of bread rise, and a single cake of soap containing unabsorbed alkali can ruin a hundred times its cost in laces and fine embroidery. After all, is it wise to take such risks with common soap? Of course you can get along without Ivory Soap. So can a wagon without axle grease—but it goes hard.

MAGNETIC POLE LOCATED.

South Polar Expedition Arrives at New Zealand Port.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, April 2.—The exploring steamer Southern Cross, bearing Mr. C. E. Borchgrevink and the survivors of the south polar expedition fitted out in 1898 by Sir George Newnes of London, has arrived at Campbell Town, near Bluff Harbor, New Zealand.

Mr. Borchgrevink reports that the magnetic pole has been located.

Mr. N. Hansen, one of the zoologists who started with the expedition, died on the voyage.

The Borchgrevink expedition left Hobart, Tasmania, for the antarctic region on Dec. 19, 1898. During the latter part of February, 1899, the members landed from the Southern Cross near Cape Adair, Victoria Land, it having been arranged that the steamer should leave them there, with full equipment of every kind, and should return for them early in 1900.

Apart from discovery and the solution of unsettled problems the explorer expected that the expedition would yield an immediate result of practical value. His theory was that weather forecasts for the whole of Australasia could be made from the antarctic regions. As good and bad times in the Australian colonies of Great Britain are dependent upon the state of the weather the Australians themselves have taken a peculiar interest in the outcome. Mr. Borchgrevink has always contended that the work of anticipating meteorological conditions in that part of the world could not be completed until reports from the antarctic circle could be made promptly available.

A PORTO RICAN'S VIEW.

Proposed Tariff Will Drive Island Tobacco From This Country.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 2.—Mr. W. T. Townes, president of the Porto Rican Tobacco company, declares that the proposed tariff will keep Porto Rico tobacco out of the American market and that, as the result of it, she will sell to Europe, China and Japan instead of the United States. He says that 15 per cent of the Dingley rates will prohibit Porto Rican manufacture for sale in the United States. The raw leaf would pay an average of 5¼ cents per pound, the finished goods 77½ cents per pound. This would be discriminating in favor of the United States manufacturers to the extent of $725 on each 1,000 pounds.

"Skilled labor," he says, "is higher here than in the United States, and the passage of the proposed bill will doom Porto Rican manufacture. It will be a crime against the labor and capital of Porto Rico. If congress is sincere in its purpose only to raise revenue for the island, it cannot honestly take the Dingley bill as a basis. The differential rate between finished and raw products will protect the United States manufacturer, but slaughter the Porto Rican."

Fatally Burned by Lamp Explosion.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 2.—Mrs. William Hill was fatally burned and Mrs. John Sullivan received serious injuries from the explosion of a lamp in the home of Mrs. Hill. The two women were sitting beside a table on which was a kerosene lamp. The lamp exploded, and the burning oil quickly saturated the clothing of the women. They ran shrieking from the house to the street. Mrs. Hill fell unconscious in the middle of the street. Her father, Prentice Dutcher, followed her and threw a blanket around her. He succeeded in putting out the flames, but not before the woman was horribly burned. Mrs. Sullivan ran to a neighboring stoop, where she became exhausted. Mrs. Sullivan was badly burned and has been unconscious ever since. Mrs. Hill is dead.

Mayor of Santiago Buried.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, April 2.—The funeral of Mayor Valiente took place yesterday afternoon with elaborate ceremonial. Colonel Whitside and several other United States officers acted as honorary pallbearers. The military and civil procession extended two miles. The death of Senor Valiente materially changes the political situation. His re-election was considered assured, but now there is a prospect of a hard fight between the rival candidates of the black and white parties. Recent developments have shown that the color line will be closely drawn, and there may be trouble, as the whites declare their intention to organize an annexation party rather than accept negro domination.

FOR A RESERVE ARMY.

Bill Before the House to Create a Militia Volunteer Force.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Representative Hay of Virginia, one of the prominent members of the military committee of the house, has prepared with great care a bill to create out of the militia of the several states a reserve volunteer army for use in time of war to supplement the regular army. The bill contemplates a general broadening of the basis of the national guard, its equipment with the service rifle and its complete organization in time of war into regiments, brigades, divisions and corps, with the three battalion formation as in the regular army, and is designed to obviate the necessity of a large standing army upon the expiration of the present law, July 1, 1901, increasing the standing army to 65,000 and authorizing the present volunteer army of 35,000.

The bill was introduced in the house today and receives additional importance from the fact that Mr. Hay is chairman of the Democratic caucus. The bill makes all citizens between the ages of 18 and 45 liable to military service in the volunteer army. It appropriates $4,000,000 annually for the maintenance and equipment of the national guard of the several states, this forming the nucleus of the volunteer army, and requires the secretary of war to keep in each state a supply of ordnance stores sufficient for 90 days' use of the national guard of the state in the event of war. It provides a system of mobilization for the guard by dividing the states into military divisions and provides for a board of officers in each state who shall hold examinations for the position of second lieutenant in the national guard, such officers to be promoted for merit and efficiency.

Court Opens In Frankfort, Ky.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 2.—The April term of the Franklin circuit court convened this morning with Judge Cantrill sitting. This marks the beginning of the final legal proceedings against the alleged assassins of the late Governor Goebel and on this account makes it the most important in the history of criminal trials in this state in many years. The session was taken up mainly with preliminaries. The grand jury will get into working order tomorrow, and the assassination case will be the first matter taken up. It is understood that Commonwealth Attorney Franklin, who will conduct the prosecution on the part of the state, has had subpœnas issued for many important witnesses.

Fanny Crosby Destitute.

NEW YORK, April 2.—Ira D. Sankey, whose singing for so many years helped the late Dwight L. Moody in revival work, delivered an address at the Y. M. C. A. hall in Twenty-third street yesterday afternoon. In the course of his address he called attention to the fact that Mrs. Fanny Crosby, who wrote the words to the hymn, "Saved by His Grace," and many other hymns which Mr. Sankey sings, was living in this city in very destitute circumstances; and he proposed that half the collection taken up at yesterday's service be given to her. He said that Mrs. Crosby, besides being over 80 years old, is blind and has no other means of support than the charity of others.

Awaiting Queen Victoria.

DUBLIN, April 2.—The British channel squadron has arrived off Kingstown for the queen's visit, which is awaited with intense and ever growing enthusiasm. Dublin is rapidly filling. Already the hotels are crowded, and trainload after trainload is arriving from the provinces. Grand stands have been erected in the streets, which are profusely decorated, and soon it will be difficult to find space for hanging another flag. A general holiday has been proclaimed for Wednesday throughout the county of Dublin.

COMING EVENTS.

April 3—Meeting of Volunteer League of the Y. M. C. A., 8 p. m.

A Shuttle-cock Editor.

As in everything else he ever discusses, the editor of the News is a veritable shuttle-cock in relation to the project of building a City Hall.

It is a matter of plain record, emphasized by editorial after editorial, news article after news article, appearing in his paper for the past few years, that this fickle-minded editor has urged and advocated the building of a City Hall up and down, in and out, through thick and thin. He has never qualified his utterances on the subject to the effect that while we need such a municipal building it is not required in the immediate future; on the contrary he has maintained a position directly opposite this—that we need a City Hall and need it right away.

When Mayor Rockfellow made the recommendations about the project in his annual message; when the Common Council took them up and acted favorably in relation to them; when the necessary bill was introduced in the Legislature; when the Legislature passed the measure and the Governor signed it, the News was among the first to applaud, and, incidentally, among the foremost to cry "We helped to do it." Bunion seemed to be elated and proud over the fact. Not a disparging word was heard from his lips, personally, or read in his paper.

But, now, in the eleventh hour, this shuttle-cock editor, through some mysterious and slick influence and factors, turns tail and brings his editorial batteries to pour shot and shell into the City Hall camp—even though he was one of the strutting generals there up till a week ago. All the good things that he said and did for the project before are now decried with the same amount of emphasis—perhaps more—as sort of a monumental snide and veritable steal!

Such a position as the editor of the News has taken at this date is a most inconsistent, indefensible one. No one but a narrow-minded, egotistical individual would ever think of writing himself down as such an ass.

If the opinions of the editor of the News ever had any weight in Plainfield—and we very much doubt it—it would seem to us that they are entirely dissipated now.

Those in charge of the scheme to induce the Common Council to grant the application of John Mortimer for a wholesale liquor license are said to be determined in their efforts, and that in this connection a new application will be presented to the Council this evening to take the place of the application that had a legal defect in it. It is the talk on the street that Mortimer was promised his license before he made the application. Who had the right to promise any such thing as this? We dare say that no member of the Common Council would do such a thing. Who, then, did it? It is time to call a halt on such political influence.

It is a curious condition that confronts the Democracy of Elizabeth. That city is nominally Democratic in its political tendencies, and yet now, in the face of an important municipal campaign, the Democrats are unable to secure an available man to head the ticket as a candidate for Mayor. Former Sheriff Hicks, who was named for the place by the convention Thursday night, has positively declined to run, although the strongest kind of pressure has been brought to bear to induce him to make the fight against Mayor Mack's re-election.

Plainfield really seems to have thought that the insane agitation for a City Hall in New Brunswick really amounted to something, and her newspapers are shouting for a City Hall there, so as to get ahead of this city. We counsel our neighbor to go slow, for City Halls cost money, and it would be rather undignified to put hammer and saw to an imitation of a New Brunswick editorial phantom.—New Brunswick Home News.

If Plainfield followed the example that its old Dutch neighbor sets we would be a hundred years behind the times. Plainfield needs and is going to have a City Hall.

Editor Bunion still continues to cry that Plainfield can not afford to spend $100 000 for a City Hall. Bunion knows very well that it is not intended to spend that sum of money for the improvement. But, as we said before, what is a mere bagatelle of $35 000 to his massive intellect and judgment? Such a shuttlecock as he has proven himself to be cannot tell the difference between $65,000 and $100,000.

This week one-dollar gas will be supplied to consumers in Newark, Orange, East, West and South Orange, Irvington, Vailsburg, Bloomfield, Glen Ridge and Montclair, Harrison and Kearny. That is, the price of gas will be reduced from $1 20 to $1 10 per 1 000 cubic feet. With the People's Gas Company's project practically killed before the Common Council, the chances of Plainfielders being blessed with dollar gas are meagre, indeed.

Democratic Leader Robert Davis has decided in favor of the election of Mayor Hoos and Congressman Daly as district delegates from Hudson county to the Kansas City convention. That does not look as though it was the intention to permit Mr. Daly to go to Kansas City as one of the "Big Four."

"Young Senators should be seen and not heard" is an unwritten law of conduct for members of the United States Senate, but the bright young Mr. Beveridge refuses to be guided by any such rule.

In order to get to the bottom of the blackmail and tolerance of vice and iniquity in New York the grand jury of the metropolis will have to go higher than it has thus far.

A Screw Trust has been formed under the laws of New Jersey, and the prices will now be screwed up.

Of the 23,000 emigrants from Germany last year 19,000 came to the United States.

Go on with the City Hall!

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Runyon, the yellow editor of the Plainfield Courier-News, has again broken out in a personal onslaught on the editor of the Advocate. This time the cause is an alleged embarrassment because of the candidacy of Frank Bergen for the Congressional nomination, which his puerile intellect imagines to exist on the Advocate's part. Don't worry your disappointed sore head, Runyon, the Advocate in common with every other Republican paper in the Eighth Congressional District excepting one, believes that the best interests of the district will be conserved and promoted by the renomination and re-election of Mr. Fowler. In saying this there is no disparagement of Frank Bergen's well-known abilities, nor of his fitness and qualification for the position of Congressman or any other that his ambition may lead him to seek. His fame and name are secure, and will ever remain so in Union county, even should he be elected to Congress and then refuse, as Mr. Fowler did, to make Runyon postmaster of Plainfield.—Rahway Advocate.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 2.—The death of Mrs. Alfred McKown at her home in Fanwood Saturday noon, although looked for, was a sad blow to her many friends who had hoped that medical science would find some way to prolong the life of the one they had loved so well. But it could not be, and the end came peacefully with the sorrowing members of the family about the bedside. Mrs. McKown was a woman who will not only be missed in the home, but in the village as well, where she was loved for her charitable deeds and pleasing ways. Funeral service will be held from her late home tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Dr. Parks will officiate. Interment will be made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery.

The gypsy camp, which has been located on Mountain avenue for the past week, was thronged with visitors all day Sunday. The place presented the appearance of a picnic ground, and the women members of the camp realized quite a sum by telling the fortunes of those who were willing to part with the half-dollar.

The annual parish meeting of the Baptist church will be held in the parlors of the church this evening. The election of seven trustees and other routine business will be transacted and Mr. Shott desires a large attendance of the members of the church and congregation.

The sidewalk along Front street has been treated to a covering of coarse ashes, which when rolled will make a big improvement.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

The attraction announcement for tomorrow night at Music Hall is James B. Mackie in the funny farce comedy "Grimes' Cellar Door." Mr. Mackie will be remembered as the original Hoyt comedian in Hoyt's famous comedy, "A Bunch of Keys," playing the part of Front, the hotel bell boy and porter. Mackie branched out in his own piece, "Grimes' Cellar Door," and was an instantaneous success. He played the piece for six seasons to immense business, winning both fortune and fame as a low comedian. The demand for his return to the famous "Cellar Door" has been so great that to satisfy the appeals of managers he opened his seventh tour in New York two weeks ago, and with the exception of a three day's engagement in New Haven, the company comes direct from New York. Mr. Mackie has secured most of the original cast to appear this season, including Miss Louise Sanford, who has been identified with the piece since its original production. There are plenty of strong specialties, tuneful music and all requirements of a first-class comedy are to be found in "Grimes' Cellar Door."

The romping, rollicking, rural farce comedy, "A Gay Farmer," will be present at Music Hall Friday and Saturday of this week and at the Saturday matinee. Judging from the commendations of the press the production will be equal to any ever seen in this city, and as a laugh-maker, a Cracker-Jack. The company includes some very clever specialty artists besides a very strong cast of comedians.

BERMUDA LILIES.

Their Cultivation in the Southern States Encouraged by the Government.

An interesting experiment is being conducted by the United States department of agriculture in South Carolina and in the southern states with the Bermuda lily, so popular at Easter as a gift for decorative purposes. Bulbs have been distributed freely in every section of Louisiana and South Carolina with a view to ascertaining if the Bermuda lily will bear transplanting to this soil. An experiment made in the Rally experimental station in South Carolina was attended with the most satisfactory results, and if the same luck follows the general experiment the home markets can be supplied with the native-grown product. The supply in the Bermudas is still unlimited, but the stock has so deteriorated as to cause general complaint from the receiving florists in this country, and this resulted in the action of the department of agriculture. As a corrective method the British government has established an experimental station in Bermuda to educate the natives in the more successful growth of this, one of their principal industries.—Chicago Chronicle.

Odd Items of Information for the Perusal of the Young Housekeeper.

A nurse fertile in expedients for the entertainment of her patients when they reach that most trying of periods, convalescence, makes ice cream by the bedside, for their delectation. This, by the way is recommended and approved by physicians as peculiarly grateful and strengthening after an attack of la grippe, when the appetite needs coaxing. Take one-quarter cupful of cream, add one level tablespoonful of sugar and flavor with one-quarter teaspoonful lemon or vanilla, or one teaspoonful chocolate shaved and melted. Whip until frothy and pour in a small covered cup. Set in a basin of cracked ice and salt, using one part of salt to three parts of ice, or put in a double boiler, using the lower part of the ice and salt. A tin cup with a handle will be found most convenient.

A clever idea for changing and freshening the air in a sick room and at the same time affording a mild spectacular entertainment for a patient unable to move is the following: Put a teaspoonful of the whole coffee berries in a saucer and set where the invalid can see it. Fill it up with toilet water—eau de cologne or perfumery—and set fire to it. If this is done when the room is dark the effect will be found especially pretty and the change of air most refreshing.

Still another excellent dish for invalids who must have all their foods cold is frozen beef tea. Put a small pail in a wooden bucket and surround it with salt and crushed ice, taking care that no salt finds its way into the pail. Put cold beef tea in the pail and let it stand ten or fifteen minutes. At the end of that time uncover and scrape the congealed beef tea from the sides. Beat well and replace the cover. Do this two or three times and the tea will be frozen smooth.

A pretty conceit in the way of framing a number of small unmounted photographs or blue prints is to take a panel-shaped piece of dark gray cartridge paper and paste the edges of the pictures face downward on the back. Arrange them irregularly, or in lines or groups, as preferred. When dry turn over on the right side, and with scissors or the fingers tear open the paper covering the face of the picture in irregular points, turning them back after the manner of a calyx. Pretty effects are also obtained by burning the points into rough edges with a match.

An inexpensive but excellent floor covering when bare floors are impossible by reason of chill or roughness, is found in denim or burlap of some neutral tint. Line with thick layers of newspaper and stretch and tack tightly to the sides. Over this rugs may be spread as desired. When a large center rug is used the denim or burlap may be simply used as a "filling" about the sides.

Scalloped tomatoes make an excellent supper dish for a cold winter's night. Fill a pudding dish with alternate layers of seasoned tomatoes and dried bread crumbs, having the topmost layer of buttered crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for an hour or longer, according to the depth. Uncover and brown for ten or fifteen minutes.

For stains on the hands there is nothing better than a little salt with enough lemon juice to moisten it, rubbed on the spots and then washed off with clear water.—Washington Star.

WASTING STRENGTH.

How Women May Economize in the Expenditure of Physical Force.

Women are apt to confine their idea of waste to things tangible and material. The waste of emotion and nervous force is mentioned, and attention is also called to "the foolish expenditure of physical power on the part of the best housekeepers which might easily be conserved. What is the use of standing to perform tasks which might be done quite as well sitting? Dressing one's hair, usually a tiresome process, regulating bureau drawers and boxes, mixing cake, even washing dishes and ironing, can all be done satisfactorily in a sitting posture. Going up and down stairs is far more fatiguing than necessary; if only women would practice ascending properly, that is, at a moderate gait, with chest erect and the foot planted squarely on each stir. By a little attention to these details women can do much to lessen the daily waste of tissue and prevent physical bankruptcy." Perhaps this a suggestion worthy of consideration. The world's busiest and most efficient men do their work while sitting.—Congregationalist.

Oyster Potpie.

Put the oysters into a vessel having a tight cover. Season generously with butter, pepper and salt, drop in tiny biscuits made of either very light-raised dough or a light baking powder dough, and cook (tightly covered) ten minutes. A little thickening should be added to the oysters before the cooking. Another way to make potpie is this: Drain the oysters, and to the liquor add an equal quantity of veal stock, season as above, add a little thickening, and drop in the biscuits and cook (covered) for 12 minutes. Heat the drained oysters in another saucepan just long enough to curl their beards, add them to the finished biscuits and liquor or sauce and serve at once.—Chicago Evening News.

Some Facts, Figures and Fiction of the Footlights

Comparative Box Office Receipts Seem to Favor the Clean Play

IN the spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of new clothes perhaps quite as often as to thoughts of love. In the spring, just as surely as the wanton lapwing gets himself another crest, just as surely the young woman's imaginings are filled with visions of gay headgear and fresh apparel. Even the old feel the incongruity of bright spring days and shabby attire, and endeavor to bring their raiment in harmony with the season. And so when all the world is agog on the question of clothes, a word about one of the best-dressed actresses of the day may not be amiss.

Miss Annie Russell, who has added considerably to her reputation as a charming actress in her season's play, "Miss Hobbs," has delighted her audiences not only with her artistic work but with her artistic gowns. And such a number of gowns as there are. First the cream cloth costume with Eton jacket, white taffeta waist, pale blue taffeta toque trimmed only with a big knot of black velvet, is beautifully simple as well as simply beautiful. The dress of automobile crepe is aesthetically soft and clinging, but modish to a degree. Another automobile crepe, this one of pastel blue, with yellow lace and filmy white mull, is almost as dainty and exquisite as a fringed gentian. A creation of blue gauze and yellow Brussels lace, with a rose-colored ribbon to intensify the blue, is a dream. An all-black gown of crepe de chine and lace; an all-white gown of satin and tulle; a white net over pink, adorned with yellow lace and pink-beribboned white taffeta frills, suggest that this man-hater, contrary to the popular opinion in regard to women of that class, possesses and indulges in a love for dress.

"When We Were Twenty-One" is the name of a new play in which Mr. Goodwin and Miss Elliott have lately appeared. It deals with four old bachelors who endeavor to keep a young friend of theirs in the straight and narrow way, out of remembrance for the day when they were 21. But the young man escapes to the broad road, and marries a woman who has a past, a present, and is to have a future, not of a sort to aid a youth to a return to the path of virtue. The spoiled boy, the elderly advisers, Miss Elliot's part, but especially the senior guardian, Mr. Goodwin's role, are very well played. "When We Were Twenty-One" is bright, clever, real and bids fair to have a wide popularity.

We are told repeatedly the public are responsible for the vicious plays, that a manager, just to protect himself, dare not offer anything that has not in it a considerable dash of fast life. To be sure, Olga Nethersole with the widely advertised wickedness of her play did in Chicago take in $12,000 for her best week's business, and Mrs. Leslie Carter's receipts with "Zaza" were $29,000 for two weeks; but last year Maud Adams, with nothing more corrupt than "The Little Minister," averaged $12,600 for five weeks, and one week the receipts were $15,000. Other artists who find their work profitable are Mansfield, Sothern, Goodwin, William Gillette, Viola Allen and William Crane. The musicians, some of them, have decided financial success. Paderewski's net profits for the season of 1897-98 were $200,000, enough to enable him to indulge in matrimony, country places and various other extravagances. When Irving was over here in 1885 the receipts for the season's tour were $400,000. Sir Henry's gains in his recent three weeks' engagement in Chicago were $75,000, a neat little sum towards building up his finances.

Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske is as satisfying an artist as one often sees, and never more so than this season when she portrays the life of that world-renowned adventuress, Becky Sharp. It was a brave thing to do, to attempt the staging of a Thackeray novel, but Mrs. Fiske is a brave woman, a woman whose courage has been tried by adversity and not infrequent failures. Her present high place on the ladder of fame was not reached by repeated ascendings, but rungs were lost and gone over many a time. The gift of continuance belongs to this lady, as well as many other gifts helpful in the attainment of ambition, and we applaud all the more enthusiastically a race won by strenuous and persistent effort.

When a little mite of a girl Minnie Maddern ran away from her sleeping nurse out into the dark nights to look for her mother, who was playing at a theater some distance from the hotel, and succeeded in reaching the playhouse, the stage and her mother's arms. Very soon after this adventure she took children's parts in various plays and began a long apprenticeship in the theater. Now, with a finished art and a practical knowledge of stage requirements, she is able to snap her fingers at the theatrical trust, start out with a company of her own and put on the stage that well-known classic, "Vanity Fair," whose stage name is "Becky Sharp."

The Fifth Avenue theater in New York with Mrs. Fiske and "Becky Sharp" had the greatest success it has had in years, and "Becky Sharp's" Chicago engagement has crowded the Grand opera house night after night to its full capacity. Langdon Mitchell, in adapting "Vanity Fair" for the stage, essayed a very difficult piece of work, but Mrs. Fiske and he together have given us a character study that will not soon be forgotten. Becky, penniless, ambitious, attractive, clever and unscrupulous, but who—as she puts it—"could have been virtuous on five thousand a year." The five thousand was lacking; Becky hastily marries young Rawdon Crawley and repents at leisure that she didn't marry the older and richer man. Rawdon is clumsy and poor and stupid, and the wife must make the most of her wits to achieve and hold a place in the high life she aspires to. Lord Steyn, that wretched old rake, appears on the scene, and Becky apparently falls a victim to the marquis' wiles—each thinks himself the charmer; and while submitting to the caresses of the horrid old creature is surprised by the entrance of her husband, who may be stupid and clumsy, but is able to knock a man down when occasion demands. Later, Becky takes her besmirched life into obscurity, and she that considered the end justifies the means finds there has been brought about no success, nothing but dreary, miserable failure and exile. We leave the theater with something of pity in our hearts for this girl who felt herself forced to make her woman's way in the big, hard world by tricks of deceit and subterfuge.

Mrs. Fiske's "Becky Sharp" is adjudged one of if not the most important dramatic events of the year.

THE STUDY OF BUGS.

Pursued for the Benefit of Farmers as Well as Consumers.

Our Washington Correspondent Describes a Visit to the Most Interesting Branch of the Agricultural Department.

[Special Washington Letter.]

WHILE the insecticides, vermicides, germicides and microbe killers are diligently engaged in efforts to destroy certain forms of life, there are scientists in government employment who are making strenuous efforts to hatch obnoxious insects and their parasites.

Under the direction of the department of agriculture, in a building erected specifically for that purpose, insects are bred and reared in a large glass conservatory which serves as a hothouse for the propagation of bugs of scores of species. They are as carefully cared for as the eggs in chicken incubators, and are given plenty of light and warm, moist air all through the winter and during the damp or chilly days and nights of spring and autumn.

Although it is conceded that the greatest study of man is man, there are scientists who seem to have accomplished all that they desire in that direction, and they devote their waking hours to the study of bugs, beetles and all of the forms of minute animal life. In all sorts of jars, from a small jelly glass to a large glass globe of kettle form, they have insects in various states of development. The daily history of each insect is carefully noted, and all of its transformations are historically treated for several generations.

In one of these jars there are two sunflower heads infested with the larvae of beetles. These larvae have buried themselves in the sand with which the vessel is partly filled, and there they have been hibernating for four months. Very soon they will be set out in the sunlight. They will then emerge as perfect beetles, will lay eggs in the sunflowers and a new generation will be watched with solicitude and interest.

The careful study of these things has been fostered by the department of agriculture in order that ultimately the best methods of destroying the pests, and preventing their propagation, may be discovered by those who make specific study of these subjects. Some time this spring the department will issue bulletins for farmers, giving all of the information which has been acquired during the past 12 months in these studies.

One of the officials, upon being complimented upon the value of the work which is being done, said: "We are doing some good, but of course it is very little! You must understand that there are about 10,000,000 species of insects, and we are treating them by scores instead of by millions. Human knowledge is exceedingly small, and our investigations are circumscribed. But if we can help our agriculturists even a little bit we are doing a good work. Men who give their lives to scientific inquiry naturally become moral philosophers. We realize the vastness of the forms and qualities of creation and are lost in awe. Many generations of mankind must come and go before we have anything like a comprehensive scientific cyclopedia of these things.

"We see death and life here together. We see insects die, and out of their death we see new life arise. The ordinary illustration of the butterfly emerging from the death form of its predecessor we see multiplied indefinitely in these studies. Here in this jar is a twig infested with little worms. They will die very soon, and out of their decayed forms will come full-fledged beetles. In this jar are several immature grasshoppers, buried in the earth. They have been there six years. Eleven years more will elapse, when they will come forth from their graves as full-fledged locusts of the 17-year variety.

"Naturally, we who see and study these phenomena of nature are not staggered with the statements of theologians that out of the death of human beings there will arise new forms of life. There is a very slight border line of demarkation between science and philosophy. Science ascertains facts. Philosophy asks: 'Why?' and tries to give the reason. Theology goes a little farther. But all students, all scientists, philosophers and theologians are striving for the advancement of human knowledge. And sometimes our bitter divergences and controversies result in bringing forth truths which might never be developed but for the earnestness and increased energy which are let loose by acrimony and controversy."

But to return to the jars: In one of them, which is half full of beans, there are hundreds of bean-eating bugs which will continue to live and reproduce their kind so long as the food supply is continued. In one small jelly glass there is a large Irish potato, where a lot of little flies have laid their larvae, and the potato is fairly riddled with the holes which have been made by the larvae. Another larger glass jar contains a few yucca pods. In the sand beneath them are buried a number of grubs which have deserted the yucca pods. Some time in April they will emerge, not as grubs, but as moths. The yucca will then be blossoming, and the moths will live on the blossoms. Nature supplies food for all manner of life, and the food-eating insects bring death to these forms of vegetable life.

One of the strangest things in this collection of wonders is the fact that half a dozen huge oak galls hot only nourish the gall bugs, but protect their destroyers. Just as a cancer is concealed within the body of a human being and protected from medical and surgical agencies while it eats away a human life, the oak is stung in hundreds of places by gnatlike insects; forms over the injured parts, where eggs are deposited, odd-looking growths which protect the offspring of the gall bug until they are able to come forth, lay other eggs, and perhaps sting the very stem which fostered them.

A microscope is required to see the wood-boring larvae. In one jar, which is partially filled with sawdust instead of sand, several pieces of bark are to be seen, completely riddled and honeycombed by wood-borers. They bury themselves in the sawdust during the the winter, just as others bury themseles in the sand. When they come forth and are large enough to be seen with the naked eye, they are removed, killed and stuck on pins in boxes, according to their species, numbered and described in the scientific library of reference books. Each insect has its scientific name, and the students here give the full history of its development.

Dealers in large quantities of wheat and flour have lost on their investments, sometimes heavily, because flour beetles and wheat moths have destroyed their property. Here in a jelly glass containing a little wheat flour are some of the beetles at work. They are watched in their progress from egg to larvae and from larvae to beetle. The wheat worms and joint worms are seen feeding upon the stems of the wheat plant. There are also jars showing the work of root-devouring bugs. When they have eaten up the roots in their jars they come to the surface, but cannot escape, because inverted jars cover them. They do not burrow through the ground. They eat roots destroying plant life. Then they come to the surface and travel to the nearest contiguous plant, burrow to its roots, and begin their deadly work.

Most singular of all to an uneducated observer of these singular things is the fact that upon all of these insects the microscope discloses parasites, which devour the insects themselves. Long years ago Dr. Johnson said: "Great fleas have little fleas upon their backs to bite 'em; while they, in turn, have lesser ones, and so ad infinitum."

The writer was not a great scientist, but he had some idea of what these learned students of insect life have disclosed so plainly. Cyrano de Bergerae, in the sixteenth century, wrote of some discoveries of the same kind, made by himself. But these writers were only able to imagine that what they saw with the naked eye must be going on in the lower forms of life. There is no imagination, however, in the things which are now to be seen in the agricultural department, and in the scientific institutions of some of the great universities.

This study of parasites is distinct from the study of the insects. When it is known that certain parasites speedily destroy the insects, the parasites are cultivated and encouraged to increase and multiply. The oranges of California which have been destroyed by the fluted scale insect are now saved by the dissemination of the Australian ladybug, which preys upon the scale, but does not injure the oranges. The chinch bugs of Kansas are being destroyed by the fungus which eats the chinch.

This is the practical part of the story. These bug students have learned which parasites will kill the bugs, and then they have sent the parasites forth on their mission in various sections of the country. Vegetation is destroyed by the insects, and the insects are destroyed by the parasites. By putting into the field big armies of parasites the insects are eaten up, and vegetation is saved from its almost invisible enemies.

These pale-faced young men and these bald-headed veterans in the science of bugology are quietly doing a whole lot of good for all of us; for the farmers in the fields, and for the dwellers in cities who depend upon the farmers for the food which sustains their lives.

SMITH D. FRY.

HELPED THE POSTMAN.

New Orleans Dog Took Great Pride in the Performance of a Self-Imposed Duty.

"I lost a faithful friend and helper a few days ago," said a letter carrier whose route lies below Canal street. "He was a yellow dog, and I must confess his appearance was not exactly—er—prepossessing. His hide was the color of cheap soap, and he had the disreputable, skulking, trampish bearing peculiar to yellow dogs generally, but for all that he was a gentleman at heart. We met in the way of business. His owner was what letter carriers call a 'throw-out;' in other words, he lived two extra long squares from his nearest neighbor, and to deliver the mail he received almost every day involved a four-square walk for each batch. Four squares means a good deal to a tired carrier, and as a rule 'throw-outs' are anything but popular with the craft, but soon after I took the route the yellow dog got to know my whistle, and would come rushing to the corner to get the mail.

"He kept that up steadily, rain and shine, for over a year, and never missed a trip. What's more, he showed a pride and interest in the task that was really half human. Sometimes, for instance, he would be a little late and find me on the way to the house when he got out of the yard. Then it was comical to see him come tearing up the street, every hair bristling, and saying, as plainly as he could: 'Stop! Hold on! I'm here! Don't budge another inch!' On such occasions he would always insist on going back to the corner, which was the only place he recognized officially for the delivery of mail matter.

"You can judge whether I became attached to him. Often he would be waiting for me, cocking his head to one side and feeling his importance from his yellow stump of a tail to his yellow stump of a nose. If I had nothing for him he showed his dejection and disappointment as plainly as a man, but as soon as he saw me sort out a few letters he would give a sharp, joyous bark that sounded enough like a laugh to be the real thing. When his owner met me the other day and told me he was dead I couldn't say a word to save my life. I turned and walked off, and before I knew it I was blubbering like a fool."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

BRUIN STEALS A SLED.

And Then He Coasts Down a Steep Hill to His Great Sorrow and Mortification.

There were five brothers of us, and we lived in a house in Vermont at the top of a long and steep hill. Father built us a stout sled to coast on in the winter, and the five of us used to get on and go whizzing down the hill and away across a meadow. When there was plenty of snow the sled would run for half a mile.

One afternoon, after we had been coasting for three or four hours, we left the sled at the top of the hill without making it fast. That night, about ten o'clock, a bear came prowling around the house, and our dog made such a fuss that we were all aroused. There was a bright moon, and we looked from the windows to see what had disturbed the dog. Almost at once we made out the bear. He was walking around the sled as if wondering what it was used for. Pretty soon he stopped and put a paw on it. Then he put up the other paw. Then what did he do but pull himself up and stand and look about! The sled was pointed down hill, and the movement of the bear started it off. We thought he would jump off, but he didn't. He dug in his claws, and the sled began to go faster and faster, and we got so excited that we gave Bruin a cheer. When the steepest part of the hill was reached the bear seemed to get scared. Never before had he gone at a pace like that. Had he kept still the sled would have gone straight ahead, but he swayed to and fro, and suddenly the sled left the track and ran over the hard snow and struck a stone wall with a great crash.

That was as far as the sled went, as it was badly broken up, but the bear kept on. When the sled struck the stones he went flying ten feet high, and next day we found that he came down ten feet beyond the wall, and then rolled down hill for 100 feet before he could stop himself. He must have been badly frightened, for as soon as he could get on his legs he ran for the woods and was heard of no more. He was probably the only bear in America who ever coasted on a hand-sled, but one trip was enough for him.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

PIER FAMILY, ALL MEMBERS SUPREME COURT BAR.

WHEN, in February of this year, Miss Kate H. Pier, member of the United States supreme court bar, moved that her mother and sister, Mrs. Kate H. Pier and Miss H. H. Pier, of Milwaukee, be admitted to practice before the supreme court, the women members of that bar became 20 in number, and four of these are of the Pier family. The fourth is Mrs. Caroline Pier-Roemer. Mrs. Kate Pier is the widow of Col. Pier, of Wisconsin. Mother and daughters studied law with the male head of the family during his lifetime, and after his death continued their studies. Mrs. Pier has practiced in Milwaukee for a number of years, and is a court commissioner. In the latter capacity she performed the ceremony at the marriage of her daughter, Caroline, to John H. Roemer, also a lawyer of Milwaukee.

MISS EVELYN LEASE

Daughter of the Famous Mary Elizabeth, of Kansas Fame, to Be a Public Lecturer.

Miss Evelyn Louise is the youngest woman lecturer in the United States. She is the 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Lease, the famous woman orator.

Miss Lease bids fair to rival her mother in the gift of oratory. She is studying law in New York city, with a view to a politico-legal career. She is tall, and has blue eyes, black hair and a fair skin. She has engaging manners and much personal magnetism. She made her debut as a public speaker at a meeting of the people's party in St. Louis eight years ago. She began with a child's recitation and launched into a woman suffrage speech. In ringing tones she said:

"You men must keep your promises and give us a suffrage plank. You all have been used to say: 'The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world,' but I say to you, gentlemen, if you do not keep your promise there will be no cradles to rock and no babies to put in them."

The child visited the Boys' Reform school at Topeka, and there addressed the 200 youths in the institution. She spoke with a maternal air, and the bad youngsters gave her most respectful attention.

Miss Lease, though a girl of gentle manners, has strong convictions. She is a vegetarian. She does not eat meat or eggs nor drink milk. Her voice is powerful in declamation and sweet in song. She has written several songs that have been set to music by Miss Jessie L. Clark, the director of music in the public schools of St. Louis. She and her younger sister Grace, have paraphrased some of Dickens' Christmas tales, dramatized and staged them in their old home in Wichita, Kan. Miss Lease will doubtless swell the number of young girls from "out of the west" who will achieve distinction in New York, which city her mother has recently chosen as her home.

Old-Fashioned Soda Biscuit.

An old California recipe for soda biscuit, dating from the days when baking powder was unknown, is still used in many kitchens of the old residenters, and with most admirable results. Given experience and practice, the tiny, spongy biscuit thus evolved are as light as the proverbial feather. A medium dough is mixed at night of sour milk, flour and a pinch of salt. In the morning this is rolled out on the molding board, with just a bit of flour to keep it from sticking, and over the top is sprinkled the tiniest bit of soda, bearing in mind that the sourer the milk the less soda used. Roll lightly and fold over. Repeat three times, cut into biscuit about the size of a silver dollar, and bake in a slower oven than is required for baking powder biscuit. —Washington Star.

A Preventive of Moths.

It is well to know that any strong, pungent smell will keep away moths. A mixture of cloves, cinnamon, orris root and other fragrant things may be substituted for camphor preparations with less disagreeable after effects.

BUILT BY CHILDREN.

Church in Wisconsin Owes Its Existence to the Work and Economy of Little Ones.

For a town to exist 50 years and yet have only one church organization which possesses its own building is strange enough, but when that building has been built entirely through the efforts of children and by money which they furnished and solicited, it becomes stranger still.

Just such an unusual condition of affairs exists to-day, according to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, in Schofield, a Wisconsin town which will soon celebrate its semi-centennial. The church belongs to the Christian Scientists, and the story of its erection is a most interesting one.

In 1896 Miss Mary E. Graves, a resident of Schofield, organized in her own home a Sunday school composed of 18 boys and girls of the village, ranging in age from 8 to 14 years.

For about two years and a half the school was conducted under the fostering care of Miss Graves, and in the latter part of 1898 its finances were in such a healthy condition that its members decided to build a church edifice.

The surplus in the treasury amounted to exactly nine dollars, all of which had been accumulated through weekly collections averaging from one cent to ten cents from each of the children.

With this sum in hand, the youthful members of the Sunday school appointed a building committee from their own number and proceeded to carry out their resolution to build a house of worship.

In a few days some well wisher of the children donated a site for the church building. A little later an unknown admirer sent a check for ten dollars, and on the heels of this contribution came $25 in cash from another source. The head of a large lumber concern in Schofield offered all of the building material required at nominal cost.

Just recently the church was completed and dedicated. It is a cozy structure, 20 by 40 feet, finished inside in hardwood and having a floor and pews of the same material. Its furnishings include a handsome reading desk and apparatus for heating and lighting. The seating capacity is 100.

On the day after the dedication Treasurer Alfred Glasson, 14 years of age, announced with an air of dignified satisfaction that every obligation of the building committee had been paid, and that there was a surplus of $2.27 in the treasury.

The church organization is thoroughly democratic, the children electing their own officers and managing the business affairs of the organization in all its details.

With the exception of Miss Graves, the first reader, the church offices are filled by children.

How to Fricassee Parsnips.

Two tablespoonfuls of broth, a piece of mace, one-half cupful of milk, one ounce butter, a little flour, pepper and salt, parsnips. Peel and wash the parsnips and boil them in milk till quite soft; drain them and cut them in pieces lengthwise two or three inches long; put them in a sauce made of the broth, milk, butter, flour and seasoning; simmer all together for a quarter of an hour and serve.

FERTILIZERS.

LAST year we aimed to convince the Farmers and Gardeners that it was unnecessary when buying Fertilizers to pay from thirty to fifty per cent more than they are worth, simply because some "other fellow" forgets to pay his bills, and it has become the habit of the fertilizer trade to make the good pay for the bad.

If you pay your bills we want to sell you and you will not have to pay for other customers who don't pay, as we dont have that kind.

The laws of this State protect the purchaser of Fertilizers, and all that is necessary is to see that he gets what he pays for.

CLOVER SEED.

We have the cheapest in result, but not in price. The same is true of our Timothy Seed. Ask those who bought it last Fall.

SEED OATS.

Oats raised for seed, absolutely clean and as cheap as a good article can be sold for.

If you have money to throw away don't come to us, as we cannot accommodate you; our prices being the same to every one, naturally must be made to fit the close buyer.

Barn Burned Near Dunellen.

A small barn on the Batchelder place near "the tanks" southwest of Dunellen, was destroyed by fire about 10 o'clock last night. The building was entirely destroyed together with its contents. The place had been leased by Lawrence Reedy. The barn is thought to have caught fire from a brush fire in the woods near by. The loss will be about $500. The Dunellen fire department did not turn out owing to the great distance from any hydrant.

at all likely to take this evening concerning the question is to set a date for a public hearing. The date will probably be Monday, April 9. Then the advocates and objectors will have an opportunity to say anything they want to. Of course, a public hearing is never an exact representation of the general public opinion on the question, but it tends to draw out the arguments for and against the question, and indirectly starts the public into privately making its wishes known to its representatives in the Council.

PROTEST AGAINST LICENSE.

Business Men Will Ask Council Not to Grant the Application of John Mortimer.

A petition is being circulated among the business men of the city today protesting against the granting of a license to John Mortimer to conduct a wholesale liquor business on Park avenue. It is headed by Mayor Rockfellow, and is being signed by nearly every merchant in the whole city. It argues that there is no necessity for another wholesale place in the city, and that it will be a bad policy for the city to commence granting wholesale licenses under the circumstances which surrounds this application.

Why the Bell Was Not Rung.

Henry P. Seader, of Lincoln place, is the latest victim of that miserable plauge, the mumps. Mr. Seader is sexton of Trinity Reformed church and was not able to attend to his duties yesterday, although his position was very ably filled by Mr. Laire, chairman of the wardens of the church, assisted by Chas. Remsen, and the church was nicely heated and ventilated. The only thing left undone was the ringing of the church bell for the various services. A conference between Mr. Laire and Mr. Remsen proved that the former was too large to climb the ladder and go through the opening leading to the belfry, and the latter was to small to ring the bell, therefore the bell remained silent yesterday.

Leg Was Crushed

A young man named Trotter from Bound Brook, eighteen years old, had one leg crushed at the factory of the Hollinghead, Wiertz & Gruart Co., at Lincoln, this morning. He was removing a belt from a pulley, when he became entangled in it. One leg was crushed and he was cut and bruised about the shoulder. He was brought to the Muhlenberg Hospital early this afternoon in the ambulance. His injuries are serious but not fatal.

Burning Brush.

The burning of a large quantity of brush back of the house on Orchard place in the borough formerly occupied by Edward White, caused a still alarm to be sent in yesterday about 5 o'clock. TAKEN ILL SAYING MASS.

Rev. Father Brennan Overcome on the Altar in the Stony Hill Church Yesterday Morning.

Rev. Father Brennan, assistant rector at St. Joseph's R C. church in North Plainfield, was taken suddenly ill while conducting the 8:30 a. m. mass at the Stony Hill church yesterday, and was compelled to suspend the rest of the service and dismiss the congregation. The incident caused considerrble excitement and the condition of the priest caused a good deal of apprehension till Dr. Zeglio, of Somerset street, could arrive at his side. After giving him temporary treatment, Father Brennan was brought to the parish house on Manning avenue, where he is now confined. His illness is not critical, but he will be compelled to take a rest from his pastoral duties.

REILLEY GETTING WELL.

Recovering From the Poisonous Effects of Columbian Spirits Which He Drank.

John Reilly, who was taken to the hospital Saturday suffering with acute gastritis, brought on by drinking Columbian spirits, seems to be steadily but slowly improving. His eyesight is also improved and he is now able to discern objects passing back and forth. After the man rallied from the effects of the poisonous drink he seemed to realize what he had done and he feels very sorry for his mistake. The spirits were taken a week ago yesterday when it was impossible for Reilly to get what he desired to relieve him from the distress in his stomach. The chances of his recovery seems to be excellent.

CLAIM THERE IS FRAUD.

Insurance Company to Contest the Claim of Agnes Collins.

Saturday papers were filed at New Brunswick by Lawyer Irving L. Brady, of this city, in the case of Agnes Collins against The German-American Insurance Company, of New York. Mr. Brady represents the Insurance Company, and ex Senator Robert Adrain is Mrs. Collins' counsel.

The case involves the effect of misrepresentation and false swearing as to value and ownership of the goods upon the power to collect under the policy for damages by fire. The plaintiff's goods were later consumed by fire and she now seeks to recover therefore, but the insurance company claims that her fraud vitiated the policy.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1900. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR.

$88,000 IS NEEDED TO RUN THE CITY

Budget of Appropriations Fixed by the Common Council Last Night.

NO INCREASE IN TAX RATE.

HEARING ARRANGED FOR CITY HALL PROJECT.

Next Monday People Will Have a Chance to be Heard—Strong Remonstrance Against Granting Mortimer License.

The chief topic of importance considered at the regular meeting of the Common Council last night was that regarding the amount of money to be raised for the city's expense during 1900. Although the total sum required is $88,000, a trifle more than last year, the chances are that the tax rate will be the same, $2.56, and it is possible that it may be a trifle less. For the general fund, which includes the police, the sum of $38,000 is wanted. The street department wants $22,000, which is $4,000 less than last year. For lighting the city the sum of $12,400 is asked, an increase of $400 over last year. The principal on bonds, etc., is fixed at $5,600, which is $1,600 more than last year, while the interest on obligations is the same, $5,000. The appropriation for the poor is fixed at $2,500, $1,500 less than last year. The appropriation for the public library is fixed at $4,000, which is $1,800 less than last year, and the fire department asks for $20,500, which is an increase of $2,500.

Mr. VanHerwerden introduced an ordinance incorporating the above accounts, and it was adopted on the first and second readings, and then ordered advertised. Although the tax rate has not yet been officially announced it can be stated with reasonable certainty that it will not be any more than last year.

A petition was received asking that West Second street, between Central avenue and Liberty street, be macadamized, but as the petition was not signed it was ordered returned. J. F. MacDonald petitioned for the right to raise the roof on his building at 186 East Front street and make other improvements. Residents of Centre and East Sixth streets petitioned for two lights on the above streets. The Electric Light Company notified the Council that a light had been placed under the Grant avenue bridge. Mr. Lee stated, however, that it was on the wrong side of the street, and the committee will see that it is changed.

The City Hall committee submitted a report in which they stated that fourteen sites had been offered to them. Of that number they presented five as the most desirable. They are the Gardner property, $15,000; Thos. McDonald property, $19,500; J. F. MacDonald property, $25,000; Durlach property, $30,000; property corner of Fifth street and Park avenue, $20,000. The committee then recommended that a special meeting be held next Monday evening when a public hearing can be given for and against the project.

John Ross petitioned for the privilege of erecting a fruit stand near the Love building on Watchung avenue. The stand to be 4x12 and seven feet high. The matter was referred to the street committee, and later in the evening was denied. Charles Hyde and others asked for a fire hydrant on Berkley avenue. Mayor Rockfellow nominated Thomas Macson as a special policeman and the appointment was confirmed.

City Judge Runyon's quarterly report showed that 58 prisoners had been before him and $129.06 was collected in fines. Building Inspector Doane reported that eight permits were granted during March.

Mr. VanHerwerden offered three resolutions. The first transferreed $2,000 from the general to the fire fund; the second provided for the retirement of $3,000 street improvement bonds with interest, and the third resolution designated Collector Martin as collector of delinquent taxes for 1898 taxes, and provides that City Judge Runyon execute warrants for the collections, after which he shall make returns to Collector Martin.

Mr. Tolles reported that the bids of A. I. and N. B. Smalley for furnishing crushed stone, and A. Kane for culverts and crosswalks, were the lowest and he recomended that they be accepted and the City Clerk be authorized to execute the necessary bonds for contracts. Mr. Mellick recommended the granting of two lights on Leland avenue and one on East Third street, in front of S. R. Hope's resi-

BUILDING IS GOING ON.

SEVERAL COSTLY HOUSES WILL BE PUT UP THIS SUMMER.

Refutes the Idea That Because Some Materials Have Increased in Price Work is to Stop.

It is simply ridiculous for anyone to imagine that because some building materials have taken a jump in price that all building is going to stop, and that it should be a reason for the Common Council to give up the City Hall project. There is going to be plenty of building this year, and large contracts already have been given out.

C. VanHerwerden will soon commence the erection of three new houses on Woodland avenue near LaGrande avenue. Manning & Runyon will soon commence the erection of a handsome house on Belvidere avenue. In addition to these new houses, arrangements are rapidly being completed to build a large iron factory in the east end of the city, where fully one hundred men will be employed. Contracts will soon be given out for the new safe factory that is to be built in the west end of the city. These are some of the more recent improvements that are to be made.

Beside the above it might be mentioned that Otto Arens has started the erection of his elegant new home that will cost about $40,000, and D. H. Rowland is soon to build a residence that will cost fully $5,000. These facts do not signify that the building business will be quiet, but on the other hand it gives unmistakable evidence that it will be brisk. It sometimes happens that the person who cries the loudest against a public improvement is the man who pays the least tax. This is true of the proposed widening of Somerset street in the borough, and is also true in this city as regards the erection of a City Hall.

HACKMEN IN COURT.

Three Johns Charged With Violating City Ordinance.

Roundsman Flynn had a little group of hackmen before City Judge Runyon this morning on the charge of violating the hack ordinance by soliciting passengers from the sidewalk. They were William Callahan, John Martin and Henry Hankinson. The hackmen explained that they had been standing on the sidewalk in front of the station when several passengers had appeared. Callahan and Hankinson rushed to their horse's heads. Then the passengers summoned Callahan to drive them to their destination.

The Judge said that he thought the officer had been deceived by appearances and discharged the prisoners.

Echo of Dr. Yerkes' Golden Wedding.

The New Jersey Baptist Bulletin for April, with a picture and biographical sketch of Rev. Dr. Yerkes, quotes an interesting forecast from Dr. Bright in the New York Examiner, at the time of Dr. Yerkes' settlement here in 1863. "We expect our friend Yerkes will, if his life is spared, be the Plainfield pastor long enough to become one of the Baptist patriarchs of New Jersey." The Bulletin adds, "This prophecy has been fulfilled. No other minister of the denomination in the State is preaching now, as active pastor, who had charge of a Baptist church in 1863."

Police Duty at Station House.

The new order of things at the police station provide that Sergeant Kiely shall remain on duty there during the night, and the night roundsman is supposed to look after his own territory and that of the sergeant. How long this will be the rule cannot be told. It was the intention of the police board to have either Patrolman Flanagan or Patrolman McCue do day duty or night duty there and change off every month.

Building Sets Over the Line.

Mrs. Hannah Durlach, owner of the property corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue, will receive a notice this week from the city authorities to remove her building back six feet. It has been discovered that her building extends that many feet over the line and the officials do not want to establish any precedents in this way by allowing persons to encroach on property that they do not own.

A "Clipping" Meeting.

The April meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It is requested that all the members bring their scissors as it will be a "clipping meeting." Mr. Mettiar will also give a talk on the lumber camps.

—Mrs. L. Adams, of 114 East Front street, will have her Easter display of spring millinery, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Ladies wishing to see a pretty showing of hats, turbans and bonnets are invited to call and inspect the same.

FORMER MAYOR TALKED

Mr. Place Delivered an Address to the North Plainfield Students This Morning.

Former Mayor Charles Place, of the borough, delivered the third and last of a series of talks to the scholars of the Borough Public High School this morning on the subject of "Noted Sayings of Some Great Men." He began with Luther and mentioned those famous at the battle of Waterloo, Napoleon, Wellington and Blucher. He then spoke of Lord Erskine, famous in English history, and of Washington, Jefferson, Franklin and Patrick Henry, men famous in the Revolution. Mr. Place then dwelt for a brief time on John Adams, Andrew Jackson and Abraham Lincoln. In conclusion he spoke of noted generals, including Gen. Dix, and he recited one of Eugene Field's poems.

The talk was greatly enjoyed by the scholars and they will undoubtedly be pleased of another opportunity to hear Mr Place.

HOTEL BEECHWOOD'S LICENSE.

Probability That Summit Excise Board Will Not Grant It.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Summit, April 3.—At a special meeting of the Excise Board held yesterday the members decided to postpone consideration of the application of the Hotel Beechwood for a liquor license for one week. The indications are that the application will be denied, as all three members of the board declare that under the excise ordinance it did not seem possible to grant the license legally. The ordinance provides that all applications must be filed before the first Tuesday in February.

The application of Catharine Morrissey for a hotel license, which was filed in February, was granted.

Former Plainfield Woman Dead.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Glen Gardner, April 3.—Mrs. Jennie Bird, formerly a resident of Plainfield, but for the last five years a resident of this place, died suddenly yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock from convulsions caused by Bright's disease. Mrs. Bird had been in her usual good health, and Sunday afternoon attended the funeral of T. Perry Risley. Her death was a severe shock to her many friends. She leaves a married daughter who lives in Brooklyn, a single daughter about fourteen years of age with whom she lived, and a younger daughter who is an inmate of the New Jersey Home for Epileptics.

Death of a Young Man.

The death of T. Perry Risley, aged 21 years, a former resident of this city, occurred last week Wednesday at his home, Glen Gardner, where he and his mother took up their residence a year and a half ago. The funeral services were held last Sunday and were very largely attended. The deceased was a member of the Jr. O. U. A. M., and I. O. R. M., of High Bridge, and the Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Glen Gardner, and the organizations turned out in a body. Mr. Risley was employed in the Taylor Iron Works, where he was highly esteemed by everyone.

Verdict for Plaintiff.

In the action of Peter Zimmerman, of Bound Brook, against Dr. J. S. Cooley, of this city, tried last Thursday before Justice Brampton to recover $50 alleged to be due in payment for an engine, the court has rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for the amount claimed. W.S. Angleman for plaintiff and Peter Zimmerman for defendant.

New Store on Somerset Street.

The first store to be erected on Somerset street in the borough in sometime is now underway. The work of excavating the cellar for the store, which is to be located adjoining Surrogate Spencer's property, was started this morning. F. H. C. Eggerding, the cigar manufacturer, is the builder.

Fair Chances of Recovery.

John Reilly, of New street, who is at the hospital suffering with acute gastritis, continues to improve very slowly. His eyesight remains about the same and so far as can be learned he cannot see any better than he could yesterday. However, the chances of his recovery seem to be very fair.

On a Trip to Cuba.

Miss May Coleman, daughter of Major and Mrs. F. W. Coleman, of this city, started this morning on a trip to Cuba. She sailed this afternoon on the United States transport "Sedgewick" for Havana where she will be the guest of Miss Humphrey, daughter of Gen. Humphrey, U. S. A.

A Correction.

"Modern Perversions of Justice" was the theme of Dr. Schenck's discourse Sunday evening and not "Modern Perverseness of Justice," as was printed in yesterday's edition of this paper.

BUILDING LAST LINK.

WORK ON THE RIKER TROLLEY COMMENCED IN ELIZABETH.

N x Friday Operations on the Arlington Avenue Extension Will Also be Started.

H. C. VanEmburg, civil engineer for the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, set a gang of men to work this morning on Jersey avenue in Elizabeth staking out the line of the trolley which the Riker-Hine syndicate will build over that thoroughfare from the city limits to connect with the North Jersey Traction Company's present line which ends at the intersection of West Jersey street with Jersey avenue in Elizabeth.

This is the first definite step that the Riker-Hine syndicate has taken towards making the connecting link in Elizabeth under the franchise granted by that city after a long and bitter fight. A large gang of men will be put to work tomorrow excavating for the tracks, and it is expected to have the line in operation within a month. The franchise is 2,600 feet. It is expected that when it is completed cars will run direct from Plainfield to the depots in Elizabeth.

He was picked up by two friends and assisted to his home. Dr. Zaglio was then called and at once determined that the man's condition was serious. The trouble seemed to be at the base of the skull and Jones has been in an unconscious condition since the accident. Late last evening his condition was a trifle improved, but it was a little worse this morning.

One-Legged Men to Fight It Out at the Polls.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April, 3—The battle of the cripples, so far as the First ward of this city is concerned, will be refought at the polls on election day. For Assessor of Taxes one-legged Candidate Dennis Long claims he was deprived of the nomination by a sharp trick played by the supporters of one-legged Assessor Martin Briody, who got their vote in early and then massed themselves in front of the polling booth about half an hour before the polls closed.

Then there was a regular wild football scrimmage until the time for voting expired, and about 150 persons were deprived of an opportunity to deposit their ballots.

Candidate Long claims he would have received the most of these votes and his friends have urged him to make another contest on election day.

CHURCH DEBT PAID OFF.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST FREE OF ENCUMBRANCES.

Disciples' Mission Will Hereafter Look Out for the Struggling Society.

The First Church of Christ is feeling happy because of a very pleasant incident which took place Sunday evening. The church has been struggling along for several months, as is generally known, under the burden of a heavy debt and the members had about despaired of meeting it. With the close of 1899 Rev. J. B. Cleaver, the first pastor of the church, retired from the pulpit, and it looked very much as though the new year would be anything but happy for the people. On the first Sunday in January, however, the Disciples' Mission arranged to hold evening services in return for the use of the church Sunday mornings. This arrangement has continued three months and commencing Sunday the mission accepted the call of the church to take full charge. This plan was agreed to by a majority of the membership.

One not recently regular in attendance became of ill health was President Huffman of the board of trustees. Sunday evening he was present, and after listening to a Bible reading by the superintendent of the mission, he conferred with Treasurer John Goodwin, and after learning the exact amount of the encumbrance, then and there placed in the treasurer's hands the entire sum needed to pay the debts, thus clearing the church of its burden.

The mission will now work with free hands, and all of the Christian people of Plainfield will rejoice to known that the church is renewing its youth under such pleasant circumstances. This mission is engaged in religious work in other parts of the State, and is accomplishing great good in undenominational work, and especially in Scripture reading and teachings.

ARCHITECTS CHANCE ON NEW HIGH SCHOOL

All Will Be Given an Opportunity In Submitting Designs for the Building.

PRIZES FIXED FOR THE BEST.

TAX RATE FOR SCHOOL EXPENSE A POINT LESS THAN LAST YEAR.

Abram Angleman Appointed to Take the School Census—Medical Examinations of Pupils—Music Hall for Commencement.

Every member of the Board of Education was present at last night's meeting when President Probasco rapped for order. Previous to the admission of the newspaper reporters the members discussed behind closed doors matters which the public cannot be enlightened upon by The Daily Press.

The most important business transacted, and in which the taxpayers are most interested, was regarding the building of the proposed new High School. Mr. Abbott, chairman of the committee on sites, said his committee had nothing to report but progress. Not so, however, with Mr. Lounsbury, chairman of the committee on architects. That gentleman submitted a resolution which was adopted to the effect that a list of architects should be made up and submitted to the Board. Resident architects are also to be allowed to present plans. The prizes to be offered are: First prize, the acceptance of the plan offered in competition; $260 for the second prize and $100 for the third prize.

The Board is also to select a competent person to act in the capacity of professional adviser to the Board while the new building is being erected. All local architects who desire to present plans in competition are "given permission," as one of the members expressed it, to compete for the prize.

The next business of importance brought up was the adoption of a resolution offered by Mr. Lounsbury making the annual requisition for the necessary funds for school purposes, the assessment on the taxable valuation of real estate being placed at 50-100 per cent. and for the purchase of text books and supplies at 4-100 per cent. Mr. Lounsbury explained that the total rate asked this year, beginning September next, was one point lower than last year.

The routine business transacted consisted in appointing Abram Angleman to take the annual school census; granting permission for the High School pupils to plant a class ivy on Arbor Day, near the High School building. The secretary said that the medical inspector had examined 25 pupils during March and $765 49 had been received from taxes and placed in the City Bank to the credit of the Board. There had also been received from the state appropriation $1,492.

The Clerk was authorized to engage Music Hall to be used for the High School commencement exercises, Thursday, June 21.

Supt. Maxson said he had notified Dr. Edward H. Biggs of the Board's desire to have him deliver an address before the graduation class. Dr. Biggs is at the head of the department of ethics of the Leland Stanford Jr. University of California.

Mr. Lounsbury called attention to an apparatus at present being experimented with at the Whittier building, which, it is claimed, produces a saving in the amount of coal and also provides a greater volume of heat. Permission was granted to try the contrivance on the furnace at the Irving building, no expense being charged for its use.

Then the Board again resolved itself into executive session.

To Recuperate at Atlantic City.

Floyd T. Woodhull, of the firm of Woodhull & Martin, left yesterday afternoon on the 2:12 train for New York, where he takes a fast express train to Atlantic City. He is accompanied by his friend, Charles W. Eoff, of Crescent avenue, who will remain with Mr. Woodhull during his stay at the seashore. Mr. Woodhull has been compelled to visit Atlantic City for the benefit of his shattered health. While there Mr. Woodhull and his friend will make their home at The Chalfonte.

Expect to Get Two More Cannon.

The members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., feel almost sure that they will be able to secure from the Government two additional cannon for their plot at Hillside cemetery. The committee from the post has been continued and efforts will be made to secure the extra cannon.

BLAME FOR DISASTER

British Commanders Criticised For the Latest Reverse.

OLIVIER'S ESCAPE A BLUNDER.

British Troops Showed Great Bravery, but Could Not Resist the Murderous Fire—Timely Arrival of Aid Prevented Annihilation.

LONDON, April 3.—The latest news from the front adds little to the public knowledge of the convoy disaster. No credence is given to reports that the Boers numbered between 8,000 and 10,000 men. The general belief is that there could not have been more than half that number, but the mere fact that even so many as half could have been collected so near headquarters without the knowledge of the British commanders provokes much uneasy criticism.

The disaster is regarded as a direct result of the inability of General French to cut off the commando of General Olivier and the other commandoes when escaping from the Orange river.

Lord Roberts' own dispatch, dated two hours later than The Daily Chronicle's, says nothing about the guns being recaptured. The story, therefore, looks doubtful.

Little news has arrived from other points. Kenhardt was formally reoccupied Saturday. The report that the Boers are massing in the vicinity of Taungs and Klipdam is confirmed.

Lord Methuen's difficulties are apparently increasing. He has Boer laagers or guerrilla bands on three sides of him, and he will be obliged to watch carefully his communications with the Orange river.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Chronicle, telegraphing Sunday and describing the loss of the convoy, says:

"The Boers opened with a murderous fire. It was simply slaughter. The Kaffir drivers of the convoy ran away, leaving their teams, and it was impossible for our men to hit the hidden enemy.

"Our gunners fought bravely trying to save the guns, but our people were greatly hampered by the Kaffirs, who ran hither and thither looking for cover from the fearful fire that poured in on all sides. Meanwhile the enemy were hotly pressing Colonel Broadwood, whose mounted troops were completely surrounded.

"The British showed magnificent bravery. The officers were quite cool and composedly directed operations. The opportune arrival of re-enforcements saved Colonel Broadwood from annihilation.

"The water supply was cut and the pumping gear destroyed, as well as the field telegraph. One hundred wagons were lost through the cowardice of the Kaffir drivers.

"It is reported that two guns have been recaptured. The whole force is retiring on Bloemfontein."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Standard says that the Prince of Teck was in charge of the transport, but is safe.

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts dated Bloemfontein April 1:

"I received news late yesterday afternoon from Colonel Broadwood, who was at Thaba N'chu, 38 miles east of here, that information had reached him that the enemy was approaching in two forces from the north and the east. He stated that if the report proved true he would retire toward the waterworks, 17 miles nearer Bloemfontein, where we have had a detachment of mounted infantry for the protection of the works.

"Broadwood was told in reply that the Ninth division, with Martyr's mounted infantry, will march at daylight today to support him and that if he considers it necessary he should retire from the waterworks. He moved there during the night and bivouacked. At dawn today he was shelled by the enemy, who attacked on three sides. He immediately dispatched two horse artillery batteries and his baggage toward Bloemfontein, covering some of them with his cavalry.

"Some two miles from the waterworks the road crosses a deep nullah, or spruit, in which during the night a force of Boers had concealed themselves. So well were they hidden that our leading scouts passed over the drift without discovering them, and it was not until the wagons and guns were entering the drift that the Boers showed themselves and opened fire. Many of the drivers of the artillery horses were immediately shot down at short range, and several of the guns were captured. The remainder galloped away, covered by Roberts' horse, which suffered heavily.

"Meanwhile Lieutenant Chestermasters of Rimington's scouts found a passage across the spruit unoccupied by the enemy, by which the remainder of Broadwood's force crossed. They reformed with great steadiness, notwithstanding all that had previously occurred.

"Broadwood's report, which has just reached me and which contains no details, stated that he had lost seven guns and all his baggage. He estimates all his casualties at about 350, including 200 missing.

"On hearing this morning that Broadwood was hard pressed, I immediately ordered General French, with two remaining cavalry brigades, to follow in support of the Ninth division. The latter, after a magnificent march, arrived on the scene of action shortly after 2 p. m.

"Broadwood's force consisted of the Royal Household cavalry, the Tenth hussars, G and Q batteries of the Royal Horse artillery and Pilcher's battalion of mounted infantry.

"The strength of the enemy is estimated at from 8,000 to 10,000, with guns, the number of which is not yet reported."

BOER TRAP WELL LAID.

Heartrending Scenes Where the British Were Ambushed.

BUSHMAN'S KOP, April 3.—Those following the scouts of General French's cavalry division to the scene of battle witnessed one of the most terrible spectacles of the war. Horses lay stiffened in the various attitudes of sudden death, and mingled among them were ghastly human bodies, with the wrecks of wagons and food and forage scattered wide. Everything told a terrible tale of surprise and carnage.

It would be impossible to conceive anything more ingenious than the Boer trap, and the only wonder is that a single man escaped.

On crossing the spruit, where the ground rises immediately toward a grassy knoll, with stony slopes facing the drift, one came upon an inclosure from which it was possible to fire over the drift. At this point the spruit makes a circular bend, while the south embankment, which is protected by the partially constructed railway embankment, enabled the enemy to pour in a galling fire on three sides as well as a double tier of fire in front.

When the convoy was first attacked, a scene of frightful confusion followed. The mules stampeded, and the wagons were overturned, while the concealed enemy poured in a deadly fire.

When the first battery appeared, the Boers seemed undesirous of continuing the slaughter and called upon the British to surrender. At that moment, however, U battery, which was escaping from the rear of the convoy under heavy fire, wheeled into action and began shelling the Boers with the four remaining guns. The Boers confess that this battery accounted for five killed and nine wounded of their losses.

Fighting About Mafeking.

PRETORIA, April 3.—Cannonading was again heard in the direction of Brandfort Saturday, and it is reported that heavy firing occurred Saturday around Mafeking. It is added that Colonel Plumer's relief column was compelled to retire with loss. No details have been received.

THE HILLIS INCIDENT.

Brooklyn Pastor Withdraws From the Presbyterian Church.

CHICAGO, April 3.—The resignation of Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, from the Chicago presbytery and the request that he be allowed to demit from the Presbyterian church was yesterday placed before the annual meeting of the Chicago presbytery.

Dr. Hillis' resignation was in the form of a letter to Dr. W. C. Gray, editor of The Interior and a personal friend of the Brooklyn pastor, and when the aged divine stepped upon the platform to present the letter to the Chicago presbytery the auditorium of Olivet Memorial church, in which the meeting was held, was crowded to the doors, nearly every Presbyterian minister in Chicago being present. The reading of the letter, which was a lengthy one, was followed with the closest interest. It was generally known before the meeting was called that Dr. Hillis' resignation would be presented, but his request that he be allowed to demit—in other words, that his name be erased from the rolls of the Presbyterian church—occasioned some surprise.

Silver Values Increase.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The quarterly statement of the director of the mint shows that the value of the silver coins of the world has increased from $0.59091 per ounce fine on Jan. 1, 1900, to $0.60220 on March 31, making an increase of $0.01129, which will be the basis for the calculations of customs officers receiving foreign coins. The monthly statement of the director of the mint shows that the total coinage at the mints of the United States during March to have been $17,075,688.

Trouble In German West Africa.

BERLIN, April 3.—Reports by mail and wire are arriving from the Cameroons, western Africa, which describe conditions there as precarious. Disaffection prevails among nearly all the tribes. The main cause is said to be the haughty and brutal treatment which the blacks receive. The German colonial department has called meetings of all interested in the Cameroons with a view of avoiding a further spread of disaffection and of obtaining sufficient help for the plantations.

Home Battalion Leaves Manila.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Adjutant General Corbin has received a cablegram from General Otis saying that the home battalion of the Fourteenth infantry, consisting of four officers and 211 men, has left Manila for San Francisco. This is the first movement under the new order whereby each regiment in the Philippines will hereafter constantly maintain a battalion in the United States to serve as a base for recruiting.

Supplies For Troops.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The Sloman line steamship Albenga has commenced to load for Singapore, Yokohama and Manila at the South Central pier, Brooklyn. She will take a large quantity of supplies for the United States soldiers at Manila. These consist of tan shoes, clothing, cooking utensils and medical supplies. This consignment appears to be far larger than the one that left two weeks ago on the Armenia.

Large Coal Deal.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., April 3.—One of the largest coal deals in the history of the Connellsville coke region has just been closed here. About 20,000 acres of coal lands was purchased by eastern capitalists from the original owners. In all some 70 farms were secured. The price paid was about $25 per acre. This coal is known as the Freeport vein and lies a little west of the center of the Connellsville coke region.

Daniel Webster In Jail.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 3.—At the trial of Daniel Webster, proprietor of the Mount Hope hotel, for wife beating Mrs. Webster testified that her husband had once poured oil on the floor of the house and threatened to burn it with her. She said he had also driven her from the house with an ax. Webster was sent to the county jail for 90 days.

CLEVELAND, April 3.—Two strikes were inaugurated in the building trades yesterday which involved almost 500 men and threw out of work 300 additional men. The plumbers were the first to strike.

in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

NOT AIMED AT ROOSEVELT.

Primary Law Amendments Had His Sanction—Seeking More Income.

ALBANY, April 3.—Leader Allds of the assembly said in reference to the statements that the proposed primary law amendments were intended to prevent the nomination of Governor Roosevelt: "The story is ridiculous. Governor Roosevelt has been consulted at all times about the bill and agrees that it is wise to pass it. Only this afternoon we agreed upon an amendment that instead of arbitrarily fixing June for primary days in presidential years they shall be announced to occur about 12 weeks before election instead of seven weeks. There is no ulterior motive in the bill and any suggestion of its being aimed at Governor Roosevelt's renomination is the purest rot."

The Republican leaders are looking up very carefully any bills that will bring into the state treasury even the smallest amount of money. They have decided on the passage of the bill to save money to the state in the collection of the collateral inheritance tax, and they have found a bill of Senator Ford's which, by taxing employment bureaus, will bring in quite a large amount of money from such institutions in first and second class cities. The bill provides for a fee of $100 to be paid the comptroller of the state for a license for the first year, $50 for each succeeding year and a fee of $50 for the first year and $25 each succeeding year in cities of the second class. The bill is favored by the state comptroller and by Labor Commissioner McMackin.

BRAVE GENERAL HENRY.

Massachusetts Proposes to Aid Widow of the Hero of Two Wars.

BOSTON, April 3.—A movement has been started in this state to secure funds for the widow of the late General Guy V. Henry, and many prominent gentlemen have consented to act on the committee, which will be known as the Massachusetts Henry committee.

The committee has issued a circular in which, after detailing General Henry's services to his country, they say:

"In addition to the distinguished service as a soldier of the United States we wish to allude to two facts in General Henry's career which we think will cause every citizen of Massachusetts to take a special interest in the success of the proposed memorial to him.

"General Henry, when only 24 years old, holding simply the rank of lieutenant of the regular army, but with the brevet of captain, was appointed colonel of the Fortieth Massachusetts infantry. This regiment, with General Henry at its head, acting then as brigadier commander, led the charge at Cold Harbor, Va. In that fight Colonel Henry had three horses killed under him, the third being shot just as he was in the act of leaping the enemy's works. For his success on that day congress voted him a medal of honor by a grant which reads, 'For noteworthy and conspicuous gallentry in leading the assault.'"

The Porto Rican Relief Fund.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Arrangements have been made by the war department for the transfer of $660,000 of the $2,000,000 appropriated for the relief of Porto Rico to Captain William V. Judson, corps of engineers, at San Juan, who has been selected as the disbursing officer of that fund. General Davis originally estimated that he would have immediate need for $750,000, but he has modified his requisition to $660,000 and explains that it is his purpose to expend the money in payment for labor or public improvements at the rate of about $100,000 a month.

Manila's Population Decreasing.

MANILA, April 3.—The census just completed shows a frightful death rate in this city, and the population is rapidly decreasing. The death rate has been as high as 48 in 1,000 during the past six months. There are now three epidemics in the city—beriberi, the bubonic plague and smallpox. Every effort is being made to stamp these out, and the authorities believe their efforts will prove successful.

Immense Cargo of Fish.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., April 3.—It was announced here upon the completion of the work of weighing the cargo of fresh fish brought to this port on Friday by the schooner Lucinda T. Lowell Captain Courant, that the fare was the largest of the kind in the history of North American fisheries. The cargo weighed 173,000 pounds.

BUSY DAY IN SENATE

Vigorous Debate on the Porto Rico Bill.

FINAL ACTION NEAR AT HAND.

Reduction of War Taxes Considered In the House—Large Tracts of Indian Lands to Be Opened to Settlement.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Advocates and opponents of the Porto Rican tariff and government bill waged vigorous war in the senate yesterday for more than seven hours. Long before the senate convened at 11 o'clock the galleries were crowded, and so they remained until the senate adjourned. Those who listened to the debate were well repaid. The speeches were good and the running debate unusually bright and lively. During the speech of Mr. Spooner of Wisconsin particularly the chamber seemed to scintillate with sparks, as he crossed argumentative swords with some of the best debaters on the Democratic side. His address, if so it could be called, was devoted almost wholly to a discussion of the constitutional questions involved in the pending bill.

Mr. Bate (Dem.) of Tennessee opened the discussion of the day with a carefully prepared speech in opposition to the bill. He was followed by Mr. Cullom (Rep.) of Illinois in a vigorous speech supporting the measure. Then came Mr. Depew (Rep.) of New York, a member of the committee which framed the bill, who made an eloquent and forceful defense of the measure. Mr. Spooner, who spoke next, was followed by Mr. Perkins (Rep.) of California, also a member of the committee on Porto Rico, who presented a strong argument for the bill. Senator Davis formally introduced several amendments to the Porto Rican bill. One of them extends to Porto Rico the provisions of the constitution relative to the tariff and taxation and prohibits any duty on commerce between the United States and Porto Rico.

The final vote on the bill will be taken late today. It is arranged for 4 o'clock, but an effort will be made to extend the time for debate beyond that hour.

Members of the senate committee on Porto Rico made a poll of the senate on the Porto Rican bill. They estimate a majority of 7 for the bill, believing that it will receive 47 votes.

A possible reduction of the war taxes was foreshadowed in a resolution adopted by the house calling upon the secretary of the treasury for information as to the probable surplus existing revenue laws would create during this and the coming fiscal year. The resolution was presented by Mr. Payne, the floor leader of the majority. Among the district bills passed was one to increase the tax on foreign insurance companies doing business in the district from 1 to 1½ per cent.

Under suspension of the rules bills were passed to open to settlement 418,000 acres in the Fort Hall Indian reservation and 2,500,000 acres in Oklahoma by ratifying the agreements with the Bannock and Shoshone Indians and the Kiowa, Comanche and Apaches, to divide the northern judicial district of New York into two districts and to appropriate $400,000 for a military post at Sheridan, Wy.

Many Stranded In Cuba.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The war department has been obliged to sound a note of warning to restrain overconfident Americans from flocking into Cuba without resources. General Wood has made this a matter of special representation to Secretary Root. He reports that there are quite a number of such Americans completely stranded in Cuba whom he is unable to relieve. His suggestion was that the war department authorize him to ship them back to the United States on the army transports, but so far Secretary Root has not been able to see how he can do this. According to the advices received by the department, Cuba is no place for a man without money. With some capital there is large opportunity.

Public Debt Statement.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business March 31, 1900, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,112,256,358, a decrease for the month of $6,629,701. This decrease is accounted for by a corresponding increase in the cash on hand. The debt is recapitulated as follows: Interest bearing debt, $1,026,842,140; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,207,600; debt bearing no interest, $390,979,613; total, $1,419,049,353. This amount, however, does not include $720,500,779 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash on hand.

Will Pay the Duty.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Eugene Fischoff has notified the customs authorities that he would pay the additional impost of $19,100 on the painting "The Holy Family" detained recently for undervaluation. The canvas, which is a Rubens, cost $39,600 at auction, making the total cost $58,700, which will be defrayed by Francis C. Matthiessen, for whom the painting was purchased by Mr. Fischoff.

A Miraculous Escape.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 3.—Erie flier No. 3 struck a milk wagon at the Chemung place crossing yesterday and hurled the driver, E. G. Newell, through the front window of the wagon, smashed the chair on which Newell was sitting and completely demolished the wagon. Newell escaped with one very slight bruise.

The Newark Strike.

NEWARK, N. J., April 3.—The strike of the carpenters, painters, decorators and paperhangers which began here yesterday is likely to continue some time, as both sides claim that they will not give in. The strikers want an increase of 20 cents a day, and owing to the bosses' refusal to accede to the demand about 1,700 men are walking the streets.

Gillmore to Write His Experiences.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Lieutenant Commander Gillmore has decided to make no official report upon the incidents of his eight months' captivity in the hands of the Tagals at this time, but probably will make his experiences the subject of a series of magazine articles.

Large Quantity of Cotton Destroyed.

LITTLE ROCK, April 3.—The Newport Compress company's plant at Newport, Ark., has been burned, entailing a loss of $400,000. Seven thousand bales of cotton were destroyed. The loss is covered by insurance.

WEBSTER DAVIS RESIGNS.

Visit to South Africa Made Him a Boer Sympathizer.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Webster Davis, assistant secretary of the interior today tendered his resignation. He will go on the lecture platform in the interest of the Boers. In an authorized statement given out today Mr. Davis says that as a result of his visit to the Transvaal he feels impelled to tender his resignation as assistant secretary of the interior. He will at an early date deliver a lecture in this city in the interests of the South African republics. Mr. Davis feels that this is the best way to arouse the enthusiasm of the American people in behalf of those republics.

When taking his departure for home from Pretoria, says Mr. Davis, 2,000

Prominent Society Woman Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—Mrs. John A. Armstrong, mother of Mrs. Anthony Drexel and Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart, is dead after an illness of six days. Both of the deceased's daughters are in Paris. Mrs. Armstrong was socially known all over the world. The first 25 years of her married life were spent in Baltimore. Fifteen years ago her husband died, and since that time she traveled extensively. For the last five years she had made her winter home here, spending the summer months in Paris.

ALBANY, April 3.—The canals of the state will be opened on April 21 unless the weather prevents. The canals were opened on April 26 last year, which was one of the earliest dates in their history. Colonel Partridge desires to break the record made last year and has put forth every effort to accomplish that result. The ordinary repairs to the canals will have been completed by April 21, and the canals will open on that date unless ice formations should prevent it.

BEFORE GRAND JURY

Goebel Assassination Case to Be Investigated.

JUDGE CANTRILL'S FAIR CHARGE.

It Is Understood That Indictments Will Be Recommended Against Governor Taylor and Other Republican Officials.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 3.—The April term of the Franklin circuit court and the grand jury working under it which will investigate the assassination of Governor Goebel began work yesterday afternoon.

Judge Cantrill's charge to the grand jury was brief and devoid of anything of a sensational nature. He said:

"You know the horrible situation in this county better than I can depict it. I hope and believe this grand jury, realizing the responsibilities resting upon it, will discharge its entire duty fearlessly, fairly and impartially, and if it does no man or set of men can lay complaint at your door when your labors terminate. The officers of the court and the commonwealth's attorney will gladly render you any assistance you may need from them. Under the law you are entitled to six days in which to complete your labors, but if you are unable to complete your work in that time I will gladly enter an order extending your sittings."

While nothing was said by Judge Cantrill in his charge concerning it, it is understood that Commonwealth Attorney Franklin will recommend the bringing in of indictments against Republican Governor Taylor and all of the other Republican state officers on the charge of usurpation of the offices they are claiming to hold. During the court preliminaries Attorney James Andrew Scott for the Democrats filed an amended petition in the cases of the Democratic state officers other than governor and lieutenant governor against the defendants, in which damages for alleged usurpation and unlawful retention of the offices in dispute are asked.

Ancient City Discovered.

AUSTIN, Tex., April 3.—A dispatch from Oaxaca, Mexico, says another ancient city, covering several hundred acres, has been discovered near the Indian village of Teocaltiche, in that state. The ruins are almost completely covered with earth, but the excavations so far made show that the discovery is of great archæological importance. The ruins are on two hills. One is called Cerro de los Antiguos, the hill of the ancients, the other is El Cerro Encantado, the enchanted hill, and around them flows a rivulet called El Tesoro, the treasure. The hill of the ancients is a natural formation, the enchanted hill being artificial.

To Preserve Arizona Wonders.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The director of the geological survey has transmitted to the secretary of the interior a report in regard to the petrified forests of Arizona. It is recommended that such territory be withdrawn from entry at once pending further steps looking to the preservation of these petrifications. So far as is known only one claim has been filed on the entire area. There is needed, it is said, a more extended and accurate survey than has yet been made, and the forests should be made a public reserve. It also is recommended that measures be taken to preserve intact the natural bridge, which is a feature of the park.

Workmen Benefited.

PITTSBURG, April 3.—About 15,000 workmen of the building trades will be benefited by wage scales which become effective now and on May 1. The scales are mostly settled on an eight hour basis among which are the bricklayers, carpenters and plasterers. The carpenters on May 1 will obtain an advance to 35 cents per hour and eight hours as a workday. The painters' scale became operative on a nine hour basis; with an advance of 10 per cent.

In Retrospect.

Just in the way of retrospect it is interesting to observe that while the Common Council did not think it necessary to hold a public hearing on the question of appropriating so large a sum as $100 000 for a new High School building—or even to permit the people to know of the project in any way till it had been consummated—the members of that august body decide that at the first opportunity a public hearing on the City Hall project is necessary for the best interests of good goverment.

We heartily agree with the Councilmen in the desire to secure an expression of opinion from the people of the city on the question of expending as large a sum of money as will be required for a City Hall. But in holding this view we also find it difficult to understand why the Council, when it was contemplated to spend a greater sum of money on another improvement about which there was difference of opinion, too, did not think it necessary to consult the wishes of its constituents then.

The deliberate action which the Council is taking with reference to the City Hall project—and it should proceed in no other manner—puts it in a most peculiar position when the High School proposition is remembered.

Cost of Federal Commissions.

Speaking of the cost of Federal commissions a Washingtonian gives the following figures:

The Cuban and Porto Rico Evacuation Commission cost $50,000.

Comparatively cheap was the cost of the commission that represented the United States in the Peace Congress at The Hague, for the bills amount to only $35,000.

The Samoan Commission cost $50,000.

Less expensive was the Hawaiian Commission to report on a code of laws for the islands, still it cost $30,000.

Up to date the Joint High Commission to make a treaty with Canada has cost $200,000, and it is still drawing money with the end not in sight.

The most expensive commission thus far is that appointed to investigate the Nicaragua Canal. It has spent $250,000 and discovered that while the canal can be built for $118,000,000, it should not be built just yet.

There is an insular commission, appointed at the request of Senator Allison of Iowa, Senator Mark Hanna and Senator McMillan, that may have done something beside spending $50,000.

Robert P. Porter received $10,000 for going to Cuba as a tariff commissioner.

Now the President has placed Judge William H. Taft, of Cincinnati, at the head of a second Philippine Commission that is likely to cost another $900,000.

No Harmony in Somerset.

The Jersey City News says that the Republican hatchet appears not to have been buried so deep in Somerset after all, for there is a prospect of another lively row between those two bitterest of enemies, Senator Charles A. Reed and Clerk in Chancery Lewis A. Thompson.

The News' version of the approaching fight is this:

This time the trouble is over the delegate to the National Republican convention from the Third Congressional district. Both Senator Reed and Clerk Thompson insist upon having the honor, and both are lining up their followers for another heroic struggle.

The fact that victory heretofore has perched upon the banners of Senator Reed will in no wise detract from the interest in the contest. It is a long lane that has no turning, and sooner or later we expect to see Mr. Thompson dancing on his rival's prostrate body.

Anyway, it is pleasant to see the feud as lively as ever. These scrapes among the members of the truly good party are a contribution to the enjoyment of life.

After a great deal of trouble and a waste of much energy the Democrats of Elizabeth yesterday succeeded in getting a candidate for Mayor to head their municipal ticket. He is City Attorney James Connelly. Even though the canvass of the Democrats for this office has been impaired by the difficulty and uncertainty of getting a standard bearer, Mr. Connolly will probably prove a strong candidate to oppose the re-election of Mayor Mack. For several years he has been closely identified with the municipal affairs of the city, thus bringing at once to the candidacy an official record that is capable and satisfactory. At the same time he is well-known throughout the city and personally very popular. Had his nomination been accomplished at the convention instead of at the last moment allowed by the law for the filing of party nominations, Mr. Connolly's candidacy would have been wonderfully strengthened. As an aggressive partisan, however, he will probably make a run that will astonish his opponents.

The resignation of so prominent an official as Webster Davis, who filled the position of Assistant Secretary of the Interior, in order that he may become more active in his desire to stir up sentiment for the struggling and heroic Boers, was one of the important incidents in National affairs yesterday. Every since Mr. Davis visited the scene of the war in South Africa, and recived extraordinary favors at the hands of Oom Paul, a storm has been brewing over his head. The British sympathizers in Washington are influential and prominent and probably Mr. Davis decided that the best time for him to retire was the first opportunity—and that came yesterday.

Every time Bunion's postmastership aspirations are referred to it hits him in a delicate spot, but like the coarse bully who struts around showing off his black eye received in a street brawl—believing that a forced bravado will lessen the mental anguish it causes him—Bunion republishes in his own paper the stinging allusions to the matter, thus trying to pooh-pooh the statement. But it is bitter truth for him.

The majority sentiment of Plainfield is unquestionably in favor of a City Hall to be built at once. Now let the advocates of the project turn out en masse and make a display of forces at the hearing to be given by the Common Council. It can be depended upon that the few objectors will be on hand.

There isn't a man in Plainfield who can advance one reason for the city to burden itself with debt in order to build a City Hall.—The News.

The files of the News will show lots of them.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

No Need of Another License.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—There is no need of another wholesale liquor store in the vicinity that is under consideration and if the members of the Council will consult the wishes of the citizens and the public they will decline to issue a license to the petitioner for a place on Park avenue. The persistent effort of certain ones to influence some members of the Council in favor of this license is the worst feature of the affair and it should be refused on that account if for no other reason. This city has more than enough licenses already and the liquor traffic is a luxury that could better be curtailed rather than extended in such a community as the city of Plainfield. E. M.

Dunellen, April 3.—Sometime ago Conductor Charles Dodwell and his brother, John Dodwell, the latter a conductor on the Newark-New York branch of the Central Railroad, received notification from England that through the death of a relative they had fallen heir to a large sum of money. The amount is said to be something like $30,000. Investigation by the Messrs. Dodwell proved the truth of the story. It was decided to look into the matter and with this in view John Dodwell has gone to England to look after the interest of himself and brother. He sailed last Wedne day. The election of seven trustees and the regular routine business only was transacted. The financial statement for last year showed a deficit of $873 75. This was met by the income from the estates controlled by the church. The estimated deficit for the ensuing year is $1,100. The following were elected trustees for the ensuing year: A. D. Beekon, F. W. Westcott, J. H. L. Todd, Edward Johnston, John Borrman, Norman Dunn and William Noble.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, April 3.—The Township Committee has not decided upon who they will appoint as police officers but it had been practicably settled that C. P. Wilcox, one of the Republican party workers, will be the chief, and that John Knapp, who is highly recommended by the Republican county executive committee, will be his assistant. Chairman Welles is in favoring of appointing Elmer Woodruff as an extra officer, but Committeeman Dennis is opposed to him and Committeeman Connolly will not be interviewed on the subject.

The first accident to result from the trolley in Westfield occurred Saturday morning when a carriage in which Mrs. James O. Clark and her sister-in-law, Miss Clark, were riding, was hit by a trolley car on Westfield avenue. The driver of the coach attempted to cross the track in front of the car and the fender of the car struck and demolished one of the rear wheels of the carriage. The motorman was not to blame as he rang his bell as soon as he saw the carriage.

SOMERVILLE.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Somerville, April 3 — Samuel J. Rose, aged 71, died Friday at his home on Centre street from typhoid fever. The deceased was the flagman and gatetender at the railroad crossing between Somerville and Raritan for many years and was well-known. The funeral was held yesterday from his late residence, Rev. Dr. Read officiating. The remains were taken to Ewing cemetery, near Trenton Junction, for interment.

Arthur Lambert, of Raritan, killed an old horse Friday last that has been in the family since a colt. In removing the hide a dime dated 1875 was found under the foreshoulder. There was no wound or mark where it could have entered, and Mr. Lambert is puzzled as to how the dime got there.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Jas. B. Mackie and his mirth-provoking play "Grimes' Cellar Door" will be seen at Music Hall tonight and all who delight in Hoyt style of farce comedy, would do well to attend. As before noted Mr. Mackie was one of Mr. Hoyt's original comedians and he has gone on year after year on the road to further excellence. His present play is full of novelty and merit—written up-to-date—and he has the support of one of the best and strongest companies ever organized for this business. He is particularly fortunate in securing the services of Miss Louise Sandford, who appears as Pandora, assuming seven different characters Miss Sanford was also one of the former Hoyt comediennes and her work stamps her as an artist of many and high accomplishments. All the scenery and effects are new this season, it being Mr. Mackie's intention to tour to California this summer, and he is now en route.

We are told that people who have seen "A Gay Farmer," which is to be seen at Music Hall Friday and Saturday of this week, are unanimous in their desire to see it again. It is said to be a most enjoyable play, which holds the closest attention of the audience from start to finish—a very clever farce-comedy, full of bright and sparkling specialties, noticeably the singing of the Bijou Quartette and the charming Worth Sisters. There will be a matinee Saturday.

—The factory at Garwood operated by the John King Metal Company is to be opened shortly under new management.

—An Elmer cannery owner states that he will give as much per ton for tomatoes this season as any canner in South Jersey. It is thought that this will somewhat break the combine, and that the farmers will win by getting $7.

—Glassblowers in South Jersey as a rule are now making higher wages than for years. This, of course, is considering the steady work that is furnished. A prominent blower stated that the average glassworker has little to complain of now, either in the way of work or wages paid.

I have used Ripans Tabules and was more than surprised at the effect they had on me. I had the headache every morning, bad taste in my mouth, dyspepsia and heartburn, so that my food did me no good, and then I would have to go to bed and would be sick enough to die for two or three hours. I was told to try Ripans Tabules. I bought one small bottle and they helped me, and then I bought a box of them and have taken them all, and I feel like another woman. I keep the Tabules on hand, and take one every morning the first thing when I get up. I had previously tried everything I heard of, but nothing has done me any good except Ripans Tabules, and I shall always recommend them to my friends.

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. Ask a druggist for them. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

ITEMS OF DRESS.

New Fabrics and Trimmings That Will Be Seen in Spring Costumes.

Spring wraps for young women will be of the short, close-fitting jacket style.

Heavy pique kid gloves with two studs or clasps should be worn with walking or travelling costumes.

Revers on waists are small, but are much used in fancy silk and embroidered effects, as well as in rich, heavy lace and velvet.

Use pink lardsowne for the little girl's dancing-school frock, and make it with a yoke of guipure lace and a ribbon collar and belt.

Pique hats for children are easily made and as easily washed and ironed. Pique comes in white, pink or blue. Buy a paper pattern for the hats.

Black serge makes excellent tailored suits for mourning even in the deepest stage. You can get a really nice-fitting, stylish jacket suit, with the latter silk lined, for $15.

Duck skirts will be worn next season, but they are heavier and warmer than pique. Pique, linen and duck must be shrunk before being made up, no matter what the shopkeepers say.

Rose gold buckles are the newest for belts, and are of the small clasp effect usually. These buckles are of tinted gold over silver, and cost about a dollar. Belts are quite narrow this season.

Black cotton skirts are always popular. An entire frock of this material is apt to have a somber look unless intended for mourning. Use a nice skirt of this material as you would one of black silk.

Silk neck ribbons may be cleaned in a bowl of naphtha, using it in a room where there is neither artificial light nor a fire, as it is very explosive. After cleaning, hang the ribbons up to dry, but do not iron them.

Sewing silk should be exactly the shade of the dress goods or a trifle darker, as it works lighter when unwound from the spool. A tight-fitting waist for a stout figure is better when stitched entirely with silk and a medium tension on the machine.

Linen collars and silk ties are worn with silk, flannel and woolen shirtwaists. The newest collars are shaped with two upward points toward the back, as the fancy silk collars are. Dressy neck pieces continue in vogue, and are made of velvet, silk, lace and mousseline.

Plaid skirts for Young Girls—Cut the plaid in two pieces with a gored seam up the center, front and back, matching the blocks so as to form a series of diamonds, back and front, while the squares hang straight on each side. Girls of 12 years do not need any interlining in their skirts.

About half the frocks that are made have the sleeves merely eased in the armholes, the remainder have a few gathers over the top, though snug in fit below. Nearly all have either an additional cuff falling over the hnad, or the lower edge is cut in a fancy pointed effect.

When sleeves draw from the elbow up, the back of the waist across the shoulders is too narrow. This is a common fault even among good dressmakers, yet nothing is much more disagreeable than the catch this gives over the arms. Sleeves are worn long enough to cover the wrists.—Ladies' Home Journal.

TRAGEDY OF A HAT.

Nobody Was Killed, But There Was a Good Chance for Considerable Trouble.

"That's not my hat," and a guest at one of the leading hotels looked savagely at the man who officiated outside the dining-room door.

"Dat's right, sah. Dat's Mistah Blinkah's hat. I done put it dah mahself, but dey called me to de office and he must a' made de mistake while I was gone, sah."

"No mistake about it. Blinker, hey? I'll blinker him, goin' round stealin' hats," and by this time the clerk was reached. "Who's this fellow Blinker that stops here?"

"Promoter. Fine fellow. Sorry you didn't meet him. He's gone out to the junction to catch a train."

"I thought so. Order a carriage. No man can lift my hat and get away with it."

At the junction the train had just gone. The price was paid at a public telephone to ask where Blinker had gone. Then this telegram went to the chief of police at his destination: "Meet man named Blinker on evening express and get my hat. If he won't give up, hold him till I come."

Back at the hotel the clerk smiled a greeting. "Mr. Blinker just came in. Received advices that keep him here a few days. There he is buying a cigar."

"Pardon me, is your name Blinker?" asked the angry guest, who was balancing on his head a hat two sizes too small.

"Yes, sir."

"Is this your hat?"

"What, that your-choice-for-40 cents thing? Not on your life. I'm wearing my hat, sir. No offense, sir, but where did you get that hat? It sizes up like a raisin on a ginger cake. Just a few doors above—"

But the guest had tossed his changeling to a bell boy and ordered onother carriage. He bought a hat, did some figuring in his mind and charged $17.45 to his expense account.—Detroit Free Press.

Those Loving Girls.

Maude—I think I ought to tell you, Clara, that I met your fiance in the hall last night and he kissed me. Of course the hall was not very well lighted.

BEAUTY OF THE HAIR.

It May Be Preserved by Taking It Down and Brushing It Thoroughly Every Night.

Prevention of gray hairs is better than cure, and perhaps neglect in the important matter of brushing and shampooing is responsible for the prevalence of this unwelcome sign of age. It is of no use to say that gray hair is no sign of age in these days; there is no comfort in the saying, because from time immemorial advancing age has been marked by whitened and scanty locks, and they give an appearance of accumulated years which women accept with a bad grace. There is a deal of twaddle written about the softening effect of gray hair—other shades are just as harmonious to the features as gray. Only an intense black or a hard-toned brown, all out of harmony to the color of the eyes and skin, give a fierce, unlovely look to the face.

I can bring to mind the figure of a dear little woman, who lived to be nearly 90 without finding one gray hair in her locks. She wore pretty little caps of lace and ribbon to hide the thin spots in her brown hair, and was as particular about the style and shape as any girlish patron of a millinery establishment. She was a woman who defied old age to her last minute on earth, not from vanity, because she frankly admitted her years, but from a temperament which received keen enjoyment from the mere fact of living. She enjoyed everything from the last new novel to the freshest play. I lost all faith in the old maxim: "Early to bed," etc., after I moved into her neighborhood, for she preferred night to day, and was an inveterate player of innocent games.

She and a blind sister and a middle-aged housekeeper made up a happy family for many years. Yes, the sister was happy, despite her blindness, for she also possessed the temperament which enjoyed the good things of life. She was spared the affliction of gray hair, too, but not in quite the same manner as her sister. The illness which deprived her of sight made her absolutely bald, and the wigs she bought from time to time were always a pretty red brown in color. They looked natural enough and were becoming to a complexion which never lost its bloom or smoothness.

I merely speak of these two women to show the nonsense of submitting to gray hair because it softens the features and is eminently proper, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times. Of course, you might say that nature knows best, but that I deny. Nature is sometimes at fault, or we would not have so many monstrosities, and I know that the women who submit willingly to gray hair are not so numerous as these monstrosities. The time of its arrival could be put off many years if the fashions in hairdressing had not driven the habit of daily hair brushing into a corner, there to remain like a naughty child. Waved hair costs time and money, and the brush is destructive to it; therefore women must not brush their hair, and one of the greatest stimulants to hair activity and health is taken away.

One thing is certain. There will be no change for the better until hair brushes are put to use. The hair must be taken down and well brushed at night. If women could all afford the English brushes, made of small whalebones, instead of bristles, feminine locks would be in better condition. They make the scalp feel as if it had been treated to electricity. They free the head from dandruff, which is destructive to the beauty of the hair.

FOR THE COMPLEXION.

Vapor Bag Arrangement Which Is Easily Made and Taken Apart Without Trouble.

There is quite a vogue among the fair sex for medicated vapor baths for the face, which are alleged to improve the complexion, cleanse the skin, remove blemishes and freckles and eradicate cutaneous diseases in general. The difficulty of this particular treatment has been the inconvenience and difficulty attending the vapor process. This difficulty is nicely solved by the bag arrangement here illustrated, the invention of Walter W. Bateman, of Toledo, O. A receptacle to hold the liquid or medicinal substances is fitted with an alcohol lamp which supplies the heat for the vaporization. Around this pan is a flexible hood, into which the head is thrust, through an opening, and which is made to fit tightly around the neck by means of a buttoned flap. An air tube is provided which extends outside the hood, through which air is supplied for breathing purposes, the breathing being done through the mouth, the nasal passages being closed with cotton. With this toilet vaporizing apparatus the medicated or other vapors are collected and retained in contact with the face. The whole device can be taken apart and compactly stored away, this being one of its meritorious features. — Chicago Daily News.

DIDN'T WANT THEM.

Mrs. Chickering Gives a Body Blow to a Growing Abuse.

Declined to Have a Congressional Committee Attend Her Husband's Funeral—Honored Herself by the Act.

[Special Washington Letter.]

CHARITY is said to provide a mantle for a multitude of sins. So does the appropriation called "the contingent fund of the senate."

Out of that fund the sergeant-at-arms of the senate pays for wine, whisky, apollinaris water, cigars, cabs, carriages, funerals and all sorts of things which do not go into the daily public records, but which are necessarily shown in the annual reports of the secretary of the senate.

The sergeant-at-arms is the executive officer of the senate, and it is his duty to anticipate and minister to the wants of the American house of lords. The secretary is the disbursing officer of the senate, and it is his duty to keep an accurate account of all moneys disbursed by him. Consequently, when the annual report of the secretary is compiled and published, all of these things are disclosed. But, as a matter of fact, not one man out of ten thousand ever reads the report. Newspaper men are too busy to scan it closely. Therefore the multitude of sins committed under the cover of "the contingent fund of the senate" remains hidden from the knowledge of the people.

The annual reports for the past ten years show that comparatively little money has been expended for intoxicating liquors. But out of this fund thousands of dozens of lemons, and many grosses of mineral water are bought. So that, when the senate is in session during the spring and summer months, there is always a large bowl of lemonade constantly available in each of the senate cloakrooms. Also, pitchers of lemonade are prepared for all of the committee rooms. Plain people employed by the senate are able to exist on plain water, but their fellow citizens who are called senators must have luxuries, of which lemonade is only an illustration. They have quinine, soap, cologne, pocket knives, manicure sets, and almost everything conceivable of that nature for which the senators ought to pay out of their own pockets.

In the house of representatives there is also a contingent fund, but the fund is generally used for legitimate purposes, in the nature of actual contingent expenses which cannot be foreseen when the general appropriation bills are prepared and adopted.

THE FUNERAL TRAIN.

The only abuse of the contingent fund of the house (or, the most notable one) is in the disbursement of extraordinary sums of money for the expenses of the funerals of representatives who die during their terms of office. This subject is brought to the attention of the writer at this time, and consequently to the attention of the reading public, because of the sudden death of Congressman Chickering, of New York, and the noble action of his widow.

Congressman Chickering had been a member of the national house of representatives for seven years when his dead body was found on the pavement in New York city, in front of his hotel. It is generally supposed that he fell out of the window of his bedroom, or that he leaped forth to death. He had been in poor health for more than a year, and was known to be exceedingly depressed concerning his physical condition. However, be that as it may, the manner of his death, or its cause, need not be discussed here and now. The subsequent action of his wife is the subject to which attention is being invited.

Immediately after the public announcement of the death of the congressman, in the senate and house of representatives, committees of those bodies were appointed to attend his funeral, ostensibly to show to his neighbors and friends the esteem in which he had been held by the congress. The sergeant-at-arms of the senate and the sergeant-at-arms of the house made preparations for a funeral train to bear the congressional joint committee to the scene of the funeral. Their preparations were cut short, however, by the decision of Mrs. Chickering that no congressional committee would be desired by her or by the other members of the family.

Congressman Chickering was a very popular member of the house of representatives. The announcement of his death caused sincere sorrow to those of his colleagues who knew him, and he was well known to almost every man in public life. But a congressional committee could not have honestly shown respect and esteem for him, unless the members of the committee had departed from the custom which has prevailed of late years.

On all occasions when the subject came up for discussion Mr. Chickering denounced the hilarious junketing indulged in by congressmen on funeral committees, and he often declared that if he should die, while a member of the house of representatives, he would want no junketing at his funeral. His wife saw enough of the hollowness of this congressional mockery; and it is to her eternal honor as a wife, and to her everlasting credit as an American woman of the highest type, that she carried out the wishes of her deceased husband, and also demonstrated her own individual contempt for the mockery of an ostentation of unreal woe.

It is fortunate for the country that there have arisen a time and a person to stop this ghoul-like performance. Mrs. Chickering has established a precedent which ought to stand forever as a bar to future congressional funeral committees. There ought to be no more funds paid out of "the contingent fund" on such occasions for champagne, whisky, cigars, gloves, flowers, carriages, decorations, sumptuous breakfasts, elaborate dinners and orgy suppers on the funeral trains. Well-informed people have long been shocked and humiliated by knowledge of the preposterous pageantry, the discreditable and vulgar ostentation, the shameful junketing on such occasions, and the extravagant expenditures incurred in these flagrant parodies on sincere mourning and heartfelt grief.

Mrs. Chickering deserves the admiration of the country, the gratitude of women and the plaudits of the people for her firm stand against the congressional spree and vulgar demonstrations of guttersnipes in high places. She honored herself, and honored her sex, in honoring the memory of her husband by thus forbidding the presence of a congressional committee at the funeral.

It would require a great deal of time to examine the books of the senate and house of representatives, in order to secure the statistics concerning the cost of all congressional funerals. But in a speech on this subject, delivered in December, 1895, Senator Peffer, of Kansas, gave some statistics which had been carefully compiled, and from that official utterance the following facts are gathered:

The first congressional funeral was that of Senator Gaillard, of South Carolina, which occurred February 26, 1826, at an expense of $877.44. Twenty-four senators had previously died, and the congress had not paid their expenses of interment. Read how the expenses increased from time to time in the following funerals of senators:

John Fairfield, of Maine, December 24, 1847, $1,072.25.

Chester Ashley, Arkansas, April 29, 1848, $1,505.42.

John C. Calhoun, South Carolina, March 31, 1850, $3,106.47.

Henry Clay, Kentucky, June 29, 1852, $5,447.02.

Solomon Foot, Vermont, March 28, 1866, $4,399.57.

Charles Sumner, Massachusetts, March 11, 1874, $4,887.99.

Matthew H. Carpenter, Wisconsin, February 24, 1881, $3,012.34.

John F. Miller, California, March 8, 1886, $3,532.34.

George Hearst, California, February 28, 1891, $21,322.55.

Just look at the difference in the cost of the funerals of the two California senators. The funeral of Senator Miller cost $3,532.34. The funeral of Senator Hearst cost $21,322.55. The same distance was traversed, and the expenses should not have been very different. Senator Hearst was a popular man, and a good man in many respects. If he could have had anything to say in the matter his funeral would not have been a three weeks junket for senators, representatives and favorite employes, twice across the continent, in the course of which upwards of $15,000 should be expended for champagne, cigars and luxurious banqueting. He was a proud man, and a rich man, who would rather have paid all expenses himself, even though they had been twice as large, than to have had his name recorded as it is in this manner. Some of those who disgraced his memory in this manner still hold public places.

This is but a brief presentation of facts; only a partial culling of incidents from a vast accumulation of incidents of this nature. The people do not know, and it is just as well that they do not know, the many ways in which their moneys are wasted, under various pretexts and devices. But the disgraceful funeral junkets which have occurred should be known, at least in part, in order that the brave stand taken by the wife of the late congressman from New York may the better be understood and the more fully appreciated.

Without redundancy, but for the sake of emphasis, the statement may be repeated that this good woman has honored herself, honored the memory of her husband, and honored her sex, as well as rendered service to her country, by refusing to permit a recurrence of revolting scandal on the occasion of the closing of the grave over the body of her beloved.

SMITH D. FRY.

A FIRST OF APRIL JOKE.

"Oh, for a jolly joke to play
Next week on my little sister May!
I've tried, I'm sure, for a hundred times
The sawdust parcels and jumping dimes,
And sending bogus letters to folks.
And all of the other stale old jokes.
I'm tired of those. I'd like to do Something or other entirely new.

"I'd like to give her a great surprise,
And make her jump and open her eyes.
She's always looking for tricks from me.
I wonder what would the best one be?

"Nothing would quite amaze her so
As a pleasant thing from me, I know.
I've really—well—almost a mind,
Just for once, to do something kind.
Yesterday, out in the woods, I found
Wild flowers covering all the ground—
Pink and purple and white and blue.
I know exactly what I will do.

"I'll get a basket and take a run,
And bring them home for her, every one.
I'll fix them all in a china vase,
And cover them up in a handy place,
Where she will see when she comes from school,
And then I will call out: 'April Fool!'

"She'll scream and run, for she'll be afraid
It's like all the other tricks I've played;
But when I coax her to peep and see,
How astonished and pleased she'll be!
How her dear little face will shine
To see those beautiful flowers of mine!

"Do you know of a better joke to play
On anybody on All Fools' day?"
—Sidney Dare, in Golden Days.

BIG ELEPHANT TUSKS.

They Are Said to Be the Largest Ever Known and Were Bought by American Traders.

The elephant tusks shown herewith are the largest ever known, and were purchased by an American firm in Zanzibar, says the London Field. They weigh 236 and 225 pounds, respectively, and the price paid is said to have been over $3,500, which is somewhat above the market price. The larger of these specimens weighs 236 pounds, the other 225 pounds. The length of the longer, measured on the outer curve, is 10 feet 4 inches, along the inner curve 9 feet, and from base to top in a straight line 8 feet 4 inches. The circumference of the tusk where it becomes solid is 2 feet 2½ inches. At 3 feet from the tip it is 1 foot 10 inches. At 2 feet from the tip the circumference is 1 foot 8 inches, and as close to the end as 1 foot the circumference is 1 foot 5 inches.

COURAGEOUS MICE.

To Protect Their Young Ones They Braved the Risk of Being Captured and Killed.

A woman residing in the West end had a remarkable experience with 14 baby mice. She went into the cellar to a secluded corner, where no one had been for some time, in search of an ice cream freezer. She found it, and inside was a nest containing 14 mice. One good-sized mouse was in with them, and, although frightened, would not leave the little ones. An old piece of tape reached from the bottom of the freezer over the top and down to the ground. Mrs. B. went upstairs to look for some of the boys to help her take them out, but none of them was home, and so she mustered courage and determined to go down herself and turn them out. When she reached the freezer the light of the lamp she held in her hand shone directly on it, and she saw two big mice, each carrying a baby mouse. One was coming up on the inside and the other was going down on the outside. She was held spellbound at the curious sight, and did not offer to disturb them. She watched until every one of the 14 babies had been carried to a place of safety. Mrs. B. had a large mouse trap on the other side of the cellar, and so touched was she by the scene she had just witnessed that she took the trap upstairs and threw it into the fire.—Albany Times-Union.

The Cat Was Surprised.

Several days ago five or six sparrows were pecking away in the gutter immediately in front of an engine house when a cat crept across the street and pounced upon one of them. Instantly the victim's companions sent up a war cry, which was as instantly answered. From housetop and tree the sparrows flocked to the scene. With whirring, hissing cries of noisy rage they fearlessly attacked the offender. For about 30 seconds the dazed cat endured the blows from perhaps a hundred beaks and twice as many beating wings. Then, still holding her prey, she struggled away from the infuriated birds and ran into the engine house. The plucky little fellows followed her inside, but soon gave up the chase, leaving her with her dearly bought dinner, a sadder but a wiser cat.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Crying for Poor Charlie.

Harry and Charlie, aged five and three, respectively, had just been seated at the nursery table for dinner. Harry noticed there was but one orange on the table, and immediately set up a wail that brought his mother to the scene. "Why, Harry, what are you crying for?" she asked. "Because there ain't any orange for Charlie."

BEAR PRESSED BUTTON.

He Held the Camera Wrong Side Up, However, and the Result Was Unsatisfactory.

John H. Lewis, of Boston, a photographer, who spends his summers in the region around Moosehead lake, has developed what is probably the only picture ever taken by a black bear, for Bruin really did take the picture.

He held the camera, focused the thing and pressed the button. He held the camera wrong side up, however, and his paws must have shaken a little from the looks of the print.

Last August a party of six people from Plainfield, N. J., passed a fortnight in camp on the upper West branch, occupying the log cabins at Sears High Landing, so called.

In so large a party there was considerable refuse food, and this was dumped about a half-mile from the camp in the woods. The garbage pile failed to grow, and the campers were at a loss to account for its disappearance. Finally one of the men made up his mind to go to the scene and watch for the animal that came around regularly every day to feed on the crusts of the table. He went to the point one morning and sat in the bushes and waited. Soon he heard a noise, and in a minute or so a big black bear appeared. Then came another, and finally a third.

They ate all of the garbage, and then went away. The Plainfield man conceived a desire to photograph the animals. He put up a job with the cook, and the next morning a good half-bushel of trash was scattered about for the benefit of the bears.

The camera man loaded and cocked his machine, sought a favorite spot and waited. He had not waited long before two big bears lumbered out of the woods and went to work cleaning up the potato peelings, bacon rinds, etc.

The man watched the brutes for awhile, and then slipping from behind a tree, tiptoed toward the animals, holding the camera in such a position that he could quickly press the button when the bears saw him approaching. When within 20 feet of the animals they scented him and turned in his direction.

The New Jersey man forgot what he was there for. He dropped the camera and lit out for camp.

When he returned he was accompanied by all of the guides and their rifles. The bears were gone, but the camera was lying on the ground, not where he left it, but a dozen feet or more away.

The machine showed plainly the marks of the claws of the bear, and that an exposure had been made. It was generally thought that the dropping of the camera had done the trick, but the film, when developed by Mr. Lewis a few days ago, showed a wood scene that could not have been taken only from quite an elevation.

The theory is that one of the bears took the camera in his paws, and, standing on his hind feet, pressed the button without knowing what he was doing, or he would have probably taken a picture of the other bear.—Boston Globe.

Her Papa's Stock in Trade.

Rev. Joseph Whyte, a prominent Methodist divine now stationed in northern California, has an exceptionally bright little daughter. One day himself and wife, with this little lassie, aged four years, were riding in the cars. Two little boys, the sons of commercial travelers, were talking to the little girls about their respective papas and what they did. One little lad said: "My papa sells shoes," and the other said: "Mine sells paper, and," turning to the little girl, "what does your papa sell?" For a moment the child hesitated, but, not to be outdone by boys, she replied, with the air of a duchess: "My papa sells talk."

Had Swallowed His Fare.

In a street car a small boy was observed to be much agitated. Soon after, the conductor appeared and asked for fares. When he stood before the small boy there was a slight pause, and then the little fellow asked: "Do you know my father?" "Yes," replied the conductor. "Then," said the boy, "just charge it to him. I've swallowed the nickel."

ANTS AS STRATEGISTS.

The Industrious Insects Employ Excellent Military Tactics in Foraging for Food.

From a military standpoint, the methods employed by ants to provide food for an ant colony are almost perfect. Their foraging parties are faultless, both in planning and execution, and are almost uniformly successful. A resident of this city who is at present in business in South Africa has sent home a description of a foray of an army of ants.

The army, which he estimates to have numbered about 15,000 ants, started from their home, in the mud walls of a hut, and marched in the direction of a small mound of fresh earth but a few yards distant. The head of the column halted on reaching the foot of the mound and waited for the rest of the force to arrive at the place of operations, which evidently was to be the mound of fresh earth. When the remainder had arrived and halted, so that the entire army was assembled, a number of ants detached themselves from the main body and began to ascend to the top of the mound, while the others began moving so as to encircle the base of the mound.

Very soon a number from the detachment which had ascended the mound, evidently the attacking party, entered the loose earth and speedily returned, each bearing a cricket or a young grasshopper, dead, which he deposited upon the ground, and then returned for a fresh load. Those who had remained on the outside of the mound took up the crickets and grasshoppers as they were brought out and bore them down to the base of the hill, returning for a fresh load. Soon the contents of the mound seemed to be exhausted, and then the whole force returned home, each carrying his burden of food for the community.

Here, then, was a regular foray, planned and executed with military precision, the country surveyed, the depot of provisions known accurately before the march was made and at the mound prudential division of labor and care taken that none of the victims should escape. — Cincinnati Letter.

THE ORIGINAL BOAT.

It Is Said to Be Still in Use Among the Savage Nations of the South Sea Isles.

Only lately has the original boat been found in use, and it is among the savages of the South Sea islands. There the natives take the stump of a tree whose roots offer a good seat, and, launching this primitive craft, they paddle around as contentedly as if there were no such thing as a European steamer, and, to tell the truth, they do not suspect its existence.

There can be no doubt whatever that in this stump boat we have the only original method of transportation by water. Accident certainly contributed to this discovery.

A tired swimming savage found a log floating near him; he grasped it, and to his joy found that it held him above water. He mounted his log and used a floating branch to propel it. It was but a step from the log to the more comfortable root of a tree and another step from the branch propeller to a shaped paddle.

We little think how much we owe to the savages for preserving these traces of primitive development and thereby helping us to trace out the long line of human progress.

What Little Jack Wished.

Jack entered the barn with his uncle, and, being a city boy, his eyes opened wide at the sight of a great pile of apples heaped upon the floor. As he wistfully gazed at the fruit, his uncle, reading the desire in his glance, said: "Help yourself, Jack; take all you wish." Jack sprang toward the enticing pippins, and after gathering up all that his pockets, hat and blouse could hold, straightened himself up and then stood gazing at the apparently undiminished pile. Observing his looks, his uncle asked: "What's the matter now, Jack?" "Nothing much," replied the boy, "only I wish I was twins."

Tomorrow evening Sutterline and Maltby will play off the tie for second money. The winner of that match will receive second money and the loser third.

No District Court for New Brunswick Yet.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, April 3—Governor Foster M. Voorhees has decided not to appoint a District Court Judge for this city under the new law at present. He made known this decision in a letter to Prosecutor John S. Voorhees Saturday. The former law concerning District Courts provided that one be established in each city of over 20 000 population. New Brunswick's population is about 19,500, and the recent Legislature passed a law providing for courts in cities of over 17,000 population. This act applied to New Brunswick, Bayonne and Atlantic City. In his letter the Governor says that after giving the matter consideration he has reached the conclusion that New Brunswick is not in need of a District Court, and that its citizens do not want it. He thinks it would be too expensive a burden for the city to assume.

DIVORCE COMPLICATIONS.

Alleged Pool Co-respondents in Peculiar Predicament.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 3.—New complications have arisen in the August G. Pool counter-divorce suits at Elizabeth, in which the wife names nine co-respondents. Lawyers say that if any of these co-respondents bring suit against Mrs. Mary Pool for using their names, they must couple former Alderman Pool's name in the suit with that of his wife, as the pair have not yet been divorced. Should a verdict be obtained against Mrs. Pool her husband would have to pay the sum awarded.

The result of this complication is that one of the co-respondents, who publicly announced she was going to bring a suit for damages against Mrs. Pool, now privately intimates she has decided not to take action.

SUFFER FROM DELUSIONS.

Form of Mental Malady That Causes Many Persons to Imagine They Are Persecuted.

"You would be surprised," said an old and prominent lawyer of this city, chatting about the oddities of his profession, "to know how many people suffer from the delusion of persecution. I am told by physicians that it is a form of mental malady just as well defined as any other, and that it ought to be regarded as a disease, instead of an infirmity of temper. At any rate, its victim conceives the idea that certain people, usually members of his own family, are plotting against him, and it is next to impossible to dissipate the belief. I speak with some assurance on the subject, because one of the first things the average man does when he develops the persecution mania is to consult a lawyer, and I have had dozens of such clients. Very frequently their stories are so exact and circumstantial that they will thoroughly deceive anyone who is not on his guard. Quite a number of years ago, to illustrate by a case which there is no harm in mentioning, a prominent business man came to me and detailed a conspiracy on the part of his two brothers-in-law to secure possession of a valuable piece of property he owned. The narrative was so straightforward and plausible I never dreamed of doubting it, and took steps at once to protect his interests. That led to an investigation, and I found, to my amazement, that the story was absolutely devoid of truth. My client had not meant to lie; it was simply a case of delusion, and to the day of his death he believed firmly he was the victim of a conspiracy, to which I myself was a party. I have known lawyers to discover in the midst of a trial that they had been imposed on by such hallucinations. The delusion of persecution has been responsible for a great deal of unnecessary litigation and incidentally for a great many otherwise inexplicable and unjust wills."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Mr. Gloak presented a request from John Mortimer to withdraw his application for a wholesale liquor license, and immediately afterward Mr. Gloak presented another application from the same person. The former application was faulty and a correct application was submitted in its place. It was referred to the license committee. At this time W. A. Coddington, on behalf of a number of residents, presented a remonstrance against the granting of the license. It was signed by nearly everyone on Park and North avenues, Front street and a number of other streets. The remonstrance cites that there are a sufficient number of saloons, that the applicant is not an experienced man in the business, that there a sufficient number of saloons in the immediate vicinity of Park avenue, and that there is no general demand for the new saloon. The remonstrance was referred to the license committee.

Mr. Buckle recommended that the appointment by the Mayor of J. B. Young as call man in the fire department be confirmed. He also made a motion that when the Council adjourn it be to meet next Monday evening when a hearing will be given on the City Hall matter. In connection with this Mr. Dumont urged that as much publicity as possible be given to the meeting next Monday evening so that the citizens will thoroughly understand that there is to be a public hearing to get a concensus of opinion regarding the proposed City Hall. Council then adjourned.

NEW YORK'S GREAT CIRCUS.

The Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Season at Madison Square Garden.

Inasmuch as no big tented show is booked to visit us this year, those of our readers to whom the circus is a "thing of beauty and a joy forever," and who may chance to visit New York city at any time from the 4th to the 21st of April, may add greatly to the pleasure of the trip by bearing in mind and acting upon the fact, during the time covered by the dates named, the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' aggregation of menageries, circuses and hipprodromes will make the afternoons and evenings at Madison Square Garden glad and glorious, with the manifold attractions and boundless mirth of what immense audiences and the press last year declared to be the biggest and best show ever seen there. There was not a dissenting voice in the opinion that it a good deal more than filled the vast and aching void left by the departure of the Barnum show, and though it came as a stranger, within a week it was adopted by acclamation as a genuine metropolitan institution. That it will repeat its introductory triumph is a foregone conclusion, and its efforts to surpass even itself in magnitude and merit may be classed as heroic. Its colossal muster roll includes more than a thousand artist and animal entertainers; notable additions to its unequalled collection of rare wild beasts; scores of new faces in new and thrilling acts, both on the earth and in the air, and races that would have made Ben Hur's hair stand on end.

Mrs. W. C. Ayers, of West Second street, will leave the city in a short time to take up her residence in East Orange with her son, Frank Baynon.

PUBLIC HEARING ON CITY HALL PROJECT.

Both Sides Are Preparing to Marshal Forces for That Occasion.

MORE TROUBLE OVER SITE.

SEVERAL COUNCILMEN ADVOCATE THE DURLACH PROPERTY.

Split in Majority of Six Favoring Gardner Property May Swing Balance of Power to Advocates of Park Avenue Site.

The opposition to the City Hall project will use every effort to rally its forces for the public hearing that the Common Council will hold Monday evening. So it behooves the advocates of that scheme to go and do likewise. While a public hearing does not by any means perfectly reflect public opinion, it gives both sides an opportunity. There are many who do not care to rise up in public and express themselves. Nevertheless it will serve as an excellent opportunity to see if the opposition is anywhere near as strong as it claims to be.

The anti City Hall forces have only one view and that is that a City Hall of any kind or cost should not be built. The advocates of the new municipal building are at present, sadly split up in their opinions. They all want a City Hall but the question of the proper site has not yet been satisfactorily settled to all parties.

A few days ago the Councilmen favoring the City Hall were divided between the Park avenue site and the Gardner property on East Front street. Now a disposition has been shown on the part of several of the latter faction to favor another property on the same street, the Durlach property. If the advocates of an East Front street site manage to split up between the two, it will leave no majority for any of the sites.

Naturally after all the talk about a City Hall, the Councilmen have tried to get an expression of opinion from most of the residents and property owners in the ward they represent. In conversation with a Press reporter a majority of the Councilmen have said that they believe the people want a City Hall. Mayor Rockfellow said the same thing. He explained that he had conversed with citizens from all wards of the city and a vast majority had declared themselves in favor of the immediate erection of a City Hall.

A week ago it looked as if the Gardner property would surely be chosen as the site for the City Hall. Six out the eleven Councilmen were understood to favor it. Now, however, the advocacy of the Durlach property may lead to a different result.

The advocates of the Park avenue site have been very strongly in favor of their choice. It has even been rumored that several of them might refuse to vote in favor of a City Hall at all unless it was located there. They deem it a central location and think it an unwise policy to put a municipal building on any of the other sites mentioned.

Councilman Frank H. Smith, president of the Council, has been one of the strongest supporters of the Gardner site. He is now outspoken in his opposition to the Durlach property. The price of the latter, it will be remembered, is $30,000, and Mr. Smith considers that entirely too much to pay when lots answering the purpose just as well are to be had at a much more reasonable figure.

If there is any strong attempt on part of the Council to secure the purchase of the Durlach property, it may result in the other two factions uniting forces and selecting the Park avenue site, the price of which is $20,000, for the entire block of Park avenue, between Fifth and Sixth streets.

To Sell Hotel Stock.

There will be an auction sale at Campbell's Hotel next week Tuesday at 12 o'clock noon, when Auctioneer Wm. N. Pangborn will sell for Mrs. E. A. Campbell the entire contents of the hotel including all the household furniture, dishes, carpets, stoves, bedroom suits, and many things too numerous to mention. There will also be sold the sorrel horse "Prince Edward," sired by Bayonne Prince and a gentleman's roadster, together, with wagons, harness, etc. Terms will be cash. Anyone seeking bargains should not fail to attend this sale.

Cleaning Up.

Several teams were put to work Monday morning on the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway, cleaning up and grading. The general work will not be commenced on the extensions until next week.

GOLF CLUB REORGANIZED

THE PARK PLAYERS MAKE IMPORTANT CHANGES.

Charles McCutchen Chosen President—Changes Made About Membership, Too.

The Park Golf Club abrogated its alliance with the Park Club and generally overhauled and improved its organization at the annual meeting of that club last evening. The meeting was held at the Park Clubhouse and was largely attended.

The financial situation showed the need of more revenue.

Under the old order of things the Park Club had an important voice in the management of the Golf Club. The new constitution turned that power over entirely to a board of seven trustees.

The new constitution provides for active, associate, junior associate, non-resident, summer and honorary members. The active members are the same as before, but pay $15 dues. Members of active members' families, sixteen years or under, can become junior associate members on payment of $3 a year. Members of active members' families over sixteen, including sons and brothers up to twenty-one years, are eligible to associate membership with annual dues of $5. Non-resident members, those not living within a radius of ten miles of the club, simply pay $15 a year without initiation fee. Summer members, coming to Plainfield for the summer months, have the privileges of the club for four months for $10. The active membership of the club is limited to 150, and the non-resident to 50. The annual meeting will be held the first Tuesday in March.

Charles W. McCutchen announced at the meeting that as soon as the membership of the club would warrant it, Charles Hyde was ready to give the land necessary for nine additional holes.

The election of trustees was then held and the following were chosen: Charles W. McCutchen, S. St. John McCutchen, William J. Buttfield, Walter M. McGee, Gifford W. Cooley, Meredith Dryden and George T. Rogers.

The trustees organized immediately and selected the following officers and committees: President, Charles W. McCutchen; vice president, George T. Rogers; secretary, Meredith Dryden; treasurer, Gifford W. Cooley; greens committee, George T. Rogers, chairman, S. St. John McCutchen, H. D. Hibbard and G. W. Cooley. House committee, Meredith Dryden, chairman, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. Walter M. McGee and one other active member.

Commencement Exercises of City and Borough Do Not Conflict.

For the first time in many years the commencements of the Plainfield High School and the North Plainfield High School will be held on different nights. Both commencement exercises will be held in Music Hall, and arrangements have been completed by the two Boards for the hiring of the hall. The Plainfield High School commencement exercises will be held on the evening of Thursday, June 21st. The North Plainfield High School will hold its graduation exercises on the next evening, Friday, June 22d.

Somerville Wants New Firehouse.

The firemen of Somerville are getting ready to have the law recently passed permitting the bonding of the town for the erection of a firehouse submitted to a vote of the people as required. They want to have a double house erected for the use of the engine company and the truck, with a meeting room for the Board of Commissioners above.

SONS OF OLD NASSAU GATHERED TOGETHER

Annual Banquet of Union County Princetonians Held in This City.

BRILLIANT TOASTS HEARD.

DR. E. W. HEDGES PRESIDED IN PLACE OF JUDGE MAGIE.

Dr B. VanD. Hedges Elected President of the Club for Ensuing Year—Senator Reed in Happy Vein on Politics.

The annual dinner of the Princeton Club, of Union county, was held last evening at the Park Avenue Hotel, and was a delightful affair. There were about thirty members present, including a few guests. The club met at the hotel about 7:30 o'clock, and a short business session was held in the parlors. At this meeting officers for the coming year were chosen. It was regretted that Chief Justice Magie, the president, could not be present, as court duties kept him away. Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, '88, of this city, was chosen president; G. S. Thomas, of Elizabeth, was made vice-president, and Conover English, '99, of Elizabeth, was chosen secretary. There was no other business and the members adjourned to the dining room.

Here a pleasing sight greeted the Princetonians. The room was elaborately and prettily decorated in orange and black. Streamers filled in the space between the pillars, which were completely covered with the college colors. The electric light bulbs were covered with orange colored paper and the effect was very pretty. John D. Baily, manager of the hotel, looked after the decorations and he deserves credit for the result.

The tables were arranged in "T" fashion, with the presiding officer and the guests at the head of the "T." For nearly two hours "The Sons of Old Nassau" enjoyed a delightful menu. By the time the diners reached their coffee, a goodly number of women had arrived, and were escorted to the dining room where by invitation they enjoyed the "feast of reason and flow of soul."

Dr. E. W. Hedges, in the absence of Judge Magie and the new president, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, presided, and his happy remarks put everyone in the best of humor from the start. He referred affectionately to Dr. Murray, who, he said, was an important factor on the local and State Boards of Health. He said that the good member had the public in a tremor and they verily believed that they could not raise a microbe in their yard. He then referred to the glee club from Princeton that had been engaged to sing, but could not attend for various reasons. He also referred to Judge Magie in his absence. "Notwithstanding all," he said, "we have several lights present scarcely less brilliant." At this time he introduced Prof. Harper, of the Woodhull chair of modern languages at Princeton. He related many things of interest about the college town and its people. His principal thought, however, was that during the past two years a new spirit had invaded Princeton college and better work is being done. He expressed the opinion that the time had come when the country wants men of fixed purpose to guide its affairs. Altogether he considered the present year the most successful Princeton has had for many years.

The next speaker was Rev. Henry Elliott Mott, of Elizabeth, who spoke of "The Scholar in Society." He said that he had prepared a long solemn discourse, but he had always been taught not to presume too much on the intelligence of his audience, and he would refrain from delivering it. He then rehearsed at some length in a semi-humorous manner affairs at Princeton, and compared her with other colleges.

Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, the next speaker, had for his subject "Intercollegiate Comity." He spoke of Yale as the mother of American colleges, and said that he was glad to welcome her first born—Princeton. He thought that both colleges stood for the same idea. He then referred to Harvard as the grandmother of American colleges, an institution that had gone off on her own tack. He mentioned President Elliott's decree that the intercollegiate games should cease for awhile, as the victories for Harvard were monotonous. Dr. Richards thought the result of the games must be weary to Harvard. "If he is sincere," said Dr. Richards, "let him arrange a series of games with Princeton."

Senator Reed, a graduate of Rutgers, was the next speaker, and his

CAST IN "A NIGHT OFF."

AMATEUR THEATRICAL PERFORMANCE MAY 1ST.

W. L. Saunders in General Charge—Dramatic Talent Coached by Alfred Young.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy "A Night Off" will be produced at Music Hall, Tuesday night, May 1st, by a cast of local amateurs. The great success that has invariably met the efforts of Plainfield society folk in the histronic art promises to be repeated on this occasion. The proceeds of the performance, as those of "Diplomacy" last year, will be devoted to the worthy local charities. The net receipts of the play of "Diplomacy" amounted to nearly $400 last year, and that sum was distributed among the charitable societies of this city.

"A Night Off" is one of the best of American comedies. It is full of fun and with a continuance of action that leaves not a dull moment in the whole play. There will be several new faces in the cast, but those prominent in past amateur theatrical performances will appear again this year. Alfred Young, whose work as coach was demonstrated to be so satisfactory last year, is again in charge and under his intelligent direction it is expected to give an entertainment that will be eminently satisfactory to all.

The sale of seats will begin Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Armstrong's pharmacy, corner of Park and North avenues. Private boxes may be had by applying to W. L. Saunders.

The makeup of the cast has just been announced. It is as follows:

Justavian Babbitt, Professor of Ancient History in the Camptown University, W. L. Saunders
Harry Damask, his son-in-law, W. T. Pelletier
Jack Mulbery, in pursuit of fortune, under name of Chumley, F. W. Tredell
Lord Mulbery, in pursuit of Jack, Fred W. Goddard
Marcus Brutus Snap, in pursuit of fame and fortune, under various aliases, W. B Cook
Prowl, usher at the University, Harry Curtis
Mrs. Zantippa Babbitt, Professor of Conjugas Management in the Professor's household. Mrs. F. W. Tredell
Nisbe, the youngest "imp" of the household. Mrs. W. L. Saunders
Angelica Damask, the eldest, Miss Grace M. Kelley
Susan, the "brassiest," Miss Mary Anderson Reinhart

The business end of the performance is under the direction of Former Mayor William L. Saunders, who plays one of the leading roles. Mr. Saunders is largely responsible for the great success of his department on past occasions and he is making every effort to make "A Night Off" equally pleasant from the view of the management and the box-office.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

FIRST SESSION CONVENED IN PATERSON THIS MORNING.

Bishop Vincent is Presiding—Candidates for Delegates to the General Conference.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Paterson, April 4.—The forty-third annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal churches of the Newark district convened in the Market Street Methodist church this morning at 9 o'clock, the first event on the programme being the service of Holy Communion. After this the roll call and organization was carried out. Bishop John H. Vincent is the presiding officer of the conference. The morning session was entirely taken up in routine business.

A number of Methodists from Plainfield, including all the pastors of the churches of that denomination in this city, are present at the conference.

Only two of the members have died within the year. They were the Revs. J. M Freeman and D. B. Lowerie.

This being the General Conference year five clerical and two lay delegates will be elected to attend that conference. The most prominent candidates are the Revs. H. Spelmyer, H. A. Buttz, J. A. Gutteridge, John Krantz and A. H. Tuttle, from the clergy, and William H. Murphy and R R Doherty from the laity. As important legislation will be enacted and new bishops and church officers elected, the conference will send its best men. Four bishops were formerly members of it, and it would not be surprising if another from this conference is chosen for the same office.

As to "placing the preachers," few have been fixed for the year. The Rev. W. P. Ferguson, it is said, will go to St. Luke's, Newark, taking the place of the Rev. A. H. Tuttle, resigned. He may be appointed presiding elder of the Newark district.

The Hackettstown Seminary will be re-built, $150,000 having been obtained for it. Dr. George H. Whitney, of Plainfield, once its president, has been made a trustee.

WOMEN MEET TO TALK OF WORK IN MISSIONS

Delegates Present Representing Various Churches in the Classis of Newark.

NEWARK WOMAN PRESIDING

ADDRESS OF WELCOME MADE BY MRS. CORNELIUS SCHENCK.

Reports of Various Committees Show That Excellent Work is Being Done—Lunch Served by Ladies of Home Church.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Union, Classis of Newark, was held today in Trinity Reformed church, of this city. Morning and afternoon sessions were held.

The church was decorated with cut flowers, potted plants and palms, while a large "Welcome" in green and white was hung upon the front of the organ. A large number of delegates, representing nearly every church in the classis, were present.

The morning session opened at 10:30, the president of the Union, Mrs. J. S. Allen, of Newark, being in the chair. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. D. H. Martin, of Newark, who offered prayer, read a brief Scripture lesson and said a few helpful words. This part of the programme closed with prayer by several delegates, and the singing of a hymn.

The address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, wife of the pastor of the convention church. The warm words of welcome were cordially responded to by Mrs. J. S Allen, who expressed the hope that the meeting might be a most helpful one, and extended a welcome to the delegates.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary of the union, Mrs. C. B. VanDewater, of Nutley, after which the roll of societies was called, the delegates from each society rising and responding with a verse of Scripture.

The secretary then read the report of the treasurer, Mrs. A. Delano, of Newark, who was prevented by illness from being present. She also called upon the societies for their benevolences. These reports showed a large amount given for both home and foreign missions, and much practical missionary work done. Miss M. O. Duryee, of Newark, reported for the classical committee of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions. She said that there was an increased and more intelligent interest in the work shown at present by the societies of the union, and that the younger societies were especially growing. The classical committee of the Home Missionary Society was represented by Mrs. A. Ward, of Newark.

The first address of the morning was by Mrs. I. W. Gowen, of the Hackensack classis. Mrs. Gowen gave a very vivid and entertaining account of a journey made into the western states in the interest of missions. The description of her amusing experiences, her warm welcome by the people of the western Reformed churches, the bright girls making great sacrifices to obtain their education in a little western college, the inspiring meetings held, the fine work done, held the absorbed interest of her listeners from the first word till the last. Mrs. Gowen was a very bright and easy speaker, and told many humorous or pathetic incidents. She closed with an appeal to the women before her to work for other women who had not Jesus Christ for their Saviour and Friend.

A worker from the foreign mission field is sure of a warm welcome from an audience, and much interest was felt in the second address of the morning, Mrs. H. V. S. Peeke, of Japan. The condition of the women in Japan, the slight education obtainable by girls, the difficulty of learning the language, the home customs, the forms of religions, and the lines of work taken up by woman missionaries, were among the topics upon which she spoke. The whole address was of unusual interest, and told many facts about Japan not usually known.

Mrs. Kipp, a missionary just returned from China, said a few words concerning the work done in that field, and gave encouragement to do all possible in behalf of missions.

Mrs. Rapalje, another missionary, also spoke briefly.

At the close of the morning session the delegates adjourned to the Sunday-school room, where special arrangements had been made by the Ladies' Christian Work Society for serving a "basket-luncheon." Special tables for each delegation had been provided, and during the interval between sessions a pleasant time was enjoyed by those in attendance.

DIED AWAY FROM HOME.

MRS. CLARA POTTER'S FATAL ILLNESS AT MARION, N. C.

She Had Been Ordered South for Her Health—Interment at Rahway This Afternoon.

Mrs. Clara Potter, wife of Reuben Potter, formerly of Mt. Pleasant, died yesterday morning at Marion, N. C., where she went for the benefit of her health. Her death was due to pneumonia. Several months ago Mrs. Potter went to New Haven to visit her daughter, Mrs. Howard Dayton. While there she had an attack of malaria, and a physician decided that she should spend the winter in the south. She was accompanied by her husband. Her condition did not improve as her family hoped it would, and recently it was made worse by an attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Potter realized that she was no better and two weeks ago a letter was received by her son, Harry Potter, telling him that she would soon be home to spend her remaining days. She grew rapidly worse and her death was sudden.

The young daughter of Mrs. Potter's daughter, Mrs. Dayton, was also ordered south for her health a short time before Mrs. Potter's death. The daughter and granddaughter were with the latter during her illness and to the time of her death. The remains arrived in Jersey City this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock, and were taken to Rahway, the native home of the deceased, where the funeral services were held at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Charles E. Herring, of this city, officiated, and interment was in Hazlewood Cemetery.

It was to be regretted that the funeral had to be held so soon, but circumstances made this imperative. Mrs. Potter was formerly Miss Clara Brown, of Rahway. For many years she lived with her family on the farm at Mt Pleasant. One son, Harry Potter, and two daughters, Mrs. Howard Dayton, of New Haven, and Mrs. Harry Edgar, of Lowell, Mass., survive her. Her husband also survives her. She was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian church, this city.

QUIET HOME WEDDING.

Miss Ella May Benner Becomes Mrs. Henry Angerbauer—Ceremony Performed Last Night.

A quiet home wedding took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Angerbauer, East Third street, when their youngest son, Henry Angerbauer, and Miss Ella May Benner, daughter of Jacob Benner, of Duer street, were united in marriage by Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church. The guests included just the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride was gowned in white mull and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses, and her attendant, Miss Eva Perry, was gowned the same and carried pink roses. The best man was Morris Sorenson, of this city. After the marriage a reception was tendered to the bride and groom and they received the best wishes of all. They also received a great many handsome and useful presents from their relatives. They will take up their residence for the present at the home of the groom's parents and in the fall they will go to housekeeping.

The groom is an employe of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, on West Front street, and both he and his wife have a large number of friends who wish them success in their married life. Music for dancing was furnished by Eugene O'Reilly.

MUST GET LICENSES.

Board of Health Decides That Garbage Collectors Must Conform Strictly With the Law.

The provisions of the health ordinance concerning the collectors of garbage are to be strictly enforced hereafter. So it was decided at the monthly meeting of the Plainfield Board of Health last night. The fact that only one of the collectors had conformed to the letter with the provisions of the ordinance was brought to the attention of the Board at the last month's meeting. Many collectors have neglected to get licenses at all.

It will now be necessary for all to secure licenses which will not be granted unless the collectors have the proper kind of cans and wagons for the collection of the garbage. The rest of the business transacted at the meeting was of a routine nature.

Received Master Mason's Degree.

At the meeting of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 28, F. and A. M., Amos Andrews received the master mason's degree. There was a large attendance at the meeting.

Mrs. Gardner, wife of Rev. G. W. Gardner, of Park place, is suffering with an attack of the grip.

MRS. CATT URGES A VOTE FOR THE WOMEN.

Suffragist Leader Spoke to a Large Audience of Plainfield Women.

THOROUGHLY IN EARNEST.

POINTED OUT GOOD WORK DONE IN WESTERN STATES.

Incidentally She Argued Against the Idea of Voting Being Made a Compulsory Matter by Enactment of Law.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National Women's Suffrage Association, interested a large number of women yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Samuel Huntington, 324 Franklin place, when she delivered an address on "The Ideal Republic." The responses to Mrs. Huntington's invitations were so numerous that the parlors at the home of the patroness were taxed to accommodate the many who desired to listen to this celebrated woman.

Mrs. Catt is a woman of charming personality and much executive ability. She is thoroughly in earnest in her work and believes most devoutly in the truth and justice of her course.

While Mrs. Catt did not advance anything particularly new along the lines of woman suffrage, which she so zealously advocates, she nevertheless impressed those who listened to her candid statements with the idea that she is sincere and that the devotion she evinces but voices the sentiments of her heart.

Mrs. Catt said she did not believe that any man or woman was too ignorant to be denied the privilege of expressing an opinion at the ballot box. Neither did she believe in having a law to compel either men or women to vote, as had been suggested by certain well-known champions of the suffrage set. But there was no justice or common sense in giving to men a privilege that is denied to women. The laws regarding voting should be elastic. It would be a curse if the law compelled a man or a woman to vote when they did not choose to exercise that right. In Colorado, Utah, Idaho and Wyoming where the suffrage is extended to women, it has been found to work successfully. In those States it has been demonstrated that the women were the more intelligent voters. In Colorado there are 30,000 less women than men, yet fifty-one per cent. of the vote was cast by women at the last Presidential election.

Mrs. Catt maintained that the enfranchisement of women meant a higher development of womanhood just as man has been benefitted by the use of the suffrage.

In closing she took occasion to refer to the needs of greater self reliance among the women. They should be independent thinkers and rely more upon their own judgment. The real woman has no cause to hide her real talents under a bushel. Many women were too vain and many hold in utter contempt those of their sex who seek to develop their womanhood.

The speaker said that every State that denied enfranchisement robs it of womanhood. It is not claimed that every woman will vote at all times for what is right any more than do the men. It may take some years to educate the women in the proper use of the ballot, but though the movement may be slow and gradual it will surely prove beneficial and the result will be the elevation of the women and the consequent bettering of conditions generally in the way of electing to office men and women of higher and nobler ideas.

Mrs. Catt's address was interspersed with frequent anecdotes to illustrate and emphasize her theories that served to relieve its monotony.

After the address a business meeting was held and light refreshments served by Mrs. Huntington.

Judge Bartine's Last Court.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 4—Judge Bartine held court today for the last time to close up some unfinished business. He refused licenses to William Greisheimer, South Bound Brook Hotel, and to Nicholas Depaola, Raritan, saloon. An application for a new trial in the case of Philip W. Brokaw against Clinton Cornell was refused, and judgment was rendered defendant for $65 and interest. In the case of Kay against Wagoner judgment was rendered defendant.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss May Davis Thompson, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Thompson, of Belvidere avenue, to E. Frank Vail, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Vail, of LaGrande avenue.

A MAJORITY OF NINE.

Porto Rican Tariff Bill Passed by the Senate.

CROWDS WITNESS THE FINALE.

Notable Speeches by Mason and Foraker—A Tilt Between Wolcott and Lodge—The House Considers Hawaiian Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Yesterday was notable in the United States senate. It brought to a close the sharpest and most prolonged debate upon any measure since those discussed during the memorable "war congress" two years ago. At 4 o'clock the votes were begun upon the Porto Rican tariff and civil government bill and the pending amendments, and less than an hour later the measure about which there has been so much contention in and out of congress was passed by a majority of nine, the final vote being 40 to 31. Only committee amendments were adopted.

It has been evident for some time that the bill would command a majority in the senate, but notwithstanding that fact the interest in the measure, both of senators and of the public, has not flagged an instant. The galleries were crowded, and hundreds of people filled the corridors unable even to secure standing room in the galleries. From 11 o'clock, when the senate convened, until the hour when the voting began advocates and opponents of the bill brilliantly and eloquently maintained their convictions, and the auditors were kept in a state of constant excitement. The particularly notable speeches of the day were delivered by Mr. Mason of Illinois in opposition to the measure and by Mr. Foraker of Ohio, who replied to a brief speech by Mr. Wellington of Maryland. It was the Ohio senator's desire to clear up any misunderstanding or misinformation concerning the bill.

Mr. Mason's speech was argumentative, eloquent and amusing by turns, and as it covered the entire range of the country's duties and responsibilities to what the Illinois senator sarcastically termed "our in-su-lar pos-ses-sions," it was very interesting to his hearers.

Just before the senate adjourned a sensational episode occurred, in which Mr. Wolcott of Colorado accused Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts of uttering that which was "unqualifiedly false." The difficulty arose over an effort made by Mr. Lodge to have the Spooner bill made the unfinished business. This involved the displacement of the Quay case, and the friends of the former senator from Pennsylvania made things exceedingly lively for half an hour.

The house entered upon the consideration of the substitute for the senate Hawaiian territorial bill under a special order which will bring the question to a vote tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The debate was in committee of the whole, and only three of the six speeches were pertinent to the bill.

Porto Rican Finances.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The division of customs and insular affairs of the war department gave out a statement of the condition of the Porto Rican treasury for the month of February, 1900. The most important item is that the deficit for the month is $24,191. The total receipts for February, 1900, were $100,016, while the disbursements for the month were $124,207. The balance in the hands of the treasurer of the island Feb. 1, 1900, was $447,889.98, which by Feb. 28, 1900, had decreased to $423,668. The receipts of the island for the month of February, 1900, are divided as follows: Customs, $60,932; postal, $7,963; internal revenue, $27,182; miscellaneous, $3,937.

Mexico Gets a Big Check.

NEW YORK, April 4.—An interesting item in the payments of the subtreasury was a check for $400,000 payable to the republic of Mexico. This was to refund the amount paid by Mexico more than 20 years ago upon an award against that country on the Weil and La Arbra claim. This claim was afterward found to be based on worthless representations. Mexico made the first payment under the award, but at the same time protested against the claim. The money was for this reason never paid over to the claimants, but remained in the treasury of the United States pending investigation, which was completed about a year ago.

Rioting Miners to Be Tried.

DUBOIS, Pa., April 4.—Twenty of the men who participated in the rioting at Horatio mines a few days ago were held for trial at court. Five of them furnished bail, and the others were taken to Brookville jail. The 13 women and the rest of the men who were arrested were discharged. The situation at the workings of the Berwind-White company is the same, none of the men returning to work. At Dubois there was a break in the ranks of the strikers, 54 of them resuming work.

Large Mill Burned.

BEDFORD, Pa., April 4.—The large mill of the Hyndman Lumber and Manufacturing company, located at Hyndman, this county, has been destroyed by fire. There was a large quantity of finished furniture in the building, and this also was burned. The loss is $50,000; insurance, $20,000. Seventy-five men have been thrown out of work.

Heavy Snow Causes an Avalanche.

BERLIN, April 4.—During the heavy snowstorms with which the month opened an avalanche did great damage in the Sudetian mountains near Hirschberg, killing several persons.

NO CANAL SURVEY.

New York Legislature Lets It Drop. Late Governor Flower Honored.

ALBANY, April 4.—A final effort was made yesterday to save from defeat the bill appropriating $200,000 for a survey of the canal, but it is believed that no pressure can bring it out. George Raymond of Buffalo saw nearly all the leaders and called attention to the chances, if the canal was improved, of the state getting most of the steel and iron traffic of the country.

The most important canal legislation of the session passed the senate yesterday. It was Senator Ford's bill removing the limit of $50,000 at which corporations are permitted to capitalize for operation on the canals. This bill has been earnestly urged by Erastus Wiman and other capitalists in the interest of large steel canalboats and as vigorously opposed by the smaller boat owners.

Members of both branches of the legislature met in joint session in the assembly chamber last night, together with the judiciary and state officers, to pay tribute to the memory of the late Governor Flower. In the audience were also many former neighbors of the governor from his home in Watertown. The meeting was presided over by Senator B. A. Brown, who represents Mr. Flower's home district. After prayer by Rev. W. Battershall of this city, Senator Brown introduced Governor Roosevelt, who paid a brief but eloquent tribute to the memory of Governor Flower, characterizing him as the man who represented in his life much that had grown to be regarded as typical of American character. Governor Roosevelt then introduced Hon. John B. Stanchfield of Elmira, former leader of the Democracy in the assembly, who delivered the speech of the evening.

Labor Troubles In Porto Rico.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 4.—A crowd of about 500 persons gathered at a pier under construction by the E. B. Jenks company of New York, intimidated the native carpenters and forced 35 of them to quit work. The present rate of wages is $1.50 for ten hours' labor. The leaders of the movement demanded an eight hour day. At noon yesterday a mob of over 1,000 people assembled and attacked the St. Thomas laborers. The agitators were headed by Iglesias, late delegate to the labor convention at New York. All the workmen who were satisfied and willing to work were forced out by the so called union leaders, with the result that no natives will be engaged. The company has cabled to the United States for 25 carpenters, who will arrive on the next steamer.

War Department Doubts the Story.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The war department officials do not believe the story that comes from South Africa to the effect that Captain Carl Reichman, Seventeenth infantry, was one of the leaders of the Boers at the last fight between the Boers and the English at the Bloemfontein waterworks. Reichman's brother officers, men who know him well, say that it is very probable that Reichman occupied some conspicuous point of vantage from which to view the fight, and his discovery in uniform by the British was the basis for the assumption that he was one of the Boer leaders. Reichman was selected by General Miles personally to accompany the Boer forces during the war as an observer for the United States army.

Aid For Boers.

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—Dr. Emil Pretorius, editor of the Westliche Post and cousin of General Pretorius of the Transvaal, yesterday sent a draft for $500 to President Kruger. In an accompanying letter he says: "Through the agency of our state department at Washington I have caused to be sent to you on Jan. 25 £150 and on Feb. 24 £100. Today I take pleasure in sending you £100 in addition to the above amounts. This sum, which has been subscribed for the widows and orphans of Boers who have died while fighting for a just cause and their liberty and independence, as our forefathers of '76 did, you will receive in the form of a draft on Cape Town through the representative of our government at Pretoria."

Died In His Carriage.

READING, Pa., April 4.—Colonel David Campbell, superintendent of the Empire Iron and Steel company's furnaces here and one of the most prominent iron masters in the country, died suddenly in his carriage as he was returning from an inspection of the Wheatfield mines, of which he was manager.

Mayor by Six Votes.

DULUTH, April 4.—The district court has decided that T. W. Hugo shall remain mayor of the city of Duluth. Judge Dibell, in the election contest instituted by Henry Truesdell, former mayor, finds that Hugo was elected by six votes, just what the face of the returns showed on the original canvass.

Quick Work With a Rapist.

BRIDGE WORK
In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

POST OFFICE BUILDINGS.

The Constantly Expanding Postal Business Leads to a Serious Item of Expenditure.

The American method of conducting the post office business so as to give "the greatest good to the greatest number and no profit to the government" has one disadvantage. That is the impossibility of providing from time to time, as the requirements of an expanding volume of business call for them, new buildings for post office uses, or for the extension of those already in use. The American theory of post office business is that as the revenues of the department increase in excess of the expenses, the surplus should be applied to betterments in the service and the recurrence of other surpluses provided against by a reduction in the postal rates. This system, which has worked remarkably well in the past, giving a steady decrease in the postal charges with many improvements as regards delivery, does not take into account the requirements for new buildings, and these must, therefore, be provided for by separate appropriations, which are just now in much demand from congress.

At the time of the last report there were 1,000 post offices of the first and second classes in the United States, exclusive of minor or village post offices, and of these chief post offices 252 were in buildings owned by the government and the remainder were in leased premises, the gross annual rental of which was nearly $500,000, exclusive of nearly as much more paid for the rent of postal substations. The entire appropriation [illegible] leased buildings and parts of b[illegible] (the usage of the government [illegible] to provide in leases of buildings for post offices use for heat, light and safe or vault), is $1,500,000 a year, and the larger post offices which are, of course, those which yield the most profit to the government, the minor ones being operated at a loss, entail no expenditure for buildings, money for which is separately appropriated from government funds by congress. Estimates differ as to the value of post office buildings owned by the United States government. The New York post office cost $7,000,000, and all large American cities, Washington now included, have post offices of modern design, the collective value of which is certainly not less than $100,000,000, and may be considerably in excess of that amount in view of the fact that in many cases the sites for post office buildings have been presented by the states or municipalities, as the case may be, without any cost to the general government; and if the value of land be taken into account and the expense of interior equipment added, it is probable that the post office buildings represented by the government and included, would represent a capitalization of $200,000,000, the annual interest charge on which would about equal the annual deficit from post office operations, which is from $9,000,000 to $10,000,000.

It is under these circumstances that the demand for new post office buildings or for the improvement of established post office buildings is usually resisted by congress. There is considerable rivalry between cities in this regard. The Kansas City post office, when completed, is to cost $850,000; the St. Paul post office, $800,000; the Omaha post office, $750,000; the Savannah post office, $400,000; the Charleston post office, $400,000, and the Newark post office building a like sum. New York exceeds all other cities of the country not only in respect to the volume of post office business, but also in the profit arising from it.—N. Y. Sun.

AMERICAN UMBRELLAS.

One Article of Wide Manufacture Here of Which Not Many Are Exported.

Umbrellas are made in this country in great numbers, and in the highest perfection, but comparatively few are exported. American umbrellas are sold in the West Indies, and scattering lots go in other directions, but altogether the exports are not large. Grade for grade, American umbrellas are the best in the world, the best designed and the lightest in appearance, and some of them are produced at prices that seem marvelously low. But, while a larger proportion than formerly of the cloths used in umbrella-making are now produced in this country, many umbrella cloths are still imported, and so are many handles. Nearly all the rods and ribs used in umbrellas manufactured here are now made in this country, and some of these have been exported. By far the greater proportion of American umbrellas are now made with steel rods, while in Europe wooden sticks are still largely used.

On the rods and ribs American machinery is brought to bear, and these parts of the umbrella are now produced at a wonderfully low cost. But there is still required on the umbrella some hand labor, which costs more here than in foreign countries, and on the imported materials the duty is added to their cost, and so that, take it altogether, the umbrella has not yet come to be added in great numbers to the growing list of American exports.—N. Y. Sun.

English the Commercial Language.

The Chinese minister made the noteworthy statement in his Philadelphia address that in all the ports and trade centers of the east the English language held a place in the counting-room and school such as no other language could claim. "Chinese, Japanese, Germans, Russians and Frenchmen alike," he said, "make use of it in their business offices, in their clubs and in their family circles. In short, it may be called the commercial language of the orient."—N. Y. Times.

BOERS STAND FIRM.

Recapture of the British Guns Seems Unlikely.

RUMOR OF AN ADVANCE BY BULLER.

Great Bravery Displayed by the British at Bushman's Kop—Boers Intended to Capture the Whole Force.

LONDON, April 4.—No news has yet been received of the expected battle between General French and the Boers. There is now but a remote prospect of the recapture of the guns. This, however, is regarded as quite trifling compared with the political effects of the disaster. As the Bloemfontein correspondent of The Times remarks, Commandant Oliver's strategy in reoccupying Ladybrand and Thaba N'Chu was bold and even brilliant. Most of his force is composed of Free Staters, and the advantage gained by them will have a most disturbing effect on the mind of the Free State population.

A dispatch from Bushman's Kop says: "The Boers are still occupying the waterworks, which the British shelled yesterday afternoon, the Boers replying. The British bombardment was ineffective."

The Cape Town correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Monday, says:

"Apparently there was not a man ahead of the convoy with orders to look out, but the escort trotted quietly behind and only discovered that something was wrong after half the convoy had been captured."

There is little news from other points. Mafeking was still besieged on March 20, and there are rumors that General Buller is preparing to advance.

The correspondent of The Times at Lourenco Marques, telegraphing Tuesday, says:

"It is reported here that all the Rand mines closed down last Thursday. British workmen and their countrymen in other parts of the republic are being expelled wholesale from the Transvaal.

"On the other hand, the Boers are so demoralized that it is impossible to induce many now on furlough to return to the front."

A dispatch from Cape Town, dated April 3, says:

"Sir Alfred Milner has returned here.

"Two small parties of Boers escaped from the Greenpoint track. One party was traced to a railway train, which was stopped and searched near Cape Town. The Boers jumped through one of the windows of the train and got away."

The war office has posted a dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 2, 10:30 p. m., reading as follows:

"In continuation of my telegram of March 31, there has been considerable delay in getting accurate returns of the casualties, as the action took place 22 miles hence, the telegraph cable has been interrupted several times, the weather has interfered with signaling, and, although there has been no engagement since, the force is continually in touch with the enemy.

"There were many acts of conspicuous gallantry displayed during the day. Q battery remained in action under a cross fire at 1,200 yards for some hours, the officers serving the guns as the casualties reduced the detachments. Several gallant attempts were made to bring in two guns the teams of which had been killed, but at each attempt the horses were shot."

AFTER THE BATTLE.

English Bravery at Bushman's Kop. They Were Pursued For Miles.

BUSHMAN'S KOP, April 4.—Hearing that the waterworks were deserted, the correspondent of the Reuter's Telegram agency rode forward yesterday. Arriving at the crest of a hill, a volley was fired at him, and a moment later a man appeared at the top of the crest. Calling on him to stop firing and saying he was unarmed and desired to talk with him, the correspondent discovered that this man was an American who declared that he accompanied the Boers only as a sightseer. He said that never during his whole life had he witnessed such magnificent pluck as that shown by the British Saturday, and he asserted that not only himself, but the whole Boer army were profoundly touched with admiration at their gallant behavior.

It appears that the Boers never doubted their ability to capture the whole British force and were dumfounded at the courage displayed and the masterly way in which the force was able to escape from the death trap.

According to the testimony of eyewitnesses, the Boers shot some of the prisoners, but the confusion was so great—the fire proceeding from all directions and the Boers firing on the convoy, in which their own men were mixed up—that it is impossible to say exactly what happened.

Explosive bullets have been found in the bandoliers of some of the Boers who were captured.

The enemy pursued the British for miles, killing, wounding and taking prisoners. One squadron of the Sixth dragoons which entered the action 140 strong mustered at the end only ten mounted men.

The Boers appear to be in great strength throughout the district and are signaling on all sides. A large body is reported moving southwest of Bloemfontein in the direction of the railway.

Duplicate machinery is available to replace that which the Boers destroyed at the waterworks.

VICTORIA IN IRELAND

Reaches Kingstown In Pelting Rain Ahead of Time.

GREAT DEMONSTRATION IN HER HONOR

Entrance Into Dublin Promises to Be One of the Most Remarkable Occasions In the History of Erin.

DUBLIN, April 4.—In spite of the rain that was falling and the huge puddles of water under foot, the arrival of Queen Victoria in the royal yacht Victoria and Albert off Kingstown was the occasion for much enthusiasm, although this did not take an organized form owing to the fact that her majesty came several hours ahead of schedule time.

The passage of the channel was smooth, and the queen suffered no discomfort, although she expressed regret that the premature departure from Holyhead owing to the threatening weather conditions should cause her Irish subjects disappointment. It had been officially announced that she would reach Kingstown at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday instead of 2 p. m., but at the latter hour the Victoria and

QUEEN VICTORIA.

Albert loomed up through the haze and rain and was greeted with the thunder of 21 guns from each ship of the British channel squadron.

Thousands had poured into Kingstown regardless of the pelting rain, which luckily ceased about 5 o'clock, and they braved the cold winds and mud until midnight. The celebrations were confined to an illumination of the war vessels and to a few fireworks here and there. A shining shamrock stood out against the blackness of Dublin bay, and from the jackies clustered on the decks of the squadron came strains of "God Save the Queen," which were taken up with a will by the patient crowd on shore, and when "Soldiers of the Queen" floated across the quiet water the spectators on Kingstown pier joined in with equal fervor.

Although all political conditions are represented in Kingstown, there was no attempt at a counter demonstration. In fact the evening's fireworks, singing and cheering were not marred by any hostile note, and the entry of the queen into Dublin today will probably be a repetition of similar friendly conditions.

In Dublin itself, seven miles from Kingstown, the epithet "Dear, dirty Dublin" was never before presumably better justified than yesterday. Dublin was bedraggled, its finery, which rivaled London's jubilee decorations, drooping sadly from the steady rain which, according to the weather prophets, will be repeated today. However, last evening when the showers ceased illuminations such as Ireland had never seen lit up the streets and were viewed by crowds so dense that in several thoroughfares traffic was impossible.

The castle was gay with a dinner party, including the leading Irish nobility, and a spirit of good natured revelry prevailed over every quarter of Ireland's capital.

The queen will disembark some time before noon today and will drive from Kingstown through the city, reaching the vice regal lodge about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The progress of the queen promises to be one of the most remarkable occasions in the history of Ireland.

Airbrake Plant to Close.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., April 4.—The entire plant of the New York Airbrake company is tied up on account of a misunderstanding existing between the company and the laborers employed there. One thousand men are out of work. Yesterday the men submitted a proposition to the company asking a reference to the state board of arbitration. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the company replied, "We have nothing to arbitrate." It is stated that the company will close down its plant for three months.

Resignation of Mr. Davis Accepted.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The resignation of Mr. Webster Davis as assistant secretary of the interior has been accepted by Secretary Hitchcock by direction of the president. The resignation, it is understood, was sent directly to the president by Mr. Davis, but was referred to the secretary of the interior to be accepted by him in the regular course. Secretary Hitchcock declined to say anything in regard to the resignation. He believed that the statements made by Mr. Davis fully covered the case.

Commission to Sail April 15.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Judge Taft, president of the Philippine commission, spent some time yesterday in consultation with Secretary Root. He expects to leave Washington this afternoon, going to California by way of Chicago. He will pay a brief visit to his sister at San Diego, but will be in San Francisco by the 13th inst. to meet the remainder of the commission and to sail on the 15th for Manila.

Kearsarge Again at Sea.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., April 4.—The battleship Kearsarge went to sea again yesterday for her final acceptance trial. The board of inspection went aboard at an early hour, and at 9 o'clock the Kearsarge left the harbor. She will undergo exhaustive tests of her turrets and seagoing qualities.

Mrs. McKinley Better.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Mrs. McKinley, who has been confined to her room for some time on account of an attack of grip, is greatly improved and yesterday for the first time in the last week or more was able to take a drive with the president.

Small Cotton Movement.

NEW ORLEANS, April 4.—Secretary Hester's New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement shows that the movement of cotton for March was 580,568 bales against 639,457 last year and 701,491 year before last.

DIRT CLEARANCE.

IT is a good plan for every bather to know something of the soap he uses. There is a well-founded objection to using a floor-cleaning soap upon the human body. Ivory Soap is the bather's soap. It costs more than common soaps, but the difference is in the ingredients and making. Why not treat yourself with a little respect. Is not the human skin with its marvellous delicacy entitled to pure soap? Ivory Soap—it floats.

CANAL COMMISSION BACK.

Three Months Spent In Central America Inspecting Routes.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The Atlas line steamer Alleghany, which has just arrived here, brought Rear Admiral J. G. Walker, Colonel O. H. Ernst, Professor E. R. Johnson of the University of Pennsylvania and ex-Senator Samuel Pasco of Florida of the isthmian canal commission. The commission has spent the last three months in Central America selecting the best route for a canal between the Atlantic and Pacific, and all of the commissioners have now returned to this country except G. S. Morison, who is still at work on the isthmus of Darien.

The commissioners started at once for Washington, where the commission will be busy for some time preparing its report, which it expects to present in December. Admiral Walker refused to divulge the opinions of the commission as to which is the best route, and also declined to commit himself on the question of whether the canal should be fortified.

"Our duty will be simply to state the facts and to present to congress the result of our survey and work," the admiral said. "Both routes have their advantages, and these will be set forth. We have examined the whole country down there."

Speaking of the work done by the commission in Central America he said:

"Everywhere we were well received and entertained. The sentiment of the people is for the United States to build the canal. For any one to say which will be the best route is a pretty hard thing. Our report will be made on what we consider the best route, taking everything into consideration. But even now we have not gathered all the information on the subject necessary, and there are still at work down there about 400 men making surveys, getting engineering data and studying the topography of the country."

To Improve Hawaiian Harbor.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The naval board, of which Admiral Barker is chairman, appointed to prepare plans for the establishment of a naval and coaling station at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, has completed its labors. The board was deterred by the absence of data respecting the character of the coral formations in the harbor from submitting close estimates of the cost of making the harbor accessible for large ships. This data can be had only by a series of borings, which will be made while the work of improving the channel across the entrance bar is in progress. The $100,000 recently appropriated will be utilized for this purpose as soon as the money can be transferred to the navy department.

Both Hands Blown Off.

PATERSON, N. J., April 4.—William Pierson, 19 years old, found an old double barreled gun near his home at Edison mountain. The stock of the gun was missing. Pierson loaded the gun and made a trail of powder on the ground for the purpose of setting it off. The fuse lighted, and Pierson fled. But the powder seemed to have gone out, and Pierson went back and picked up the gun. It exploded, and both Pierson's hands were blown off. He walked a mile and a half to secure medical assistance and suffered so from loss of blood that he may die.

Revolt In the Cameroons Spreading.

BERLIN, April 4.—The serious condition of affairs in the German Cameroons continues to engage attention here. It is said that the revolt already extends along the entire length of the Mungo river. Everywhere the villages are deserted, and the planters find it impossible to get workers. Most of the workers from the hinterland have fled, including the Balis and the Weis, and it is now expected that the flourishing cocoa plantations of 25,000 hectares around the Cameroon mountains will fall back into a state of wilderness until autumn.

Men Defeat Women In Kansas.

TOPEKA, April 4.—The election for city offices in the town of Beattie, Marshall county, Monday was a contest between men and women, and the men won. The ticket composed entirely of women were elected a year ago. The women officers, headed by Mrs. Elizabeth Totten, mayor, were candidates for re-election. The men rebelled against the strict prohibition enforced by the women, and the men's ticket was elected with the exception of a clerk, one councilman and the marshal. The latter is a man.

A Mother's Terrible Crime.

ROCHESTER, April 4.—Because she could get no more credit at a corner grocery store, Mrs. Catharine Meyer, aged 32, wife of a coal driver, living at 449 Joseph avenue, yesterday afternoon killed her two children, a daughter 3 years old and a son 1 year old, by throwing them into a cistern under the floor in the rear of the kitchen. She then threw herself into the cistern, where all three bodies were found at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Meyer left a note addressed to her relatives which was written rather incoherently, but said in substance that she owed a grocery bill of $1.06 and that the grocer had refused to trust her for any more supplies.

Will Lose His Eye.

NEW HAVEN, April 4.—Glover Beardsley, Yale 1903, of Auburn, N. Y., will lose the sight of his right eye as the result of an accident. In cleaning out a stylographic pen several days ago a piece of broken glass and a few drops of ink entered his eye, causing a very painful inflammation in a day or two. He was treated by a local physician with poor success until two days ago, when he went to New York to consult a specialist, who told him that he would lose the sight of the right eye.

Now is the Time to Build.

The opponents to the immediate construction of a City Hall scoff at the claim that the price of available building sites for such a structure will increase any in the next few years, and then in the next breath insist that building materials are bound to go lower. The arguments do not fit together. It is a fact that if building materials do decrease in price as compared with the present rates the demand for property for building purposes will also increase—and none quicker than the available sites for the proposed municipal building.

Admitting, for the sake of argument, that a year, two years, or possibly ten years hence a saving of perhaps $5 000 might be made in the cost of constructing a City Hall, of what avail would delay be to the city in respect to this improvement? It would simply mean that the saving in the actual cost of construction of the building would be more than equaled in the increased cost of a site. If the claims of the opponents of the project are sound as to cost of construction, a look into the future with reference to a site puts a practical discount upon them at once.

If Plainfield is to have a City Hall at all, the time to build it is in the immediate future. To put the consummation of the idea over to an indefinite time means to kill it entirely—and this, we believe, is contrary to the wishes of the majority of the people of the city.

Time Has Proven.

Time has proven that the Elizabeth City Council was dealing right with the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company in the matter of granting that corporation a valuable franchise for the use of a public street in that city to lay their tracks on and complete the trolley projected from Plainfield to the county seat. The fight on the part of the Council to secure the proper protection of the people's rights was a long and bitter one. The Council was accused of unfair dealing with the corporation and the strongest kind of influence was brought to bear to induce undeserved concessions to the trolley syndicate. It was persistently and freely claimed throughout the negotiations that the trolley company would never build the line as it had planned as long as the Council maintained its stand. Finding that it could not hoodwink the Council the trolley syndicate has begun active operations to take advantage of the terms of the franchise. By so doing the syndicate has again proven itself to be a firm of gigantic bluffers.

The New Brunswick Fredonian, which poses as the leading Republican organ of Middlesex county, is again under new management. This time W. B. and C. A. Prickitt, of Metuchen, have obtained a controling interest in the concern, and will use their energy and ability in trying to put the paper on a prosperous basis. The Fredonian, once one of the best paying newspaper properties in the State, has passed through many vicissitudes during the last few years. The Messrs. Prickitt believe that they will be able to succeed where others have failed, and in this effort The Daily Press wishes them the best of luck.

The editor of the News has thus far tried to evade the accusation that he actually asked Congressman Fowler to appoint him postmaster of Plainfield. Perhaps this is so because he was never asked direct. To overcome this suspicion we now put this question to the editor of the News: "Did you not appeal, personally, to Congressman Fowler to recommend your name to the President for nomination as Postmaster of Plainfield?" We shall await the answer, together with many others, with considerable interest.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The fact was noted at the recent swearing into office of the newly elected Mayor of Burlington that his is the only Mayoralty commission that under the city charter is issued by the Governor. It was also stated that Burlington is the oldest chartered city in the United States, even antedating Saint Augustine, Fla., in this respect. Burlington's civic existence dates back to 1677, and there is reason to belive that it has about held its own ever since.

One of the first of the spring flowers to appear is the trailing arbutus. It is only to be found in one place in this section and that is in the vicinity of Bonhamtown, a little settlement south of Metuchen and on the edge of the sand hills that border the lower part of the Raritan river. Every year many parties go from this city awheel and in carriages to gather the fragrant little flowers that are to be found half buried in the sand. They have not yet appeared in this neighborhood although they are reported at Lakewood. A few days of warm sun will bring out the blossoms as buds are now numerous near Bonhamtown.

It is learned from the Sussex Record that "Uzie Sammis, the natural born genius and inventor, living up in the region of rattlesnakes, black bass and huckleberries, is quite indignant at Tamarack Pole Bill because he published his latest invention as a cow milking machine. Uz says there isn't the slightest bit of truth in that story. He says that no patent can be granted for a milking machine, for no one can get their ideas on such a machine to work to perfection, and that hundreds have spent their time on such an invention to meet a dismal failure." Uzie, however, does not deny that he is working on a new machine which he hopes to have perfected in a short time, and he has promised that The Record man shall be present at the trial.

While Captain "Joe" Castner, of New Brunswick, was on his way to the Philippines last summer in charge of a lot of soldiers, the transport stopped at Nagasaki, Japan, to make some repairs, and Captain Castner was sent to obtain the necessary permission from the Governor. To his amazement he found the Governor able to speak English perfectly. On his explaining the object of his visit, the Governor asked him what part of the United States he came from. And when he had told him that he was a native of New Brunswick, N. J., the Governor said: "Your name is Castner, is it? Well, are you not the boy who used to go shooting up DeRussey lane when I was a student in Rutgers College?" Explanations followed, and it turned out that Captain Castner was the very boy, while the Governor proved to be Ichizy Hattori, who was graduated from Rutgers College in 1875. Needless to say Captain Castner received the desired permission and was royally treated during his stay. At their last meeting a few weeks ago the trustees of Rutgers conferred the honorary degree of LL. D., on Governor Hattori.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 4.—Sad and impressive were the funeral services of Mrs. Alfred McKown, which were held from her late home in Fanwood yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The spacious house was filled with the sorrowing relatives and friends who had gathered to pay their last respects to the one they had loved in life for her loving character, charitable deeds and Christian forbearance during her pain and suffering. When the hour arrived for the sad services to begin Rev. J. Parks announced his text as taken from Job 9; 12: "Behold He Taketh Away, Who Can Hinder Him, Who Will Say Unto Him What Doeth Thou?" During the impressive services many eyes were dimmed with tears. During his remarks he spoke of having served the family of the deceased during the last fifteen years During that time he had officiated in both sorrow and joy, having had the pleasure to officiate as her pastor at her wedding, and as the family pastor had spoke the last sad words over her mother and later over her little child. Dr. Parks was assisted in the services by Rev. Mr. Shott. The floral tokens of love from the family and friends nearly hid the casket and consisted of pillows, designs and clusters. Interment was made in the family burial plot in the Baptist cemetery. Mrs. McKown is survived by a husband and a son.

Wm. S. Corey received a sad telegram Monday, announcing the death of his daughter, Mrs. E. W. Bequa, which occurred Sunday night at her home at Schodack Landing, N. Y. Mrs. Requa death was not unexpected, as she has been a suffering from consumption for nearly two years, and during the past winter has been confined to her bed nearly all the time. At times the disease would halt in its dread work, and it was hoped that she would be able to stand the journey back to the town of her childhood, but the disease seemed to fasten again with renewed vigor and the end came Sunday night. Interment will be made at Schodack Landing.

A lady of Bucks Co., Penn., declares that Ripans Tabules are the best medicine for young and old that one could possibly use. After an attack of the grippe several years ago (she says) I was troubled more than ever before with bad feelings when first waking in the morning, being numb and stiff and my brain dull and aching. A Ripans Tabule taken at night did not seem to stop the morning trouble. Some time ago I thought I would take a Tabule in the morning when first waking, so one morning when I felt too miserable to rise, I had a Ripans Tabule handed to me. I took it and after a few minutes was surprised to find that I felt able to rise and was soon about doing my daily work. Now I always keep the Tabules on a stand at my bedside and use them whenever I wake feeling dull and out of sorts, and they have never failed to act like a charm. This lady's daughter finds that Ripans Tabules act well on her children, also. One little one, two years old, who is cutting teeth, suffers from fevers and stomach troubles. One-third of a Tabule three times a day settles her stomach, sweetens her breath and stops the fever.

A DOMESTIC CRISIS.

How Mrs. Blaine's Eight Hour Servants' Day Rule Would Work.

A system of household service which is receiving practical demonstration in the home of Mrs. Emmons Blaine of Chicago is causing serious discussion among householders of less wealth. Professor Patrick Geddes of Edinburgh, who recently lectured in Chicago, suggested that there was a chance of improving the condition of household servants by regulating their labor to an eight hour schedule. So well did Mrs. Blaine receive the idea that she resolved at once to adopt it in her own home.

The system necessitated the dividing of forces into watches, like sailors on shipboard, and cooks, maids, butlers, laundresses, coachmen and grooms have been so classified that they now labor only eight hours a day.

That the attempt to regulate the servant's social condition must end disastrously seems almost inevitable. The domestic service problem is already so complicated that it was to be hoped that the kitchen would still remain our own and that labor regulations would not be required in them. But in the face of such a venture as this it becomes necessary to meet the problem squarely.

In modest households where only one, two or even three servants are kept the greatest difficulty will be encountered. Rules should certainly be made that will meet the demands of the many households and not for those where relays of servants can be had and where a number of assistant housekeepers simplify the duties of the managing head.

The case of domestic service cannot be considered parallel with factory or office duties, where life is apart from the labor done and where activity begins and ends at a regular hour.

It would seem as though the dangers of such a scheme would be innumerable. Servants are already demanding many concessions which are very exacting for modest households. What their demands would amount to under this eight hour system we cannot even guess at, but they would probably make the situation unbearable.

There is one feature of the case that may be relied upon, the production of specialists in that field of labor. There will be a distinctive line drawn between the duties of chambermaid and waitress, laundress and chambermaid, etc. The result will be that many mistresses will be obliged to resume the old custom of attending to their household duties themselves, or they will have to employ inferior service at exorbitant prices.

Much of the dissatisfaction among servants arises from improper management. The fault lies with the mistresses themselves, who are either too indifferent or too lazy to teach the servants or else because they are unacquainted with household economics. Where the mistress is fully acquainted with the duties that devolve upon each servant the work is easily arranged so as to make it lighter for all concerned.

The old plan of housekeeping has proved a great success, especially where the mistress is reasonable and sensible. Servants have seemed happy, and the result has been satisfactory, though this is true only where there has been much consideration between mistress and servants and between the servants themselves.

How the system is to be managed where one servant is kept is a distracting problem.

Other difficulties that present themselves even to the wealthy is the matter of housing so many servants as would be required for a large household. Large city mansions are arranged to accommodate from 10 to 20 servants. With the new regulation three times as many will have to be provided for.

That domestic service will have to undergo the same process of civilization and specialization as other trades in order to obtain systematic results seems feasible enough, but how any well regulated house can operate washing and ironing, the entertainment of guests and any extra labor on the eight hour system remains to be shown.

The servant problem is so difficult that it requires careful thought for its adjustment. The present solution seems very impractical and almost impossible with but two servants. And it seems doubtful if an attempt is made to bring the complex workings of the household within the regulations of a labor schedule that anything but disorder will result. JEANETTE DEVOE.

HOUSE UPSIDE DOWN.

One of the Most Unique Features of the Paris Exposition.

It Is Called "The Inverted Mansion"—Some Startling Illusions Produced by Ingenious Arrangement of Mirrors.

Visitors to the exhibition at Paris who make their entrance by the Place de la Concorde will probably wonder whether they are the victims of hallucination or the subject of a seasonable practical joke. They will be confronted with a weird-looking structure, which a momentary examination will show them is in reality a house. But it is not an ordinary dwelling place. Architects usually have a weakness for laying their foundations upon a solid substratum of earth. Not so the designer of the "Manoir a l'Envers." He has laid the foundations in the clouds, and the only communication with mother earth is by way of the chimneys and turrets of his feudal mansion. Nevertheless, there is no danger of its falling into pieces with its occupants, for, be it noted, this topsy-turvy mansion is not uninhabited. The visitor draws closer and glances at the windows; people dressed like himself look out. To his astonishment they are as topsy-turvy as the house, for their feet point skywards and their heads are directed towards the ground.

If anxious to solve the mystery and to learn how it has become possible for mere humanity to emulate the fly and walk upside down, the visitor will find his bewilderment increased. In fact, says the New York Journal, the apparent intention of the designer of the "Manoir" is to instill a lasting doubt in the minds of men as to whether they do really stand on their heads or their heels.

Immediately the visitor enters he at once becomes part and parcel of the topsy-turvy scheme. He is ushered into a room, and gradually it dawns upon him that he is really walking upon the ceiling. He looks anxiously round him for something to clutch; there is nothing! He takes one cautious step—another! He has achieved the impossible; he has learned to walk with his head where his heels should be. The lesson thus being learned, he will find it possible to enjoy with equanimity the ordinary doings of humanity from his novel point of view. He may proceed to a bathroom and perceive a steaming jet of hot water spouting upward into the tub. He may proceed to the dining-room, where, the laws of gravity being suspended, the table remains unmoved directly over his head, and all the paraphernalia of the table, the plates, the cutlery, the flowers, sustain their positions without any more effort than the guests dining thereat.

Thence he may visit the kitchen, where the chef, in immaculate white apron, is busily engaged in his usual duties. The cook lets fall a saucepan lid; unconsciously the visitor puts up his hand to protect his head, but there is no need for him to do so, since, like everything else in this abode, the saucepan lids obey laws of their own. Then there is the drawing-room, where standing alongside the chandelier he may avail himself of the unexampled opportunity afforded him for studying the art of the Parisian coiffeur as displayed upon the head of a lady who at the piano beneath is tinkling out the tune of the latest popular song. Even Gulliver in all his travels never witnessed anything more singular.

This ingenious production is the idea of a Russian engineer, and a French architect is responsible for the building itself, while British capital has made its erection possible. Needless to say, an ingenious arrangement of mirrors is responsible for an illusion which for elaborate detail easily transcends anything previously attempted in the same line.

Created a Sulphur Lake.

In the western part of the Mexican state of Michoacan, near the Lake of Chapula, in the Gudrache hacienda, an underground rumbling was heard recently, followed by a strong detonation, which threw the populace into a panic. An immense column of smoke rose from a neighboring hill, which is famous for its sulphur springs. A lake of hot sulphur water formed on the plateau of the hill. The lake is 1,000 feet across and 40 feet deep.

"God" on American Coins.

The word "God" never appeared in any government act until the year 1864, when, at the suggestion of the director of the mint, ex-Gov. Pollock, of Pennsylvania, "In God We Trust" was stamped on the copper two-cent piece. Before this time "E Pluribus Unum" had been the motto. Strange to relate, "E Pluribus Unum" on coins never was authorized by law.

FIREMEN ARE BRAVE.

Often Risk Their Lives to Save Those of Others.

Chicago's Fire Department and How It Is Managed — Men and Horses Trained to Respond Without Delay.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

A MAN without hat or coat ran to the corner of Halsted and Madison streets, a few nights ago, and, with nervous hands, unlocked the red fire-box. In an instant he had turned in the alarm. There was a slight buzzing in the electric ticker in the fire department in the city hall.

"Box 333," said the man in charge.

At the same time the tickers were buzzing in engine houses Nos. 5, 7, 17, 34, 40, and in hook and ladder houses Nos. 2, 6, and the alarm was given for fire-marshals A, 5 and 6.

The coatless and hatless man had put in motion the machinery of the great fire department of Chicago. In less time almost than it takes to write it the sturdy little engines with their snorting furnaces were puffing out big clouds of black smoke, the snake-like coils of the heavy rubber hose were scattered here and there across the street, while the firemen were throwing strong streams of fire into the windows of the shambling tenement building from which fierce flames were darting. There was Chief Swenie himself, the veteran fire fighter of half a century, in top rubber boots and rubber hat, cool and deliberate. There were his two assistants. On each side of the street were little piles of coal to feed the engines. On the sidewalk was a crowd of men, women and children, who had gathered there in an incredibly short space of time.

The second alarm had been already turned in, calling out engines Nos. 1, 3, 10, 12, 18 and truck No. 4, with two additional marshals. Still the flames grew higher and snapped more fiercely, and the third alarm was turned in, bringing out five more engines, another truck and another marshal. For four hours the department fought steadily with the flames and then, smouldering and black, the ruins stood like specters in the deserted street.

This is but an an outline of the daily work of the fire department of the city of Chicago. There are incidents enough and stories enough connected with every fire around which one might weave a romance more thrilling, more pathetic and abounding more with the bravery of noble men than is portrayed in the most imaginative work of fiction.

Here are the stories of heroes who brave without fear the flames — and risk without question their own lives, to save the lives of others.

But back of it all is a most remarkable system—a system so replete with minutiae and details that the most trivial fire of the great city is as much a part of the records as the most disastrous conflagration.

An idea of the magnitude of the work in hand may be obtained when it is known that in the year 1898 there were 5,048 fires in the city of Chicago, involving a valuation of property amounting to $91,922,210, with a loss of $2,651,735 and an insurance of $56,550,740. There were 6,423 alarms turned in during that year, and of those 3,526 were first alarms, 64 second alarms, 22 third alarms and 38 fourth alarms, or as they are called, 4-11. In addition to this there were 26 special calls and 2,752 "still" alarms—that is, alarms turned in by telephone or messenger.

There are 1,300 fire alarm boxes and the same number of police boxes in the various fire districts of Chicago. This box, 333, at the corner of Halsted and Madison streets, represents one of the worst fire districts in Chicago, but just south, at the corner of Halsted and Fourteenth streets, is the banner box, No. 325. Last year this box was pulled 77 times.

One who is not familiar with the workings of the fire department of a large city can scarcely have an idea of its scope and magnitude.

The chief of the department in Chicago is D. J. Swenie, who celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a fireman December 3, 1899. And yet he is so hale and hearty and active that one would not venture in putting his age a day above 55.

The rank and file are as well drilled as soldiers in an army. There are 1,100 firemen in this city, 87 engines, 27 trucks, 4 fire boats, and 2 hose companies located in the suburbs where there are high pressure water systems.

The perfect arrangement of the fire telegraph system has reduced to a minimum the time it takes for the firemen to respond to a fire. When an alarm is turned in the number of the box is indicated automatically at the headquarters of the fire department in the city hall and in the engine houses which must respond on the first call. On the first alarm the fire marshal or the chief of the battalion, responds in person. The average number of engine companies called out is five and one hook and ladder company. If the chief of the battalion sees that the fire promises to spread, he pulls the box again and turns in what is known as a 2-11. On this second alarm five more engines and another truck generally respond—but this depends entirely upon the locality. A third alarm, known as 3-11, calls out five more engines. Sometimes after the first alarm is given, when the conflagration is quite threatening, a 4-11 is turned in, combining a second and a third alarm. When the second alarm is turned in—that is, the 2-11—the chief of the battalion goes direct to the fire alarm office in the city hall where a large board is fastened to the wall. This board has holes in it each representing an engine and truck company. The chief places pegs in the hole of each company that has been called out and in this way the department keeps track of all the companies. As a territory becomes unprotected on account of a large fire, companies are called from more remote districts to take the place of the absent men. Thus are the firemen shifted back and forth in order that the whole city may be protected. There are 16 battalion districts in the city with as many chiefs.

Probably the most interesting feature of the fire department is the celerity with which the firemen respond to alarms. In each of the engine houses—day or night—a man is continually on watch at the switchboard where the alarms are indicated. Above the engine room are the sleeping apartments of the men. On the first floor are the horses in their stalls. Adjoining them is the engine with kindling and coal ready for the touch of a match. Above the engine are the harnesses which can be instantly adjusted at the touch of a button. If, for instance, the man on watch gets an alarm at midnight he instantly turns the switch, a gong is sounded, the horses are immediately released automatically and, trained to their work, they spring to their places in front of the engine and the harness falls upon their backs. While this is going on the men spring from their beds and, in a twinkling, slip on their "bunkers"—this is, rubber boots with trousers attached—slide down the brass poles to the floor below and—well, before you can count three, they are ripping down the street to the fire. The best time that has ever been made here was by an engine company that went a distance of 121 feet to the first hydrant, laid 300 feet of hose and had 100 pounds of water pressure playing on the flames in 1 minute and 18 seconds after the alarm was turned in.

As much care is exercised in the selection of firemen as the government exercises in the enlistment of men in the army and navy. A man to be eligible for the Chicago fire department must be between the ages of 21 and 33 years; he must be not less than 5 feet 7 inches in height and must weigh not less than 135 pounds. In addition to this there is a rigid examination and investigation as to health and morals.

This in brief shows the system of the fire department of Chicago, one of the greatest organizations in the world, composed of brave men and conscientious officials.

Half an hour later Deborah appeared at the proper door and called out in a shrill, far-reaching voice:

SPARROWS THAT SING.

No Two of the Birds Warble Precisely Alike, But the Same Bird Sings Many Tunes.

Sparrows are of many kinds, and in a general way the different kinds look so much alike that the beginner in bird study is apt to find them confusing, if not discouraging. They will try his patience, no matter how sharp and clever he may think himself, and unless he is much cleverer than the common run of humanity he will make a good many mistakes before he gets to the end of them.

One of the best and commonest of them all is the song-sparrow. His upper parts are mottled, of course, since he is a sparrow. His light-colored breast is sharply streaked, and in the middle of it the streaks usually run together and form a blotch. His outer tail-feathers are not white, and there is no yellow on the wings or about the head. These last points are mentioned in order to distinguish him from two other sparrows, with streaked breasts—the vesper-sparrow and the savanna.

By the middle of March song-sparrows reach New England in crowds—along with robins and red-winged blackbirds—and are to be heard singing on all hands, especially in the neighborhood of water. They remain until late autumn, and here and there one will be found even in midwinter.

The song, for which this sparrow is particularly distinguished, is a bright and lively strain, nothing very great in itself, perhaps, but thrice welcome for being heard so early in the season, when the ear is hungry after the long winter silence. Its chief distinction, however, is its amazing variety. Not only do no two birds sing precisely alike, but the same birds sing many tunes.

Of this latter fact, which I have known some excellent people to be skeptical about, you can readily satisfy yourself—and there is nothing like knowing a thing at first hand—if you will take the pains to keep a singer under your eye at the height of the musical season. You will find that he repeats one strain for perhaps a dozen times, without the change of a note; then suddenly he comes out with a song entirely different. This second song he will in turn drop for a third, and so on. The bird acts, for all the world, as if he were singing hymns, of so many verses each, one after another.

It is really a wonderful performance. There are very few kinds of birds that do anything like it. Of itself it is enough to make the song sparrow famous, and it is well worth anyone's while to hear it and see it done. Nobody can see it without believing that birds have a true appreciation of music.

A lady correspondent was good enough to send me, not long ago, a pleasing account of the doings of a pair of song-sparrows, which, as she says, came to her for six seasons.

"One year," she writes, "they happened to build where I could watch them from the window, and they did a very curious thing. They fed the little birds with all sorts of worms of different colors until they were ready to leave the nest; then the male brought a pure white moth and held it near the nest, which was in some stems of a rose-bush a few inches from the ground, on a level with the lower rail of a picket fence.

"One of the little birds came out of the nest at once, and followed its parent, who went sidewise, always holding the dazzling white morsel just out of the youngster's reach. In this manner they crossed the lane, climbed the inclined plane of a woodpile, and passed through a fence and across a vegetable garden into an asparagus bed, in which miniature forest the little traveler received and ate the moth.

"Another nest was built on the bank of a brook on the farther side of a road. Out of this nest I saw two little fellows coaxed with these snow-white moths, and led across the dusty road into a hedge." One or two experiences of this kind are sufficient reward for a good deal of patient observation. The singer of this pair of birds, my correspondent says, had ten distinct songs.

The song-sparrow's nest is usually built on the ground, and the bird is one of several kinds that are known indiscriminately by country people as ground-sparrows.

Song-sparrows seem to be of a pretty nervous disposition, to judge from their behavior. One of their noticeable characteristics is a twitching up-and-down, "pumping" motion of the tail, as they dash into cover on being disturbed.

Readers who live in the southern states see these birds only in the cooler part of the year, but must have abundant opportunity to hear them sing as spring approaches.—Bradford Torrey, in Youth's Companion.

BARBED-WIRE NESTS.

Little Brown Wren of Central America Fortifies Its Roomy Home in a Clever Manner.

In Central America are many strange birds with stranger habits, but probably none are more interesting than a little brown wren who may be seen along the roadsides or on fences. This little bird, about the size of a canary, builds a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. He selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close together. Across two of the branches he lays sticks fastened together with tough fiber, until a platform of about six feet long by two feet wide is constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree-trunk he then builds a huge, dome-shaped nest a foot or so high, with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passageway is then made from the nest to the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the outer end, as well as at short intervals along the inside of this tunnel, are placed cunning little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to push through. On going out, this opening is closed by the owner placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of eggs or young is assured.—Youth's Companion.

ORIGIN OF A BALLAD.

Conditions Under Which Key Wrote the Thrilling Words of the "Star Spangled Banner."

It was during the bombardment of Fort McHenry, September 13, 1814, that the "Star Spangled Banner," our most beautiful national ballad, was written. A physician of Upper Marlborough, Md., had been taken prisoner by the British after the troops had raided Washington. There was a great desire to obtain his release, and Mr. Francis Key and Mr. Skinner, of Baltimore, arranged to visit the British vessels and request that this gentleman should be set at liberty. The request was granted, but the three Americans were detained on board the British vessel because of the coming attack upon Baltimore. During the night of the bombardment of Fort McHenry they witnessed the scene from the deck of the enemy's vessel. The roar of the guns went on unceasingly and the flashes of their discharge gleamed across the water. At last the return fire from the fort ceased, and the Americans waited anxiously for the dawning to know whether their country's flag had been lowered or not. Mr. Key walked up and down the vessel's deck, and the words of the famous song were framed in his mind. When morning came it was seen that the American flag was still flying. During the day the three Americans were allowed to go ashore and the British ships sailed away. Mr. Key, upon reaching the home of his friends, wrote out the song which since that time has been known and sung in every part of this land.

Faithful to His Trust.

Lieut. McLaughlin, who died of yellow fever at Santiago, had charge of the men who built the telegraph line along the route of the American advance in Porto Rico. He was two miles in the rear of Gen. Brooke's army on August 13, 1898, when a message came that the peace protocol had been signed. The Spanish and American armies were confronting each other, and at any moment might wage battle. McLaughlin mounted his horse and started on a furious gallop for the front. When he reached the artillery battalion he found Gen. Brooke standing beside one of battery B's guns, while the gunner had his hand on the lanyard ready to pull. The message was delivered, the firing prevented, and what might have been a terrible battle stopped.

Attacked by an Octopus.

An Australian diver having fired off a charge of dynamite to displace the stones, went to the bottom of the Moyne river, and while engaged in moving the stones a devil fish, or octopus, coiled about his arm. The body of the fish was no larger than a dinner plate, but it had eight arms, each four feet in length and at the butt as thick as a man's wrist. The diver could not extricate himself, and had to walk as quickly as he could to the ladder and climb up into the boat. He was a curious-looking object as he came in view, but his companions wasted no time in words and cut away the eight arms without delay. If he had not been a powerful man he could never have come to the surface.

Bolivians Have Queer Stoves.

The stoves of the Bolivian Indians are curious things. A hole is dug in the ground about 18 inches deep and a foot square, and over this is built a roof of clay, with holes of different sizes to receive the various cooking pots. Roasting is done on spits passed through the holes, so that the meat comes out very much smoked unless great care is taken to have only live coals at the bottom of the oven.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

SOURCE OF GLYCERIN.

A By-Product of Soap and Candle Factories Which Is in Great Demand Just Now.

Glycerin is used in making nitroglycerin, and nitroglycerin is the chief constituent of dynamite. It also enters largely into the composition of some of the smokeless powders—cordite, for instance. The South African war, therefore, has brought it into increased demand in England just now, although its exportation has not been prohibited, as was the case with carbolic acid a few weeks ago. The fact is, lyddite, in the manufacture of which a derivative of carbolic acid is used, can be handled with less chance of accident than dynamite; so that up to the present time the latter has not found any extensive application in war. And even nitroglycerin gunpowders are going out of favor because of their unstable character and other drawbacks. Still, for the time being nitroglycerin enjoys an enhanced popularity in the markets of Europe.

Something like 40,000 tons of this commodity are made yearly just now, yet there is nowhere a factory devoted primarily to its manufacture. It is a by-product of soap and candle factories. It is not itself fatty, but it is associated with fat in nature. When alkalies are combined with the fat, in making either stearine candles or soap, and then a little salt is added to the compound, the stearine, or soap, will separate from the rest of the fluid, which is called "spent lye." Formerly the manufacturer allowed the latter to flow away. Now, however, he saves it and seeks to eliminate the glycerin.

To begin with, he has a mixture of water, glycerin, salt and some other impurities. The water is boiled off, the salt recovered for future use and the residue is crude glycerin. This must be carefully refined before it is fit for use, but the degree of refinement to which it is subjected depends on the particular fate to which it is then to be devoted. Out of a hundred tons of fat not over five tons of glycerin can be obtained.

HAD QUEER WEAPON.

The Helicoprion, a Fossil Fish Just Discovered, Had a Circular Saw in Its Nose.

Great interest has been excited among the scientists of Europe by the discovery of a new fossil fish called the Helicoprion.

It was found near Krasnonfiursk, in the government of Perm, in Russia. Mr. Karpinsky, director of the geological committee of St. Petersburg, was the first scientist to study it and comment.

The most remarkable feature of the Helicoprion is a spiral with saw-like edges. This affair presented quite a handsome appearance in its symmetrical form.

It was at first quite a puzzle to decide what part of the fish this spiral came from, but a long and careful examination of all the parts led to the conclusion that it was attached to the nose.

This strange fish had, in fact, a nose which extended out into a long strip, was covered with teeth and was twisted round and round in a spiral form. This appendage was flexible and was doubtless used as a weapon of offense, for the Helicoprion belonged to a ferocious order of fishes. It could seize things and saw them in two with this terrible weapon.

The Helicoprion is related to the modern skate. Some varieties of this fish have successive rows of teeth, which are pushed out of the sides of the jaws and drop out when they become too numerous. In the case of the Helicoprion the superfluous teeth of the upper jaw, instead of dropping out, were pushed out on to the nose, which grew longer and longer to accommodate them.

The Helicoprion was the size of a shark and lived in the carboniferous age, at the dawn of creation, perhaps a million years ago.

Male and Female Voices.

Prof. Paulsen, of Kiel, Germany, has just completed some most interesting experiments upon the voices of males and females between the ages of three and twenty. He examined and tested no less than 862 girls and 1,100 boys. As early as 12 years the voice of the male is affected by approaching manhood and its changes. The changing voice lasts noticeably from 14 to 19. Six per cent. of the 14-year-old boys speak with manlike voice and three per cent. of the 19-year-old boys still speak in boyish tones. By the 20th year the change is complete, but there is not yet perfect control of the organ. It is still dangerous to strain the voice in singing societies, for the falsetto tones are still unsettled.

FERTILIZERS.

LAST year we aimed to convince the Farmers and Gardeners that it was unnecessary when buying Fertilizers to pay from thirty to fifty per cent more than they are worth, simply because some "other fellow" forgets to pay his bills, and it has become the habit of the fertilizer trade to make the good pay for the bad.

If you pay your bills we want to sell you and you will not have to pay for other customers who don't pay, as we dont have that kind.

The laws of this State protect the purchaser of Fertilizers, and all that is necessary is to see that he gets what he pays for.

THE NEED OF A CITY HALL

THIS CORRESPONDENT WANTS IT BUILT RIGHT AWAY.

Councilman Dumont Severely Criticised for the Attitude He Has Assumed.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I note with deep regret the attitude of Mr. Dumont, one of the Councilmen, on the new City Hall question, and I beg to remind Mr. Dumont that the moment he assumed office he should cease his partisanship and become as he is expected to be the representative of all the citizens of his ward. His present views should be subservient to the wishes of the majority of the voters of that ward, and if he does not know these wishes, it is his duty to find them out. I know that he does not voice the sentiment of all the voters, when he attempts to foist upon the entire community his personal opinions and thus blocks the way of a needed improvement, and one which in all human events he will not be called upon to pay one cent towards.

Plainfield needs this City Hall, and needs it badly, at once, while the available sites can be purchased at reasonable figures, and I will warrant taking Mr. Dumont's own time that in ten years these same sites will be the only desirable ones, and that their price will be considerably advanced from those of today, if the trend of prices is the same as in the past ten, (for such properties) as it is hoped by all owners, and as we are told by all agents who are trying to sell real estate in this city.

In 1856 New York needed a City Hall, and if it had been built upon the lines and design that was offered, by those who had brains in their heads and know how to use them, New York would have today a City Hall that would house all the departments of its government. It would have saved the Tweed steal of seventeen million for the court house, and it would save the three to five million now annually paid for rent of other quarters, not to speak of the concentration of its business, and a building which even today would have been a pride to all New Yorkers. Nearly fifty years ago this building was designed, and it would have been all that is required for another fifty years, but the Dumonts of that time, like the Dumonts of today, clogged the wheels of the city's needs, and built the small unsuitable City Hall which now exists in the Park.

This is a fact easily proven, and I sincerely hope Plainfield will be able to shake off this old man of the sea and build a City Hall on one of the most conspicuous sites suggested, in such a manner that it will be a source of pride to all. Take profit by New York experience and not be led by a blind man.

The building of a City Hall will invigorate every trade or business in the city, give work to many, increase values of adjoining sites, and pronounce to the world that we are a progressive community.

About twenty years ago San Francisco was in the same position as we are today, but fortunately there were no Dumonts there and she erected a beautiful building, which is now in the heart of the city and can be easily increased to accommodate all her wants when necessary. I would suggest to send all Dumonts to San Francisco and let them become rejuvenated. Meanwile build the City Hall.

SCIENTIFIC CAKE BAKING.

A Demonstration of Great Interest to the Ladies of This City.

C. A Chapman, of Newark, N. Y., and his assistant, Mr. VanLeary, are giving an exhibition of scientific cake baking at the establishment of Woodhull & Martin's, which is well worth the attention and the deepest interest of the women of Plainfield. Ordinarily you might think there was nothing to be learned by the average baker concerning the baking of cakes, but witness this demonstration at the big store and you at once realize that the cake bakers have much to learn, and the knowledge is so simple and so clearly imparted by Mr. Chapman that it is a pleasure to learn. Mr. Chapman in baking a cake takes nothing for granted; he does not do his work haphazard; he has a rule for everything and he tells you the why and the wherefore of every step in the process. In fact, he bakes cakes on strictly scientific and common sense principles, and all of his receipts for the new plan were originated by him.

The cake baking demonstration will be continued at Woodhull & Martin's until further notice. Go and learn something. It costs nothing.

EDITOR ACCUSED OF LIBEL.

Cranford Chronicle Man Was Arrested on the Charge Made by a Prominent Citizen.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, April 4.—The prosaic and aristocratic little town of Cranford was thrown into a fever of excitement this morning when it became known that John Alfred Petter, editor and proprietor of the Chronicle, published semi weekly in this place, had been arrested on the charge of criminal libel and held to await the action of the Union County Grand Jury under bonds of $500. The complaint was made by James Rodgers, a well-known New York business man, who resides in Cranford, and has taken an active part in local politics during the last few years.

Last Friday the Chronicle appeared with an article describing an incident said to have occurred in a Tenderloin restaurant. The article stated a young married couple from Cranford went into this particular restaurant for dinner, and while there noticed a certain prominent Cranford citizen sitting at an adjoining table in company with a flashy dressed perioxide blonde.

When the prominent citizen observed that he had been seen he called a waiter and whispered something in his ear. A few minutes after the waiter appeared with a bottle of champagne. The man who had ordered it wrote something on a card, handed it to the waiter and the latter then went to the table of the young couple and left the bottle of champagne and handed the man a card, on which was written "Mum's the word." The card contained the name of the writer.

Editor Potter learned of the incident and published it without using names. The item caused a great deal of guessing and much gossip. Editor Potter's arrest followed this morning soon after he got off the train from Plainfield, where he resides. Mr. Potter says he is not worried over the outlook.

COUNTRY LOVERS FLED AND WERE MARRIED.

Groom's Father Tried to Stop Them, But Was Cleverly Outwitted.

BRIDE HAD $5; GROOM $1.

BUT THEY ARE HAPPY AND WILL TRY TO GET ALONG.

An Obliging Friend Helped the Couple to Give the Old Man the Slip—Nuptial Knot Was Tied in Plainfield.

The Mt. Bethel gossips are enjoying all the thrills of an elopement that took place Saturday evening. This time it was the father of the groom who was outwitted in his attempt to capture the runaway couple. The young people, Wesley Coddington and Miss Mary O Brien, fled to this city that night where they were quietly united in wedlock by a local clergyman.

Wesley Coddington, the twenty-year old hero of this romantic adventure, is the son of David Coddington, an aged farmer living in the vicinity of Mt. Bethel. For the past year he has labored on the farm of Thomas C. Bird, just out of Mt. Bethel. Every month the aged Coddington appeared and collected the young man's wages, leaving just enough for clothes.

The sight of his hard-earned money disappearing each week caused the youthful Coddington to become despondent. Now in the Bird homestead was a young woman named Mary O'Brien. She was eighteen years old and helped with the housework. It was she who cheered the young man and encouraged him to continue. They became fast friends and the friendship ripened into love. Then they agreed that marriage was the best way out of their present difficulties.

Last Saturday Wesley's year was up and he wanted more wages. Farmer Bird could not see it in that light. Saturday afternoon the elder Coddington inquired of his son what he intended to do. Wesley said that he was going to quit. He had sold his trunk, he said, and wanted his best suit to go to a party that night so his father need not bother about taking his things home. He'd bring them himself.

Farmer Coddington returned to his home only to hear the strange rumor that his son would elope that night. He would not believe it at first but the gossip was persistent and the old man's wrath began to grow. He determined to waylay the couple behind the big button-ball tree in front of the Methodist church which they must surely pass on their way through town.

A friend of the young couple saw him hiding there and told Wesley and his would-be bride of the danger that lurked in their path. A friend of Wesley's went ahead and finally tempted the watcher into the neighboring store for a cigar. Then the couple crept softly by and were soon on the way to Plainfield in the buggy of a kind friend. John Whitman and Tony Ammon, of Mt. Bethel, accompanied the couple in another buggy to this city where the couple were quietly married.

Then Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Coddington took the train for Trenton where the bride's parents live. When they left Mt. Bethel Wesley had a dollar that he borrowed from his former employer, and his bride $5, the remains of her wages. On the sum of $6 the two began their matrimonial career.

A Westfield Wedding.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, April 5—One of the most fashionable weddings that has taken place in Westfield during the present social season occurred last evening at 38 Westfield avenue when Miss Sarah J. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brown, became the bride of George Barnes Taylor, of Cranford. The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Day, of Cranford, as maid-of-honor, and the best man was John Steiner, of Plainfield. The ushers were Dr. R. B Sinclair, of Westfield, and Irving Crane, of Cranford.

To Aid King's Daughters.

The Golden Rule Circle, King's Daughters, will give a tea and sale tomorrow afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock at the home of Councilman and Mrs. John Valiant, 38 Myrtle avenue, for the benefit of the city nurse fund. This is a worthy object that should receive the attention of all persons inclined to do good. Throughout the winter these teas and sales have been held with much success, and no doubt the one tomorrow will be largely attended and a goodly sum of money will be realized.

BRYAN DOLLAR DINNER.

NEBRASKAN'S FRIENDS WILL GATHER IN CAMDEN.

Object is to Stir Up Sentiment So That an Instructed Delegation Will Go From Jersey.

The organized plans to capture the New Jersey delegation to the Democratic National convention will receive a fresh impetus at a Bryan dollar dinner to be given in Camden April 26. The dinner is to be under the auspices of the Camden County Democratic Club. The invitations read as follows:

The objective point of this banquet is to assemble all representative Bryan forces of New Jersey who are under any and all circumstances in favor of the nomination at the next National Democratic convention of our great leader, William J. Bryan, for the Presidency, and the sending of an instructed delegation for his nomination at such convention.

It is noteworthy that the complete surrender of our opponents to any policy or scheme which promises campaign corruption funds to be placed in the hands of the brutal Mark Hanna, and on the other hand the increasing popularity of Mr. Bryan, insures his success in November.

It behooves all lovers of liberty, humanity and prosperity to bestir themselves to band together for the overthrow and complete annihilation of the brutal spirit represented by the money trust, the commercial trust, militarism and imperialism.

The Republican party is shackled and gagged by organized greed, which impels it for the sake of corruption funds and the execution of a monarchical policy to seek the overthrow and complete annihilation of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.

We count you as a friend of our great leader and the principles advocated by him, and therefore most cordially solicit your presence at the banquet. Yours for the preservation of the Republic, Joseph W. Horner, chairman; Samuel M. Roberts, treasurer; Clarence Atkinson, Charles Stokes, William F. Morgan, Allyn Brewer, John Wright, Thomas Cook, Terrace Mathews, Thomas Prickett, Edward Schwabenland, Charles Shuck, Edgar Conover and John F. Hall.

The men who sign the call were in the recently organized Bryan movement which started in a Philadelphia hotel.

DR. SIMPSON PROMOTED.

President McKinley Appoints Him Assistant Surgeon, With Rank of Captain in Volunteer Army.

Dr. Maxwell S. Simpson, of this city, has just been honored by President McKinley, who has appointed him assistant surgeon, with rank of captain, U S. A. Dr. Simpson enlisted when the Spanish war broke out and he was surgeon of the Battalion of the East, New Jersey Reserves, and served with his company on the Badger during the war. Later he was appointed surgeon in the volunteer army and was assigned to duty in the Philippines, where he is now stationed. His many friends in this city, as well as throughout the State, will be pleased to learn of his promotion, which is well deserved. Dr. Simpson is filled with patriotism and his love of country has been so strong that he could not refuse the opportunity to do all that is possible in this direction.

RECEIVED $50 DAMAGES

James Kane's Claim Settled by the Plainfield Bill Posting Company.

Some few weeks ago James C. Kane, who is employed by Frank Hand, the Somerset street blacksmith, was passing through Madison avenue on his way to call on a young woman whom he intended taking to Music Hall that evening. There happened to be a billboard lying across the sidewalk near the railroad bridge which Mr. Kane did not see in the darkness. As a result he stumbled and fell, injuring his knee, shoulder and back, besides cutting a gash in his trousers. He was detained from work for two weeks and suffered great pain.

After he got about he felt as though he was entitled to some redress, and a suit was instituted against the Plainfield Bill Posting Company through his lawyer, Walter L. Hetfield. The case was brought to the attention of the company and it was settled yesterday by their lawyer. Mr. Kane received $50 from the company for his injuries and everything was made satisfactory to all parties concerned. The company certainly showed themselves to be honorable and willing to do what is right, and Mr. Kane is pleased with the treatment accorded him.

Miss Martha Goodman, of 104 Manning avenue, is suffering from the effects of a growth in her side, resembling a tumor.

NEW ORGAN BUILDING FOR GRACE CHURCH

Description of Fine Instrument That Will Be Ready for Use After Easter.

BUILT BY MIDMER & SON.

THE ORGAN WILL HAVE 1,950 PIPES IN ALL.

Wonderful Creation of Expert Organ Builders as it Looks in the Factory Today—Some Interesting Details Concerning It.

The new organ for Grace P. E church, of this city, is nearly completed, and as it will be undoubtedly the most modern and thoroughly complete instrument in town, a description of it will be of interest. A visit to the factory of the builders, Messrs Reuben Midmer & Son, of the Borough of Brooklyn, New York city, was exceedingly interesting and through the kindness of Reed Midmer all the vast details of the organ builder's art were very thoroughly explained.

Very few people have the least idea of the immensity of the work of building a modern organ, especially where the entire instrument is made on the premises, even to the casting, or making of the composition metal, of which the majority of the pipes are made. The writer was conducted through the entire plant, and then into the erecting room where the organs are put together just as they will be in the church they are made for. Grace church organ looked like a good-sized summer cottage; there were pipes from about the diameter of a straw down to the ponderous Double Diapason bass, large enough to crawl into. One of the most interesting parts of the instrument is the key-board, which is an entirely new design.

The entire organ is built on the tubular pneumatic system, so that the manipulation of the instrument is accomplished with absolutely no exertion on the part of the performer. The working of the entire organ is effected with such speed and efficiency as to be marvelous. Every part works with perfect quietness and is immediate in response to the calls made upon it. One of the features of note is the ability to change from the most simple combination to the use of the entire instrument, without discontinuing playing, by the mere touching of a button placed between the key-board. The draw stops are arranged in circular terraces of highly polished wood; the knobs are in ebony and boxwood, beautifully engraved. The organ comprises two manuals and pedals, with a compass from CC to to C4, 61 notes, on the manuals, and from CCC to F, 30 notes on the pedals. It has 12 stops and 854 pipes on the great organ; 14 stops and 976 pipes on the swell organ; 4 stops and 120 pipes on the pedal organ; making 30 speaking stops of full compass and 1,950 pipes.

The combination action, for operating the stops, are situated between the key-boards, as are all the couplers. There are twelve different combinations affecting the entire instrument, ranging from the softest production of tone to the immense volume of the full organ, and there are five couplers operating on the manuals and pedals. With this system of combinations, by simply pressing one of the small ivory push buttons, twenty-two in number, the stops are thrown on or off at will. Each of the different combinations gives suitable pedal stops and couplers, and are all double acting. The couplers are also tubular, so that when the entire organ is used, with unison, super octave and sub octave coupler on, it plays with the same ease as with it uncoupled. Each combination, coupler and pedal movement is so marked as to be immediately detected. The entire key board is beautifully finished and arranged, and is a triumph of the organ builder's art.

The organ will occupy the large organ chamber in the chancel, the casing is to be in polished quarter oak, and the pipes displayed in three arches are to be finished in gold. The bellows are to be operated by an electric motor situated in the cellar under the organ. The voicing of the instrument has been the personal work of Mr. Midmer and many novelties have been introduced. Messrs. Midmer & Son are not strangers to Plainfielders; the organ now in use in Grace church having been built by them nearly thirty years ago, and the new instrument is the twelfth they have erected in this city, which certainly speaks well for them. They are an old-established firm and have always had the reputation for honesty and fair dealing, and the people of Grace church are to be congratulated in securing this such a noble instrument, which will be placed in position immediately after Easter.

GRIST OF CITY COURT.

A Large Batch of Offenders Disposed of by Judge Runyon This Morning.

The "round up" of peace disturbers, the gang engaged in a fight on the Boulevard Saturday afternoon, is now complete with the exception of two young men, who are said to have left the city. When the police looked over the bunch they found they had corraled Phillip, Thomas and Peter Sheridan, Patrick Reilly, Daniel Kieley, Patrick Lawler, John Scott, William Ross, Patrick and William Mack, John Barry, John King and John alias "Sue" Newman, the unlucky number of 13. Sentence was suspended in the cases of William Mack, Peter Sheridan, Patrick Lawler and Newman. The others were fined $2 each.

Besides the charge of creating a breach of the peace "Sue" Newman was also complained against for assaulting Lenardo Vetromile, an Italian, who keeps a pool room on Liberty street. The accused had a witness to show that the Italian was the aggressor and the City Judge gave him the benefit of the doubt. The charge against him was dismissed.

The other cases before the City Judge were James Whalen, Thomas Sullivan and Edward alias "Smoke Stack Jack," all charged with being drink. Sentence was suspended in the first two cases, while Hover went to jail for ten days.

George Perrine, an old offender, who periodically falls into the police drag net, was given a sentence of $5 or 20 days. He went to Elizabeth.

TO BE MUCH BUILDING.

SEVERAL NEW HOUSES WILL SOON BE CONSTRUCTED.

Several of the Structures are Modest Ones—Local Builders Foresee Excellent Times.

All the local builders foresee excellent times ahead this summer. Although March was far from being a seasonable month in which to start operations, work was started during that month on four new houses, one of which is one of the most elaborate built during the past year. Besides issuing permits for these four new houses, Building Inspector Doane issued two others for frame barns and two more for removal and repair of other buildings.

The principal happening of the month was the start on the new residence of Otto Arens, of Park avenue, which is located between Rahway Road and Belvidere avenue and not in Woodland Park, as has heretofore been stated. The house will be of brick and its cost is estimated at $30,000. The architect was Oscar S. Teale, of this city. William H. Pangborn has the contract for the mason work and Wyman & Haberle the contract for the carpenter work.

Cormick Caufield is building a $1,600 cottage on West Fourth street, near Grant avenue. He is building the house himself but it was the design of W. H. Clum. Mrs. Alonzo Aldrich is the owner of a $1,400 frame cottage in process of construction on Prescott place, near West Fourth street. R. V. Saums is the builder.

Phillip Cottrell is building another frame cottage for himself at 628 East Third street which will cost $1,400.

Byron E. Young is building a stable in the rear of the property, 822 Arlington avenue, for George H. Squires where the latter will keep his automobile. Thompson & Brokaw hold the contracts for a frame barn for Mrs Henry Liefke in the rear of the property, 810 West Front street.

CHANCE FOR TABBERT.

Plainfield Youth, Who Stole a Bicycle, Promises to be a Good Boy if Let Go.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 5—In the Court of Special Sessions yesterday, Judge Vail presiding, several prisoners were arraigned for sentence.

Alfred Tabbert, of Plainfield, aged 15 years, who several weeks ago was arrested for the larceny of a bicycle, acknowledged his guilt, and weepingly begged for mercy, promising the Court that if let off this once he would never misbehave himself again. As this is the first time that Tabbert has been arrested for any offense, the Court, inclined to deal mercifully with him, deferred sentence one week. In the meantime the boy's father will be communicated with, and if he is willing to look after him, Albert will be given another chance.

Wm. H. Lee, of Scotch Plains, who some time ago committed an assault on Conductor Haines, who attempted to put him off his train, Lee being drunk and having no ticket, was sentenced to pay a fine of $50.

AFTERNOON SESSION OF MISSIONARY UNION

Mrs. Frederick Douglass, of Newark, Was Elected President of the Society.

PRACTICAL TALKS GIVEN.

CONVENTION WILL BE HELD NEXT YEAR IN NEWARK.

Splendid Treatment Accorded the Delegates by the Ladies of Trinity Reformed Church Who Entertained.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Union Classis of Newark, which was held yesterday in the Trinity Reformed church of this city, was a very pleasant and successful affair in every way. The addresses were interesting and helpful, and the reports rendered showed a large amount of work done by the societies of the union.

At the close of the morning session, a basket luncheon was served in the lecture room of the church, under the charge of the Ladies' Christian Work Society. The delegates from each church were seated together, and coffee was served to all by the women of the society, who also served luncheon to the officers of the union and the speakers of the day.

The afternoon session opened at about half-past two. An interesting and instructive address upon "The Mountain Whites" was delivered by Mrs. Taber Knox, of Warwick, N. Y. She gave a very clear picture of the people living among the mountains of the south, their ways of life, and the efforts that have been made for the improvement of their condition. With the poorest kind of schools, no newspapers, scarcely any Bibles, no doctors, and with such habits as snuff-dipping common among them, there is plenty of opportunity for such work.

A soprano solo, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," was sung by Miss Etta Krymer, after which the offering was received, Mrs. I. W. Gowen making an appeal for a generous gift, and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck making the offertory prayer.

Several brief practical talks on methods of work followed. The first was on "Mission Band Work for Boys," by Miss Retta Cobb, of East Orange. She said that a worker along this line must have patience, ingenuity and prayerfulness, and that the children must be carefully studied to discover their individual tastes and capabilities. Making maps, writing short papers and getting up question matches were some of the lines of work advocated. Miss Cobb also advised the appointment of a novel officer, a hat-tender, to prevent maltreatment of the members' hats.

Miss Nina Peters, of Newark, spoke briefly on "How to Interest Young Women in Missionary Work." She advised making the study of missions a part of Sunday-school work, and giving young women some definite, practical missionary work to do close at hand.

"How to Make Missionary Meetings Interesting and Successful" was the topic of a brief talk by Mrs. William R. Wright, of Nutley. Considering that a missionary society was largely what its leader made it, she said that a president should be full of prayer, missionary information and missionary zeal; that she should be tactful, and have the ability to make other people do the work, while keeping the direction of matters herself. She said also that the most successful society was the one that cultivates most the desire to win others to Christ."

"The Place of Literature in Missionary Societies" was the subject of a paper by Mrs. C. W. Gulick, of Montclair Heights. She advised the appointment of a literary committee who would aim to introduce missionary literature into the whole congregation with which the society was connected. A missionary study class, a reading circle and an up to date missionary library were other suggestions.

Announcement was made by the president, Mrs. J. S. Allen, that the next meeting of the union would be held in the First Reformed church of Newark.

The election of officers for the coming year was then held, resulting as follows: President, Mrs. Frederick Douglas, of Newark; first vice-president, Mrs. Henry M. Cobb, of East Orange; other vice-presidents, the wives of all the pastors of churches represented in the union; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. B. VanDewater.

Mrs. Allen introduced the new president, Mrs. Douglas, to the union, then the session closed with the bene-

MR MARTINE ON DEWEY

DOES NOT THINK THERE IS LIKELIHOOD OF HIS BEATING BRYAN.

Admires Dewey for His Achievements in War, But Thinks He Would Make a Poor Statesman.

While but very few give serious consideration to Admiral Dewey's announcement that he is willing to be a candidate for President, it is interesting to note the effect of the Admiral's change of mind upon the supporters of Col. Bryan. In this connection James E. Martine, the "Farmer Orator," was this morning asked by a Daily Press reporter what he thought of the Admiral's position:

"Well," said the "Farmer Orator," "I have never been a hero worshipper. Men trained for war rarely make great statesmen, and I don't believe the Admiral is an exception to the rule. I would not detract one leaf from the laurels Admiral Dewey has won. As an Admiral and fighter he was a success, but I don't believe he is the man for the Presidency."

"But what if he should be nominated as the Democratic candidate?"

"I don't believe this is probable, but I am a Democrat, I believe in parties, and the rule of majorities. I shall support the candidate of my party. But if my judgment as a Democrat is worth anything, I say that to nominate anyone other than Wm. J. Bryan would be party suicide, and to court defeat."

"You are a great admirer of Mr. Bryan?"

"Yes! I am—but this has nothing to do with my judgement. I believe, yes know, that Mr. Bryan is nearer the hearts of the masses than any other man of our day. I have no doubt of his nomination and I believe he would be elected. I shall work unceasingly for that end. Trusts, Porto Rico and the financial questions are all live issues, and Mr. Bryan has been and is the man to fight fearlessly all these iniquities. Let Dewey enjoy the palatial house a generous people have given him—the White House for Bryan for the next four years to come."

CONFERENCE EXCITED.

Dissatisfaction With Dr. Sheldon, of Boston, When He Got Up to Explain.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Paterson, April 5—The forty-third annual session of the Newark M. E conference was continued in the Market Street M. E. church today.

In addition to the clergymen of the 240 churches included in this territory, there were present delegates to the Lay Electoral conference and various charitable, educational and other church organizations which hold their annual meetings at this time. The conference is expected to last a week.

Dr. H. G. Sheldon, of Boston University, yesterday asked the privilege of the floor to explain away certain charges which had been made against his university regarding higher criticism and heretical teachings.

Bishop Vincent allowed Dr. Sheldon twenty-five minutes in which to talk. He was repeatedly interrupted by delegates, who protested against his remarks, and at times there was considerable excitement and confusion. His explanation was received with dissatisfaction by a large number of the delegates.

Rev. George W. Smith, of Plainfield, presiding elder of the Elizabeth district, was the first elder to make his report. He said that better support on the whole had been given the preachers, and some of the churches had burned their mortgages and made advancement. He told in detail the work done by many of the churches, and ended by urging that the spiritual interests of the churches be made paramount to the financial work, which though important, should not be allowed to supersede the saving of souls.

Discussed Endeavor Work.

A meeting of the chairmen of the various committees of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church was held last night for the purpose of getting the new president better acquainted with the members and to offer suggestions for carrying out the work of the society more efficiently. The work of the various committees was gone over and an earnest desire seemed to pervade the meeting of making the society more interesting.

MORE TROPHIES FOR HILLSIDE GOLFERS.

Schedule of Events at Hillside Club This Season Will be Announced Shortly.

R. M. SHEPARD CAPTAIN.

COURSE WILL PROBABLY BE OPENED SATURDAY, APRIL 21ST.

VanHerwerden and Other New Cups to be Offered This Year in Addition to Old Competitions—No Changes at the Club House.

Unless a period of wet weather intervenes, the course of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be ready to open Saturday, April 21st. With such an expectation, Lewis E. Waring, chairmain of the golf committee of the club, is having the course put in excellent shape.

Special attention is being paid this year to the turf on the course, particularly that on the putting greens. A sample of the earth was sent into New York where an expert recommended a particular grade of "Scotch mixture" to produce the best results there. The seed is being sown and the greens are expected this year to equal any in the State.

There is every prospect that the season will be the most successful in the history of the club. All the old cups will be played for. Then there is the VanHerwerden Cup, just offered by the treasurer, Councilman John VanHerwerden. It will be for a ladies' competition. Several other cups for various competitions have been promised and announcement will be made of them at a later date.

At a recent meeting of the golf committee, Rutherford M. Shepard was appointed captain of the team and he will have charge of arranging a series of matches with the neighboring clubs. Some of the old friends will visit the Hillside links while matches are also to be arranged with the Baltusrol, Dyker Meadow and other of the leading golf clubs. Plainfield has some excellent talent among its younger players who will be able to make an excellent showing against even the veteran teams of this part of the country.

Captain Shepard will confer with the golf committee at once for the arrangement of the schedule. The dates for the various cup competitions can be fixed at once. The dates for some of the matches may also be known, but most of the latter will have to be settled later in the season. The schedule of the trophy events will be ready some day next week, and the team matches will be announced from time to time during the season as the captain arranges them.

The house committee, the personnel of which is the same as it was last season, will continue the same general plan at the clubhouse this season. Steward Ivimy has been re-engaged and is in Plainfield at present. He will establish himself at the clubhouse in time to be ready for the informal opening on the 21st. He will have a chef to assist him who will be equal to the one of last year. The dinners, which formed such a delightful feature of the social life at the club last year, will again be served, and will undoubtedly be as popular this summer as they were last year.

JUDGE SCHENCK TAKES THE OATH.

Sworn in to Succeed John D. Bartine in Somerset County.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 5.—The oath of office yesterday was administered to Louis H. Schenck as Judge of Somerset county by County Clerk Frank A. Somers, in the presence of Judge John D. Bartine and a representation of the Somerset county bar. Mr. Schenck succeeds Judge Bartine, a Democrat, who has presided over the Somerset court for fifteen years.

Judge Schenck is forty-six years old. He was born in Somerset county, and resides at Neshanic. He has practiced law in Newark for a number of years, with an office at 800 Broad street. He is the son of former State Senator John G. Schenck, and a member of one of the oldest and most respected families of Somerset county.

Bring Along Your Scissors.

The Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the parlors of the church. DEWEY HAD TO YIELD

Admiral Could Not Resist Repeated Popular Clamor.

BONA FIDE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE

Has Not Announced His Party Preferences Yet, but Will Divulge Plans Soon After Consulting With His Friends.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Admiral Dewey last night expressed himself as very much gratified over the manner in which his announcement to be a candidate for the presidency had been received by his friends. His manner likewise indicated that fact as he chatted with a reporter at his home. Many telegrams have come to him, particularly from the south and some from the far west, indorsing his course and stating that he will receive the support of the signers in the campaign which he will make. The admiral was in excellent humor and talked interestingly of a number of things in connection with his proposed candidacy, though concerning most questions asked him he requested that nothing be said at this time, as in due time he would make a statement to the public on the subject.

"Why is it, Admiral Dewey, that you have decided to become a candidate for the presidency?" he was asked.

"Really on that point," he answered, "there is nothing to add to what already has been printed on the subject. If the American people want me to be their candidate for this high office, I shall gladly serve them. My determination to aspire to it was influenced by my many friends who have written letters suggesting that I should be a candidate. These communications have come from all over the country, some from New York, a large number from the south and some from the Pacific coast. It was in response to these suggestions that I have taken the course announced. Since the announcement was made I have received a number of telegrams from my friends commending the action I have taken and promising me their support. I am deeply grateful to them for their kindness. These are the considerations which have urged me to change my mind from the original statement I made on my return from Manila that I would not be a candidate for the office."

"Now tell me something about your plans for the future," suggested the reporter.

"On that point I am not prepared to make any statement," answered the admiral. "I am consulting with my friends as to the course to be pursued. When the proper time arrives, I will make a statement of my intentions as to the future, and this will be very soon. Pending that I prefer not to say anything for publication regarding them."

"Will the announcement of your candidacy for the presidency make any change in the plans for your trip to Chicago and other western cities?"

"Not at all. The cordial invitations which I have received from those cities to visit them during the coming spring and which I have accepted I expect to fulfill. The assurances of regard conveyed by them are very gratifying to me, and I certainly want to show the people that I appreciate their kindness."

Admiral Dewey has some very decided opinions on matters of public moment and while expressing them in private prefers not to make any public announcement of them at this time. Platforms for parties, he believes, are not made by candidates for the high office of president. In connection with his determination to run for the office the admiral dwells with much pleasure and gratification on the warmth of the receptions that he has everywhere received in his various trips throughout the country, including the south particularly, and on numerous personal declarations that the people wanted him for president.

Much comment has been indulged in by the public as to which of the great political parties the admiral will ally himself with and from whom he expects to receive the nomination for the presidency. To questions bearing on this subject he prefers not to make any statement at this time. To those who have talked with him privately on the subject, however, and who are fully acquainted with his views it is evident that he does not expect a nomination from the Republican party.

The admiral, his friends say, has very decided views on the question of expansion, on that of a tariff for Porto Rico and others of great public interest, but declined politely to indicate them on the plea that this is not the proper time for that.

Chicago Drops Celebration.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Plans for a big celebration in Chicago in honor of Admiral Dewey have been abandoned because of his presidential announcement. The people had been working some time for the big welcome, erecting arches, planning banquets and balls, and a feature was to be a monster parade. This was all stopped because the celebration committee does not want to be a factor in the admiral's presidential boom. An agent will be sent to Washington in a few days to intimate to Dewey that a celebration and political campaign are inconsistent. This emissary is expected to make this sentiment so plain that he will be able to bring back a letter with him to the committee expressing his regret "that his duties at present will make it impossible for him to attend."

Chinese Market For Ginseng.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Consul General Wildman, at Hongkong, informs the state department that the demand for a market for American ginseng in China continues. In a previous report the consul stated that it was absolutely necessary to submit the stuff to the prospective Chinese buyers' personal inspection before a purchase could be effected, as they will not take the word of another as to quality or condition.

Germany In Chinese Waters.

BERLIN, April 5.—Germany's efforts to penetrate up the Chinese rivers with gunboats have failed because the boats are too deep. The German naval department has accordingly ordered the construction of seven flat bottomed gunboats for this special purpose.

LISBON, April 5.—In the house of peers Senor Beirao announced that the Lourenco Marques railway (Delagoa Bay railway) would remain the property of the Portuguese government.

TO RETAKE BLOEMFONTEIN.

Indications That the Boers Are Preparing to Attempt It.

LONDON, April 5.—It looks as though the Boers had conceived the audacious plan of attempting to invest Lord Roberts at Bloemfontein, or at least to endeavor to delay his northward advance by harassing the British lines of communication.

On his side Lord Roberts is concentrating his forces and preparing to take every advantage of the bold, but risky tactics of the enemy. He is not likely to strike at any of their forces until he is certain of delivering a crushing blow.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing Tuesday, says:

"General Clements' force traversed Petrusberg Sunday morning and is now encamped a day's march from here."

There are numerous indications that, in pursuance of their boast that they will recapture Bloemfontein, the Boers are trying to surround the town and to cut our line of communications to the south. Large forces are reported east and south, which are supposed to be making for the railway. They still hold Thaba N'Chu and the water works.

Lord Roberts is completing his concentration. Four 4.7 guns and four naval 12 pounders have been mounted on kopjes commanding the plain. The cavalry camp has been removed to a better position northeast of the city. Special precautions are being taken to protect the railway southward.

Several arrests have been made in the town of persons suspected of giving information to the Boers. The railway to the north is in possession of the British as far as Karee Siding.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Tuesday, says:

"The Boers are across the Modder in some force east of Bloemfontein. Our mounted infantry have been in touch with them all day at Bushman's kop, 12 miles distant. The late mishap will not be wholly unfortunate if it clearly exposes the unwisdom of the policy of leniency, which is not adapted to the present situation."

CONVENTION HALL BURNED.

Democratic Meeting Place and Other Property Destroyed In Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, April 5.—Convention hall, where the Democratic national convention was to have been held on July 4, was laid in ruins in less than 30 minutes yesterday afternoon by fire. The fire burned with such fury that it was evident almost from the start that the structure was doomed, and the firemen soon turned their attention to saving surrounding property. A stiff breeze was blowing, and before the fire was subdued the Second Presbyterian church, one of the finest edifices in the city, the church parsonage, the Lathrop public school, a two story, 13 room building, all situated across the way on Central street, and a half block of three story flat buildings on Twelfth street were totally destroyed. Several residences were damaged, and for a time it was feared that several blocks of buildings in the residence district would go.

The aggregate loss is $400,000, apportioned as follows: Convention hall, $235,000, insurance $155,000; church, $50,000, insured; parsonage, $15,000, insured; school, $35,000, insured for $20,000; Williamson block, Twelfth street, $60,000, insurance $45,000.

Plans are on foot to rebuild Convention hall immediately and have it ready for the Democratic convention in July

Convention hall had been classed as one of the largest and most perfectly constructed auditoriums in the world. The building was erected in 1898 at a cost of $235,000, which was raised entirely by public subscription. It occupied a piece of ground 314 by 200 feet in extent, was two stories high and built of native stone, cream brick and terra cotta. The first story was of the renaissance style of architecture and the second story in peristyle form, with groups and columns. The building was of bridge construction without a column, the roof being supported by great steel girders. Its general seating arrangement was modeled somewhat upon the plan of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York. The total seating capacity was 20,000.

Canadian Pacific Prosperous.

MONTREAL, April 5.—The annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific railroad took place yesterday and was most harmonious. The reports all showed that this had been the most prosperous year in the history of the road. The president in his address called attention to the gratifying feature of the affairs of the company, which showed that an addition of 150 per cent of shareholders of record in Canada had been secured.

Killed by a Snowball.

GRAND RAPIDS, April 5.—Louise M. Perkins, 14 years old, daughter of the Rev. F. M. Perkins, is dead as the result of being hit by a snowball thrown by a schoolboy three weeks ago. The ball struck her near the spine and caused injuries so serious that physicians said if she recovered from the shock she would have been a helpless idiot.

Tenement House Bill Signed.

ALBANY, April 5.—Governor Roosevelt has signed the tenement house bill. This measure provides for the appointment of a commission to investigate the condition of the tenement houses in New York city and Buffalo and to report to the next legislature a code to govern the erection of tenement houses in these cities.

Only a Party Brawl.

LIMA, Peru, April 5.—Advices from Guayaquil say that the recent fight on the Colombian frontier is officially declared to have been a mere party brawl, for which neither the Colombian nor Ecuadorian government is responsible and that there is no ground for uneasiness.

Healed by Prayer.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 5.—The residents of Highland Falls are much excited over the recovery through prayer of Miss Annie Pascoe, who had been a cripple for five years. The case had been pronounced hopeless by physicians. She now is able to walk about the house.

KENTUCKIANS CLASH.

Excited Debate In the House—Senate to Take Up Quay Case.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—There was an exciting scene in the house yesterday as the climax of a decision of the Kentucky situation when Mr. Wheeler, a Kentucky Democrat, and Mr. Pugh, a Kentucky Republican, faced each other from opposite sides of the main aisle and indulged in a wordy duel. Mr. Pugh charged Mr. Wheeler with misrepresenting certain facts. He was laboring under great excitement. Mr. Wheeler showed admirable temper and, though quick to resent the fancied insult, awaited the explanation of Mr. Pugh, in which he disclaimed any intention of imputing to him personally a desire to distort the facts. Throughout the debate, which was precipitated by a speech of Mr. Boreing, the other Republican member from Kentucky, there was an air of suppressed excitement. It was the first time the subject had been broached in the house, and intense interest was manifested.

Mr. Lacey of Iowa concluded the debate with a general denunciation of the Goebel law. This incident overshadowed the other speeches on the Hawaiian bill, many of which were irrelevant.

Peace was restored in the senate before that body convened, and during the proceedings of the session there was only a reminder of the harsh language used just before adjournment Tuesday. The session opened with a lively and interesting discussion of the status of the Quay case, in the course of which Mr. Wolcott apologized for the language he had used the day before, disclaiming any intention of being offensive to anybody, least of all to his friend Mr. Lodge. The Colorado senator made a vehement and eloquent appeal for early action upon the Quay case. He was supported by other friends of Mr. Quay, and it was decided finally to take up the case today under the unanimous consent agreement made on March 16. In accordance also with that agreement the Spooner bill was made the unfinished business, thereby bringing the Philippine question to a direct issue in the senate.

The senate held an executive session devoted to the consideration of the nomination of Hon. W. D. Bynum for the office of appraiser of merchandise at New York. Senator Fairbanks made strenuous efforts to secure confirmation, but the opposition pleaded for time to allow further consideration of the nomination. The statement was made that Bynum was opposed by all the Democratic, Silver Republican and Populist senators, and the arguments in opposition which have heretofore been made were repeated.

Senator Davis gave notice that he would ask the senate today to take up the Hay-Pauncefote treaty for the modification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Mr. Davis said that he had not heard of any pronounced opposition to the treaty and that he did not anticipate that its consideration would be greatly prolonged.

A Double Shooting.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 5.—Fred Kettlehake yesterday drove up in front of a saloon in Virginia avenue, near Washington street, this city, lifted a Winchester rifle to his shoulder and fired into a group of men who were entering the saloon. One shot struck Lewis Krauss in the back of the head. Kettlehake then drove to North Liberty street, called Fred Simon, grocery man, outside and shot Simon in the abdomen. He will die. An Odd Fellows' lodge of which Kettlehake was a member recently investigated some charges against him. Simon and Krauss were members of the same lodge, and it is said that Kettlehake suspected them of having something to do with the charges.

Jury Trials For Cuba.

HAVANA, April 5.—The law reform commission has decided to adopt trial by jury in minor criminal cases, involving penalties of from one to six months' imprisonment, with a view to securing final decisions and thus preventing the higher courts from being clogged with numerous appeals. It is proposed that five shall constitute a jury. As to whether a decision shall be reached unanimously or by a majority the commission has yet to determine. The system has thus far been unknown in Cuba, but it is thought that the people will in time become educated up to it and that the principle can then be applied to crimes of a higher degree.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The following fourth class postmasters have been appointed: Pennsylvania—Breslau, Constantin Ruwinski; Corduroy, Utica Carris; Kresgeville, Cordelia C. Kresge. COL. STOWE'S WORK.

A Model Consul General at His Post in South Africa.

Kansas City Man Who Stands High in the Estimation of His Superiors and Is Working Hard for American Commerce.

The American consul general at Cape Town, James G. Stowe, was appointed January 10, 1898, and has for two years represented American interests in extreme South Africa in a manner which causes the state department to regard him as one of its most efficient agents, particularly as a promoter of increased commercial relations. His energy has been devoted to the extension of American markets, with results which have been unsurpassed at any of the consulates abroad, and he has frequently pointed out new and lucrative fields for the exploiting of surplus American products, particularly in the hardware line. Col. Stowe's district in South Africa, until the war began there, comprised all the territory south of Pretoria and Lourenzo Marques, including the United States consular agencies at Bloemfontein, Durban, East London, Johannesburg, Kimberley and Port Elizabeth. Now his jurisdiction is limited to British possessions, the agencies at Bloemfontein and Johannesburg having been recently attached to the consulate at Pretoria.

Col. Stowe was born at Providence, R. I., June 14, 1843, but for many years he has lived at Kansas City, Mo., where he has long been known as the most public-spirited citizen of the community. He has amassed considerable wealth as a jobber of machinery, and at the time of his appointment he was president of the Kansas City Implement, Vehicle and Hardware club, which is one of the most enterprising organizations devoted to local improvement in the city.

Col. Stowe had a common school and collegiate education, and during the civil war was an inspector of ammunition under the ordnance department. He knows no other language than English, but is one of the most fluent and polished speakers of his section of the country. He has exhibited little activity in politics, has never been a prominent partisan, but has been ceaseless in his efforts to improve his adopted home town and increase its business prosperity and influence. A resident of Kansas City, speaking of Col. Stowe, said to a New York Tribune reporter:

"He is one of those leaders who are to be found in most of our cities, and particularly in the rapidly growing cities, where local pride runs high. Col. Stowe is our most prominent 'boomer,' always devoting himself to inducing new enterprises, factories, railroads and capital generally to locate at Kansas City. He is known as a man who is always doing the greatest amount of work for the least money, who is wholly unselfish when the advancement of his community is at stake, who is looked up to by every one and is 'the leading citizen.'"

Col. Stowe's appointment was made by the president upon the recommendation of Assistant Secretary Webster Davis, of the interior department, who was familiar with his admirable qualifications for consular works, and Mr. Davis started a few weeks ago for Cape Town to make Col. Stowe a visit.

The Driest Spot on Earth.

The reputation of being the driest spot on earth is claimed by Payta, in Peru, a place about five degrees south of the equator on the coast that has risen 40 feet in historic times. Prof. David G. Fairchild, a recent visitor, reports having reached there in February just after a rain of more than 24 hours, the first for eight years. The average interval between two showers is seven years. Sea fogs are common. Of about nine species of plants noticed seven were annuals and their seeds must have remained dormant in the ground for eight years. In spite of the lack of rain, the long-rooted Peruvian cotton is grown in the dried-up river bed, furnishing crops that yield subsistence to the natives.

Steam Drays In London.

Huge steam drays are now a common sight on the streets of London. They run from 2½ to 7½ miles an hour, and can carry tremendous burdens. The steam drays are 15 feet long and 6½ wide, while the bed, on which rests the load, is a steel frame measuring 10½ by 5 feet. The front wheels are of iron, two feet and nine inches in diameter, and the tires are four inches wide. The rear or driving wheels are three feet in diameter, with tires five inches wide. Steam is generated by liquid fuel and the engine is of 14 horsepower. By the use of these drays all the space occupied by the horses on ordinary vehicles is saved, and the result is a great relief in overcrowded streets.

GREAT DAY IN DUBLIN

Victoria on Irish Soil After Thirty-nine Years.

IMPOSING CEREMONY AT CITY'S GATE

Popular Enthusiasm Drowned All Political Feeling—Not a Disloyal Utterance Was Heard—Grandest Pageant Ever Seen In Ireland.

DUBLIN, April 5.—Queen Victoria landed in Ireland yesterday for the first time in 39 years.

The disembarkation from the royal yacht was accomplished at 11:30. The commander of the forces in Ireland, the Duke of Connaught; the lord lieutenant, Earl Cadogan, and their staffs greeted her majesty, and the ride from Kingstown to Dublin commenced in splendid weather and before huge, good natured crowds.

The queen's progress from Kingstown to the viceregal lodge was accomplished without untoward incident and was marked with great enthusiasm. At the entrance to the city she received an address of welcome and handed the lord mayor a reply, in which she said she came to Ireland for rest and quiet and that it gave her great gladness to return to the land of so many happy associations, whose soldiers had recently fought so gallantly.

A slight shower marred for the moment the prospects of the day, but it was soon over, and the weather remained splendid. No sooner had the queen arrived at the viceregal lodge and lunched than she drove out again in Phœnix park, being much cheered.

It is understood that she expressed herself as wonderfully pleased with the reception and as having suffered no fatigue. Dublin went wild with delight over the excellence with which all the arrangements were carried out. Not one black flag or disloyal motto marked the line of march, and the popular enthusiasm buried all political feeling for the time.

Before landing the queen, who looked remarkably well, asked for a bunch of shamrocks. These were secured, and throughout the day she wore them pinned upon her breast. From the pier at Kingstown to the royal residence in Phœnix park is about nine miles. Crowds lined the entire distance, but there was practically no disturbance, the police and military preserving perfect order with less effort than would have been necessary in London.

A most interesting ceremony took place at the city limits, where an ancient gate and castle towers had been reproduced for the occasion. On the city side of the gate were the lord mayor and council in their scarlet robes, the mace bearers in blue and silver and several of the best known Irish, who were provided with seats on stands. The Royal Enniskillen fusileers lined the road as a guard of honor, while behind them were cordons of police, lancers and militia.

Thousands of spectators eagerly awaited the coming of the queen. Shortly before her arrival the pursuivant-at-arms, wearing a gorgeous cape of royal heraldry, galloped up to the lord mayor and asked permission for the entrance of the queen. Gravely and in quaintly worded terms of courtesy the lord mayor granted the request. Back galloped the pursuivant-at-arms, the gate banging behind him. Although the aged beefeaters, rigged out for the occasion with costumes from the Gaiety theater, could scarcely totter around, the whole scene was a counterpart of a sixteenth century play.

Then from the ramparts of the gate came a fanfare of trumpets. The queen was in sight. Out upon a scarlet cloth, laid Raleighlike upon the muddy road, stepped the lord mayor and the corporation, their robes glowing in the bright sunshine and their wands and maces flashing brilliantly. The gate creaked open. The Earl of Denbigh rode through, and then came the life guards. Ireland had not seen life guards for over 30 years, and many were the curious comments made as they galloped past. Behind them were carriages containing the home secretary, Sir Matthew White-Ridley; the Duchess of Connaught and her daughters, accompanied by members of the court and attended by mounted equerries, and then more life guards. Finally, amid almost perfect silence, save for the echo of cheers and cries of "God save the queen!" from outside the city limits, came the queen herself. Opposite her in the carriage sat Princess Christian and Princess Henry of Battenberg.

The moment her majesty passed the gate enthusiasm broke loose, bands played, men cheered, shouted and sang, all bareheaded, and the women waved their handkerchiefs and struggled to get a better view, many of them even weeping.

After the lady mayoress had presented a bouquet to the queen, the procession moved on. Behind her majesty came a dazzling escort of staff officers, more life guards and dragoons and finally the Enniskillens, who were loudly cheered as they moved into line. It was a pageant such as had never been seen in Ireland before.

Marconi Outdone.

PERRY, O. T., April 5.—Peter Pearson of Ponca City, O. T., who is an editor and electrician and who during the past year has conducted a series of experiments in wireless telegraphy, says he has transmitted messages over 1,000 miles. He says he has frequently talked with persons in Arkansas City, Topeka and some Oklahoma points. He says that when his system is perfected messages can be sent 25,000 miles as readily as 100 miles. However, he has given the public no idea of his methods, and he steadfastly refuses to do so.

Newfoundland Politics.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 5.—Mr. Morine has been chosen leader of the opposition in the colonial legislature. He has 11 supporters. Sir James Winter, the former premier, is left with but four. The Bond government has definitely abandoned any attack upon the Reid railway contract, but the premier will vigorously enforce the fishery laws, sending the colonial cruiser Fiona to the south coast with a view of preventing American fishing vessels from taking bait before April 18.

Powder Explosion.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 5.—A powder house at the Otisville stone crusher of the Erie railroad exploded yesterday afternoon. Charles Seybolt and one Italian were badly injured, and several buildings in Otisville were considerably damaged. The explosion was caused by a fire which had been built in the powder house to thaw out dynamite.

CANAL BILL TO PASS.

New York Legislature Takes Up Measure Thought to Be Dead.

ALBANY, April 5.—Much to the surprise of every one the Marshall bill appropriating $200,000 for the purpose of making a preliminary survey of the canals of the state was brought up unexpectedly in the senate late yesterday afternoon by the report of a resolution by the committee on rules, which was adopted by a vote of 31 to 16. During a discussion as to the bill the senate adjourned at 7:10 p. m. until today without taking final action on the measure which was until yesterday supposed to be dead. The indications are that the bill will pass.

The Fallows anti-Ramapo bill providing that the approval of the board of estimate and apportionment and written consent of the mayor and comptroller of New York city must be secured to make valid contracts for a water supply for the city passed the senate yesterday by a vote of 28 to 19. Senator Coffey (Dem.) voted with the Republicans for the measure.

The senate after a heated debate passed the Greater Troy bill by just the requisite number of votes, 25 ayes to 18 nays.

PHILIPPINE HOME RULE.

General Otis Approves a Plan For Municipal Management.

MANILA, April 5.—A scheme of municipal government prepared by a mixed board of which Senor Arellano is president has received the approval of General Otis. The plan provides for the establishment of autonomous municipal governments to be administered in a liberal spirit. It will give the Filipinos for the first time the right of suffrage in the election of officers and the establishment of town governments.

The scheme provides ample powers for the alcaldes in financial matters, giving them control of the public funds, and there is also ample provision for hearing persons who may object to the arrangements. This was never before provided for in the Philippines. The plan retains the original town limits. The walled city of Manila, however, is not included in the scheme.

The plan is to go into effect immediately. It will be welcomed by the Filipinos who have been asking for municipal privileges.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Contracts have just been closed with the American Shipbuilding company for the construction of four to six ships for a new company, which will operate a line between Duluth and Montreal. The ships are to be ready for service next fall. The new line will be the first in the field since the Canadian government completed its great waterway around the rapids of the St. Lawrence by which boats drawing 14 feet of water can steam directly from Chicago and Duluth to the ocean steamships at Montreal. For two generations vast sums were spent in building this ship canal, but by midsummer next it will be fully completed at a cost of over $60,000,000.

Miss Ireland has never been ill, and she is not of a nervous temperament. Doctors who have examined her say she is not suffering from any form of hysteria or mental disorder. Before becoming unconscious she complained of a pain in her head and side.

SHOTS FOR A PRINCE

Assassin Attacks Heir to the British Throne.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT IN BRUSSELS

Railroad Station the Scene of the Shooting—The Would Be Assassin Appeared Proud of His Exploit When Arrested.

BRUSSELS, April 5.—The Prince of Wales was shot at last evening while leaving the railroad station here, but escaped unhurt.

The Prince and Princess of Wales started for Copenhagen yesterday for the purpose of attending the celebration of King Christian's birthday, which occurs April 8.

As the train was leaving the Northern station for the Southern railroad station an individual fired a revolver at the Prince of Wales, but missed his royal highness.

It is thought that the shot was fired by a sympathizer with the Boers. This city is the headquarters of Dr. Leyds, the Transvaal agent, who has stirred up a strong anti-English pro-Boer feeling here.

The would be assassin jumped upon the footboard of the prince's saloon car as the train was started and fired into the car, aiming at the Prince of Wales.

Intense excitement prevailed for the moment, as it was feared the prince had been hit, the shots having been fired almost point blank. The railway carriage door was hastily thrown open, and great relief was felt when the prince himself appeared at the window unhurt.

Both the prince and the princess, however, had a very narrow escape. The policeman on duty took Sipido in charge. The latter appeared proud of his exploit and appeared quite calm. Sipido told the authorities that he lived on the Rue de la Forge at Saint-Gilles, two miles south of Brussels.

The attack is condemned even at the labor headquarters here, and at the Maison du Peuple, where the extreme anarchists meet, a leading member of the Young Socialist guard was loud in his denunciation of Sipido's action.

Le Patriote, in a special edition, denounces the attempt as "cowardly and senseless" and says:

"It will create general indignation, and the worst enemy of Belgium could not have dealt the country a fouler blow."

An eye witness says that the train was already in motion and when the engineer heard the pistol he shut off steam, applied the brakes and stopped the train. As the train restarted after Sipido's arrest the public loudly cheered the prince, who acknowledged the demonstration from the car window.

The Prince of Wales appeared quite unaffected by the incident.

Pennsylvania to Indorse Bryan.

HARRISBURG, April 5.—Colonel W. J. Bryan will be cordially indorsed for the presidency in 1900 by the Democratic state convention, which meets in this city today to select delegates to the national convention at Kansas City and nominate candidates for congress at large and auditor general. A conference of the party leaders was held last night, at which it was agreed that the indorsement of Bryan would be made one of the most important planks of the platform to be submitted to the convention. The platform will also oppose Republican militarism and imperialism in the Philippines and demand self government for the Filipinos under American protectorate.

National Biblical Congress.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—A national biblical congress under the auspices of the American Society of Religious Education will be held in Foundry M. E. church, this city, beginning on the 17th inst. and closing on the 19th. Delegates have already been selected from 20 states, comprising most of the states east of the Mississippi, and it is expected that other states will be represented when the congress convenes. The body is composed of all denominations.

The Sheridan's Load.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The transport Sheridan, which has just arrived at San Francisco from Manila, brought several officers as passengers, 109 military convicts, 31 insane soldiers, 90 discharged soldiers and 100 sick soldiers. Private William H. Merritt, Company E, Fourth cavalry, died at sea. The remains of 72 deceased soldiers were also aboard.

Dewey Not the Man for President.

In the face of the momentous problems that now confront this country—questions that are perplexing the best and most astute minds of men who have been in a position to study them constantly and who have arrived at definite ideas in respect to them, arraigning the mass of American people with either one or the other of the great political parties as a consequence—the announcement of Admiral Dewey that he will become a candidate for President seems preposterous. Especially is this so when in making the formal announcement of his ambition the Admiral fails to state where he stands on the great National questions or to which political party his sympathies are attached. The approaching Presidential campaign is one of the most serious ones that this country has ever entered upon, and the people will demand the candidacy of men for the highest office in the gift of the country whose principles and party affiliations are more decided and logical to a practical situation of affairs than Admiral Dewey offers in his personality.

Admiral Dewey has a great and glorious war record, but the people of this country are not now in a mood to elevate a man to the office of President simply because of this. The Admiral is loved and applauded for his achievements in the Philippines, but the work he accomplished in planning and directing the battle of Manila does not constitute qualifications for the responsible and intricate duties of chief magistrate of the country. His training and experience are not such as to appeal to the voters of the country to put him at the head of the government.

Take up any of the great questions—the currency, the tariff, the treatment of Porto Rico and the Philippines, the trusts—and no one knows where Admiral Dewey stands in respect to the issues which will line up the voters on election day next November. No one knows whether he is a Democrat, Republican, Prohibitionist or Populist. He says that his platform is the American flag. Every other man who aspires and every political party that hopes to win makes the same claim about the Stars and Stripes, but in addition to that they present some tangible, living issues as an argument to prove the claim. And that is what the people want.

In Admiral Dewey we have a man whom every citizen of the Republic points to with pride, but he is not the man fitted to be President of the United States.

The Philadelphia Press animadverts upon the employment in times of peril of aristocratic and favored officers who have courage but have not studied the game of war, and continues: "The men who led soft and luxurious lives in London clubs have ample courage. Courage is a masculine virtue widely diffused. These men have been ready enough to die, but modern war requires that a man shall have scorned delights and lived laborious days in learning his trade before war and its hail of death is faced. General Methuen was the foremost officer in the Guards Corps, and he has made an ignoble failure. The Guards brigade was misdirected by brave and heroic but unskilled officers, and failed to be on hand with the Highland brigade at Magersfontein. It was a group of Guards' officers riding as if they were taking a forenoon canter in Rotten Row who were shot and all killed or wounded by the Boer farmers they tried to take into camp."

The remonstrance presented to the Common Council Monday night protesting against the granting of the application of John Mortimer for a wholesale license to sell liquor was a strong one. It should have the effect of inducing the Council to deny the application, notwithstanding the political influence brought to bear on it.

A Trenton correspondent says that the statement recently made in several newspapers that Assemblyman Meeker, of the Legislative committee to investigate the State Home for Girls, would like to be appointed a member of the new board of trustees is incorrect. He says he would not accept the position.

The Somerset Messenger says that that Samuel S. Childs, of Bernards, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for Congressional honors on the part of the Democrats in the Third district this fall.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

A gentlemen from Union county went into the Newark Call office last week, smiling and rubbing his hands together gleefully. His extreme good nature was contagious until he explained himself, and then the Call staff could not see the joke. "Ah," said he, grinning from ear to ear, "we are to have a speedway."

"Don tell? Where is it to be?"

"At Waverley, of course. The work is going on bravely down there. We have the speedway and you fellows pay the shot. See? The Park Commissioners of Essex county are a charitable coterie. They know we have no money in Union county for any such luxury and they propose that we shall not be without a speedway. He, ha; it's fine."

He stated but the truth. The proposed speedway will benefit the Union county horsemen to a man, that is, if they care to use it, and the Essex county horsemen "pay the shot." So far as the speedway is concerned the Union county horsemen are welcome to it. They can occupy every part of it, and the Essex horsemen will see that they have it all to themselves. It does seem a little odd, however, that the Essex county people should be compelled to foot the entire bill.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plain folders Can Witness.

Lovers of good comedy, interspersed with a coterie of charming catchy songs, etc., with good actors for the servers, will be pleased to hear that Manager Maze Edwards will present at Music Hall tomorrow night and Saturday matinee and night the exceptionally clever rural farce comedy, "A Gay Farmer," which has met with such success in the eastern cities where it has been presented. A rare treat is in store for those who are fortunate enough to be able to attend. We are told it is one of the best and funniest comedies that ever came to town. The company comes well recommended, and no doubt many of the lovers of a real hearty and whole some laugh, tinctured with just enough pathos to make a charming contrast, will journey to the theatre to enjoy "A Gay Farmer."

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, April 5—The dime social held at Friendship Hall, New Market, Tuesday evening was a decided success. The mock marriage was the feature of the evening's entertainment. Those who composed the bridal party were: Lottie Ryno, bride; William VanNess the groom, while Stanley Day filled the office of minister. Stella Sofield and Irene Day were the bridesmaids, and Delia Dunn the maid of honor. The faces of the entire party were blackened, so as to disguise themselves from their friends. The bride wore the usual white satin costume, the bridesmaids dresses were blue and white. The maid-of-honor was in yellow. After the ceremony, which was performed with all the eclat of such functions, the guests enjoyed the remainder of the evening in dancing.

Westfield, April 5—Workmen employed by the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company started yesterday morning to tear up the track at the corner of Broad and Elm streets. HOUSECLEANING HINTS.

A Few Don'ts For This Period of Domestic Disturbance.

With the approach of spring housekeepers anticipate the season of housecleaning with no little uneasiness. An old and experienced mistress of the home loving kind suggests a few simple rules which, if borne in mind during that season of family upheaval, will tend to alleviate much of the discomfort which generally attends the process.

Before touching a room make out a plan and let the first note on your mental schedule be cellar. Prepare for the work by cleaning this part of the house first. It will save a great deal of labor in the end and much annoyance. Then attack the garret. Begin by removing any summer draperies that have been packed away. Dust and brush all that is to remain in trunks and boxes, clear the room of all rubbish that has accumulated during the winter and properly sweep, dust and scrub.

With such a beginning housecleaning is half accomplished. Next proceed to the least occupied room on the floor below. Remove all draperies.

While the carpet or matting is undergoing cleaning have the walls brushed and any painting or papering done that is necessary. When that is not required, wipe the walls with clean, old cloths and wash all paint with warm water in which a small quantity of ammonia has been diluted. Scrub the floor and open the windows to properly dry and air the room. Relay the carpet, arrange the draperies and the furniture. When everything is in order, wash the windows.

Unless extensive alterations are to be made the rooms started in the morning should be completed by evening. If each room is taken in succession and finished before another is begun, very little confusion will result. Indeed, some members of the family will scarcely realize that the renovations have been taking place excepting for the results, which of course will be very apparent.

The hall should be left until the last. Nothing makes a home seem more deserted and upset than when this part of the house is dismantled.

Here are some "don'ts" that should be observed:

Don't permit your husband to remain away from his business because "we're housecleaning."

Don't expect the housemaid to relieve you from all care of housecleaning. She is able to do the work under your supervision, with your assistance or that of some one equally capable, but she is not able to do it properly while you thump on the piano. The music disturbs her.

If you should chance to see a friend directing her steps toward your door, retire from the watchtower. She may discover you, and in that case you could not beg excuse because of a sick headache.

Don't meet your husband on the porch with hammer and tacks in hand. Of course he is glad to have you watch for his return in the old way, but he is tired out after a hard day's work in a cool, comfortable office in town, and it annoys him to see you looking so mussed up.

Don't think that because you are able to touch up the woodwork in your bed chambers that you will be equally successful in painting the front door. Let your husband attend to that. He's a better judge of color, and he thinks he knows more about such things than you do. Humor him once in awhile. He'll be more willing to walk the floor nights with his favorite infant son.

Don't employ tramps to dust your carpets. They are apt to dust out with them.

ELIZABETH LYON.

REAL GOLDEN GIRL.

Statue of Miss Maude Adams Cast In Precious Metal.

An interesting feature of the Paris exposition will be the gold model of Miss Maude Adams, which will occupy a prominent place in the Palais de l'Optique and will stand as the representative of the American girl.

The statue weighs 712 pounds and was cast in the bronze foundries of Henry Bonnard in New York city. The figure stands six feet high and portrays Miss Adams as the typical American girl. The pose is simple and erect, with hands close to the sides. The plain evening dress is devoid of trimming save for a little lace at the throat. The hair is arranged loosely after the fashion that has recently been in vogue and which is characteristic of Miss Adams. The idea originated with the American Gold Statue company. A number of representative artists were selected by them, and they in turn decided upon Miss Adams as the model.

It is said that not a few ladies bid for the honor, some even offering as much as $28,000 for the privilege of having their forms portrayed in gold for the admiring gaze of Paris and the world.

Though the statue is not solid, it is estimated that $187,000 of metal is in it. Miss Bessie Potter, the sculptor, required 25 sittings for the model, and the work has occupied all her time since early last summer.

GLADYS LA TOUR.

GOING TO COLORADO.

For the Sole Purpose of Living in a Political Atmosphere.

At the Age of 71 Mrs. Catherine V. Waite, of Chicago, Has Formed a Law Partnership with Her Husband at Denver.

At the age of 71 Mrs. Catherine V. Waite is about to form a law partnership in Denver, Col., with her husband, former Judge Charles B. Waite. The firm will be C. B. & C. V. Waite, and friends will be disappointed if the aged couple do not make some of the hustling western firms do their best to maintain prestige. Mrs. Waite, who is now in Detroit, has lived in Chicago at various times since 1855, and her home is at present with her daughter, Dr. Lucy Waite, 98 Loomis street, in that city. She has been a lifelong friend of Susan B. Anthony, and is one of the most remarkable women of the west.

Having lived in many states of the union, Mrs. Waite is going to Colorado because she believes it has the only atmosphere congenial to women of business ability and who desire a voice in the administration of public affairs. The versatility of this energetic woman is shown in the fact that she has been a farmer, a teacher, a lecturer, an author, a merchant, a builder, a real estate dealer, a lawyer, a contractor and a manager of large moneyed interests, and has attained eminent success in each of these callings. While attending to her law practice and her large business affairs Mrs. Waite expects to find time to complete the gathering of data for the publication of a scientific work which is to be published in Berlin. In it she will attempt to demonstrate that a woman can be a successful wife, mother and business woman at the same time.

Mrs. Waite was born in Canada and educated in Galesburg, Ill., and at Oberlin college. In the early 60s she arrived in Utah and fought Brigham

MRS. CATHERINE V. WAITE.
(Has Formed a Law Partnership with Her Husband at the Age of 71.)

Young with relentless vigor, publishing a book entitled "Brigham Young and His Harem." President Lincoln appointed her husband United States justice for Idaho. When they came to Chicago from Rock Island the Waites invested largely in Hyde Park property, and by careful management Mrs. Waite converted it into a small fortune. While her husband was traveling in Europe, from 1885 to 1887, Mrs. Waite took the course in the Union college of law and was admitted to the bar. For several years she edited the Law Times. After Judge Waite retired from the law firm of Cornell, Waite & Jamieson she became the active manager of their affairs. Realizing the possibilities of the world's fair, Mrs. Waite built three hotels. She has some property. A few years ago she was considered quite wealthy, but she and her husband have for several years past been paying off a large indebtedness contracted in building for the world's fair, a process which is not yet completed, and which has very much depleted their estate.

Just now, says the Chicago Times-Herald, Mrs. Waite is enthusiastically engaged in developing her Windsor possessions. She has built seven houses upon the property and is planning several more, attending to all the details herself. It is a novel sight to see this woman, who bears her years so lightly, hustling among her workmen and contractors, giving orders and arranging details of building with the energy and enthusiasm which has characterized her long and remarkable career. Mrs. Waite's varied interests have compelled her to travel extensively, and there is not a detail of the business from Windsor to Colorado and Chicago with which she is not perfectly conversant. While Mrs. Waite has no ambition to go to congress, she declares that she must spend the remainder of her life in a political atmosphere made for women as well as men. Such an atmosphere she finds alone in Colorado.

Tags to Last Four Years.

Payment of the bicycle tax in France is proved by a small plate affixed to the machine every year, but the government now proposes to issue plates good for four years. The holder must have his name and address engraved at his own expense, but he is supplied with new plates when necessary, on producing the fragments of the old. Should he cease to own a bicycle he must at once deposit his plate, to have his name stricken off the list of persons liable to the tax.

The Growth of the South.

In the past ten years the production of wheat has increased 54 per cent in the south, and the number of hogs raised there has, during that period, nearly doubled.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION.

GERMS IN OYSTERS.

Scientific Investigation Demonstrates That Sewage from Cities Poisons the Bivalves.

A scare was caused in England some years ago by the statement that oysters were active disseminators of typhoid fever. The consumption in London of what are invariably referred to in the country papers as "luscious bivalves" thereupon fell off 50 per cent. The cockney, alive to his opportunities, refused to buy oysters for his sweetheart, on the ground that they were dangerous. As oysters are very expensive in Great Britain anyhow, people were easily convinced of their unwholesomeness. The reduction in consumption caused a rapid fall in prices. It also injured the American exportation of blue points to England.

Profs. Herdman and Boyce went to live among the oysters of Lancashire, to find out if they are really so dangerous. They looked into the cause of the color of green oysters. "The green hue," they picturesquely say in their report, "is equally familiar to the man who raises them for the market, to the one who raises them from their bed with a pair of rakes, and also to him who raises them out of their own juices from the half shell by means of a silver trident. This coloring has been attributed variously to metals, vegetable coloring matter, bile pigment and the pigment of diatoms."

The investigations of the learned oyster sharps, however, yield the fact that the green color is not always due to the same cause. One variety is caused by copper. This appears true of the American green oyster. In other varieties iron is found, while a diatom, or moss, is suspected as a cause in still others. The American green oysters are frequently thin and have shrunken livers.

The contamination of oyster beds by sewage and the results of experimental feeding of oysters with matter laden with typhoid fever germs are taken up. Oysters from the vicinity of sewers contain bacteria. Those that have imbibed typhoid bacilli have in them germs which can be cultivated from them 14 days after infection.—N. Y. World.

SAFE FIRE ESCAPE.

Descent to Ground Can Be Made Comfortably, Without Exertion and Without Danger.

In the fire escape here shown the descent to the ground from a window or other egress opening can be made comfortably and without exertion. All that is necessary is to seat one's self on the bench shown, which has previously been hooked to the window ledge or other convenient point, and to grasp the two handles at the sides. Mechanism concealed in the box underneath pays out the rope from two reels or drums, which are so arranged that the rope on each side will be paid out at a uniform rate to prevent the tilting of the boxing or casing. The gripping tubes at the sides of the box, through which the ropes pass, permit the control of the rate of descent, as any pressure on them acts as a brake to prevent the ropes from being rapidly unwound from the reels or drums. The same object is also accomplished by means of the brake strap, shown as coming out of the front of the casing, and designed to be operated by the foot, which is slipped into the stirrup provided for that purpose. This interesting device is the invention of Louis N. Duquette, of Southbridge, Mass.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE LATEST FIRE ESCAPE.

How Climate Affects Brains.

In an article in the Veterinarian Mr. Dollar collects examples illustrating the effect of climate on the mind. Goethe could always work better during a high barometer. In July and August the secretary of the Academie des Sciences, Paris, receives all sorts of absurd projects by post, and the hotter the summer the more foolish they are. Dr. Mercier, of Zurich, finds from statistics of Swiss asylums that morbid psychical conditions or mental derangements are at a maximum in high summer, in fact which explains why most suicides occur in summer, when the curve for suicides rises to about double the height it has in December. Mr. Charles Linney, of the weather bureau, Illinois, recently showed that crime also attains its maximum in the hot season. Another observation of Mr. Dexter, of New York, is that a low hygeometric state of the atmosphere increases mental trouble and suicide.

AN ARTIFICIAL SPINE.

Ingenious Harness Designed to Give Welcome Support to the Cotton Picker's Back.

The cotton pickers of the south, who occupy a stooping posture all day long during the picking season, have an unusually heavy strain placed upon the muscles of the back, which become so fatigued as to incapacitate the pickers for rapid work. To avoid this, Samuel C. Potts, of Apple Valley, Ga., has devised an artificial spine of metal for the pickers, which transfers the strain of stooping from the naturally weak muscles of the back to the strong, stout muscles of the shoulders and thighs. This he accomplishes by means of the harness-like arrangement here illustrated, which consists of a flat, flexible steel support, with the necessary band and straps to secure it to the body. The upper cross bar is fitted to slide along the spine support, accommodating itself to the curvature of the back. There is a hole in each end of it through which straps pass, and these are fastened around the shoulders. The lower bar is fixed, and terminates in two rings, through which straps pass, which are fastened around the hips. The end of the spinal support is a ring, through which two straps pass, and these are buckled around the thighs. It is asserted this harness relieves the back of the cotton pickers from the strain incidental to the long-maintained stooping position by transferring it to the stronger muscles, as above explained.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

SPINE FOR COTTON PICKERS.

IRISH CARPET MAKERS.

Their Success in Turning Out Rugs That Are Known as Persian Has Been Phenomenal.

Just a year ago some manufacturers of artistic textiles touring in Donegal resolved on establishing a place for the making of hand-tufted carpets of the description generally known as "Turkish" or "Persian." The peculiarity of this fabric is that from its nature it must be a hand production. The tufts are tied by the fingers in knots in longitudinal wraps, which are stretched between two long parallel beams. The carpets are made to the size and shape of any room. The design is placed in front, and the girls, from three to a dozen, according to the size of the carpet, select the colors indicated row by row, which are tied, then bound down by "shoots" of woolen weft drawn across the entire width, and beaten firm by small iron toothed hammers.

There is interesting variety and pleasure in the work, and it is such that individual skill and workmanship come largely into play. Altogether it is just such an industry as is suited to the rural districts of Ireland. No steam power is required, and there is therefore no handicap on the commercial side by the absence of coal.

The first year's experiment with the Irish girls has proved that they are admirably adapted for the work. The girls show a nimbleness of fingers and sharpness of eye for color and form that have quite astonished their teachers, and they take to the work with a spirit and cheerfulness quite refreshing. So convinced are the promoters of its ultimate success that they have planned out a broad scheme that will spread the work all over the west of Ireland and give employment to many hundreds of girls and boys.—London Furniture Record.

Soda Water Satisfies Hunger.

Carbonic acid gas, says a medical authority, has the singular property of lessening the sense of hunger, and may profitably be remembered in dealing with cases of diabetes in which bulimia is a prominent symptom. The seat of hunger is found in the solar plexus. By the use of water charged with carbonic acid gas the branches of the solar plexus distributed through the mucous membrane of the stomach are influenced in such a way that the abnormal irritation of the plexus which is the foundation for the ravenous hunger often present in diabetes and certain forms of indigestion may be greatly mitigated, if not wholly appeased. Water charged with carbonic acid gas may likewise be employed with advantage in many cases of hyperpepsia in which there is a sensation present in the stomach described by the patient as a gnawing "goneness," emptiness, etc.

The Face as an Index.

It is a fact that persons astonished are apt to open their mouths. The reason is that attention, involuntarily attracted, uses up nerve-force, and relaxes the muscles not engaged in staring. For the same reason, the astonished person is liable to let things fall out of his hands. Contrariwise, one who is forcing himself to keep his eye and thought on a single object, sets his teeth and contracts his eyelids—an automatic precaution against distraction by other sights. A sudden dissipation of the force collected in such voluntary attention agitates the muscles, producing a sigh of relief, a smile or a laugh.

How It's Backed

Undoubted Reliability is Expressed in Plainfield Indorsement.

What you want is home indorsement

The backing of people you know

Plainfield proof for Plainfield people

That's what follows here

Surely no better backing can be had than the following statement from Mrs. R. A. Martin of No. 70 Jackson street who says:—"I had pain in my back and loins for about a year or more, no doubt caused by my kidneys being out of order. I felt it more in the morning just after getting up or if I did any stooping or lifting. Notwithstanding the fact that I took all kinds of medicines I never found anything which helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at L. W. Randolph's drug store. They not only removed the pain but they strengthened me in other ways."

For sale by all dealers, price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

NOVEL AUTOMOBILE.

Invented by a Man Down in Maine, and Ready for Winter as Well as Summer Use.

A. O. Lombard, of Waterville, Me., has just completed the work on a new automobile which is in itself new and novel, as well as being a model machine in every way.

The principal feature of the machine is the manner in which the running gear and boiler are hung on the machine. Instead of having them hung from the body, Mr. Lombard has a frame attached to the rear axle and made fast to it, while the forward end is attached to the forward spring of the wagon.

By this arrangement the running gear is solidly fastened to the rear axle and is made rigid there where all the connections for running of the machine are made, while the forward end of the frame is cushioned by being attached to the spring.

While the arrangement does not in the least affect the riding of the wagon, it gives spring enough to the frame so that there is no danger of the machinery being injured by being jarred.

The power is furnished by a steel boiler 14 inches long and 14 inches in diameter, with 301 half-inch tubes in it, and set in an upright position, in which gasoline is used as a fuel. Under the boiler is placed the gasoline burner. This is a very novel affair and is so arranged that the whole of the bottom of the boiler has the flame striking it when the boiler is lighted.

AUTOMOBILE ON RUNNERS.

This burner is connected with a steam pipe from the boiler and this is so arranged that the supply of gasoline to the burner is governed by the steam pressure, so that when the wagon is not at work the burner will be nearly closed, and thus very little flame will go to the burner. The boiler runs under a pressure of 150 pounds and is supplied with a safety valve, steam gauge and gauge cocks for testing the amount of water in the boiler.

The machine was completed at about the time the snow came, and Mr. Lombard set at work to make some kind of an attachment by which the machine could be used in the winter as well as in the summer.

The only change which he made in the machine was to remove the forward wheels and to place on the axle a set of hub runners, such as are used on coaches and the like. But with this arrangement, in the cold weather, he found that there would be a cloud of steam coming from the machine. This he remedied by making the runners hollow with a number of small holes in the bottoms of them.

Through a pipe running to the hub, and thence to the axle, he connected his exhaust pipes, and now the engines exhaust right down into the hollow runners and the cold snow cools the runner and condenses the steam which soon becomes water and is run out to the snow through the holes in the bottom of the runners.—Boston Globe.

LEAGUE STOPS RACING.

The Step, Some Seem to Think, Will Result in Increased Membership Almost Immediately.

From Maine to California and from the lakes to the gulf the press congratulates the League of American Wheelmen upon its divorce from cycle racing. For four years the question of whether the league should discontinue its control of a racing department has agitated the organization and wheelmen generally. During the past year the question assumed an acute stage, owing to the opposition of a purely racing body and because of the stand taken against the department by many of the leaders of the league. The statement was repeatedly made that racing troubles were the cause of the decline in league membership, and that if the national assembly discontinued this feature the organization would receive many applications from wheelmen who take greater interest in the more dignified objects of the league, such as highway improvement, securing of wheelmen's rights and privileges, hotel accommodations, road maps and touring facilities and the many other objects for which the L. A. W. has been constantly striving.

Since the assembly almost unanimously decided to drop the racing department those who have consistently opposed it as well as those who favored it have congratulated the league and freely predict that the organization will immediately feel the effect of the action. In the centers of population this effect is already being felt, and it will probably soon extend itself to the other localities of the country. The larger cities have usually taken the lead in league recruiting, and as they have been the most opposed to racing it is natural to suppose they will be the first to show the favorable effects of the action.

Wales Buys an Automobile.

The prince of Wales has joined the ranks of the motorists. He has ordered a six-horse power Daimler phaeton car for four passengers to be delivered at Sandringham, and the prince himself intends to take lessons in its management. This may give a fillip to the motor industry in England, which has been making slow progress.

HERO OF MAFEKING.

This Is the Name Given in England to Col. Baden-Powell.

His Remarkable Defense of the African Frontier Town Against a Superior Force Proves Him a Thorough Soldier.

Col. Robert Stephenson Smith Baden-Powell, whose heroic and picturesque defense of Mafeking has been no less remarkable than that of Sir George White, at Ladysmith, is a seasoned frontiersman. At the beginning of the Transvaal war, Col. Baden-Powell undertook the defense with a force consisting of a part of the First battalion of the Lancashire (Royal north) regiment, the First battalion Munster fusileers and 1,000 colonials, with one battery of artillery—in all probably 2,000 men.

The siege began on October 15, 1899, and was led by Gen. Cronje in person until he went to Kimberley to oppose Methuen. Baden-Powell was bombarded almost daily. He made occasional sorties, but his force was too small and his weapons too ineffective to make headway against the besieging force. Col. Plumer, who was stationed at Fort Tuli, in Rhodesia, raised a force of 2,000 irregulars to go to the relief of Mafeking. On January 26 reports came of the relief of the town, and there have been similar reports since.

Col. Baden-Powell, says the New York Tribune, is a cavalry officer, who joined the hussars when he was 19, and is now a lieutenant colonel in a regiment of the Dragoon guards. His life has been spent in the army and in special service and travel, and he is an authority on cavalry tactics, having written manuals on reconnoissance work and scouting. He is a natural leader of men, and rallied around him at Mafeking not only a well-known group of officers of high social position, but also a seasoned band of frontiersmen and adventurers. The defense of Mafeking has been that of a natural scout, whose ear has been constantly to the ground, listening for the stealthy approach of the foe, and whose keen intelligence and inventive skill have devised a great variety of resources for thwarting the devices of Cronje and his latter opponents.

COL. BADEN-POWELL
(His Heroic Defense of Mafeking Has Made Him Famous.)

Like Cecil Rhodes, Col. Baden-Powell was born in a rectory. He is the son of the late Prof. Baden-Powell, of Oxford and Langton manor, and was born on February 22, 1857. Educated at Charterhouse, he joined the Thirteenth hussars in 1876, and, as adjutant, served with his regiment in India and Afghanistan and in South Africa. Early in his military career he became familiar with the parts of the African continent with which his name will hereafter be associated. In 1887 he was again at Cape Town as assistant military secretary to Gen. Sir Henry Smyth, and during his two years' stay there he served in the Zuzuland operations and was mentioned in the dispatches. After serving three years at Malta, he again returned to Africa, charged with the special service of raising and commanding the native levies in the Ashantee operations.

For his brilliant work in this campaign he received the brevet rank of lieutenant colonel. After the Jameson raid, when the Matabeles rose a second time, he was chosen as chief staff officer of Gen. Sir Frederick Carrington. Promotion as bretet colonel followed this campaign, and he was placed in command of the Fifth dragoons. At the beginning of the Transvaal war he was selected to proceed to South Africa to raise a military force on the spot and to drill it into efficiency. That he succeeded in doing so is attested by his long and heroic resistance against a superior force.

The Sun as a Purifier.

Sunshine and fresh air are perfectly invaluable in purifying a house. In fact, sunshine is thoroughly hostile to many disease microbes; therefore it should be allowed to flood our rooms, not only as a means of purifying them after they have been used in sickness, but as much as possible at all times. The housekeeper has always three powerful helpers in the work of keeping disease at bay—they are soap and water (especially boiling water), an abundance of fresh air and floods of sunshine. These no chemical disinfectants can equal for everyday use.

Gold in Circulation.

The amount of gold coin in actual circulation in the world is estimated by the Bank of England officials to be about 865 tons.

The annual meeting of the Plainfield Medical Association was held last night at the Kensington Hotel. Previous to a banquet provided in Landlord Staat's best style, a business meeting was held at which these officers were elected: President, Dr. W. C. Boone; vice-president, Dr. A. F. VanHorn; secretary and treasurer, Dr. N. W. Currie. Then Dr. Pittis read an interesting paper on "Hysteria," which was discussed by some of the members. Nearly all of the medical fraternity were present and enjoyed themselves around the banquet board in relating reminiscences and experiences pertaining to the profession.

BONN'S FINE MILLINERY.

Beautiful Display of Stylish Hats is to be Seen.

The magnificent millinery display made at Bonn's establishment in the way of handsomely trimmed hats and bonnets has caught the eye of the Plainfield ladies. Bonn's goods are always up-to-date and the exhibit made this year is far ahead of any previous attempts in this line. Every thing that the most skilled trimmers can design is on exhibition. The pretty effects in the milliner's art are displayed in all styles, designs and in many shades at prices within touch of the middle classes as well as those who are blessed with a greater share of this world's good.

If the ladies can't be suited at Bonn's there's no need to go to Newark or New York. Bonn's prices are much less than milliners in those cities charge and the selection is equally as stylish.

Dry Grass Ignited.

The dry grass in the yard adjoining the Gardner property on East Front street became ignited about 11 o'clock this morning from a small bonfire that had been ignited in rear of the small building formerly used by Townsend as a marble shop. The flames threatened the destruction of the small building, but the fire was extinguished before serious damage resulted.

FOWLER SAYS KEAN IS BACK OF BERGEN

The Congressman Indulges in Language That Means a Hot Fight.

HE SEEKS A RENOMINATION

CONFIDENT HE WILL WIN IN SPITE OF THE SENATOR.

Openly Accuses Kean of Treachery to Him, and Discounts the Claims That Bergen is Making for a Congressional Nomination.

The following article was sent out from Washington yesterday, and reads as though it had been taken as a means of stating Congressman Fowler's ideas of the fight that is being made by Frank Bergen against his renomination for a fourth term:

Although serving his third term in the House of Representatives, Congressman Charles N. Fowler is in hopes that he may have another term. He is well aware that he has a fight on his hands for the nomination, since Frank Bergen has declared that he was an aspirant to succeed Mr. Fowler. The campaign of Mr. Bergen opened several months ago, and was progressing so lively that Mr. Fowler was constrained to take a trip home to "look after his fences." He spent three weeks in and around Elizabeth, and returned to his Congressional duties a couple of days ago.

Knowing that his widely scattered district—composed of Union county and portions of Essex and Hudson—was one of the easiest to lose track of, Mr. Fowler made a careful canvass of the most important cities and towns while he was at home, and as a result of his trip he is fully conversant with the temper of the Republicans, and in a position to judge of the fight he has on his hands. That he is not unduly alarmed is apparent from his utterances regarding the matter.

In an interview yesterday Mr. Fowler said: "I am more than pleased with the outlook and I am confident that I shall be renominated. I expect to get the number of delegates from Essex and Hudson counties, and I do not believe that Mr. Bergen will have a single one in Union."

When asked what reason Mr. Bergen advanced for seeking to cut short his Congressional career Mr. Fowler said: "The only one I have heard of is that he claims that now that the financial legislation has been disposed of forever, my term of usefulness in Congress is practically ended and the office should be passed around among the members of the party."

Asked the direct question if United States Senator Kean was behind the candidacy of Mr. Bergen the Congressman replied:

"Yes, Mr. Kean is undoubtedly behind Mr. Bergen, and will aid him all he can, but that does not bother me in the least. I have been opposed by Senator Kean each time that I have been a candidate, and I have won in spite of him. I believe I can do so again."

"Why does Senator Kean oppose you this year, Mr. Fowler?" was asked.

"The only reason that I know of for his action is that I supported him for United States Senator, and he takes this means for rewarding me," was the reply.

A close friend of Mr. Fowler, who was present at the interview, stated that a close and careful canvass had been made of the district by the Representative, and he felt that his nomination was practically assured.

He pointed out that Speaker Reed had recognized Mr. Fowler's fitness for financial work by placing him high on the important committee of banking and currency. The action of Speaker Reed had been indorsed by Speaker Henderson, who named him for second place on the committee and also gave him the seventh place on the committee on foreign affairs. Both committees are among the most distinguished in the House of Representatives.

Continuing his observations, the gentleman went on to say that should Mr. Bergen or any other man succeed Mr. Fowler from the Eighth district, as a new man he would be placed at the bottom of the committee list, which would be loss to the prestige of the district and the State.

Prices of Ice Will be High.

There is every indication that the price of ice this summer will be high. From all sections comes the report of a light harvest and Plainfielders can make up their minds that they will have to pay more this year that last for the frozen water, unless the dealers start in a cut prices, and this is not likely.

WAS NOT BURIED ALIVE.

APPREHENSION OF MRS. W. F. JAMES FOR HER HUSBAND'S FATE.

Grave was Opened and Her Fears That He was Not Dead When Buried Proved to be Unfounded.

The grave of William F. James in Evergreen cemetery on Plainfield avenue was opened Wednesday afternoon by Sexton Kennedy at the request of the widow of the deceased. Mr. James who was a member of Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., died on the 14th of October last, at his home on Grove street. Ever since the death of Mr James his widow has been apprehensive that possibly he had been buried alive. To satisfy Mrs. James that everything was regular it was decided to open the grave and make an investigation.

When the casket was opened the body was found to be in a partial state of decomposition. There was no evidence, however, that Mr. James had been buried before death resulted. The only noticeable thing about the body that was not as it should be was the shroud which had became slightly ruffled, something that might occur when the casket was lowered into the grave or in moving it about before the final burial. However, opening the grave and inspecting the corpse satisfied the widow as she therefore feels relieved of the horrible thoughts that possibly her husband had been buried alive.

Patrolman Mattox on a Wheel.

Patrolman Mattox has been placed on a wheel and is now covering the town in the day time with the assistance of Roundsman Flynn. This work cannot be too strongly commended. An officer can cover four times the territory on a wheel that he can on foot, and the change is a wise one.

TO SEE PASSION PLAY.

A. V. D. HONEYMAN TO CONDUCT A PARTY TO OBER AMMERGAU.

An Exceptional Opportunity for New Jersey People to Witness the Drama of the Sacred Story.

Some New Jersey people, including many who are going to the New Jersey Christian Endeavor tour to Europe, in June, expect to see the Passion Play at Ober Ammergau. The place is a small town, inhabited wholly by peasants, in an entrancing valley hid away among the hills of Bavaria. That which is called a play and really is a drama of the sacred story about our Lord's life has been acted for several centuries in this primitive spot.

Letters received from Ober Ammergau to Mr. Honeyman, of this city, who expects to start one party for that place late in May, give the names of the players and show that Mr. Anton Lang is to take the place of Mr. Joseph Mayer, who has become too aged to act the part of Christ. It has been generally supposed that the performances will be on every day of the week during the summer, but this is not the case. The official schedule shows the dates are May 24 and 27; June 4, 10, 16, 17, 24 and 29; July 1, 8, 15, 18, 22 and 29; August 5, 8, 12, 15, 19, 25 and 26; September 2, 8, 9, 16, 23 and 30. The play lasts, as in the middle ages, from 8 a. m. until 5:30 p. m., with an interval of one and one-half hours for refreshments. The peasants put at the disposal of visitors 1,900 rooms, with 3,500 beds, so that it is more than likely that, except during August, everybody will be accommodated. No one will be sold tickets, however, who does not spend two nights in the village. The place is approached from Munich by a railway to within several miles and thence by a trolley just completed.

The question is frequently asked, "Just what are the scenes of the play?" Mr. Honeyman says of it: "In the morning there will be cannon firing, band playing and the townspeople will all go to early mass. Promptly at 8 o'clock, after singing by the chorus of the first hymn, an introductory tableau will be shown 'The Expulsion From Paradise' and another 'The Adoration of the Cross,' during which the entire chorus will kneel by the sides of the stage, and sing a hymn. Then will come the music of a great coral march, and then the first scene in the Passion Play, 'The Entry Into Jerusalem,' will open. The first great tableau is entitled the 'Conspiracy of the Sons of Jacob Against Joseph.' The first scene connected with Our Lord is 'Christ in the House of Magdalene' at Bethany, and His 'Parting from His Mother.' There are about twenty-five tableaux and nearly as many separate scenes. The tableaux are all from the Old Testament, and the scenes all connected with the last week in Christ's life, but there is a final tableau entitled 'The Triumphant Christ in the Ascension' after which as a conclusion comes a Hallelujah hymn."

Resolution of Condolence.

The committee on resolutions at the Plainfield Reform Club reported last night as follows:

Whereas, A greatly esteemed and faithful member of the Plainfield Reform Club, Brother M. F. Marcley, has been called to the higher life, we desire to express and place on record our appreciation of his worth and the valuable services he has rendered to this organization, and of our deep sorrow at his departure.

His "home going" was on February 25th, 1900, and although we keenly feel and deeply mourn our loss, we are comforted with the assurance that he has entered upon the glorified life.

Brother Marcley loved the Reform Club and was ever loyal to it. He hated intemperance in all its forms, and labored and prayed for its overthrow. We shall miss his presence, his labors of love and his wise counsels, but the influence of his devoted life still lives. Let us as a club, by the help of Him whom our brother so faithfully served, follow the blessed example he has set for us, and do more and better work than we have ever done.

Concession to Carpenters.

While carpenters most everywhere have been having more or less trouble concerning hours of work and wages the local carpenters have thus far escaped this sort of thing, and what is still better they are likely to. A meeting was held recently and eight hours was decided upon as a day's work with the same pay received for nine hours. All of the boss carpenters, about thirty-eight, signed the agreement, and the new rule will go into effect June 1st.

MUSICALE AT DR. WALDO'S.

Incidentally the Announcement of the Engagement of His Daughter, Miss Edith, is Announced.

A delightful event of last evening was the reception and musicale given by Dr. Waldo, of 520 Stelle avenue, which was an occasion for the announcement of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Edith Waldo, to William DeV. Beach, assistant rector of the Methodist Episcopal church at New Haven.

The affair was attended by a large number of society people from this city and New York, and was marked by many pleasant features. During the first part of the evening there were musical selections of a high order by members of Dr. Waldo's family. Dr. Waldo played the 'cello; Fullerton Waldo, viola; Miss Edith Waldo, first violin, and Miss Dorothy Waldo, second violin. The renditions were perfect and called forth the approval of everyone present. Following the first part a social time was enjoyed during which refreshments were served. Then followed the second part of the musicale, which was enjoyed equally with the other.

The announcement of the engagement is soon to be followed by the wedding which will take place during Easter week, and which promises to be of unusual brilliancy.

Some of those present last evening were Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. Joseph M. Myers, Joseph L. Myers, Mrs D. T. VanBuren, L. THE HIGH SCHOOL SITE.

DISCUSSION AS TO WHERE BUILDING WILL BE LOCATED.

Some of the Members of Board of Education Want it Built on Wadsworth Property.

The Common Council is not the only official body of the city that is having troubles of its own, for the Board of Education is at present struggling with problems that are none the less serious of perplexing. There is a division among the members regarding the site for the new High School which is to cost $100,000. It was expected that at the last meeting the question of site would be settled, but owing to a division no report was made.

Two members of the Board want to build the new school on the Wadsworth property, now owned by the city, and then be able to put more money in the building. The rest of the members want to select another site, preferably on the north side of the railroad. This proposition the two members will not listen to, and this is the way matters stand. It is claimed by the majority that the Wadsworth property cannot be sold for a price that it is worth, and hence the folly of sacrificing it for a cheap figure.

On the other hand residents in the vicinity of the Wadsworth property are strongly opposed to a High School being erected thereon. They claim it will decrease the price of their property, and be a source of annoyance. A person in a position to know informs a representative of The Press that unless the building can be erected on the Wadsworth property there are strong chances of the matter being held up for some time to come.

TO GO INTO BANKRUPTCY.

A. B. Thorn Unable to Continue Plumbing and Tinning Business — Liabilities are $10,000.

A. B. Thorn, the plumber and tinner of Somerset street, closed his place of business this morning preparatory to filing a petition with the United States District County in bankruptcy. The failure is due to the ceasing of building operations and inability to collect debts.

Mr. Thorn is represented by Lawyer W. S. Angleman, and the latter furnished a statement of affairs this morning. There are unsecured debts amounting to $3,500; assets, including book accounts, $1,500, and stock amounting to $3,000. In addition to the above the above are liabilities, secured by mortgages on real estate amounting to $10,000.

There seems to but little doubt but what the petition will be granted. Mr. Thorn has not decided what course he will pursue following the settlement of present business difficulties.

WIND BLEW BURNING PAPER

Side of An East Third Street House Set on Fire, But No Serious Damage Done.

The high wind blew a burning paper from a bon-fire against the rear of the home of George Grey, 412 East Third street, this noon. The paper burned undisturbed until the side of the house caught fire. Then the occupants of the house discovered what was happening and an alarm was sent in from Box 16, corner of East Front and and Richmond streets.

The fire department was on hand in a short time and a single extinguisher did the work. The house is the property of Mrs. Hanna Westphal, of Liberty street, and is covered by insurance. The damage was slight and will not amount to over $25.

JERSEY REPUBLICANS TO CHOOSE DELEGATES

Former Mayor Chas. J. Fisk the Probable Choice in This Congressional District

PRIMARIES ON APRIL 16th.

CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT CONVENTION AT BELLEVILLE, APRIL 17TH.

State Convention to Choose "Big Four" Will be Held at Trenton Two Days Later—Plainfield's Delegations Eighteen and Nine.

The Republicans of this city and all the rest of Union county will hold their primaries Monday night, April 16th, to choose delegates to the Eighth Congressional district convention at Belleville, Tuesday, April 17th, and to the State convention at Trenton, Thursday, April 19th. At both conventions delegates will be elected to the Republican National convention to be held in Philadelphia next June.

Little interest is manifested in the primaries, as there is little prospect of a fight at any of the conventions and none at all the primaries. It is really the only chance that the Republican voters of the county will have to express their opinions in the choice of the Republican nominees for President and Vice-President. There is apparently no doubt whatsoever but that President McKinley will be renominated by acclamation. On the Vice-Presidential nomination there may be a contest. Plainfield, and all of Union county for that matter, is not particularly interested in the contest, and there will be no instruction of delegates.

The Congressional district convention, which is to be held at Belleville, just outside of the city of Newark, in Essex county, will select two delegates to the National convention to represent the Eighth district. There will also be two alternates to be chosen. Four years ago Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, was an alternate. This year he will probably be chosen a delegate. His companion is likely to be either Col. Fuller, of Bayonne, or Supreme Court Clerk William Riker, of Orange.

The basis of representation of the different wards, boroughs and townships at the convention will be one delegate for every 100 votes or fraction thereof over fifty cast at the last State election. The four wards in this city will have the choice of four delegates each, except the Fourth which has six.

Two days after the convention at Belleville, the State convention will be held at Taylor's Opera House, Trenton. At the latter gathering, the "Big Four," as the four delegates-at-large from New Jersey to the National convention are called, will be elected. The probable choice of the party will be United States Senators Sewell and Kean, Franklin Murphy, of Newark, and State Comptroller Bradley, of Trenton.

The basis of representation at the State convention will be one delegate for every 200 votes or fraction thereof over 100 cast at the last State election. Under that arrangement Plainfield will have a delegation of nine, two from each ward, except the Fourth which has three. The delegates will be chosen principally from among the leaders of the party in the various wards. It is considered too important a mission for the rank and file and the convention will include most of the prominent Republicans from all over the State.

A Pleasant Dance.

A very pleasant dance was given in Washington Hall last evening by Eugene O'Reilly. There was a good-sized crowd present and a choice selection of music was rendered throughout the evening. One of the most popular selections, a waltz, was "A Bird in the Gilded Cage." This is one of the latest compositions and it was enthusiastically received.

Mr. Murray to Speak.

The last ecumenical conference on foreign missions was held in London, in 1888. The next one will be in New York, April 21st to May 1st, 1900. Wm. D. Murray will speak upon the work of this conference tonight in the Seventh-day Baptist church. All who believe in evangelizing the whole world are cordially invited to attend.

Sixteen Borough Graduates.

The graduating class in the North Plainfield High School is composed of sixteen members, of which number two are young men. For several years past the young women have been in the majority, and there seems to be little prospect of a change. The names of those in the class will be announced next week.

WAR OFFICE BLAMED

Delay of Lord Roberts Excites Severe Criticism.

COLONEL PLUMER TWICE REPULSED.

General Clements, After a Fortnight's March, Reaches Bloemfontein—Danger of a Water Famine Denied.

LONDON, April 6.—The war office issued no news yesterday, and little was allowed to come through from the correspondents at Bloemfontein. According to The Standard's representative, there is no sign that the Boers intend taking the offensive, and General Clements is so disposing of his forces as to guard against any surprise attack, which, although improbable, is evidently not regarded as impossible, judging from the preparations of Lord Roberts.

As usual, whenever there is any check in the progress of the British campaign, the war office is being severely censured for failing to maintain the necessary supply of remounts for the army. It is possible Lord Roberts has difficulties other than remounts with which to contend.

Much anxiety is felt as to the water supply despite the statements cabled home that there is no fear of a water famine.

Whatever the reasons may be, considerable dissatisfaction is beginning to be expressed here at the unaccountable delay both at Bloemfontein and in Natal, which enables the Boers to recover from the demoralization caused by Lord Roberts' former rapid movements.

The enemy now evidently hope to retard the advance by threatening the railway behind Lord Roberts. So far as the Natal railways are concerned, repairs are being made beyond Elandslaagte, and the idea, so often repeated, is that an advance is imminent.

A dispatch from Lourenco Marques says fighting occurred April 2 in the neighborhood of Mafeking. The garrison made a sortie, while Colonel Plumer's cavalry attacked the Boers at Ramathlabama. Both attacks were repulsed. Twenty of Colonel Plumer's men were found dead on the field, and six others were made prisoners. The federal losses were small.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"General Clements' division, 6,000 strong, has arrived from the southward and has encamped five miles north of the city, after a continuous march for a fortnight.

"There is no danger of a water famine here.

"An unimportant engagement lasting several hours was fought yesterday afternoon at Bosman kop between the Boers and British outposts.

"At a meeting of the Army Temperance association Monday Lord Roberts made a speech, urging the soldiers to join the association. He eulogized their splendid work, adding that the entire army had been members of the association while along the Modder river, as water was all they had to drink, and sometimes there was very little of that."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Wednesday, says:

"The Boers showed in some force yesterday, with three guns, toward Bushman's kop. Detached groups skirmished up to our outposts, but this morning shows that the enemy desire to sweep farther round to the right of Bloemfontein.

"Early today artillery fire in the south was audible."

The Times publishes the following from Wopener, dated Wednesday, April 4:

"The Boers are sniping our patrols.

"A party of blindfolded Boers was brought in with the following written message:

"'I am here with several thousand burghers, and in the cause of humanity and to save such a dreadful sacrifice of life as occurred in the last battle, I demand your immediate surrender.'

"This was signed 'Banks, general.' The party was sent back with the answer, 'No reply.'

"General Brabant's force is here and will give some trouble to any body of Boers likely to attack us."

Savage Attack on England.

BERLIN, April 6.—The shipment of British troops via Beira gives the Tageszeitung occasion for a savage attack upon England. It says: "Par nobile fratrum! (A noble pair of brothers!) Morally bankrupt England and fraudulently bankrupt Portugal have formed an alliance of hearts." The German South Africa Woman's Aid society prints an appeal from the German women in Johannesburg for the raising of money for German widows, orphans and cripples.

Mail Train Burned.

SAVANNAH, April 6.—South bound train No. 35 of the Southern railway from New York to Jacksonville, bearing the mails, lost baggage and mail cars near Ridgeland, S. C., yesterday. A wood rack took fire, and the flames were communicated to the ties. The engineer ran slowly over the burning ties, and the engine crossed safely, but the rails spread and left the baggage and mail cars over the burning ties. They were quickly consumed, but their contents were saved. All traffic over the Southern and Plant lines was delayed several hours.

BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned, and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

Preliminary Canal Survey Ordered Pure Beer Bill Killed.

ALBANY, April 6.—The special order upon the calendar of the senate yesterday morning was the Marshall bill appropriating $200,000 for a preliminary survey of the state canals.

Senators Armstrong, Raines, Malby and others said they believed this expenditure was but preliminary to the proposed expenditure of $62,000,000 upon the canals, and the sentiment of the people in their respective districts was against the measure. The bill was passed by a vote of 31 to 17.

The pure beer bill was effectually killed by the senate by a refusal to adopt a rule reported by the rules committee to permit of its immediate passage out of its order.

The entire work of the statutory revision commission created during the term of Governor Hill to revise and codify existing statutes has now been swept aside by the legislature, the commission is to be abolished and their work confided to a special committee of the assembly, which is to be continued until the next session. One of their number only is to be continued as special counsel to the governor at an annual salary of $5,000.

The result of the statutory revision commission's labors was presented in the form of about 50 bills early in the session, but not one of them has ever been reported from the committee to which it was referred, and all are now dead.

The Republican senators unanimously gave their official indorsement to the candidacy of Lieutenant Governor Woodruff for the vice presidency. During the recess of the session they met to take appropriate action expressive of their recognition of his faithful services as presiding officer of the senate. Senator Ellsworth presided at the meeting, and Senator Malby made an eloquent speech expressing the appreciation of himself and his fellow senators of the uniform courtesy and impartiality and the ability displayed by Mr. Woodruff in the discharge of his duties.

The indications are that the tax rate to be fixed today by the legislature for the next fiscal year will be in the neighborhood of 2.09 mills. This is the rate which is estimated on the basis of appropriations which have or may pass and is subject to slight change according to the legislation which may be passed at the final session today.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Osman Pasha, the famous Turkish general, died at Constantinople.

The business portion of Ravenna Mich., burned with a loss of $200,000.

Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio voted to issue $6,400,000 of common stock for betterments.

Six or seven lives were reported lost in a wreck on the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad near Channing, Tex.

The military court at Sevastopol convicted 26 officers and civil servants of criminally defrauding the government.

It was stated in London that at the request of Queen Victoria the Duke of York's son would be christened Patrick.

Negotiations between the United States and Denmark for the sale of the Danish West Indies will not be concluded before the close of the rigsdag's session.

"Sapho" was officially declared a proper play by the New York jury before which Miss Olga Nethersole and her associates were tried for maintaining a public nuisance.

The Queen In Ireland.

DUBLIN, April 6.—Queen Victoria's first day of residence in Dublin passed quite uneventfully. Such scenes as there were might well have occurred in London. The official announcement of the formation of the Irish guards was not given out here and came from London too late for the afternoon papers. Neither The Freeman's Journal, The Independent nor The Irish Times comments upon it this morning, but The Express says it is a "great and kindly compliment to Ireland" and suggests that the guards should be chiefly composed of the remnants of the Irish regiments which have fought so bravely in South Africa.

The Trouble Caused by Scanty Food.

BERLIN, April 6.—Dr. Eugene Wolff, the famous German explorer, had a long article yesterday in the Berliner Tageblatt with reference to the troubles in the Cameroons. He attributes the revolt and desertion of thousands of workers there to the practices of the planters in respect of feeding their employees. He charges the planters with depending chiefly upon rice instead of serving a mixed diet of meat, "manick" and vegetables, to which the negro population of that portion of Africa is accustomed. Dr. Wolff charges upon this system of insufficient nourishment the greater portion of the trouble.

The Kearsarge a Success.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., April 6.—The battleship Kearsarge has returned to Old Point after being at sea 48 hours with the naval board of inspection. The test of the superimposed turrets proved eminently satisfactory. All the big guns were fired simultaneously, and the result stamped the new invention a decided success. It is understood that the board has reported the tests to the navy department as an unqualified success.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 6.—Peter Graham, the 16-year-old boy who was charged with murder in the first degree in causing the death of Louis Stahlman, a Hebrew peddler, was found guilty of manslaughter by a superior court jury late yesterday afternoon, and he will receive his sentence next Tuesday. The jury was less than three hours in reaching a verdict.

Bonds For Exchange.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The amount of bonds so far received at the treasury for exchange for the new 2 per cents is $217,372,650, of which $26,180,350 came from individuals or institutions other than national banks.

HOUSE WILL CONCUR

Caucus Votes to Accept the Senate Porto Rican Bill.

QUAY CASE UP IN THE SENATE.

Mr. Gallinger Argues Against Seating Senator From Pennsylvania. Hay-Pauncefote Treaty Considered Behind Closed Doors.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Republicans of the house in caucus last night decided to take the shortest possible route to a termination of the Porto Rican tariff problem by concurring in all the senate amendments and sending the bill directly to the president. There was a feeble protest from Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin, chairman of the insular committee, and Mr. Moody of Massachusetts, who favored standing out against some of the features of the civil government scheme attached to the bill by the senate. They objected especially to the senate provision making all the members of the upper council of the Porto Rican legislature appointees of the president and clothing them with the power to grant franchises, but the sentiment of the caucus was overwhelmingly against them. None of the Republicans who voted against the original house bill were present at the caucus.

After the caucus Chairman Cannon gave out a statement as follows:

"It was a full and harmonious caucus. The best of temper was displayed. Mr. Payne moved concurrence in the 19 senate amendments covering the revenue features of the bill and Mr. Hemenway of Indiana offered an amendment to the motion to concur in all the senate amendments. The vote was taken first on the amendment, which was agreed to with practical unanimity. Not more than two gentlemen present voted against it. The amended motion was then agreed to. The matter will be brought up in the house as soon as the absentees, some of whom are at home sick or looking after business, political or otherwise, can return. Every effort will be made to have them here on Monday. There probably will be a special rule, but no time for the limit of the debate has been fixed."

The house did not finish the bill to provide a government for Hawaii yesterday. When the hour fixed for taking a vote, 4 o'clock, arrived, less than half the bill had been covered, and so many amendments remained that it was agreed to continue consideration of the bill under the five minute rule until it was finished.

During the comparatively brief open session of the senate Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire presented an argument against the seating of Hon. M. S. Quay as a senator from Pennsylvania. He devoted himself almost entirely to the constitutional phases of the question. Most of the day was spent in executive session.

On motion of Senator Davis the senate considered the Hay-Pauncefote treaty for the modification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty behind closed doors. About three hours was spent in discussing the amendment to the treaty made by the senate committee on foreign relations, providing that "none of the conditions and stipulations in sections 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 of article 2 shall apply to measures which the United States may find it necessary to take for securing by its own forces the defense of the United States and the maintenance of public order."

Miss Garibaldi In New York.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Miss Italia Garibaldi, a granddaughter of the Italian liberator, was a passenger on the steamer Manila, which arrived last night from Genoa, Palermo and Naples. Miss Garibaldi will visit friends in Brooklyn and later will go to Baltimore. She is 22 years of age. Her father is Riccotti Garibaldi, a member of the Italian parliament. She was born in Australia. Her mother is an English lady. Her grandfather used to live on Staten Island, where in one of the periods of his exile he supported himself by making candles.

Judge Ide's Father Dead.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., April 6.—Jacob Ide, father of Judge Henry C. Ide, a member of the Philippine commission, is dead at his home here, aged 93 years. He was an early settler in the town of Barnet and was for many years a miller and was one of the most prominent men in the town. Judge Ide was to have started for San Francisco on Friday en route for the Philippines, but on account of the death of his father he will not leave until Saturday.

A Town Without Taxes.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 6.—Tax weary people may have a haven of rest in the good old shore town of Guilford. No resident will be asked to pay a cent of taxes the coming year, for the voters decided in town meeting that they have more money than they need, and it would be extravagant to hire a tax collector and assessors to gather taxes which would have to lie in the banks for several months if they were collected.

Sampson's Daughter Married.

BOSTON, April 6.—The marriage of Miss Hannah Walker Sampson, daughter of Rear Admiral William T. Sampson, and Ensign Wat Tyler Cluverius, U. S. N., took place at the commandant's residence, Charlestown navy yard, last evening. The Rev. Frank J. Goodwin of Pawtucket, R. I., who was the Sampson family's pastor at Glen Ridge, N. J., during the Spanish war, performed the ceremony.

Newspaper Plant Burned.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., April 6.—Fire yesterday practically destroyed the plant of the Susquehanna Daily Transcript and The Weekly Ledger, situated in the Miller building on Euclid avenue. The building was wrecked. The fire was caused by a lamp igniting benzine spilled upon the floor. The losses are partially covered by insurance.

Obnoxious Italian Decree Abrogated.

ROME, April 6.—A royal decree just signed abrogates the decree law under which the government had exceptional power in applying certain measures in the maintenance of public order and the existence of which led to the recent Socialist obstruction in the Italian chamber of deputies.

A Fortune In Ice.

SARATOGA, April 6.—New York ice dealers have just purchased of Jesse Billings, the largest upper Hudson harvester, 80,000 tons of ice at $1.50 per ton. It is estimated that Mr. Billings, who resides in Saratoga county, will net $100,000 by the transaction.

STARVING IN PONCE.

Porto Rican Town Overrun With Sick and Needy.

THOUSANDS SEEK FOOD AND WORK.

Roadmaking Contracts Involving an Outlay of $6,000,000 Now Looked to For Relief—Native Labor Dismissed at St. Thomas.

PONCE, Porto Rico, April 6.—An announcement having been made that the Porto Rican Benevolent society would attempt to relieve the poor of Ponce, the town has been simply overwhelmed with an army of starving or pauperized folk. No fewer than 200 men, women and children, sick and starving, are living in the corridor of the city hall and in a kiosk on the plaza. Most of these are fed by the society. Letters have been received announcing that 5,000 more are on the way.

Delegations representing the country poor arrive at the palace almost daily. They tell the usual story of starvation and want, and they ask for food and work. Two important delegations have put in an appearance this week, the latest being from Aguas Buenos, consisting of 100 men and 50 women in procession, headed by two 10-year-old girls carrying black flags to signify that they were mourning for existing conditions.

Although the situation is certainly very bad, it is the opinion of many in authority that in some instances the applicants for relief are really directed by political bosses, who hope to secure road work. For instance, 5,000 rations have already been issued weekly at Aguas Buenos for the last three months.

Further material relief will follow from the recent granting of roadmaking contracts involving an outlay of $600,000, although the authorities have not yet announced how they propose to distribute the appropriation.

The pier strikers are quiet, no further demonstrations having been made. The property, however, is still guarded by the troops. All the native labor from St. Thomas has been dismissed, and American labor only will be employed.

May Raise Rubber in This Country.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Consul General R. A. Mosley, Jr., at Singapore, writes to the state department regarding the advisability of introducing the rubber tree into our southern states. The climate, soil and moisture in the southern parts of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, the consul believes, will admit of the cultivation of the rubber tree and the production of profitable india rubber crops. He has been informed that a 300 acre farm devoted to this use will cost in the first ten years about $75,000 (Mexican) and bring a return of about 10 per cent on the original expenditure. During the past quarter rubber to the amount of $47,249 gold has been shipped to this country from Singapore.

Will Not Drive Out Taylor.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 6.—Representatives of the Beckham administration deny the rumors that force will be used to dislodge the Republicans from possession of the statehouse as soon as the court of appeals renders a decision in the contest cases. They say no movement will be made till after the United States supreme court has acted. Republican Governor Taylor returned here yesterday. He was escorted to his office by a squad of militia. Governor Beckham went to Louisville.

Miners Rescued After Many Days.

YOKOHAMA, via Victoria, B. C., April 6.—A remarkable rescue of miners who had been entombed by a cave in of the Mal Suyama mine is reported. DEWEY IN PHILADELPHIA.

Attends a Concert and Dines With President Cassatt.

PHILADELPHIA, April 6.—The second and last orchestral concert in aid of the families of soldiers and sailors who were killed in the Philippines was given at the Academy of Music yesterday afternoon. The overshadowing feature of the occasion was the presence of Admiral and Mrs. Dewey, who came from Washington for the purpose of attending. The concert was an unqualified success, the large auditorium being entirely filled.

The admiral and his wife occupied an upper proscenium box with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cassatt. The distinguished couple were enthusiastically received by the audience. The programme consisted of numerous selections by 80 resident musicians and solos by Edmund de Reszke.

From the Academy the admiral and his wife were driven to the hotel, and then the admiral, in response to pressing requests, granted an interview to nearly a dozen newspaper men. He said he was glad to receive the reporters, but added that he had nothing to say. At this moment Mrs. Dewey joined her husband in the reception room, and, after introducing her, he said, "Mrs. Dewey will talk," to which she replied, with a smile: "The admiral has a mind of his own. He thinks for himself."

"Are you correctly reported to be a Democrat?"

After a moment's hesitation the admiral replied: "Yes. I think I can answer that. Yes, I am a Democrat."

"If the Republicans nominate McKinley and the Democrats name Bryan for the presidency, would you run independently?"

"I won't answer that question."

"The Democratic convention of Pennsylvania has just indorsed Bryan for the presidency," was suggested by one reporter, to which the admiral replied, "Pennsylvania usually goes Republican, doesn't it?"

Several questions in quick succession about an intended conference between him and Grover Cleveland and William C. Whitney or any other political men of prominence were answered with the same phrase, "I came to attend the concert."

One reporter asked the admiral who would manage his campaign if he entered one, and he laughed and said: "I don't know. How would you like the job? I would probably need a bright young man."

In the evening Admiral Dewey and his wife were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cassatt at dinner at their city residence on Rittenhouse square.

Hay Protests to Turkey.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Secretary Hay has addressed a vigorous protest to the Turkish government against the proposed application of an edict excluding American pork from Turkey. The note enters an emphatic denial of the pretense of unwholesomeness set up against our pork as a basis for the exclusion and pointedly makes it necessary for the Turkish government to support its contention by adequate evidence before it can enforce the edict without serious results. The officials here are confident as the result of the complete failure of the German health officers to make good such assertions respecting our meats that the Turkish government can make no better showing.

New York Postoffice Congested.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Mr. George W. Beavers, chief of the salary and allowance division, postoffice department, has gone to New York to make arrangements for the relief of the present congested condition of the mails there. He will secure if possible more room in the Industrial building, part of which is now occupied by a branch postoffice, and, failing in that, will make arrangements for additional temporary quarters in which to handle the mail. He also will rearrange the present clerical force if the service can be benefited and ascertain whether or not more clerks can be used to advantage.

Tuberculosis In Norway.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Consul Victor E. Nelson, at Bergen, has supplied the state department some facts about the prevalence and causes of tuberculosis in Norway. In 1886 over one-half of all deaths between the ages of 15 and 30 were caused by tuberculosis, and statistics show that about 7,000 Norwegians die annually from this disease. The foremost preventive against the disease is scrupulous cleanliness, and the consul attributes the reduction of the ravages of tuberculosis in England to the extreme care taken there in this respect.

PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATS.

State Convention Instructs Its Delegates For William J. Bryan.

HARRISBURG, April 6.—The 64 delegates from Pennsylvania to the national Democratic convention at Kansas City were instructed by yesterday's state convention to support William J. Bryan for president. They are bound by the unit scale and cannot change to any other presidential aspirant unless it be so decided by a majority of the delegation. The platform strongly indorses Bryan's candidacy, denounces the war policy of the McKinley administration and advocates numerous state reforms.

Except for a slight breeze over the contests from Dauphin, Luzerne and Philadelphia the convention was a quiet and harmonious gathering. The committee on credentials reported in favor of the sitting delegates, and the action was approved by the convention.

The following ticket was nominated: Auditor, P. Gray Meek of Center county; congressmen at large, Harry E. Grim of Bucks county and N. M. Edwards of Williamsport; electors at large, General A. H. Coffroth of Somerset, Otto Germer of Erie, Francis Shunk Brown of Philadelphia and Andrew Kaul of Elk.

The Prince at Copenhagen.

COPENHAGEN, April 6.—The Prince of Wales and his party arrived here at 8 p. m. yesterday. They were met at the railroad station by King Christian of Denmark and the entire royal family. As the train drew up at the platform the king advanced to the royal saloon carriage and entering it alone was the first to greet its occupants. Soon after the Prince and Princess of Wales, both appearing remarkably well, alighted on the platform. The prince smiled cheerfully and after exchanging cordial greetings with the other members of the family conversed for a few moments with the chief dignitaries assembled. Outside the station a large crowd of people had gathered, and as the visitors drove toward the palace they were greeted with ringing cheers, which were repeated as they progressed through the city.

To Rebuild Hall at Once.

KANSAS CITY, April 6.—An army of men went to work yesterday clearing away the smoldering debris of Convention hall, which was destroyed by fire, preparatory to the immediate rebuilding for the Democratic national convention in July. Scores of prominent business men devoted themselves to soliciting funds that will assure a suitable structure for the Democratic gathering, and every energy will be bent toward replacing the burned auditorium with a superior structure.

Noted Educator Dead.

OSWEGO, N. Y., April 6.—Mrs. Matilda S. Poucher, wife of Professor I. B. Poucher, principal of the State Normal school here, is dead of apoplexy, aged 61. Mrs. Poucher was, as is her husband, one of the best known educators in the eastern states. She was prominently identified with the educational movement inaugurated by the late Dr. E. A. Sheldon. For 25 years Mrs. Poucher was a teacher in the Oswego Normal school.

The Congressional Fight.

If the interview given out at Washington yesterday by Congressman Fowler, in which he announces his candidacy for a re-nomination and discusses the reasons for Frank Bergen entering the field against him, means anything it means that there is going to be some hot old times in Republican politics in this district before election day next November.

The attitude that Mr. Fowler shows towards Senator Kean is one of open hostility, and the manner in which he treats the junior Senator is such that even if he was laboring under a misapprehension as to the latter's real intentions his language in describing his belief is such as to undoubtedly offend the Sage of Ursino.

Whether or not Mr. Kean has heretofore opposed Congressman Fowler's political ambitions pales into insignificance in comparison to what it is to be presumed he will do after reading the statement made by the Congressman in his interview. The Senator's fine political hand has not yet been seen in the open in this Congressional squabble, but Mr. Fowler's interview will probably be the signal for drawing his fire.

Mr. Fowler's suspicions that he is against him will then be confirmed, and the battle will be on in earnest. This fight between Congressman Fowler and Mr. Bergen promises to be one that will attract attention throughout the State, and will cut the Republican party in the Eighth district into factions that will stir up much bad blood.

All Humbug.

A correspondent in the News makes the assertion that it is the desire of those in favor of a City Hall to rush it through the Council in a few days. Such talk as that is the veriest bosh. The City Hall project has been under discussion as long or longer than any municipal improvement ever undertaken by the city. In every message written by Mayor Fisk the erection of a City Hall was advocated, and both messages of Mayor Rockfellow also treated the question with consideration. In fact, it was upon the special recommendation of Mayor Rockfellow that the Common Council took up the question. For more than three months the City Hall has been under active, aggressive discussion, and up until ten days ago there was scarcely any opposition to it. For the obstructionists to step in now and say that there has been no chance for the sentiment of the people to be learned on the subject is all humbug.

The project of a State Industrial Exposition, which was proposed by the Newark News, has assumed a definite, formidable shape, and will undoubtedly be carried out to a successful consummation. Yesterday a meeting of representatives of a number of cities in New Jersey was held with the Board of Trade in Newark, and ways and means of carrying the exposition idea out enthusiastically discussed. It was decided to select a plan and scope committee who can be trusted to inaugurate the project in some substantial form. The progress of this enterprise will be watched with interest throughout the State, as the holding of an exposition such as is planned will add fame to New Jersey and reflect great credit upon her citizens.

It looks as though City Attorney Connolly, of Elizabeth, who consented to accept the Democratic nomination of Mayor for that city at the last moment, is turning a forlorn hope into more than a fighting chance to win. Mr. Connolly has injected a vigor and enthusiasm into the Mayoralty fight that threatens to cause the Republicans some surprise and disappointment on election day.

If the license committee of the Common Council does not refuse to recommend the refusal of the Mortimer application for a wholesale liquor license—as it should do—then the majority of the Council ought to take an independent stand and vote against favorable action on the recommendation.

The Philadelphia Inquirer's Trenton correspondent says that many New Jersey Republicans favor General Leonard Wood, now Governor-General of Cuba, for Vice-President.

Dewey has asked for the Presidency too late.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Numerous relatives of Henry Mellick, whose serious illness and death have been reported, are springing up about the country. Yesterday Senator Reed received a letter from a man in Fort Plain, N. Y., making inquires regarding Mr. Mellick. The letter inclosed a newspaper clipping telling of Mr. Mellick's supposed death. The writer stated that he is quite sure that he is a relative, as he had often heard his father and grandfather speak of having relatives living near Plainfield. The writer asked Senator Reed to make inquiries regarding the disposition of the old man's reported wealth. At last account Mr. Mellick was still alive, though he is not expected to live many days.

Will E. Booth's mammoth production of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" will be seen at Music Hall Tuesday and Wednesday of next week in connection with their new novelty band, something never seen in Plainfield before.

The popularity of the well known rural farce comedy, "A Gay Farmer," has induced the management to book it for three performances in this city, where it will be seen in all its glory at Music Hall tonight, tomorrow afternoon and tomorrow night. The play was written for laughing purposes only and it surely carries it out, for it is one continual roar of laughter from the time the curtain goes up until it falls. Manager Kimball, of the company, has secured a very efficient company of well-known players to interpret the different characters, also quite a galaxy of specialty artists who introduce their various novelties during the action of the comedy.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 6.—William E. Collins, borough clerk of Fanwood, makes the following reply to the letter of Councilman Ellis, printed in this column last Saturday:

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I have read the letter of L. J. Ellis, published by you Saturday last. The "misconception of facts" lies entirely with Mr. Ellis. Section 15, of a General Act relating to boroughs, Chapter 161, page 291, laws of 1897, clearly defines the duties of Borough Clerk. This section does not provide for, nor do I know of any amendment which compels me to obey the instructions of any individual member of the Council. Section 38, page 302, of the law just quoted, provides how and when the annual statement shall be published.

In the minutes of the Council meeting held February 7th last, appears the following:

"Resolved, That the Treasurer be instructed to publish the annual statement, as required by the borough act, when duly audited by the committee on auditing and finance."

This resolution was adopted unanimously and at the succeeding meeting held March 7th, these minutes were read and approved, Mr. Ellis being present on both occasions. As we all know, the Collector and Treasurer is one and the same person and therefore, the Collector had "more to do with it than the man in the moon" this time and when Mr. Ellis presumed to take this duty out of the Collector's hands, he was clearly usurping his authority, and while he may have voiced the will of his committee in so doing, he did not voice the will of the Council. This so-called statement was not accepted by the Council and there was also decided objection to his report at the annual meeting of the borough Council.

Respectfully yours,
Wm. E. Collins.

The annual spring mountain fires are raging along Johnston's Drive burning up valuable wood and endangering the property of those who live along the line of the mountains. Every year this danger has to be met and it is about time something was done to abate the nuisance and danger. No attempt is ever made to find who the guilty parties are who are annually endangering property through the burned district. It would be a good idea if North Plainfield would make some kind of an effort to bring the miscreant to justice. One dose of "medicine" would no doubt effect a cure, as the work is probably boys' pranks.

Rev. Mr. Angleman, of Junction, will occupy the pulpit in the Methodist church Sunday morning and evening in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Woodruff, who is attending the conference being held in Paterson. Mr. Angleman is a former pastor of the church and will no doubt be greeted by a large attendance of his friends and former parishoners.

Goodwill Lodge, K. of P., held a large and interesting meeting in their rooms last evening. After routine business the members passed a pleasant evening in social talk.

Edward Walters and family have moved from the Stanbery cottage on Park avenue to the Cottrell house near Washington Valley.

Several members of Fanwood Council, R. A., enjoyed a pleasant visit to Greenbrook Council, R. A., of Plainfield, last evening.

The Lord's Supper will be observed at the close of the morning service in the Baptist church Sunday.

The roads and gutters through the village are receiving their annual spring scraping.

Rev. Mr. Shott will lead the weekly prayer meeting in the Baptist church this evening.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Preußen.

Provinz Brandenburg.

Berlin. Bei der Umgestaltung des Innungswesens, die auf Grund des Reichsgesetzes vom 26. Juli 1897 erfolgt ist, hat sich die Zahl der Innungen in Preußen von 7753 auf etwa 7400 vermindert, da zahlreiche kleine und leistungsunfähige Innungen sich aufgelöst haben oder mit anderen verschmolzen worden sind. Dagegen ist die Zahl der Innungsmitglieder von 218,000 auf etwa 290,000 gestiegen.—Der Berliner Magistrat hat dem vom Stadtverordneten Schwalbe gestellten Antrag, aus Anlaß des 200jährigen Jubiläums der Akademie der Wissenschaften eine Stiftung von 100,000 Mark zu errichten, zugestimmt. Die Zinsen aus diesem Kapital sollen zu naturwissenschaftlichen Zwecken Verwendung finden. —Kultusminister Studt bestätigte die Wahl der Musikprofessoren Xaver Scharwenka in Berlin und Camille Saint-Saens in Paris zu ordentlichen Mitgliedern der Akademie der Künste. —Gestorben sind hierorts der frühere Reichstags- und Landtagsabgeordnete Ludolf Parisius, sowie der Musikdirigent und Stabstrompeter Wilhelm Lücke, eine volksthümliche Persönlichkeit aus der Zeit des alten Kaisers Wilhelm. Lücke, der ein Alter von 76 Jahren erreichte, war länger als 20 Jahre Leiter des Trompeterkorps des zweiten Gardefeldartillerie-Regiments, des stärksten in Berlin.

Friedrichsfelde. Ein junger Kamerunneger ist seit Kurzem bei dem Schneidermeister Manka in der Lehre. Die Ausbildung erfolgt auf Kosten des Staates, damit der Schwarze später in seiner Heimath das Schneiderhandwerk praktisch ausüben und es seinen Stammesgenossen lehren kann.

Guben. Die ausständischen Grubenarbeiter im Niederlausitzer Kohlenwerk haben die Arbeit wieder aufgenommen, nachdem die Direktion eine Lohnerhöhung von 25 Pfennige für die Schicht bewilligt hat.

Provinz Hannover.

Göttingen. Die städtischen Körperschaften haben aus Kämmereimitteln die Summe von 600 Mark bereitgestellt, die als Grundstock für die Errichtung eines Monuments zu Ehren der „Göttinger Sieben" bestimmt ist. Die „Göttinger Sieben" sind bekanntlich die sieben Professoren der Universität Göttingen: Albrecht, Dahlmann, Ewald, Gervinus, die beiden Brüder Grimm und Wilhelm Weber, die im Jahre 1837 ihres Amtes an der alten „Georgia Augusta" enthoben wurden, weil sie gegen den Verfassungsbruch protestirt hatten.

Lüneburg. Nach zweitägiger Verhandlung vor dem Schwurgericht wurde das Urtheil gegen den des Betruges und des Depotverbrechens angeklagten Bankier Paul Behrends gefällt. Behrends wurde zu acht Jahren Zuchthaus und sieben Jahren Ehrverlust verurtheilt. Die Verhandlung ergab, daß der Angeklagte die ihm von seinen Kunden übergebenen Werthpapiere, insgesammt im Betrage von circa 400,000 Mark, zu seinem eigenen Vortheil entweder verpfändet oder irgend wohin verkauft hatte. Niemals sah ein Kunde seine Depots wieder. So hat unter Anderen der Generalmajor v. Plato in Grabow über 40,000 Mark verloren.

Provinz Hessen-Nassau.

Frankfurt. Die städtische Arbeitsvermittelungsstelle hatte im Februar d. J. 1453 Arbeitsstellen zu besetzen; 2184 Personen suchten um Arbeit nach, 1447 Personen fanden Unterkunft, davon 555 Handwerker, 84 Kellner, 604 ungelernte Arbeiter und 204 Frauen.

Wiesbaden. Die Strafkammer verurtheilte den Rechtsanwalt Kellerhof wegen fünffachen Betrugs zu vier Monaten Gefängniß.

Provinz Pommern.

Provinz Posen.

Posen. Eine größere polnische Versammlung beschloß, hier eine Centralstelle für den Nachweis polnischer Gutspachtungen zu errichten, um zu verhindern, daß mangels geeigneter polnischer Pächter polnische Güter von Deutschen gepachtet werden.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMANKIND

BY ANNETTE CRAWFORD

Miss Hittle, a western girl, coming from Richmond, Ind., was recently graduated from Heidelberg university with the distinction of being the first American woman to receive the highest honors, a doctor's degree, from that institution.

The departure of Lady Roberts for South Africa recently was the occasion for a popular demonstration among Londoners. Accompanied by her two daughters, she set out on the long journey amid cheers and a downpour of bunches of shamrocks.

The women of Colorado are organizing to preserve the cliff dwellings of the Mancos canyon. The prehistoric ruins are to be leased from the Indians for ten years, and the movement hopes to continue the work thus begun of saving the most wonderful ruins on earth. Prominent in the movement is Mrs. Gilbert McClurg of Colorado Springs. She has made the study of the ruins her life work and is chairman of the committee.

MRS. M'CLURG.

A very interesting young lady in Washington today is the beautiful protegee of Senator Clark, who is studying at a seminary just outside of the city. It is rumored that she is to be the mistress of the senator's New York mansion.

The authoress Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett was quietly wedded to her secretary, Mr. Stephen Townsend, F. R. C. S., who worked in collaboration with Mrs. Burnett in the dramatization of "A Lady of Quality," March 14 in London.

Lady Sarah Wilson, the aunt of the Duke of Marlborough, was shut up in Mafeking for several months during the siege. She relates among her interesting experiences how, while she was carrying a dispatch to Colonel Baden-Powell, she was captured and taken to Pretoria. Later she was exchanged for a Boer horse thief, whom the British held as prisoner. It was a decided novelty to be valued in the same measure as a thief, but she says she was glad to return to her friends on any base of exchange.

One of the successful hymnal song writers, second to only such writers as Ira D. Sankey and Fannie Crosby, is Miss Jennie Wilson of Whitley, Ind. She has been a hopeless invalid for over 30 years and has been denied all the advantages that are usually considered essential for musical achievement. Among her most popular songs are "Angels Welcome Home" and "There'll Be a Light at the River."

MISS WILSON.

The young women of Northwestern university have published a woman's edition of the college paper, The Northwestern. The regular staff, composed of men, took a week's vacation and looked on while their sisters in the classroom showed the ideas of progressive young women on how a paper should be run.

Somewhere between Dawson and Nome a California girl is braving the dangers of a 1,200 mile trip against the most trying hardships. Her only companions are two guides and 12 malamoot dogs. She is Miss Gates of Eureka and has interests in the new El Dorado. She anticipates a boom in the spring, and, finding it necessary to look after her property personally, she is making the trip as a mere matter of business. "If you want anything done, do it yourself," is her motto, and that is the reason that she is now traveling over miles and miles of ice in the region of the Bering sea blizzards and blinding snowstorms in the dead of an arctic winter.

Miss Mary H. Kingsley, who has just sailed for South Africa, where she will join the hospital service of the British as a nurse, is one of the distinguished women of England and an explorer and scientist of note. Her special fields are botany and zoology. Two books, "Travels In West Africa" and "West African Studies," have won her recognition from Queen Victoria.

There is a rabbit craze in southern California. The people are breeding Belgian hares, and they expect to make fortunes through this new industry. Rabbits are to be canned and pelts are to be made into sacks for ladies and into felt hats. Many women are going into the new industry.

Among the 20 young women nurses who received diplomas at the New York hospital last week was a young Japanese woman, Miss Shidzu Naruse. Her father is a wealthy banker in Kobe. She was graduated from Kobe College For Women. Miss Naruse intends to return to her native country and found a hospital which will be modeled after the most approved system in this country.

Eight young Kansas girls have economized on hats and clothes and with their savings will visit the Paris exposition. A club was organized two years ago, and the members agree to wear each other's clothes instead of buying new ones, and save their allowances for the trip. Each member is now $250 richer than she was two years ago, which is exactly the sum each expects to spend abroad during the coming summer.

Washington has within its borders a unique organization composed of women who have banded themselves together because their husbands would not give them pin money. It is a religious club, a stock company, a study club and a traveling class. After ten years of labor the 20 women who compose the organization have accumulated $300,000 and now intend to enjoy the results of their industry.

A holly and mistletoe farm is being successfully conducted by two girls in Louisville. They supply the New York and Washington markets with some of the very nicest specimens of holly during the holiday season.

Chicago's brilliant and clever young author, Miss Lilian Bell, is to be married some time early in May to Mr. Arthur Hoyt Bogue. Miss Bell has been known for some time as one of the leading modern writers of the western literary school. Her most popular book is "The Love Affairs of an Old Maid," though her latest book, "The Expatriate," which is still in the press, is expected to replace her earlier work.

On the occasion of Mrs. Arthur Paget's entertainment at Her Majesty's theater, London, for the benefit of the guards war fund, the Countess of Westmorland, one of the beautiful of England's women, appeared in a patriotic tableau as Great Britain and Ireland. The audience was composed of members of the most aristocratic circles and many of the performers were the wives and daughters of Britain's foremost noblemen. Twenty thousand dollars was realized.

Cecilia Wood lives on a croft on Sir A. Baird's estate at Bickerton, near Stonehaven, Scotland. She manages the entire croft herself and in addition possesses a turning lathe, with which she augments her income by making wooden farm implements.

One of the weddings of note that are to take place early in April is that of Miss Eleanor Jay Robbins and Mr. James Lowell Putnam of Boston. Mr. Putnam is a nephew of James Russell Lowell and a promising young lawyer. Miss Robbins is the daughter of Augusta Jay, whose father, John Jay, was so closely allied with old New York.

Mrs. Shafer goes to Russia to nurse the Princess Cantacuzene, the granddaughter of the late President Grant, who has been an invalid since shortly after her marriage to the prince. Mrs. Shafer will introduce the system of massage treatment into the land of the czar. It was particularly because of her skill as a masseuse that she was selected for this mission.

A fine example of what a woman can do single handed to fight her way through poverty and many temptations to a position, without a flaw in her reputation, is personified in a little woman, Miss Bessie Hortop, of Denver. She was a typewriter at the small salary of $6 a week when she went into the business of raising flowers. Now she not only owns her store, but she likewise supports her mother and is educating a younger sister.

The little daughter of Mrs. George Gould has been elected president of a children's sewing class at Lakewood, known as the Auxiliary of the Helping Hand. The little people are busy making pretty things for the Easter festival which is to be given for the benefit of the orphans of Cuba early in April.

Miss Jennie Creek of Millgrove, Ind., has been invited by the Humane Society of France to attend the Paris exposition. This distinction has been conferred on her because she is the only American girl who is a member of the French Legion of Honor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 8—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Christ our missionary model.—John iv, 5-15. (Quarterly missionary meeting.)

Going through Samaria as the most direct route on His way from Jerusalem to Galilee, Jesus, weary and worn from His long day's travel, sits down to rest upon the curb of the historic well of Jacob. A poor, degraded, sinful Samaritan woman comes to the well to draw water. Though belonging to a race despised by His own people, Jesus entered into conversation with her and so directed it that He made for Himself an opportunity to offer her the water of life. In this incident, in a strange land, to the member of a despised and sinful people Jesus preached the gospel, thus leaving us an example of the truest and loftiest kind of a missionary spirit and zeal.

1. Christ as a missionary was sent of God. His mission into the world was a divine mission. He came to seek and to save the lost as the business of His Father. From all eternity it was arranged in heaven that Christ should come to the world to offer salvation to the whole world through His life and death. The true missionary or soul winner at home or abroad needs to feel himself called of God. Love for humanity, enthusiasm for men, will not make us willing to endure and sacrifice all that is necessary to save men. The heathen world in its sinfulness and degradation is not lovable. Man is not attractive for his own sake. Back of our efforts must be the inspiration that it is God's will that we should give and pray and labor to save the whole world. God calls us all to be missionaries; not all to go to the foreign field, but all to have some part in the work of sending the gospel to the whole world.

2. Christ, as a missionary, had the true message, Himself, as the water of life. Heathendom, like the Samaritan woman at the well, is thirsting for water—the water of life. The soul of mankind the world over is longing for God. Men are crying out for the living God, and in the efforts to find Him they are bowing down to the creature rather than the Creator, to the workmanship of their own hands. They need Christ to quench this thirst; they need Christ to show them what and where God is and how they may find Him; they need Christ to give them the water of eternal life. This must be our message to a sin cursed and dying world. Philosophy, philanthropy, humanitarianism, cannot satisfy this longing of heathendom. Only Christ can do it.

3. Christ, as a missionary, was successful. He had many difficulties to overcome. There were race difficulties, religious prejudices and social obstacles such as will be found in every mission field. But Christ overcame them all with the simple gospel of Himself as the Messiah and the water of life. Thus by prayer and self denying effort all difficulties in mission work today may be overcome and the world won to Christ.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

The missionary committee should arrange a special programme, having appropriate hymns and prayers and five five minute addresses or papers on Christ's leading characteristics as a missionary, such as (1) Christ's call, (2) Christ's message, (3) Christ's success, (4) Christ overcoming difficulties and (5) Christ's missionary command to his disciples.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. ii, 1-12; Isa. iii, 7; Nah. i, 15; Math. v, 42-48; xxviii, 18-20; Luke xv, 1-10; John iii, 7-16; xvi, 8-10; Rom. x, 14, 15; I Pet. ii, 21-25; I John ii, 1, 2; Rev. xxii, 17.

Sin Is Common.

The Examiner says that there is much of suggestiveness in this story that Dr. Stalker of Glasgow recently told. He was speaking of his early experiences as a minister:

"In Rannoch," he said, "I staid with an old farmer who was a kind of chief man in the congregation. I have been trying to remember his name, but it has escaped me. I remember perfectly his appearance—a grand old highlander, really a remarkable looking man. I think I still have a photograph which he gave me of himself that day. I was preaching of sin, and on the way home the old farmer was talking it all over in the most deeply interested way, and I just caught him saying this: 'Ay!' he said. 'Sin, sin! I wish we had another name for that, because the word has become so common that the thing no longer pierces our conscience.' Now, do you know, that stuck to me? It has come back to me hundreds of times since, and I believe it has helped me more to preach than whole books on the art of preaching, because it warned me to avoid hackneyed religious language and, instead of well worn theological terms, to make use of words more fresh and modern."

The Most Likely Place.

If I desired to put myself in the most likely place for the Lord to meet with me, I should prefer the house of prayer, for it is in preaching that the word is most blessed, but still I think I should equally desire the reading of the Scriptures; for I might pause over every verse and say: "Such a verse was blessed to so many souls; then, why not to me? I am at least in the pool of Bethesda, I am walking among its porches, and who can tell but that the angel will stir the pool of the word, while I lie helplessly by the side of it, waiting for the blessing?"—Spurgeon.

Influence of Duty Upon Others.

In doing our very best to be good ourselves we bring tremendous unconscious influence to bear on every one around us. No one can meet a man who transparently and constantly tries to do his duty without being either spurred or shamed by the encounter.—American Friend.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning April 8, "Christ Our Missionary Model"—Text, John iv, 5-15.

"Give Me to drink?"

It was not a demand, but a request. Jesus was tired and thirsty. He was sitting by the side of the well dug ages before by Jacob near Shechem. He was resting after the long forenoon's walk, while His disciples went into the village a mile away to buy provisions. The well had no bucket. In the east each person brings his own rope and earthen jar to the well with him and carries it away when he goes. Jesus had no means of drawing water, and the well was deep. A woman of the neighborhood came to draw water. No common Jew would have spoken to her, much less have consented to drink from her pitcher or be in any way under obligation to her, however thirsty he might be. She was a Samaritan, and that meant to a Jew all that a person ought not to be, morally and religiously. Besides, it was not difficult for a practiced eye to see that she was not a woman of pure character. About as hopeless a case for missionary effort as could well be found. Most people would have let her alone.

What did Jesus do?

First of all, He felt sorry for her. Of course He must in mind have condemned her manner of life. Who can measure the recoil of His pure nature from her impurity? But no word or look showed anything of disgust or contempt. He held no argument about the right or wrong of her ways. He pitied her and was eager to show her a better life. Tired, hungry and thirsty, He was more hungry in soul to help her than to drink or eat Himself.

He got her to help Him.

He made no offer to help her. It would have been sharply refused. He asked a favor of her. "Will you give Me a drink? What a question! A Jew ask drink of a Samaritan, and of a woman at that! What could it mean? How could He do it? In her astonishment she asks Him to explain His action. He has gained His point. Her curiosity is aroused. Her mind is awake; the doors of the soul are open. No prejudice stands in the way of the truth. Easily He leads her, step by step, until she recognizes in Him a Master Spirit who is able to quench soul thirst by His own gift of purity. The good in her is stirred to action, and the power of righteousness overcomes the evil.

Did she give Him water to drink?

Who can tell? She forgot her water pot in her haste to call the men of the city to come and see the prophet. He forgot His hunger in the satisfaction of feeding a needy soul.

"They pressed Him to stay with them." So the gospel makes friends of Jews and Samaritans.

And He staid two days there. Wherever we are needed and can find those willing to receive the message, there should we stop awhile.

How much there is for every Christian worker to learn in this lesson! Jesus' mode of approach to a soul, His delicacy of touch, His courtesy, the resources of tactful earnestness; above all, His unwearied patience and unfailing sympathy, show us the way to win men.

A Committee on Missions.

The board of control has adopted a new feature of work, and it is expected that each chapter of the League will appoint a committee on missions. This recognizes officially a most valuable department of work in which the League has been active, but which has never before been given a place among the committees.

There should be no delay in getting this new committee at work. Let them plan for public services once a quarter. Secure an address from some returned missionary or, better still, get recent literature on the subject of our mission fields and prepare a programme for home talent. The Gospel In All Lands and World-Wide Missions are excellent illustrated missionary periodicals published by our own Book Concern and can be had by sending to any of our depositories or to the mission rooms at New York.

Take one field at a time. Have an outline map drawn on cloth or paper of the country, and then secure several speakers, who shall prepare papers or addresses on the field, the people and how they live, our schools, medical and hospital work, work among women, the native religion and worship, progress of the gospel and present standing of Christianity.

The First General Conference.

It met in Baltimore Christmas day, 1784. It was composed of laymen, with the exception of Dr. Thomas Coke, who had come over from England by John Wesley's request to organize the new church and ordain Francis Asbury. All the members were preachers who had for several years been acting under Mr. Wesley's orders in the colonies. This is a good time to refresh the memory on the doings of that memorable gathering.

Baldwin City, Kan., must be a queer place. The local paper says that during the past two years two attempts have been made to hold a dance in the town, but neither one secured patronage enough to pay for the hall. There is no place where playing cards can be bought, and there has never been a billiard hall in the place. Less tobacco is used than in any other place of its size in the state. There is one thing they do have which makes up for the lack of all the usual attractions. It has a Methodist college. And yet those students can somehow manage to get along without dances, cards, billiards and tobacco. Perhaps they go to college to study. They must be as queer as the place. Perhaps, after all, they may grow in knowledge and in manly character as rapidly as if they had the other things.

IS HIGHLY ESTEEMED.

Crowds Throng the House Galleries When Congressman Littlefield Is Slated for a Speech.

Rarely does a congressman ascend to a prominent position before the people of the country as rapidly as the newest member of the delegation from Maine, Charles E. Littlefield—the late Nelson Dingley's successor. It was seen when Mr. Littlefield first appeared on the floor of the house that he was large and strong physically, and now, after his speeches on the question of seating Brigham H. Roberts and imposing a tax on Porto Rico's commerce with the states, it is observed that Mr.

CHARLES E. LITTLEFIELD.
(Congressman Who Has Achieved Fame Within Three Months.)

Littlefield is a large, strong man mentally.

Mr. Littlefield, who is 49, began at an early age to provide himself with money by his own toil. At 13 he went haying, and thus earned his first dollar laboriously. Later he became a carpenter, and he was earning four dollars a day when he decided to study law. His professional education was based on a common school education—all he ever got. As a lawyer he worked 14 or 15 hours every day but Sunday, and for 15 years he seldom reached home in the evening before the rest of his family were asleep. Sundays he usually went with his wife to a Congregational church in his home town of Rockland. He became a state representative, speaker of the Maine house, attorney general of the state and Mr. Dingley's successor at Washington.

Naturally, says the Chicago Record, Mr. Littlefield thinks that the chief secret of his success is work, but he admits that his working day of 14 hours was made possible by health and power of endurance. He has been a total abstainer all his life, and he "chews" only the spruce gum of his native state. He says he has found more trouble in saving and investing money well than in earning it. He has a higher estimate of married men than of bachelors, and his sympathy goes out to the lawyer in congress who is trying to preserve his practice and at the same time do his full duty to his constituents.

THE FIRST CABLE CAR.

It Was Built Fifty Years Ago and Is Still in Operation Between Two New Jersey Towns.

Running from Phillipsburg, N. J., to Newark, N. J., there is a canal that is in many respects the most remarkable in existence. It is 60 miles long, and was in operation in New Jersey before a railroad existed in the state. It runs in many cases side by side with the Lackawanna railroad, and furnishes the most striking example of the difference between the old-time and modern methods of freight transportation that can be seen.

Its most remarkable feature is that in place of the lock system in use on canals the boats are drawn up and down elevations on great cars with high sides and open ends on a track 18 feet wide. These are the original cable cars. The principle by which they are operated, the endless cable, is exactly the same as that which was utilized for operating cable cars in cities. This method of transportation has been in use on the Morris canal for half a century, and antedates the introduction of cable cars by at least 35 years. The illustration was taken on the canal from Boonton to Montville, N. J., where the unusual features of the canal are most in evidence.

FIRST CABLE CAR.
(It Is Still in Operation Between Two New Jersey Towns.)

An interesting feature in connection with the Morris canal is that this is likely to be the last year of its operation, as an effort will be made at the next session of the New Jersey legislature to secure it as a means of furnishing Jersey City with additional water supply.

AMERICAN CORN BREAD.

Maj. Gross of Kentucky, Proposes to Feed Paris Exposition Visitors on Southern "Pone."

Maj. Simon Peter Gross, the Lexington man who will have charge of the American restaurant at the Paris exposition, is one of the most unique characters in Kentucky. He is a native of Bavaria, where he was born about 50 years ago. He is said to have seen service in the German army, hence his title.

He came to Lexington about 25 years ago and opened a saloon. He was prosperous until there was a shooting affray in his place of business. At length he sold out his business and engaged in the making and putting down of artificial stone pavements.

Maj. Gross was still engaged in this business when the world's fair began to be talked of in the newspapers. When he learned there was going to be a Kentucky building he importuned leading Kentucky politicians, with all of whom he was on the best of terms, to secure for him the privilege of establishing a restaurant and bar in the Kentucky building, where Kentucky dishes and drinks could be secured. His energy and perseverance secured the concession, and he was so successful in his venture that he cleared above all expenses something over $35,000.

The major proposes to make his American restaurant at Paris as much a feature of that show as was the Kentucky restaurant a feature of the world's fair. At Chicago he was unable to accommodate the vast crowds who wanted to be fed on Kentucky fare, and if he carries out his plans at the French capital the major will make the Europeans open their eyes.

He proposes to have jet-black negro waiters, negro cooks and to set the famous "Blue Grass" dinner, making a specialty of corn bread, which he will serve in all styles. He will take along one of the best corn bread cooks in America, whose business it will be to see that every piece of this kind of bread goes on the table just right. He will also have a noted negro chicken cook. It is well known that nobody can cook a chicken as well as a negro, and he will make use of this fact to have the most appetizing dishes prepared from this luscious fowl. Of course he will have all kinds of American dishes, but he proposes to make specialties of corn products and southern cooking.

Maj. Gross wants to make the restaurant "American" in all that the name implies, and he believes that when Europeans eat his corn bread and see how good and wholesome it is they will want to know more about it and will ultimately lay aside the hard, black bread of the continent and substitute the cheaper and healthier corn pone and "egg bread" of America.

GREAT CLOUD TREE.

One of the Most Striking Phenomena of the Recent Outbreak of Mount Etna.

Details of the sudden eruption from the central crater of Mount Etna, last July, are gradually coming to light through scientific reports. One of the most striking phenomena of the outbreak was the formation of an "eruptive pine" or "cloud-tree" directly above the crater. A famous example of these volcanic smoke-trees is that which was seen standing over Vesuvius during the destruction of Pompeii. But Etna is a far mightier and loftier volcano than Vesuvius. The verge of its great crater is nearly 11,000 feet above sea level, and the "eruptive pine" last July rose more than 16,000 feet above the crater. It was finally blown off by the wind, hiding the sun as it drifted away in an elongated black cloud.

GREAT CLOUD TREE.
(Striking Phenomenon of the Outbreak of Mount Etna.)

To Stop Malaria.

Treatment of soil with lime has been suggested in the Paris Academy of Science as a possible remedy for malaria, as it has been noticed that countries having a surface rich in lime are free from this malady.

DANGER IN THE SIDE SADDLE.

Responsible for More Deaths and Injuries Than Any Other Implement Connected with Outdoor Sport.

The side saddle is uncomfortable for the horse and for the rider. Hardly one woman in ten can sit straight on it, and the result is that the saddle drags off to one side, and is very likely to gall the horse's withers.

Far more important than this, however, is the danger to which every woman is exposed when she mounts her horse. However skillful a horsewoman she may be, her seat and her safety depend absolutely on the integrity of the saddle girths. If these break a fall is inevitable, and, hampered as she is by skirts, she can do nothing to save herself.

If she is not a good horsewoman, if she depends on her reins or on her stirrup to hold her in the saddle, her case is just so much the worse. Most girls and women are not at home on a horse's back, and a bolting or shying horse is likely to unseat them.

If unseated they have not the chance afforded to every man who is thrown from his horse, that of simply rolling out of the saddle and striking the ground. Instead of that a woman may be hung from the pommel by her skirt, and may be dragged about and shockingly mutilated by the horse's hoofs, where a simple fall from the horse would have given her no more than a jar.

Cases of this sort occur with such frequency that it appears singular that no one has as yet preached the abolition of the side saddle as a reform whose importance would justify a crusade. For in proportion to its use we believe the side saddle to be responsible for more deaths and accidents than any other implement which is employed in connection with outdoor life.

This is an age of progress in outdoor matters, and women are eliminating from their lives many of the antique conventionalities, which have nothing to recommend them except long-established custom. There are to-day many young women who during their travels and their hunting trips in the west never think of using side saddles, and there is thus, in some of the larger eastern towns, a nucleus of women who understand that the man's saddle means freedom from fetters that they have always borne, and from limitations which are not only irksome but positively dangerous.—Forest and Stream.

RULES OF RICH MEN.

Some Queer Ideas Entertained by Those Possessed of Large Fortunes.

Several anecdotes of the careers of some of the holders of large fortunes in the world have recently been published. From them poorer folk may get a view of some of the peculiarities of these men and gather hints as to the effects of enormous wealth upon their lives.

The founder of the Vanderbilt property made this rule: "Never buy anything you don't want, nor sell anything you haven't got," which at once barred out all stock gambling.

Another inflexible rule was never to share his secrets with any other person. "I know nothing about him," once said his son. "I never knew from him a single one of his business methods. If he thought his overcoat had found them out he would burn it."

His plan with regard to young men was, "Stick a boy down anywhere. If he is worth anything he'll earn his living and save money. If he can't do that he isn't worth saving!"

He was therefore pleased if his sons or grandsons entered into business to learn it as ordinary boys learn, and thus commenced to make their own way upward.

A woman who is one of the richest in America, refused to send her son to school after he had learned to read, write and cipher, "because more learning than that hinders a man from making money."

Poorer folk are apt, when thinking of the success and advantages the millionaires seem to possess over ordinary people, to forget that a man can find personal use and enjoyment in a very limited income. His accumulations over that which will give acceptable food and raiment are simply a weight of capital, to be handled with anxiety. The care of it becomes a trade, a business, an occupation, seldom an enjoyment.

The man who is popularly supposed to be one of the richest in the world, in speaking of a neighbor, said: "He is not worth a thousandth part of my fortune; but his house is as comfortable, he can eat as good food, his health is better, and he can trust his friends. I am not sure that I have any disinterested friends."—Youth's Companion.

Sorry Now He Was Honest.

Master—Yes, boys, "Honesty is the best policy." It will surely bring its reward. I am glad to have a good example of honesty among your own number. William Williams, stand up.

W. W. rises.

"Now, William, when I was coming to school this morning I happened to drop a quarter out of my pocket without the slightest knowledge of the fact, and you, like an honest boy returned it to me. Tell the boys what prompted you to do such an act when you might have kept it for yourself."

W. W.—Please, I thought it was a bad 'un.—Stray Stories.

Different Points of View.

Mr. Growells—What! You want a new bonnet? Why, I think the one you have is very becoming.

Mrs. Growells—Yes, and so do the neighbors; they think it is becoming very ancient and decrepit.—Chicago Evening News.

FERTILIZERS.

LAST year we aimed to convince the Farmers and Gardeners that it was unnecessary when buying Fertilizers to pay from thirty to fifty per cent more than they are worth, simply because some "other fellow" forgets to pay his bills, and it has become the habit of the fertilizer trade to make the good pay for the bad.

If you pay your bills we want to sell you and you will not have to pay for other customers who don't pay, as we dont have that kind.

The laws of this State protect the purchaser of Fertilizers, and all that is necessary is to see that he gets what he pays for.

PLANS FOR EXPOSITION.

REPRESENTATIVES FROM MANY TOWNS MEET TOGETHER.

Much Enthusiasm Shown Over the Project, and a Big Committee Arranged For.

Manufacturers, merchants and other prominent men, including mayors of cities and Board of Trade representatives from various parts of New Jersey, met in the Newark Board of Trade rooms yesterday. They were there in response to invitations to confer upon the subject of the proposed New Jersey Industrial Exposition, which is to be held in Newark in 1902.

There was much enthusiasm displayed, and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that such an exposition would be of incalculable benefit to the State at large, and that Newark was the proper place in which to hold it.

There was one serious disappointment, however, Dr. W. P. Wilson, director general of the Philadelphia Commercial Unions, failing to attend. He was absent from Philadelphia and did not return in time. He sent word, however, through his assistant, Henry W. Pierson, that in the future he would be at the service of the Newarkers.

Among the towns and cities represented were Jersey City, Elizabeth, Paterson, the Oranges, Passaic Woodbury, Newton, South Amboy, Vailsburg, Camden, Glen Ridge and Bound Brook.

After lunch had been served the assemblage resolved itself into a committee of the whole and there was a general discussion of the exposition subject and its relation to manufacturers and merchants and the community at large. President Richard C. Jenkinson and Chester B. Hoag, of the Newark Board of Trade, first explained what had thus far been done in the matter.

Representatives of each city or town then talked at some length, and it was finally decided that a permanent plan and scope committee of at least thirty members should be appointed, each city in the State to be represented. Newark is to have six members, Jersey City five, Paterson five, Elizabeth four, Trenton three, Camden two, Passaic two, New Brunswick two, and smaller places one each. The Mayors and Boards of Trade of each place will appoint the committee.

This will take two weeks, and in the meantime the Newarkers will do other preliminary work.

SIDEWALKS MUST BE LAID IN THE BOROUGH

Council Decides That This Work Must Be Done at Once by Property Owners.

MAYOR IS FULL OF ENERGY.

HE CRITICZES THE TROLLEY COMPANY IN SEVERE TERMS.

They Raise Too Much Dust on Somerset Street—Talk of Borough Sprinkling Streets—The Widening of Somerset Street.

Mayor Smalley and the Borough Council are getting into bad habits and a reform rule is in order. The regular April meeting was held last evening, but it was nearly 8:45 o'clock when His Honor called the session to order, and it was late when it was concluded. There was a great amount of business introduced. His Honor was feeling in good humor and he put everything through with as much dispatch as possible. All the members were present except Mr. Valiant, who was out of town.

The report of Collector Brown, including that of the clerk, Frank Rowley, was as follows: Taxes and interest, $620 45; special school, $219 78; Board of Health, $6 35; Watchung avenue assessment, $54 50; rent of property sold for taxes $41; F. W. Somers, license, $213 75; Clerk Rowley, fines, $13; bills payable by note, $1,000; cash on hand March 1st, $1,735 95; total receipts, $3,904 78; disbursements, $2 283 19; cash on hand April 1st, $1 621 59; borough account, $1,051 15; Watchung avenue account, $570 44.

The election of Charles Greader as a member of West End Hose Company, and Charles A. Steadman as a member of Warren Engine Company, were confirmed by the Council. Residents in the vicinity of Willow avenue asked the Council about the work of macadamizing that avenue from Giraud avenue 400 feet south, which was petitioned for sometime ago. The matter was referred to the proper committee, as was also a petition for crosswalks on Park place from Duer street to Mercer avenue. Wm. M. Stillman petitioned for the privilege of removing the Dyer house on Craig place to a lot on Grove street 60 feet from its present location. This was granted and Mr. Stillman was allowed five days to block traffic on Craig place while making the change.

Dr. D. C. Adams, who sold to Wm. M. Stillman a piece of property corner of Craig place and Grove street, fifty feet frontage, petitioned to have that part set off and an apportionment in the tax made. This was agreed to by the Council and the apportionment was made as follows: Lot 1, 1898 $124.10, $41 65; lot 2, 1899 $117 79, $39 32.

Mayor Smalley appointed Wm. N. Pangborn and J. W. VanHorn special marshals to do regular duty, without pay from the borough. They were confirmed.

At this time an application, signed by ten freeholders, and headed by S. B. Joseph and L. B. Woolston, was received asking the Council to adopt an ordinance that would provide for the laying, maintaining and repair of sidewalks, crosswalks and curbing throughout the borough. The application is drawn according to law and provides for every street in the borough that is used. The application was reported on favorably and such an ordinance was introduced and read for the first time. It will now be advertised and Friday evening, April 20th, there will be a meeting held for the purpose of giving the people of the borough an opportunity to make any objections to it that they see fit.

Mayor Smalley reported that there had been no arrests during the past two weeks. Mr. Clark, chairman of the street committee, reported that the sum of $81 07 had been expended on the streets during March. There was a disputed bill of $45 52 from Michael Powers regarding crosswalks which had not yet been paid.

Mr. Clark offered a resolution that bids for crushed stone, crosswalks and sidewalks be advertised for and that the same be opened at the Council rooms Monday evening, April 16th, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Swackhamer offered a resolution that $35 be reducted from Michael Powers who had purchased the property corner of Park place and Somerset street from the borough, who had taken it for taxes. A resolution by Mr. Clark provided that a crosswalk be laid on Warren street, near Chatham.

Mr. Lee gave the Council quite a surprise by offering a resolution to change the name of Duer street to Madison avenue. This was done in view of the proposed action of opening Duer street into the city. Counsel Reed thought it best to wait until after the sidewalk ordinance was adopted before taking any action, and the matter was referred to the street committee. It can be stated, however, that the proposition was favorably received and no doubt will be adopted.

Mr. Swackhamer offered a resolution to the effect that a tax warrant be issued on the Collector authorizing and instructing him to sell property upon which the 1898 tax is delinquent. A resolution by Mr. Clark provided that Collector Brown transfer all borough money from the City National Bank to the Frst National Bank, and that hereafter all borough money be deposited in the latter bank in the name of the Mayor and Council.

In connection with the new sidewalk ordinance Mr. Clark asked the Borough Counsel what effect there would be if property owners on one street should object to the ordinance, whether it would annul the enforcement of it on all other streets. Mr. Reed said in his opinion he should say no. That to defeat the ordinance a majority of the property-owners would have to object, and this was considered highly improbable as in most cases the property-owners want it.

Mr. Clark reported on the matter of street sprinkling by the borough. He said at present it was impossible to estimate the exact cost. The committee learned that they could purchase a platform spring wagon holding 600 gallons of water for $375, and a reach wagon, without springs, holding the same amount of water, for $250. It would cost $15 per month for water for each wagon for seven months from April to October. He said that the committee could not tell as to the amount of water needed, for that alone could only be determined by the weather, whether wet or dry. He thought that after the plant was purchased the work could be done for $500 a year.

Mayor Smalley was inclined to think that the expense would be too much and that it might reach $1,500 a year. To this Mr. Clark replied that if the expense should come out of the street department fund that fund would have to be increased.

This brought forth a lively speech from His Honor regarding the dust on Somerset street made a nuisance by the trolley company cars. He considered the trolley a nuisance in this respect and he thought it about time the trolley company come to time and sprinkle Somerset street. He thought they should be compelled to sprinkle or else be made to stop running their cars, and if the Council has no authority he considered that the Board of Health could assert its rights and declare the thing unhealthy as well as a nuisance. The matter was finally left to Mr. Clark, who was asked to see Superintendent Adelmann and then Mr. Riker and see if some arrangements cannot be made for the trolley company to sprinkle. As it is now the Council has no ordinance or agreement whereby it can compel the company to sprinkle.

After much debate it was finally decided unanimously to purchase two watering wagons to sprinkle the streets at the expense of the borough and that the Council provide by resolution for the expense if necessary, also that the committee ascertain the best possible rates for water for the sprinkling. His Honor stated that where the Lord furnishes the stock it ought to be low.

By resolution offered by Mr. Rogers John Stein was appointed pound-keeper of the borough.

His Honor again introduced the subject regarding the water and gas companies opening up the streets of the borough without first obtaining a permit to do so. Mr. Reed informed the Mayor that the companies have no right to do this and that they are compelled to put the streets back in as good condition as they found them. He said that in most cases the work had been poorly done without the knowledge of the officers of the company who paid to have it done right. In some instances the companies had remitted when called upon to do so for failure in fixing the streets properly. Mr. Reed suggested that offenders be fined $11 each as a preventative against further infractions of the ordinance.

The Mayor desired the papers to state that the Council would like to receive the donations toward the opening of Duer street within two weeks, as the money to proceed with the work is now needed. In connection with this he went at his subject of widening Somerset street with a determination that is characteristic. He felt as though the commissioners should be appointed and the work taken up at once. He suggested a modification of the original plans to the effect that the work of installing a storm sewer from Jackson avenue to the bridge be deferred for

LOCAL REPUBLICANS TALK ABOUT HIS INTERVIEW.

It is Likely That Plainfield Will Go to Convention With a Split Delegation.

Local Republicans are discussing the fight between Congressman Charles N. Fowler and Frank Bergen for the Congressional nomination and the last public statement of the former as it appeared in an interview with the Washington Correspondent of the Elizabeth Journal. The general concensus of opinion seems to be that Mr. Fowler made a sad mistake when he thus openly antagonized United States Senator John Kean and declared his ability to win out in the race for the nomination without any help from the Elizabeth leader.

"How will it affect Plainfield?" said one Republican who has played a prominent part in county affairs in the past. "That's hard to say yet. It sounds like a vain boast of Fowler's when he declares that Bergen will not get a delegate in all Union county. Fowler may get a majority from this county but Bergen is sure to win somewhere unless he withdraws from the contest before the primaries are held. If the trouble can be settled before that time, Plainfield will go down as a unit, otherwise there is likely to be a split in the local delegation unless they settle on some Plainfielder as a 'dark horse' and attempt to secure his nomination as a compromise candidate."

RUSHING WORK ON CUTTERS.

Navy Needs Little Boats for Service in Cuba and Puerto Rico.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 7.—Five hundred men are working night and day at Nixon's ship yards hurrying the completion of United States cutters to be used in Cuban and Puerto Rican waters; also four forty and two fifty-six foot tenders for the Russian government, as well as a fireboat for the harbor of Buffalo. The new steam yacht Dreamer for Thomas A Lawson, of Boston, was handed over to the owner Tuesday and sailed for Boston.

Lectures for Teachers.

"Education and Life" is the subject of four lectures to be given in the Assembly Hall of Franklin School, Fourth street and Arlington avenue, by Edward Howard Griggs, formerly professor in Leland, Jr., University, under the auspices of the city and borough pubic schools. The course is as follows: April 11th, "The Parent and the Teacher in Moral Education;" April 25th, "The Development of Personality in Children;" May 23, "The Training of American Citizenship;" May 9th, "Education for the Art of Life." The lectures will be given at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Prof. Griggs is a magnetic speaker and thoroughly conversant with his subjects. Those who attend will enjoy a rare treat.

Freight Cars Broken Into.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, April 7—Three freight cars on the Central railroad were broken into last night near Bound Brook, cases of goods were broken into and the contents scattered all around. A case of underwear was opened, two good suits selected and the thieves took off their old dirty underwear and put on new, leaving their soiled suits in the car. The large pearl buttons were all cut off and removed from a case of ladies coats and the coats left. A case of canned goods was carried off. The thieves were evidently frightened off before they had finished their work.

Mail Carrier to Watchung.

Inspector Chappel, of the Postal Government, has appointed Emerson C. Howard, of this city, a carrier of mail between this city, Watchung and Warrenville. He leaves the Plainfield postoffice at 9:30 a. m., and on the return leaves Warrenville at 11 a. m. At present one trip a day is made. Mr. Howard is so provided with horse and wagon that he can carry passengers back and forth as well as mail, and he takes this way of notifying the public. Patrolman Jeremiah Cash is Mr. Howard's sworn deputy, and whenever he is unable to make the trip Mr. Cash will officiate in his place.

Repairs on Roadbed.

Much needed repairs are being made to East Third street from Watchung avenue east. The roadbed has been in very poor condition—full of ruts and gullies. The thoroughfare has been a particularly important one as many of the expressmen use it as a way to reach the freight house. The steam roller has been put into service again, and is at work restoring East Third street to a respectable condition once more.

AN "ENVELOPE LIBRARY."

New Departure in Missionary Work Made by Young Women of Trinity Church.

The regular meeting of the Young Women's Mission Band was held in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church yesterday afternoon. The feature of the meeting was a very interesting talk given by A. I. Mettlar, superintendent of Marconnier chapel Sunday-school. His talk was concerning the lumber camps in the Alleghenies in Jefferson county, Pa., where he spent much time last year. He described camp life. He also spoke of the excellent missionary work carried on at these camps, and told how it was started through gifts of comfort bags sent by societies.

Mr. Mettlar's talk excited more interest in the work, and the members formed what is known as an "envelope library." This was started yesterday when suitable stories and verses were cut from old papers by the members who brought scissors with them for that purpose. These clippings will be enclosed in envelopes and sent to various persons employed in the lumber camps In this way they hope to keep in touch with persons who are in need of missionary work. It will form an incentive for more work on the part of the members of the band.

GETTING RIGHT-OF-WAY.

CONDEMNATION PROCEEDINGS OF MIDDLE BROOK RAILWAY CO.

Commissioners Were in Session at Bound Brook Yesterday and Settled Several Cases—Hearing to be Continued.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, April 7.—A hearing was held yesterday at the Berkley House, this place, in condemnation proceedings to secure the right-of-way over certain property lying along the route of the proposed Middle Brook Railroad Company. The commissioners appointed by Chief Justice Magie are Peter J. Staats, of Bound Brook, Liffert C. Waldron, of Martinville, and Calvin Corle, of Neshanic.

The property in question is owned by John McGloyn and John Brown and lies in the vicinity of Finderne through which the road is run. At yesterday's meeting the case of John McGloyn was first taken up. Mr. McGloyn was represented by the Hon. J. J. Bergen, of Somerville, while W. A. Barkalow, of the same place, presented the railroad's side of the case. After hearing both sides the commissioners decided to award Mr. McGloyn $817 and to allow him to retain ownership of the land.

In the case of John Brown, former Judge William A. Coddington of the firm of Reed & Coddington, of Plainfield, submitted his client's side of the case, but it was decided to hear argument next Saturday when a final decision will be rendered.

There are several other owners of property though which the proposed railroad is to run, who are protesting against the confiscation of their land. Some of these have placed their grievances in Judge Coddington's hands and he has decided to appear for them in condemnation proceedings that will follow.

COMING TO JERSEY TO LIVE.

Mr. Stuyvesant Will Help Grade a Road Near His Game Preserve.

Rutherford Stuyvesant, the New York millionaire, has offered to pay one-third of the cost of macadamizing the turnpike road in Warren county from Hackettstown to Allamuchy. Mr. Stuyvesant has a county house and game preserve in Allamuchy township and has announced his intention of becoming a citizen of Warren county.

The road to be improved is about five miles long and the cost will be about $20 000. Mr. Stuyvesant will assume the township portion of the debt at a low rate of interest.

Believed to be Innocent.

An effort is to be made to have Fred Wood, colored, of Bordentown, pardoned out of State Prison. Wood was convicted by the Burlington County Court on a charge of breaking and entering and assault on Mary Shinn, a widow, at Bordentown, and has served over one year, having been sentenced to three years. Many believe that Wood was not guilty of the charge. Mrs. Shinn was soon after adjudged insane and sent to the insane asylum at Trenton.

TO AID THE CITY NURSE.

GOLDEN RULE CIRCLE, KING'S DAUGHTERS, GAVE DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR.

Musicale and Sale Held at Home of Mrs. John Valiant, of Myrtle Avenue, Yesterday Afternoon.

The Golden Rule Circle, King's Daughters, of North Plainfield, gave a delightful musicale, tea and sale of cake and candy yesterday afternoon at the home of Councilman and Mrs. John Valiant, 38 Myrtle avenue, from 3 until 6 o'clock, for the benefit of the city nurse fund. The attendance was large and the receipts were gratifying to the members of the circle.

During the affair a musical programme was presented by Miss Grace Carroll, soprano soloist; Miss Clara VanFleet, pianist; Misses Nellie and Bessie Valiant, piano duets, and Master John Valiant, banjo solos.

Mrs. Most received the guests, assisted by several members of the circle. In the dining-room Mrs. Isaac Runyon and Mrs. Elmer E. Winckler poured chocolate and tea. They were assisted by Miss Elizabeth Hoagland, Miss May Hoagland, Miss Mamie Steiner and Miss May Conroy. Miss Bertha Stevens and Miss Ida Fountain had charge of the sale of cakes, and Miss Clara VanFleet and Miss Ada Woolston presided at the candy table. Everything was disposed of at fair prices. The net proceeds will be $25.

ROSS TO JAIL.

Long Deferred Sentence of Restaurant Wm. Ross in Jail is Now Being Served.

After long delays to give William Ross, erstwhile proprietor of the Delmonico Oyster and Chop House on Park avenue, an opportunity to pay his fine of $25, imposed by City Judge Runyon for violation of the Board of Health ordinance, Mr. Ross was committed to the county jail at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or go to jail for seven days.

Ross simply did not have the funds to meet the fine so he took the other alternative. A movement in his behalf has been started among a numbers of the Grand Army men of the city and a petition to the Mayor was prepared asking for clemency for the prisoner.

FACTORY BURNED.

Plant of Plainfield Kindling Wood Company at Watchung Destroyed by Fire Last Night.

The factory of the Plainfield Kindling Wood Company at Watchung was entirely destroyed by fire early last evening. The fire started in the engine room when the proprietor, Winans Mobus, and his employes were home to supper. Its origin is unknown. Clarence B Iyeu, a neighbor, saw the blaze and gave the alarm. A bucket brigade was formed, but the building was entirely consumed. The machinery in the factory was wrecked. The loss will reach $500. There was no insurance. The company will continue in business and orders received will be filled as usual.

PROSPERITY ENDS POOR FARM.

Only One Pauper Left for Millburn Township to Provide for.

Millburn township has decided to give up its poor farm, where in years past the paupers of the town have been housed and given employment. Under the prosperous times of the last year business has fallen off at the poor farm until there is but one pauper left, and the Township Committee has figured it out that what the poor farm has been costing to maintain would have paid for the board of the paupers at a good hotel at a rate of $10 or $12 a week.

Now the poor farm will be leased to somebody, and the farmer who leases it will be paid for boarding the township's poor.

Cleaning Up the Streets.

Street Commissioner Gavett has had a man cleaning the streets of the refuse papers that have been flying about East Front street and Park avenue for the past few days. Scattering papers or other refuse about the streets is in violation of a city ordinance to that effect. Clerks employed in some stores occasionally sweep in the street the refuse of the stores. The practice should be discontinued. Flying papers are not only an annoyance to citizens but are also liable to frighten horses and cause a runaway.

Little Blaze at Pond Tool Works.

A fire started in the woodwork of the electric crane at the Pond Machine Tool Works yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. A fuse burned out and set fire to a heap of waste nearby. The woodwork to the crane caught fire. Walter McCormack was in charge of the crane at the time and extinguished the flame with a stream from the hose.

BIG BATCH IN COURT

PARTICIPANTS IN LAST SATURDAY'S FIGHT WERE ALL FINED.

Two Colored Women in Trouble—Some of the Judge's Youthful Acquaintances Came up in Court.

City Judge Runyon had quite a congregation of offenders up before him this morning to whom he dispensed justice in varying amounts. First there was a little man named Thomas Sullivan. He had been up before. Patrolman Mattox found him sadly intoxicated on Clinton avenue yesterday afternoon and locked him up. The Judge gave him his choice between a fine of $10 or thirty days in jail. Sullivan didn't have the cash so he took the other alternative.

Five small boys, all acquaintances of the Judge at Hope chapel, were brought up on complaint of Patrolman Myers. Myers had found them throwing stones and tin cans last night. The boys explained that they had not been disorderly and only rolled a few stones along the walk. The Judge dismissed the complaint.

Mrs. Louise Carr, colored, of 540 West Third street, admitted that she called Miss Emma Connett names and slapped her face. She did it, she said, because Emma was making love to her husband. The Judge fined Mrs. Carr $3.

John Keiderling, Joseph Green and John Kearns were arraigned on the charge of fighting last week. All the men admitted that they had been drunk. It was more difficult, however, to learn the exact particulars of the fight. The Judge decided that they were all guilty, fined Green and Keiderling $5 each and Kearns $3. The fines were paid.

The trial of Edwin Couch, against whom Mrs. Mary M. Lane is complainant, was adjourned for a week at the request of the complainant.

MEN FOR STRIKERS' PLACES

Bosses May Look for Them in Plainfield, But They Will be Opposed by the Union Men.

The contractors in Long Branch who are affected by the strike of the carpenters there are making an effort to secure men in other cities. It was reported last night that they would send representatives to this city to engage men. The local Carpenters' Union, No. 155, received word from the Long Branch union to look out for any such attempt. All the members of the union here have been notified, but the Long Branch people have not showed up as yet.

ENDEAVOR OFFICERS.

Miss Yates Elected President of Crescent Avenue Church Society.

Africa was the subject of an interesting missionary study at the Christian Endeavor meeting of the Crescent Avenue church last evening. A number of curios from Africa were exhibited and their former use explained. A solo appropriate to the subject was sung by Chas. Lewis.

The missionary programme was followed by the annual meeting of the society. The committee reports showed an active membership of 56 persons, 18 associate members and 25 honorary members. Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Miss Yates; vice-president, J. Stanley Voorhees; corresponding secretary, Fred G. Smith; recording secretary, Elizabeth Brown; treasurer, Walter Sampson.

A Fine Glee Club.

William Howell Edwards will bring his glee club of fifty voices from the Brooklyn Boys' High School and give a concert in the chapel of the Cresent Avenue church next Tuesday evening. The glee club has been given very flattering receptions in a series of concerts in Brooklyn. The selections given by Mr. Edwards has a Gladstonian faculty of doing many things excellently. He is at the head of the department of Latin in his school; is conductor of a large glee club, and is a baritone soloist, a pianist and a musical composer of no mean order of talent.

In Honor of a Guest.

Miss Mattie R. Anthony entertained a few friends at her home on West Front street last evening in honor of Miss E. Virginia Hantech, of Staten Island. The evening was passed very pleasantly. "Progressive Letters" was the principal event, Miss Emily Runyon and Mr. Huson, of Derby, Conn., winning first prizes.

Helping Elizabeth Democrats.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 7.—James E. Martine, of Plainfield, was among the speakers at the Democratic meeting in the Ninth ward last night. Mr. Martine spoke in behalf of the candidacy of City Attorney Connolly for Mayor, and roused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

BASEBALL SEASON FOR HIGH SCHOOL BOYS

Will Open on Martine Common Wednesday Afternoon With Borough High School.

SCHEDULE NEAR COMPLETE

SEASON TICKETS PRESENTED TO ALL THE HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS.

First Game With North Plainfield High School Team Wednesday Afternoon—Mr. Martine Has Allowed Use of Common.

The baseball season for the team of the Plainfield High School will actively open on Wednesday afternoon, April 11, when the first game will be played with the nine from the North Plainfield High School.

It was first intended to secure the Crescent Oval for home grounds for the High School team. Although the fence has been torn down the diamond still remains and is in fair condition. The owner, however, wished such a price for the use of the grounds that the plan of having the Oval was given up. James E. Martine then gave the management permission to use Martine Common and there the opening game will be played.

A meeting of the board of directors of the High School Athletic Association was held yesterday afternoon, and Manager Townsend Mason was empowered to meet certain expenses of the team. The board also unanimously passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Martine for his kindness in allowing the boys to use his common.

Season tickets have now been issued for the games that the High School will play at home. By special arrangement with the management of the Leal's School team these tickets will admit to all the games played between these two teams. Season tickets were issued to all the girls of the High School in return for their generous contributions toward the expenses of the team. Tickets were also issued to such of the boys as contributed $1 or more. The remainder will be sold for 75 cents each.

Manager Townsend Mason has nearly completed the schedule of the team for this season. It is as follows: Wednesday, April 11, North Plainfield High School at Plainfield; Wednesday, April 18, Leal's School at Washington avenue ground; Saturday, April 21, Westfield High School at Plainfield; Wednesday, April 25 Leal's School at Plainfield; Wednesday, May 2, North Plainfield High School at North Plainfield; Saturday, May 5, Hasbrouck Institute, of Jersey City, at Plainfield; Tuesday, May 15, Newark Academy at Newark; Saturday, May 19, Rutgers Prep School at Plainfield. Manager Mason is also arranging games with the Newark and East Orange High Schools, the Battin High School, of Elizabeth, and several other schools.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

It Will be Held in Trenton 17th and 18th of Next Month.

The next State encampment of the New Jersey G. A. R. is to be held in Masonic Hall, Trenton, May 17th and 18th.

It is very probable that a Trentonian will be again honored with the office of department commander.

Captain E. V. Richards, of Trenton, who is the present senior vice commander, is a candidate for the higher office. He is being strongly backed by Aaron Wilkes Post.

A circular issued by the post and signed by General Donnelly and Colonel Stahl, Past Department Commanders, and by fifteen of the comrades who have been post commanders, makes a strong appeal for the support of Captain Richards at the coming encampment.

A Slick Swindler.

(Special to The Daily Press).

Somerville, April 7.—The ladies of Somerville have been nicely victimized by a slick stranger, who represented himself as being an agent of a silk mill, selling dress silk patterns. He had a large line of nice samples and quoted low prices. An advance payment was requested and given in nearly every instance, and the stranger slipped out of town with about $1,000 of coin of the realm, and has not been seen or heard from since, neither have his victims seen the silk they purchased. In consequence many a poor woman will have to go without an Easter bonnet this year. Woe to the swindler if his victims should ever catch him.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND.

The Arions, of this city, and the team from the Borough Public School, will contest for honors this afternoon on the grounds of the former on Sherman avenue.

The baseball nine of the Arion A. C. will open the season this afternoon on their own grounds on Sherman avenue, near Plainfield avenue, with the team from the North Plainfield High School. The Arion team is composed of young men from this city who are at work week days and spend their half-holiday on Saturday playing baseball. They have a strong team and expect to make a good showing. Allen Squiers is the captain, Harold Doliner manager and Charles Smith assistant manager. The schedule for the month of April is complete and is as follows: Saturday, April 7, North Plainfield High School on Arion grounds; Saturday, April 14, Lincoln High School, of Westfield, in Plainfield; Saturday, April 21, Leal's School on Washington Ave. grounds; Saturday, April 28 North Plainfield High School on latter's grounds.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Among the Plainfielders who have recently purchased new bicycles are Dr. Merrell, of Central avenue; Dudley S. Miller, Orchard place, and L. W. Randolph, of Myrtle avenue.

The county roads in the vicinity of Plainfield are now in good condition and the wheelmen are out again in force. While long bicycle rides are not held in such generally popular favor as they were a few years ago, the number of wheelmen and wheelwomen has greatly increased. It's a case of convenience rather that pleasure with a great many, however. There is still a good sized army of cyclists who turn out for a spin at every opportunity. For the last two Sundays, there has been a crowd of wheelmen passing through town and stopping at the local restaurants to dine. One thing is quite noticeable, however, and that is the decrease in the number of tandems ridden. Last year they were high in popular favor but the dealers say that there has been very little demand for them so far this season.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

An open gymnastic contest is soon to be held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. It will be open to all members regardless of past victories. A silver medal will be awarded to the competitor scoring the highest number of points.

Among the young men from this city who are distinguishing themselves at college on the track is Orville T. Waring, of Willow avenue, who is a student at the University of Pennsylvania. He has turned out a fast man in the mile run and has already won a number of medals in college competitions. He will train this spring for the U. P. track team and is considered a likely candidate.

ROD AND GUN.

In the Grand American Handicap, the principal event in the trap shooter's season, Percy Sandford and L. G. James, of this city, competed Thursday. Sandford killed 21 out of the 25 birds. James killed one more.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Music World

One of the cleanest, funniest and best appointed attractions that has visited our city for some time was the appearance of "A Gay Farmer" company at Music Hall last night. From start to finish it was one continued laugh. The Bijou Quartette gave us some good singing The Worth Sisters danced and sang themselves into the good graces of the audience. Miss May Adams and her Pickaninny was a good card. Carl Michael, one of the funniest Irish comedians ever seen here, at once jumped into popular favor. The company, all told, are far above the average. They give a last performance tonight.

"Ten Nights in a Bar Room," which will be at Music Hall Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, is considered by many to be one of the greatest aids in the cause of temperance that was ever brought to the notice of reformers, and one well known minister, the late Henry Ward Beecher, said of it: "It is one of the best dramas ever produced and does more good than the best temperance sermon preached. I recommend it to the attention of all church workers." The production of Will E. Booth, which will be given here, is said to be one of the most perfect ever seen. It is to be presented with fine scenic and mechanical effects, and the several roles will be interpreted by a cast of thorough and competent actors and actresses. A superb orchestra is a feature of the organization in connection with a number of famous specialist, who will appear between acts. Each day at noon there will be a street parade of the novelty band, and concert in front of the theatre at 7 p. m.

The big novelty of the programme at Proctor's Twenty third Street Theatre, week of April 9th, is announced as Fougere, the celebrated French chanteuse, who will then make her debut in continuous vaudeville. Fougere has a new repertoire of coon songs which she will sing in her own inimitable way. At Proctor's Palace week of April 9th, these favorites are announced; Eddie Giraud and Jessie Gardner in their farcical hit "The Soubrette and Cop;" Hilda Thomas & Co. in "Miss Ambition;" McCale and Daniels, Irish eccentrics; Spencer Kelly, baritone soloist; Lynch and Jewell, comedy sketch; Phyllis Allen, vocaliste; kalatechnoscope, with new moving pictures of the Transvaal, the Philippines, Porto Rico, and other interesting subjects. The monster vaudeville programme which will open Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre May 7th as a continuous performance theatre will be announced within the next fortnight.

RIOTS IN PORTO RICO.

Troops Called to Prevent Further Bloodshed—Murderers Garroted.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, April 7.—At 4 o'clock Wednesday evening the natives made a concentrated movement at Puerta Tiera. Different mobs, totaling about 2,000 men, attacked the foreign colored men. Any English speaking negro was subject to attack, particularly the natives of St. Thomas and St. Kitts. One Porto Rican was killed, one was seriously injured, and three negroes of St. Kitts were dangerously wounded. The affair was the outcome of the pier strike, and the pretense of the attack, apparently, was that the English islanders were usurping Porto Rican labor. The islanders anticipated trouble, and some of them were armed with revolvers.

A company of infantry under Captain Alexander and Lieutenants Ansell and Parker was called out, and martial law was declared. Soldiers now patrol the streets, and the rum shops are closed. The mere presence of the soldiers dispersed the crowds. There were no demonstrations after the arrival of the troops. The condition of affairs necessitates the presence of troops indefinitely in order to prevent more trouble.

At an early hour today Simeon Rodriguez, Carlos Pacheco, Hermogenes Pacheco, Eugenio Rodriguez and Rosalie Santiago, who were condemned to death by garroting, were executed. Their crime was the murder in October, 1898, of Senor Prudencio Mendez at Yauco. The murderers, after criminally assaulting the wife and daughters of their victim, compelled them to dance about the corpse.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Stephen Crane, the writer, was reported seriously ill in London.

Half the striking miners in the Pittsburg district have returned to work.

Serious tribal fighting was reported from the British Gold Coast, Africa.

Nearly 400 new laws were passed by the New York legislature this session.

The steamer Mexican of the Union line was sunk in collision near Cape Town.

An accomplice of the would be assassin of the Prince of Wales was reported found at Brussels.

A general uprising it was predicted, will follow the announcement in China of the emperor's death.

The physical laboratory, one of the largest and finest buildings of Lehigh university, at Bethlehem, Pa., was burned. The loss probably will exceed $300,000.

The State Profits by Estates.

ALBANY, April 7.—A large amount of collateral inheritance tax which has been collected during the current year will be available for governmental expenses during the next fiscal year. The death of Cornelius Vanderbilt has thus far brought to the state about $280,000. From the estate of George Smith, formerly of Chicago and New York city and later of London, the state has received the sum of $1,934,753. Smith was a wealthy Scotchman worth many millions of dollars. He held securities in New York state valued at $42,096,970, upon which the state claimed a tax of $2,036,582. The English government collected from the estate a tax of over $5,000,000. Another large tax was collected from the estate of Mary A. Hart, late of Watervliet, the amount being $70,000.

Santiago Paper Suppressed.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, April 7. The first important action of the new mayor, Senor Grinan, in suppressing El Cubano Libre and placing the editorial staff of five men under arrest, created intense excitement when it became known. El Cubano Libre had always been intensely radical in its utterances against Americans, Spaniards and white Cubans. Thursday it published an editorial both offensive and indecent in criticism of the civil government, particularly the municipal branch. The editorial characterized the palace as "an official sewer and a cesspool of moral corruption" and used other language not fit for publication. It charged officials with stealing, even specifying the contracts.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The following fourth class postmasters have been appointed: New Jersey—Karrsville, Miss Frances Thomas. Pennsylvania—Golden, Jacob H. Sentz; Raven Run, Patrick J. Houston. New Hampshire—Pattenville, William M. Goodell. New York—Arnot, Fred S. Price; Dewittville, Myron A. Miles; Petrolia, Mrs. W. A. Witter; Promised Land, Hiram H. Luther; Spruceton, O. D. Van Valkenburgh; Wellsburg, M. A. Young.

Letters For Cape Nome.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The postoffice department has issued a notice that registered letters and parcels for Nome, Alaska, will be dispatched from San Francisco and Seattle by steamers on April 30. On that date and during the open season of navigation registered mail of all classes for postoffices on the Yukon river in Alaska and for postoffices north of St. Michael's will be forwarded by all steamers authorized to carry the mails to such localities.

Great Land Upheaval.

TACOMA, April 7.—A tremendous upheaval of land is reported to have occurred on Nooksack river, ten miles west of Mount Baker, on March 27. What had once been a valley and bed of the Nooksack river is now a hill 70 feet high. The noise of the upheaval was heard at Hamilton, ten miles away. A report of the occurrence was brought to this city by D. P. Simons, Jr., who was in the neighborhood at the time looking over timber lands.

Died In Italy of Smallpox.

OSWEGO, N. Y., April 7.—Private advices received here announce the death of Rev. George F. Love, Jr., at Rome of smallpox. Mr. Love was pastor of the West Baptist church of this city and was 30 years old. He left Oswego about a month ago with a party of tourists for a trip to Egypt and European countries. Mrs. Love joined him at Naples a few days ago. Deceased was born in Newburg, N. Y.

Governor McCallum's Mission.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 7.—Governor McCallum officially announces his impending departure for England on a short leave of absence. It is believed, however, that the real object of his visit is to lay before the British war office the plans for fortifying and garrisoning St. John's and for establishing a naval reserve.

Weather Probabilities.

LAWMAKING CLOSES.

New York Legislature Adjourns Without Date.

LOWEST TAX RATE IN FORTY YEARS.

Canal Bill Passed at the Last Moment—This Signifies the Expenditure of Sixty-two Millions on Clinton's Ditch.

ALBANY, April 7.—The close of the legislative session was marked by no unusual scenes. After the rush, confusion and turmoil of the early morning attending the closing up of business the usual felicitation and gifts were exchanged among the officers and leaders of the assembly.

The committee on rules in the assembly passed the Marshall-Hill bill appropriating $200,000 for a preliminary survey of the state canals by a vote of 99 to 45.

The significance of this is that it commits the Republican party to the $62,000,000 expenditure. The Democrats are also committed, because they voted for the appropriation in the senate.

The legislature fixed the annual tax rate for the coming fiscal year at 1.96-100 mills. This is a reduction of 53-100 of a mill from the rate fixed by the last legislature, which was 2.49-100 mills. This tax on the estimated valuation of the property of the state of $5,461,302,756 will realize $10,704,153.40. The tax rate fixed yesterday is the lowest since 1891, when it was 1⅝ mills. In 1892 it was 1.98-100 mills.

ROOSEVELT SUMS UP.

Much Praise For the Outgoing Legislature and Its Work.

ALBANY, April 7.—Governor Roosevelt has given out the following statement on the work of the legislature of 1900:

"Jefferson said that the whole art of government consists in being honest, and his definition would have been complete if he had added that it shall also be efficient. When the net result of governmental effort is honesty and efficiency, then we have good government, and it is not in the least necessary that it should be spectacular. By this standard the legislative session of 1900, like the legislative session of 1899, has been thoroughly creditable.

"First, the tax rate has been kept very low, thanks to the great economy insisted upon by the legislature, and thanks also to the way in which the administrative officers have insisted that every dollar's outlay should represent a full dollar's worth of work for the state. The tax rate of 1.96 is with one exception the lowest for over 40 years. There has been no over legislation. The session is closing at an earlier date, also with one exception, than has been the case in over half a century. The law abolishing prizefighting in this state has been enacted. Provision has been made by the state for an Adirondack hospital to take care of curable cases of consumption, and thus the first steps have been taken toward grappling officially with the most dreaded scourge among all the diseases to which our people are subject.

"Two or three most needed laws for the government of the city of New York have been passed, notably the confession of judgments bill, also the bills essential to the city's commercial interests, for improving her docks, etc. Rapid transit for the city of New York has been secured on proper terms. Provisions have been made for securing a higher grade of efficiency in the administration of the civil service law in municipalities. A larger provision than ever before has been made for the purpose of building up a system of good roads. Excellent amendments to the game law have been enacted, and various local bills of great importance to the welfare of the localities concerned have been passed.

"None of these measures is as striking as the franchise tax law, the civil service law and the labor legislation of 1899. The chief reason for this is the very fact that so much was done in 1899.

"I wish that we could have had some supplemental legislation, not only in the direction of improving the tax system, but in passing both an employers' liability bill and also a bill which should protect corporations from blackmailing suits instigated by low grade criminal lawyers, and I wish that the Brackett antitrust bill could have been enacted into law. But it must be remembered that the very success of the measures put through in 1899 rendered it difficult to get through additional legislation along the same lines. The franchise tax law in particular has justified its existence in the most striking manner. It is not too much to say that, in point of actual accomplishment in itself and with regard to the principle which it establishes, this law is more vital to the welfare of the people than any other which has been passed in recent years."

Floods In Texas.

AUSTIN, April 7.—A torrent of rain has been falling throughout southwest Texas for 24 hours. In some places the downpour was in the nature of cloudbursts, flooding a vast expanse of country. The Nueces and Hondo rivers and other smaller streams are out of their banks and have caused considerable destruction of property. The Southern Pacific bridge at Lozier has been washed away, and many miles of track are under water. The Colorado river is rising rapidly northwest of here.

McLean Engages Rooms.

KANSAS CITY, April 7.—John R. McLean, brother-in-law of Admiral Dewey, has engaged elaborate headquarters at one of the leading hotels for the Democratic convention in July. The rooms are very choice, and it is rumored that they are to be shared by Admiral Dewey. When the selection was made, Mr. McLean, it is said, announced that the rooms would be occupied by himself and a friend.

Schoolteacher Shot.

GLADSTONE, Mich., April 7.—Miss Lydia Barstar, 23 years old, was shot and instantly killed at Isabella, where she was teaching school. Few particulars have been received by her parents here, but it is understood that a stray bullet entered the schoolhouse window and passed through her heart.

Stallion Sold For 14 Cents.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 7.—Polonius, once a famous stallion, sire of Page, 2:09, and other noted trotters, was disposed of by a raffle here, the winning ticket having been purchased for 14 cents. The horse is 28 years of age.

HEAVY BRITISH LOSS

Five Companies Captured by the Boers.

DE VILLEBOIS SLAIN BY METHUEN.

He Was Chief of Staff In the Boer Army—Fifty Prisoners Taken In the Fight Which Occurred Near Kimberley.

LONDON, April 7.—Not a word regarding the disaster at Reddersburg has been allowed to come through except the dispatch of Lord Roberts. It is therefore impossible to form any notion as to what has happened. Meanwhile the British public is beginning to realize the immense difficulties to be overcome even before Pretoria is reached and is reviving premature ideas with respect to the time when the war will be over. No one now believes that it will have ended by the beginning of June.

This latest disaster more particularly illustrates the heavy task involved in holding the railway. This body of some 500 British troops without guns which disappeared so completely within 35 miles of the great British army had for its business to guard a section of nearly 90 miles of railway between Bloemfontein and Springfontein. If it could thus be spirited away, how is Lord Roberts to insure his continually extending communications?

Other pertinent questions are being asked as a result of these successive "unfortunate occurrences." The foremost is, Why do not the British troops intrench? It is argued that if this had been done even 500 men might have held out until re-enforcements had arrived.

The following is the text of Lord Roberts' dispatch to the war office announcing the capture of five companies of his troops, dated Bloemfontein, April 5:

"Another unfortunate occurrence has taken place, resulting, I fear, in the capture of a party of infantry consisting of three companies of the Royal Irish fusileers and two companies of the Ninth regiment of mounted infantry near Reddersburg, a little eastward of Bethany railway station, within a few miles of this place. They were surrounded by a strong force of the enemy with four or five guns. The detachment held out from before noon April 3 until 9 a. m. April 4 and then apparently surrendered, for it is reported that the firing ceased at that time. Immediately after I heard the news, during the afternoon of April 3, I ordered Gatacre to proceed from Springfontein, his present headquarters, to Reddersburg with all possible speed, and I dispatched the Cameron highlanders hence to Bethany. He arrived at Reddersburg at 10:30 yesterday morning without opposition, but could get no news of the missing detachment. There can be no doubt the whole party has been made prisoners."

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Bloemfontein, April 5:

"Methuen telegraphs from Boshof (in the Orange Free State, a little northeast of Kimberley) as follows:

"'Surrounded General Villebois Mareuil and a body of Boers today. None escaped. Villebois and 7 Boers killed, 8 wounded, 50 prisoners.' Our losses were: Killed, Captains Boyle and Williams, both of the yeomanry, and two men of the yeomanry; wounded, about seven men.

"'The attack lasted four hours. The corps behaved very well. Our force was composed of yeomanry, the Kimberley Mounted corps and the Fourth battery of artillery.'"

The Daily Telegraph has the following from Boshof, dated Thursday:

"Lord Methuen's Mafeking relief force was concentrated here today. The Boers are in force a few miles distant on the Vaal river. This town is practically deserted, all the men being with the commando under Commandant Duplessis, who controls the district.

"Lord Methuen commanded in a spirited little action to the southeast, where he surrounded 70 Boers on a kopje. Not a man escaped. We took 54 prisoners, 60 horses and a quantity of baggage. General de Villebois was killed during the action.

"A Boer hoisted a white flag and then fired immediately after, killing a British officer. The murderer was instantly shot."

The Pretoria correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing Thursday, says:

"Colonel Plumer's force is returning north."

It is asserted that 4,000 rebels surrendered during General Clements' northward march. The Boers will do their utmost to hold Ladybrand and Thaba N'Chu, both being rich grain producing districts.

A correspondent of The Morning Post at Springfontein, telegraphing Thursday, says he is glad to be able to report that increased precautions are being taken in patrolling the railway.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Morning Post, telegraphing Thursday, says:

"The Boers are apparently making an attempt to redeem their promise to retake Bloemfontein. A considerable force has moved south through Thaba N'Chu. General Tucker's isolation at Karee is more apparent than real, since the open ground north of Bloemfontein offers small opportunity for Boer tactics. They may possibly engage him to distract attention from operations elsewhere. Remounts are anxiously awaited."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, telegraphing Thursday, says:

"A seditious meeting was summoned by Transvaal emissaries for today at Leeuwberg, but nobody attended.

"Boer patrols from Bradfort have cut the telegraph wires between here and Boshof.

"The British scouts reported yesterday that a force of from 12,000 to 18,000 Boers had been seen beyond Bosman's kop moving from Thaba N'Chu to the south. The enemy, by appeals and menaces combined, are vainly trying to induce the burghers to take the field again. The farmiers are more afraid of the Transvaalers than of the British."

A special dispatch from Kroonstadt, dated Monday, gives the last appeal of General de Villebois Mareuil to the French legions:

"To the legionaries who have known me as their comrade, officers, noncommissioned officers and men: I know you have not forgotten me and that we understand each other. Therefore, I appeal to you. There is here in front of the Vaal a people whom it is desired to rob of its rights, its properties and its liberty in order to satisfy some capitalists by its downfall.

"The blood that runs in the veins of this people is in part French blood. France, therefore, owes to it some striking manifestation of help. You are the men whom a soldier's temperament, apart from all the great obligations of nationality, has gathered under this people's flag, and may that flag bring with it the best of fortune to me. You are the finished type of a troop that attacks and knows not retreat."

Villebois Mourned In Paris.

PARIS, April 7.—The news of the death of General de Villebois Mareuil was posted in the chamber of deputies and senate and caused a painful impression. The deceased officer had many friends in the parliamentary world, and his graphic letters communicated from time to time to the Paris papers by the members of his family had been eagerly read.

Boer Prisoners In a Sorry Condition.

SIMON'S TOWN, Cape Colony, April 7.—Another batch of 1,300 Boer prisoners was removed Thursday morning from the transport Cambridge. The men presented a woe begone appearance, many of them were sick, and their baggage consisted mostly of Kaffir blankets, canvas water bottles and cooking utensils. One of the prisoners died of smallpox, and four others are fatally ill.

British Expelled From Pretoria.

LOURENCO MARQUES, April 7.—According to advices from Pretoria, all British subjects have been ordered to quit Pretoria and Johannesburg immediately except some 400 who are permitted under a recent law to remain in the Rand. Those who are expelled number about 600. The prisoners and guns taken at Sannas Post have arrived at Pretoria.

HAWAIIAN BILL PASSED.

House Will Call Up Porto Rican Bill Wednesday Next.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The house, after four days of debate, yesterday passed the substitute for the senate bill providing for a territorial form of government for Hawaii. The bill now goes to conference. The most interesting feature of the day's proceedings was the attempt of Mr. Hill of Connecticut to secure the adoption of two amendments, one providing for a resident commissioner instead of a delegate in congress and the other declaring that nothing in the act should be interpreted as a pledge of statehood. Both were overwhelmingly defeated.

Representative Payne of New York, floor leader of the majority of the house and chairman of the ways and means committee, announced that the Porto Rican tariff bill would be called up next Wednesday. He said the time limit to be placed on the debate had not been decided upon. The vote might be taken on Wednesday.

Senator Deboe of Kentucky gave notice that he would move to refer the credentials of former Senator J. C. S. Blackburn as a senator from that state to the committee on privileges and elections. During the greater part of the session the senate had under consideration the Indian appropriation bill. Early in the day Mr. Sullivan of Mississippi delivered a speech in favor of the seating of Hon. M. S. Quay.

Senator Lodge introduced amendments to the army appropriation bill giving to the commanding officer of the army the rank of lieutenant general and to the adjutant general the rank of major general and Senator Pettus an amendment providing for the employment by contract of dental surgeons for the army at the rate of one to each 1,000 men in the army.

Large Public Bequests.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 7.—The will of Mrs. Alice M. Rice was filed here in the probate court, in which there are public bequests that will aggregate several hundred thousand dollars. Bowdoin college receives $25,000 to be used as a memorial fund to the husband of the testatrix. Worcester Polytechnic institute receives $5,000 in trust to be added to a similar sum at the termination of a life estate invested in Mrs. Ruth Hoar, a sister of the deceased. The Temporary Home and Day Nursery society of this city is given $10,000, less certain sums advanced to the society. The sum of $10,000 additional is left in trust to the same society, the income to be paid to its matron during her lifetime. The Church of the Unity, whose first pastor was Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, receives in trust $10,000.

Two More Loan Companies Go Down.

ATLANTA, April 7.—Two building and loan associations passed into the hands of receivers here yesterday, making three in as many days. The court procedure in each case was the same, receivers being appointed by Judge Don A. Pardee of the United States circuit court for the home office, while ancillary receivers were named in the states in which the concerns did business. It is claimed that in each case the action taken was the result of mutual understanding and the cause of the receiverships the same—adverse decision by courts in the matter of taxation.

Shot Without Premeditation.

BRUSSELS, April 7.—The police investigation into the outrage upon the Prince of Wales shows that Jean Baptiste Sipido, his assailant, acted without premeditation. Sipido was under the influence of companions who had urged him against his will to commit the outrage.

Big Beet Sugar Plant In Lyons, N. Y.

LYONS, N. Y., April 7.—Ground was broken here yesterday for the Empire State Sugar company's 500 ton beet sugar plant, the first modern beet sugar plant in the state.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Volume For Last Quarter Larger Than For Same Period Last Year.

NEW YORK, April 7.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Only twice in 23 years would such failures as those of the first quarter of 1900 have seemed large. They are large compared with last year and 1898 and would have looked large in 1888. The amount of liabilities, $56,677,055, includes $21,161,000 for the United States Flour Milling company and $2,492,482 for 16 banks and other financial corporations, leaving 2,894 commercial failures, with $33,022,572 liabilities.

Quarterly reviews today show that outside the immediate effects of stock speculation and industrial consolidations the volume of business has been larger this year than a year ago. At that time the extensive rise in wages which followed combination in many cases had not yet taken place, and the purchasing power of the people was smaller than it is now.

A little increase in foreign exports of wheat from Atlantic ports, flour included, 2,208,622 bushels against 2,074,769 last year, served as occasion for a little rise in price, though the close is only a quarter of a cent higher for the week.

Corn exports, 3,895,915 bushels against 3,412,489 last year, for the week showed not much greater gain, while receipts were over 1,000,000 bushels larger than last year, but the price rose 3 cents.

No change has come in cotton goods this week, though dealings for the future are hindered. Business in woolens is also somewhat unsatisfactory, with cancellations comparatively numerous and orders smaller than were expected.

The steel sheet consolidation, with President McMurtry of the Apollo works at the head, promises great importance. If this, the Tin Plate, Hoop and National Steel works make alliance with the Carnegie company, as is reported, the whole industry will sooner or later be affected.

DEWEY TALKS AGAIN.

Still a Democrat, but Never Voted In His Life.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Admiral and Mrs. Dewey returned to Washington at 8:30 o'clock last night from their brief visit to Philadelphia. They expressed themselves as greatly pleased with their reception. A number of reporters were at the house awaiting his return. In response to a question the admiral said that he expected to have in a few days ready for the press his plans for the future which he indicated his intention to make.

"Can you confirm the statement you are credited with making that you are a Democrat?" persisted one of the reporters.

"Certainly I am a Democrat," he replied. "I always have been a Democrat," he added smilingly.

"Have you ever voted the Democratic ticket?"

"No. I never voted in my life. The only man I ever wanted to vote for was Mr. Cleveland."

"It is said that Mr. Cleveland wants you to run on a straight gold Democratic platform."

"Good night," answered the admiral without answering the question and retiring.

Monday next the admiral and Mrs. Dewey will move into their country house at Beauvoir which they have taken for the summer.

No Orders For Otis.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The statement is made in authoritative quarters that no order has been given as yet to Major General Otis to relinquish his command in the Philippines and return to the United States. These steps are left in a measure at least to the general's discretion, and he is to determine just when he feels it proper for him to leave his post of duty in the islands on the leave of absence the war department has promised him. General Otis has been absent from his family for a long time, and the opinion is expressed that he is entitled to a respite from the long and arduous labors with which he has been engrossed since his departure from the United States. He will turn over the command to the next general officer now on duty in the Philippines, General MacArthur.

Baggage Thief Arrested.

TOLEDO, April 7.—Fred Burmeister, aged 50 years, of Buffalo, baggageman on a Lake Shore train running between here and Buffalo, was arrested on the arrival of his train from the east yesterday, charged with having rifled baggage in transit. The complaint is made by John L. Freeman, general baggage agent of the Lake Shore, who says that Burmeister's depredations have been going on for the past two years. The detectives and Freeman say that Burmeister has admitted his guilt. In a satchel found with the accused were goods said to be valued at $3,000 and which, it is alleged, were taken by him from trunks in transit.

IN BECKHAM'S FAVOR

Kentucky Court of Appeals Hands Down Its Decision.

TAYLOR'S COUNSEL WILL APPEAL.

General Assembly Alone Held to Have the Power to Determine a Contested Election For Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 7.—The court of appeals has handed down its decision in the gubernatorial contest in favor of Beckham, Judge Durell dissenting. The other two Republican judges, Burnam and Guffy, handed down a separate opinion, which differed in its reasons from the opinion of the Democratic judges, but agreed with them in its conclusion. Judge Hobson, one of the four Democratic judges, wrote the opinion of the majority of the court, affirming the decision of Judge Field of Louisville.

It recites the work of the state canvassing board and of the contest proceedings in the legislature and all subsequent proceedings and continues:

"We have no more right to supervise the decision of the general assembly in determining the result of this election than we have to supervise the action of the governor in calling a special session of the legislature or in pardoning a criminal, or the action of the legislature in contracting debts or determining upon the election of its members or doing any other act authorized by the constitution. There is no conflict between the action of the state canvassing board and that of the legislature in these cases. The state canvassing board was without power to go behind the returns. They were not authorized to hear evidence and determine who was in truth elected, but were required to give a certificate of election to those who on the face of the returns had received the highest number of votes.

"For the state board to have received evidence to impeach the returns before them would have been for them, in effect, to act as a board for contesting the election, and if they had done this they would have usurped the power vested in the general assembly by the constitution, for by its express terms only the general assembly can determine a contested election for governor and lieutenant governor.

"We are, therefore, unable to see how this case can be distinguished from any other legislative action, taken in a matter over which the constitution has given the legislature exclusive jurisdiction, and we are, therefore, of the opinion that the court is without jurisdiction to go behind the record made by the legislature under the constitution. Such a record seems to us entitled to every presumption in its favor which the records of this court, kept under its supervision, would be entitled to receive at the hands of the legislature in a matter before it."

Ex-Governor W. O. Bradley, chief counsel for Governor Taylor, has authorized the statement that an appeal on behalf of Governor Taylor and Lieutenant Governor Marshall will be carried to the supreme court of the United States. Mr. Bradley and Judge W. H. Yost, counsel for the Republican state officers, were in consultation with Governor Taylor for several hours last night, and the above statement was made at the close of the conference.

GOEBEL'S KILLING.

Attorneys State Alleged Confessions Which Implicate Taylor.

LOUISVILLE, April 7.—The full story of the assassination of Senator Goebel, as formulated by the Goebel attorneys, was given out by them today. It is a detailed statement of the killing as told by various witnesses for the commonwealth before the grand jury. The statement in part is as follows:

Jim Howard, the Clay county feudist, is the man suspected by the commonwealth of having fired the shot, which came from a 38 caliber Marlin rifle, furnished by Henry E. Youtsey, who bought the steel bullet and smokeless powder cartridge from a well known Cincinnati house. It is charged in the confessions that have been made that Caleb and John Powers, Charles Finley and two or three others whose names are known helped in the conspiracy, and that Jim and Berry Howard, Youtsey, Culton and one or two others, each having his special part, executed it. The story has many ramifications; all the minor details could only be brought out after weeks of questioning and cross questioning of the numerous witnesses.

Youtsey implicates Governor W. S. Taylor, asserting that he was one of eight or nine men who knew of this end of the conspiracy, which was carried out in Caleb Powers' office. The men he implicated are W. S. Taylor, Caleb Powers, John L. Powers, Charles Finley, W. H. Culton, Jim Howard, probably Berry Howard, one other man and Youtsey himself.

The Beef Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The secretary of war has sent to the senate the original record of the proceedings of the military court which conducted the beef inquiry of last year. This was done in response to a resolution calling for a copy of the record. The secretary explains that the record covers 4,700 typewritten pages, and to copy it would, he says, occupy the time of two copyists for six months.

City Hall Needed and Wanted.

Plainfield needs and wants a City Hall. The sentiment of the majority of the people of Plainfield is favorable to the project now the same as it has been ever since the enterprise has been under consideration, which covers a period of four years. The great majority of citizens who desire to see this improvement made expect to see a slight increase in the tax rate as a result, but it is something which they realize will be worth all and more than what it will cost, inasmuch as the expense will be spread over a long period of years. Improvements of all kinds cost money, but giving them practical, honest consideration the expense is either favored or opposed by the degree of service and benefit which will accrue to the city. In this case it is favored because the demands and needs of the public are satisfied and served by it.

Those who are against the consummation of the City Hall idea in the immediate future do not deny the claim that such a building will be of advantage to the city, but they quibble and falter over a nominal expense that will be so moderate that it will scarcely be felt while it is being liquidated. Many of the obstructionists, however, are not fair or just in their attitude. Selfish interests are inducing them to lend their influence to block the improvement. For instance, we believe that were the chances favorable for the proposed municipal building being located on the south side of the railroad tracks much of the present opposition would be dissipated at once. This class of obstructionists are not looking to see that the interests of the whole community are conserved and benefitted, but are figuring to direct the expenditure of public money so that it will be of close benefit to them. The position of the News is this. Up till the time it was practically assured that if the City Hall was built it would be located on Front street, the News was for it in earnest. When Bunion realized that the building would probably not be located on Park avenue he commenced his opposition, and the reasons that have induced his change of position are the same as are urging on the majority of the other opponents.

The majority of the Common Council should not give such influence as that much consideration.

Not the least of the interesting phases of the Fowler-Bergen controversy over the Congressional honors in the Eighth district—so far as Republican nomination goes—is the stand that the Elizabeth Journal has taken in the matter. The Journal is among the most conservative newspapers in the State, and from a partisan standpoint it has seldom taken an aggressive or positive position in factional fights in its own party. In this Congressional squabble, however, it has thrown away its peace-loving wand and is vigorously engaged in opposing the renomination of Mr. Fowler by doing its utmost to advance the interests of Mr. Bergen. It is unusual conduct for Editor McBride, and therefore is affording one of the most lively parts of the political fight. Heretofore the Journal has been content to let factional fights be settled by conventions without its taking any part in the preliminary skirmishes, but it is now singing a different editorial tune.

Yesterday's issue of the News disappointed us. We expected that Congressman Fowler's interview, in which he issued a defi to Senator John Kean and all others who opposes his ambition for a fourth term, would be a signal for Bunion to come out with one of his characteristic tirades of billingsgate against the Congressman—just by the way of teaching the Congressman the great mistake (?) that he made in not recommending Bunion for Postmaster of Plainfield when the latter begged him to do so. But Bunion treated the Congressman with more consideration than we expected. His editorial on the interview was not a bit like Bunion. But Mr. Fowler must not allow false hopes to arise as a result of this, for Bunion surely has got it "in" for him and at the proper time he will be served up to the News readers in characteristic Bunion style.

A reading of the account of the proceedings of the Borough Council last night, printed in the news columns of The Daily Press today, evidences the fact that Mayor Smalley has got his dander up about several things that concern the good government of the borough. One of the important subjects that he dealt with in vigorous language to the Council was the disgraceful failure of the Plainfield Street Railway Company to properly sprinkle Somerset street and thereby obviate the prevalence of great clouds of blinding and suffocating dust that fills the air every time a trolley car goes bowling along that thoroughfare. At this time every year the dust nuisance, as created by the trolley company, is a positive disgrace to both the city and borough, and we are glad to see Mayor Smalley handle the subject as he did last night. It is to be hoped that the criticism and admonition of the Mayor will have the effect of putting an end to the dust nuisance.

The Jersey City Journal refers to the fact that "Union county is the youngest county in the State, but during its forty-odd years of existence it has had the good fortune to be represented at Trenton by men of such ability that it has been out of proportion to its age or size. The delegation that was sent to the Legislature this year was no exception." And then The Journal dilates briefly upon what it considers the good points in the legislative record of Senator Cross and the three Assemblymen, and has this pleasant, complimentary reference to the Plainfield Assemblyman: "Mr. Foote made few speeches, but those he made showed much ability and a thorough comprehension of his duty. He will be a prominent member of next year's House."

Editor Rollinson, of the Rahway Advocate, who roasted Bunion, of the News, to a crisp on the editorial griddle on two different occasions, displays a half-heartedness in his attitude to our esteemed editorial contemporay that is surprising at this stage of the game. This week's Advocate says:

The editor of the Advocate presents his most distinguished consideration to the editor of the Plainfield News, and retires with such grace as is possible from a contest of abuse, recognizing the hopelessness thereof with such a past master of that art as F. W. Bunyon.

Now hear Bunion crow.

The Philadelphia Times observes that since Senator Hanna is generally admitted to be the greatest President maker—if not the maker of the greatest President—in the annals of this glorious republic, the invitation extended to William McKinley to be one of the judges to choose the names of the greatest Americans for the Hall of Fame is obviously embarrassing, and its acceptance would involve a most harrassing conflict between gratitude and modesty.

Dewey says he wants to be President, but—who else says so! In the matter of President, it takes several to make a bargain.

ROYAL Baking Powder
Absolutely Pure

Makes hot breakfast-breads wholesome—no yeast germs, no alum. Makes cake, biscuit and pastry of superior fineness, flavor and delicacy. Makes food that will keep moist and sweet. Is most economical, because it is the purest and greatest in leavening strength. In the easy, expeditious preparation of the finer cakes and pastries appropriate to the season, Royal is indispensable.

Care must be taken to avoid baking powders made from alum. Such powders are sold cheap, because they cost but a few cents per pound. Not only will they spoil the cake, but alum is a corrosive acid, which taken in food means injury to health.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Rahway has a woman's club, a peculiar feature of which is that the poor unfortunate member who at the lunch table is the first to declare that she can eat no more has to wash the dishes It is said to be simply marvellous how those girls' appetites have developed and, what is still more peculiar, it is asserted that the smallest member exhibits the best staying qualities, and the largest girl is the one who thus far has been the first to cry "quits."

When the pitit jury panel for the April term was called for the first time in New Brunswick this week John K. Dill, of Old Bridge, failed to answer to his name.

"Mark him excused," said Justice Collins. "I have received a note from him in which he says that he is the only blacksmith in the village and that all the farmers will be put behind in their spring work if he is not there to fix up their ploughs and harrows and shoe horses.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

A City Hall Park.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I wish to lift my voice in favor of what seems to me to be a great and long-needed improvement. As we are all aware that our city has the reputation, and is, one of the most handsome, healthful, convenient and pleasantly located cities in the State, and that our churches, schools, police and fire department are second to none, yet, in my estimation, need a suitable place for our city government—its offices, Council chambers, court-rooms, jail, etc. The Gardner property—it is large enough to have a beautiful building put in the centre of it, about 50 or 60 feet from the sidewalk. The grounds about it could be ornamented and laid out to the brook. This would give us a breathing place in the centre of a business district, and, if necessary, a place for band concerts, etc. I would go further and suggest that we buy the property and add to the City Hall grounds. The raceway could be spanned with a rustic bridge, and the whole be made into a nice little park, by having the low places in the rear part of the lots filled and leveled by the refuse that is taken from our streets, which is now carted and dumped on private property, the city receiving no benefit. The Government is offering to every city of our size pieces of heavy ordnance to be placed in public grounds, which can be had for the asking. All of this would go toward making our City Hall site still more up-to-date and a beautiful resting-place in the business centre. I hope the city will build a City Hall and not have it on the building line, but have it set back so that the grounds can be ornamented.

the present and that one be put in from Jackson avenue to Greenbrook road. This would relieve the street so that the lower end of the street if widened could take care of itself. This improvement, Mr. Smalley said, could be made at an expense of $2,500. He was pronounced in his opinion that something should be done at once, and he instructed Mr. Reed to draw a petition to be signed by property owners favoring the improvement. This will be presented at the meeting April 20th when further steps will be taken in the matter.

Before the Council adjourned Mr. Smalley referred to two bills of $30 each for the use of two places on Somerset street for election purposes. He stated that last year these two places were rented for $70, which he considered sufficient pay for two days. He said the bills would be held out until they were adjusted properly.

New Things For

EASTER

Many Novelties In the Way Of Gowns and Hats Which the New Yorkers Think Very Chic.

:: BY MAUD BAUME ROBINSON. ::

Gown of green taffeta leaf embroidery over fawn colored silk; trimming of fawn colored crepe de chine. Border shows the new "medaillon" applique.

The wise and the foolish are both clustering about the shop windows with this difference—the foolish are buying every Easter novelty in sight, and the wise are content to look on and gather ideas for the remodeling of their last year's gowns. The clever woman does not buy her things at the beginning of the season. She waits for the fashions to calm down a bit.

There is need of such caution this year, for the styles have never been more extravagant.

This is very noticeable, for instance, in the long cloaks. They are made of peau de soie, of satin, of taffeta embroideries over net, of black lace, and some are even spangled. If they fasten merely with long ends of velvet ribbon instead of chiffon scarfs, the ribbon is often ornamented with rows of white silk stitching.

However, in spite of the fact that many are so overtrimmed as to appear grotesque, one point has been gained; the ugly loose back has disappeared.

It seems to be the proper thing this year either to wear an infinitesimal jacket composed of tucks and embroideries or to be swathed from head to foot in a mass of clinging silk and chiffon ruffling. Even the tailor made suits are mere compromises. Many of the shops display jackets and skirts of taffeta richly embroidered.

The other day I saw a very striking costume on a girl who was riding down Fifth avenue. The hat, the parasol and the three-quarter length coat were all of the same material, silvery gray taffeta embroidery over a rather deep shade of castor peau de soie. The hat was a mass of soft folds worn off the face, the only trimming a big plaited rosette of castor chiffon and a gold buckle. The coat was outlined by a ruffle of the same plaited chiffon, and so was the edge of the parasol.

By her side, sitting very straight, was a little "bat eared" bulldog. He also obeyed the latest dictates of fashion. His blanket of black broadcloth was lined with deep yellow satin, and on the left hand corner his name appeared beautifully embroidered in gold thread.

What shall we unfortunate women do about our belts? We have been racking our brains to make them stay down in front, and they won't do it. No, not even if they are elaborately boned and fastened with ribbons, which can be let out, but which never are. I think that is the main trouble. The average woman wears her belt so tight that it cannot help creeping up. There is a friend of mine whose waist line always preserves the correct "dip." At last, in despair, I asked her how she managed. What do you suppose the clever girl had done? Made a little pocket on the inside of her belt immediately in front and slipped into it a leaden coin. The beauty of the idea is that it works both for leather and for silk belts.

There is no doubt of it. This is the reign of the spangle. It is a perfect craze. We need not be surprised if we awake some morning to find spangled corsets and gloves the rage. And the appliques! Some gowns are fairly incrusted with many layers.

For street wear dresses are to take the place of suits as much as possible. There is a new fancy material very silky and soft called embroidered crepe barege. Then there are the crepons and veilings which promise to be far more popular than foulard. The plain, soft material is so much more effective in the new tucked skirts. Challie in dainty Persian effects has again come to the front. I was shown a gown of this material in pink, white and green. The principal trimming was a wide folded belt of pink panne velvet buttoning on the left side with three large cut steel buttons.

The spring colors are so delicate that the up to date girl will have a hard time to keep herself looking neat and trim. I suppose the odor of naphtha will again make itself felt—I was going to say heard—in the land. That is what happened the other day in a crowded Broadway car. It became overpowering. Even the men raised their heads from their newspapers and sniffed in a wild endeavor to locate it. Finally the indignant gaze of the entire car became centered on a ragged fellow who was jealously guarding a suspicious looking basket. I knew better. Right in front of me sat a resplendent young creature in a pearl gray broadcloth and immaculate white kid gloves. I could have wagered my last dollar that she was the culprit.

A curious renewal of an old style is a black taffeta gown made of tiny scalloped ruffles, the edges of the scallops being bound with a cording of pale pink silk. With this dress belongs a pink parasol covered with black lace figures appliqued over darker pink.

The other day I read in a magazine which prides itself on being up to date the following announcement: "The greatest piece of news is the return of the bustle." I rather lost my patience at that and voted the writer slow.

"Why, it seems to me we have been wearing them for the last year!" I exclaimed to a friend of mine.

"You had better go out into the street and look at the people," she said.

I did so, and I have come to the conclusion that there are still a good many people for whom the return of the bustle would be a piece of news. That a woman can wear a box plaited skirt without any pad whatsoever must be simply due to the fact that she cannot see her own back. If she could! If she could!

POPULAR IN MICHIGAN.

Senator McMillan, His Friends Say, Still Rules the Republican Party of That State.

Since the death of "Old Zach" Chandler Senator James McMillan has been the head of the republican party in Michigan. Gen. Alger and Gov. Pingree, it was said awhile ago, had formed a combination to beat him, but so far he has held his own against all opponents. Born in Hamilton, Ont., May 12, 1838, he removed to Detroit in 1855, and since that time has been actively associated with important interests. He entered at once upon a business life, and in 1863 engaged in the manufacture of railroad cars. With others he was successful in building up several large manufacturing establishments in Detroit. Senator McMillan is also interested in railroads and steamboats, and when elected to the senate was president of the Michigan Car company, the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic Railroad company, and the Detroit and Cleveland Steam Navigation company.

Before starting in business for himself Senator McMillan was purchasing agent for a small Michigan railroad on a slim salary. In this work he got his start with which to begin business on his own account. He was elected to the senate in 1889 and reelected in 1895, receiving the unanimous vote of the legislature. There was but one democrat in the legislature that year, and he joined with the republicans in voting for Senator McMillan, as a recognition of his services to the state independent of partisan politics.

TROPICAL FRUIT BATS.

They Are Destructive Creatures, Sometimes Measuring Five Feet from Tip to Tip.

The agricultural department at Washington is taking precautions to prevent the importation into the United States of any of the animal pests which are found in Porto Rico the Philippines and other new colonies. Among these none is more feared than the great fruit bats which abound in the Philippines. A full-grown specimen of the fruit bat measures five feet from tip to tip of its wings. The fruit bats live together in immense communities and feed almost altogether on tropical and subtropical fruits. They crowd together so thickly on the trees that sometimes large branches are broken down by their weight. In Australia they have increased so rapidly that great sums of money have been spent in their destruction, one organized movement of the fruit growers of New South Wales recently resulting in the killing of 100,000 bats at a cost of 30 cents each. Another possible immigrant which is much dreaded is the mongoose, which abounds in Cuba, Porto Rico and the other West Indian islands. The mongoose was first brought to the islands for the purpose of destroying the rats and mice, which it did so thoroughly that it was soon forced to adapt itself to another diet. It was found that the mongoose thrived on young poultry, birds, and even young pigs and lambs, while it also consumed great quantities of pineapples, bananas, corn and other vegetable products.

Long-Armed Girls Wanted.

The biggest telephone company in Kansas City is short of operators, and the reason of this is that most of the girls who have applied for positions have not been tall enough. Hereafter a girl who does not measure five feet six inches in height will not be employed. The company has learned that short girls have short arms, and girls with short arms cannot do the work as well as those with long arms. The present intention of the company is to get a sufficient number of long-armed girls and then endeavor to keep them.

Sacred Banyan Trees.

Among the numerous things considered sacred in India is the banyan tree, one of the fig genus, remarkable for its vast rooting branches. The horizontal branches send down shoots which take root when they reach the ground and enlarge into trunks, which in their turn send out branches.

BRAVE LITTLE BUGLER.

John Francis Dunne Honored by the Queen and Licensed by the People of England.

One of the proudest boys in the British empire is John Francis Dunne, bugler of the First battalion, Royal Dublin fusileers. He was wounded at the battle of Colenso on December 15, but was one of the first to cross the Tugela river, losing his bugle in the fight. On his return to England he was summoned to Osborne, where the queen presented to him a silver bugle, inscribed: "Presented to Bugler John Francis Dunne, First battalion, Royal

(John Francis Dunne Borne Through the Streets of Portsmouth.)

Dublin fusileers, by Queen Victoria, to replace the bugle lost by him on the field of battle at Colenso on the 15th December, 1899, when he was wounded." His companions thought that he would probably be more afraid to face the queen than the enemy, but he stood firmly to his guns and came off with flying colors.

The queen asked him about his health, and whether he had fully recovered from his wound, and seemed to be pleased with the frank and manly manner in which the little soldier acted, and accepted with evident pleasure the framed portrait of himself which he presented to her. In the room where the little fellow had to wait—and, according to one account, this was in the basement of the palace—he was surrounded by servants from various departments, who were all anxious to see and speak to the young soldier. And then ladies from other parts of the building came and brought their birthday books, which the bugler was asked to sign against the date of his birth, July 14; and before the summons came to appear before the queen he had held a levee in the basement on his own account.

NEW SENATE SECRETARY.

Charles G. Bennett, Recently Elected, Is a Young Man of More Than Ordinary Abilities.

The new secretary of the United States senate, Hon. Charles Goodwin Bennett, is an exceptionally young man to have been elected to such an honorable and important office. But worth is often recognized before years and white hairs announce the period when confidence may be placed with surety. Mr. Bennett was born in the city of Brooklyn, December 11, 1863. He has always resided there, though his law offices are located in New York. He was elected to the Fifty-fourth congress and then to the Fifty-fifth congress, as a republican. His term of office expired on the 4th of March last. His office of secretary of the senate imposes upon him exceptional duties of trust. In addition to the responsibility of the detailed business of the senate, he is also the disbursing officer for all the expenditures involving the pay of senators, committee work and a large corps of clerks and other employes. Mr. Bennett succeeds Gen. William P. Cox, of North Carolina, who, since August, 1893, performed with so much ability and satisfaction the duties of the office.

Cuba and Porto Rico.

The preliminary figures of the newly completed census of Cuba and Porto Rico show a total population for Cuba of 1,572,845, a loss from 1887 of 55,842. The population of Porto Rico is 957,000, which is an increase of 150,300 over the census of 1887. The largest Cuban province is Havana, which has 424,311 inhabitants, a falling off of 27,000 in 12 years. The next largest is Santa Clara, which, with its 356,534 residents, shows an increase of 2,000. Santiago has gained about as much as Pinar del Rio has lost, says the Army and Navy Journal. The former province returns a population of 327,716, an increase of 55,337, while Pinar has fallen from 225,891 to 173,082. Matanzas has dropped from 259,578 to 202,462. The smallest province in point of population is Porto Principe, to which the census gives 88,237 inhabitants, a gain of 21,000.

QUALITY SUPREME.

That is the Rule by Which Fred Endress Runs His Meat Market.

Among educated people it is worth much to know that the food that they eat is above reproach in every particular. It is such people that Fred Endress, the West Front street butcher, serves and his standard is—quality supreme. The entire plant is always open for inspection, a cordial invitation is extended to the public to an investigation of the methods and surroundings. The plant is a model—light, airy, clean and convenient with the best mechanical appointments. Perfect equipments, absolutely wholesome food abd neat, skilled workmen all contribute to the excellence of the goods found at this market.

The papers throughout the country are filled with articles as to what and what not to eat. Such advice is good for some, but not all. There are no two stomachs alike, and what is one man's meat may be another man's poison. Hence it is always best to take the advice of your physician. In this case you can consult Mr. Endress. The meat he sells is known to be healthful, and he can give you just the kind you need or your physician prescribes. Mr. Endress makes his own ice and the refrigeration is perfect. Besides the choicest kind of meat, he also keeps fresh and smoked fish and delicacies. An inspection of this place will convince you that the market is the ideal of perfection. You pay no more for the goods here, and you have the advantage of knowing that everything is as it should be—first-class.

Reunion of Veterans.

A great time is expected and Governor Voorhees, together with a number of other State dignitaries, have promised to be present. Among those who expect to attend from this city are William Hand, T. O. Doane, J. A. Goodwin, W. W. Coriell and Isaac Randolph.

WATER MAIN BROKE.

Cave in Cellar on Somerset Street Resulted in Lively Young Flood This Morning.

There was an abundance of city water in Somerset street this morning owing to a break in the water main that runs in from the street along side of the property owned by Surrogate Spencer. Adjoining this property work was started this week digging a cellar for a building that is to be erected by Mr. Eggerding, of Park avenue. This morning the ground caved in on the side next to the Spencer property and it severed the water pipe at a joint. Word was sent to the Water Company and a gang of men was put to work at once repairing the break. It was necessary to dig a trench the entire width of the street to reach the pipe, and this required considerable time.

In the meantime the water ran freely into the street, in some places nearly covereding it. The work of repairing that side of the cellar which caved in will take a day or two.

CHOKED HIS TENANT.

So Justice Mosher Held Chris. Becker for the Grand Jury.

Chris. Becker was before Justice Mosher yesterday afternoon charged with assaulting Isaac Shrager, a tailor of Madison avenue. The tailor alleged that Becker, of whom he rents a store, choked him because he attempted to interfere with his landlord taking up a boardwalk in the yard adjoining the tailor shop. The defendant admitted that he had choked the little tailor, but claimed that the latter had threatened him. Justice Mosher held Becker to await the action of the Grand Jury.

CAN'T GET THE STORE.

Sisser's Saloon on Somerset Street May Not be Opened for a Time.

Mr. Sisser, who recently was given a license to sell liquor in the Charles Bock building on the bridge on Somerset street, has not yet opened the saloon, and the chances are that he will not at once. The place he wants is now occupied by the Plainfield Bottling Association and that concern has no desire to vacate. Inasmuch as the association has a lease on the place they are likely to remain where they are. The tenants of the adjoining stores, a pool room and a barber shop, are perfectly satisfied and do not want to move.

Another report is to the effect that Mr. Bock wants to go into partnership with Sisser, but that the latter does not want a partner. The outcome of the trouble will be watched with interest.

HEARING ON THE CITY HALL THIS EVENING.

Common Council Will Try to Learn How the Public Feels Toward the Project.

THE QUESTION OF A SITE.

THAT WILL DETERMINE ATTITUDE OF SOME COUNCILMEN.

The Hearing is Expected to be a Lively One, and the City Hall Advocates Ought to be on Hand in Full Force.

No definite action on the subject of a new City Hall need be expected at the meeting of the Common Council this evening. When the Council adjourned last week it was to this evening for the purpose of a public hearing to hear arguments for and against the City Hall project. If anything like the number of people are present at the hearing as have declared their intention of doing so, the time will be pretty well taken up. Both sides will be represented.

While most of the Councilmen admit that a public hearing is no real guide to the sentiment of the people, it looks as if the hearing tonight would have a very important bearing on the future acts of the Council concerning the City Hall. When asked what course they intended to pursue regarding the proposed building of the City Hall, several of the Councilmen have said that while they personally favored a new municipal building for Plainfield, they wanted to see what the sentiment of the people was as expressed at the public hearing tonight. So it is that the advocates of the new City Hall and the opposition will rally their forces tonight.

What action on the City Hall question may be expected from the Council is impossible to say. The important question of the proper site seems to have effectively split up the ranks of the supporters of the City Hall project. Opinions are divided on the subject and so far all efforts to unite the factions have been without success. Councilman Dumont has stood from the very first against the proposition. Other Councilmen have declared that if the site they believe is the only practicable one is not chosen, they will vote with Mr. Dumont against the location of the City Hall anywhere else.

There has been some criticism of the course of Mr. Dumon't part of which one of the Councilmen, who has been most enthusiastic in his advocacy of the City Hall, says is unjust.

"While," he said, "I differ with Mr. Dumont on this subject, I know he is perfectly sincere in his opposition to the project. He opposed it from the very start and his action has been entirely consistent. Mr. Dumont is one of the most valuable men in the Council today and he has served the city long and faithfully. The city owes him a big debt of gratitude for all he has done and such criticisms as the that appeared in The Press from some man who hides beneath the nom de plume of "One Who Has No Axe To Grind" are very ill-timed. While I cannot agree with Mr. Dumont on the present issue, I do respect him and his opinions, and I firmly believe that if the Council decides to build a City Hall, Mr. Dumont will be a valuable man to help in arranging the details of the work."

If the supporters of the City Hall project are in earnest as undoubtedly they are, the public hearing tonight presents an opportunity that they should not fail to take advantage of. Heretofore there has been really nothing to do. There are several men in the Council who are favorably disposed toward a City Hill and who, if the hearing tonight shows a strong sentiment that way, are willing to stand by it and vote toward that end in the Council. The Councilman favoring the plan must not be expected to do all the talking. The object of the hearing is to get an expression of opinion from the citizens and if that is fairly accomplished, there can be no doubt but that a majority of the people of Plainfield do want a City Hall and want it at once.

FIREMEN KEPT BUSY.

THREE SMALL BLAZES CALLED OUT THE DEPARTMENT.

Washing Fluid Caused a Lively Time by Exploding in Jepp Ericsen's House Today.

The barn of Alonzo Aldrich, of 900 Sherman avenue, caught fire Saturday afternoon from burning grass. The fire department was notified by telephone by the young daughter of F. E. Kinsman, of Sherman avenue. The department responded and extinguished the flames after damage to the amount of $40 had been done. The loss is covered by insurance.

A spark from a locomotive set fire to the roof of a small house on East Fourth street, owned by John Rafferty, Sunday afternoon. An alarm was sent in from box 23 by John Albert at 1:50 o'clock. It was the third time in two years that the shingles of that house have blazed up from the same cause. The loss will reach $40, and is covered by insurance.

A drop of washing fluid fell on the stove in the kitchen of Jepp Ericsen, of 999 South avenue, this morning. It blazed up and set fire to the contents of the bottle in Mrs. Ericsen's hands. She threw the bottle which exploded, setting fire to the woodwork in the kitchen. An alarm was sent in at 7:55 from box 28 by Cox, a neighbor. When the firemen arrived, the kitchen was ablaze. A stream from the chemical engine extinguished the fire. The loss will reach $50. It is covered by insurance. Jepp Ericsen owns the house.

PULPIT ATTACK ON THE STOCK GAMBLERS

Rev. J. W. Richardson Preaches a Sermon Indulging in Severe Criticism.

WEAK AND POOR SUFFER.

BELIEVES THE MILLENIUM WILL COME IN NEXT HUNDRED YEARS.

Society as Now Organized Places a Premium on Ill-gotten Games, He Said—Stock Jobbers' Practice a Menace to Welfare of Community.

Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, preached an interesting and able sermon last evening on "Plain Talk About the Relation of the Classes to the Masses." His text was from Matthew 18: 14—"Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in Heaven that one of these little ones should perish."

Mr. Richardson began his discourse by alluding to the difficulty the average man had to make both ends meet in his effort to gain a livelihood and the fact that there was already a great cry raised against the capitalists and the corporations in general. As regards the theory that all men are equal he said that was not literally true—from the fact that some start in life much stronger than others, while others are better educated because of the advantages possessed by their parents.

God has furnished an abundance of everything but the selfishness of mankind crowds the weaker to one side which is contrary to God's teaching. We fail to observe the Golden Rule and the result is that the little ones who are the weaker are pushed to one side.

The speaker said that there was a tremendous transformation going on in society. One hundred years from now society will be completely changed. Brains and character will supercede selfishness and be superior to it in every respect. Character and not cash will then be the criterion and enduring manhood and womanhood will prevail. All this will be brought about through Christianity. In this connection Mr. Richardson took occasion to say that the time is approaching when there will be a more definite understanding between the employer and employe—a more respectful intercourse between man and man. When that time comes the clerk will be as respected as an Astor or a Vanderbelt.

The trusts and social strata of society came in for a good deal of criticism. Society as now organized, he said, places a premium on ill-gotten gains. Men are taught the value of wealth in order to obtain social standing in the community. The covetous and selfish disposition is brought about by the greed for this wealth, which is largely gained by producing fluctuations in the market. All this takes from the poor, who are the weak children of God. The consequence is the masses suffer for the benefit of the classes. For this grinding down of the poor these men will be compelled at the awful day of Judgment to face God and render an accounting for this modern method of gambling with the lives of his people.

Mr. Richardson's denunciation of the stock speculators was particularly scathing. He said that those who manipulated the stock, particularly stocks that directly affected the comforts of the poor, were a menace to the welfare of the community. It was the grip of despotism which caused sorrow in thousands of homes and precipitated much misery. The modern methods of dishonest extortion, he believed, caused oppression and was literally legalized embezzlement.

To remove or remedy the evil Mr. Richardson suggested that the people should use their prerogative and by law restrain the classes that puts the heavy burden upon the masses. This, he said, can be done by agitation that will bring about reformation and eventually change the infamous methods now in vogue by those who seek to crowd to the wall the weaker ones.

As Christians he urged his hearers to vote against any man who favors class-legislation. To demand that laws shall be enacted making it a State prison offense to so manipulate the products of that which we eat or wear as to produce extortionate prices; also to forbid the formation of trusts in coal, oil, etc. It lies entirely with the people to bring about the desired change. Legislation should be for the masses and not the classes. If we wish to restrain the heavy hand of oppression that is now holding the weaker ones in its iron grip that is worse than despotism.

ELIZABETH TROLLEY REALY THIS WEEK

Work on Westfield and Elizabeth Extension Progressing Rapidly.

THE WAY CARS MAY BE RUN.

PERHAPS DIRECT FROM THIS CITY TO ELIZABETHPORT.

North Jersey Traction Company May Allow Biker Line to Run Over West Jersey Street Exclusive. Ly in the Future.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 9.—The work of extending the tracks of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company on Jersey avenue, from the city line to corner West Jersey street, Elizabeth, is being pushed as fast as possible. The rails on the north side of the avenue are almost all laid, and the work of excavating on the south side has been begun.

By Saturday night of this week the contractor promises, weather permitting, to have both tracks in readiness for use. The poles for the wires are on the ground, ready to be set, and these are to be put in place early this week.

One of the contractors said Saturday he understood the cars were eventually to be run over the tracks of the North Jersey road on West Jersey street, as far as Broad street, and that the North Jersey Traction Company would practically give up the West Jersey street route.

He said he understood that the West Jersey street tracks had been leased by his company.

In case this was done, he said, he understood that the cars which now run to El Mora would be run down South Broad street; that the Newark cars would be run through Elizabeth avenue to First street, and through that thoroughfare as far as Broadway, and he had heard some talk of some of the First street cars being run to Plainfield.

KNOCKED FROM BICYCLE

COUNCILMAN ROGERS VICTIM OF A RECKLESS COACHMAN.

Came Near Receiving Serious Injury—His Wheel Wrecked and Wearing Apparel Damaged

Councilman George T. Rogers, of Washington Park, had a narrow escape from serious injury about 8 o'clock this morning at the corner of Park avenue and Second street. He was on his way the North Avenue Station riding his new wheel, when a horse and wagon owned by J. W. Muhrling, of 16 Rockview avenue, and driven by the coachman ran into him. Mr. Rogers was thrown from his wheel and for a few moments was rolling about in the street beneath the horses' feet and the wheels of the wagon. If he had not been unusually nimble he certainly would have sustained severe bodily injury. As it was his wheel was wrecked and his light spring overcoat and hat were practically ruined.

Those who saw the accident say that the coachman deliberately drove into Mr. Rogers or else was too ignorant to know how to drive. After Mr. Rogers collected himself he was the victim of abuse from the coachman, who wanted to know why he did not keep out of his way. Mr. Rogers made no reply, as he had to catch his train, and he preferred to settle the matter with the owner of the rig. Mr. Rogers took his wheel to a repair shop, where he hopes to have it put in condition so that he can ride it again.

OFFER MADE TO ANDREW RADEL

Asked to Accept the Presidency of the Brunswick Traction Company.

The directors of the Brunswick Traction Company have tendered to Andrew Radel, of Bridgeport, retiring president of the Bridgeport Traction Company, the position of president of that road, and Judge Krueger, of Newark, the present official head of the concern, has urged Mr. Radel to accept.

Mr. Radel has practically refused the offer, as his large and growing trolley interests in Connecticut and Rhode Island, where he owns valuable electric franchises, require all of his personal attention. However, the offer is open for three months, and it may be that, if Mr. Radel can so arrange his other business in New England, he will accept. He holds out no encouragement, however, to the directors, and wishes them to understand that he cannot take the place.

Patrolman McCarty has had his Eldridge wheel re-enameled and repaired, and it looks as good as new.

VENABLE'S "CLUB" RAIDED BY POLICE.

Interrupted an Exciting Crap Game That Was Being Played by Dusky Sports.

EIGHT MEN WERE ARRESTED

THEY ALL CLAIMED THAT THEY WERE NOT GAMBLING.

When Arraigned in Court This Morning All Pleaded Not Guilty and Were Released for Trial Next Friday Morning.

The police paid a visit Saturday evening to John Venable's club room on the third floor of the building, 140 2 Park avenue. They disturbed a quiet game of "craps" that was in progress. The participants declare it was only a friendly game and that there was "nothing doing." The police claim that money changed hands freely. This morning Venable and his seven guests were arraigned before City Judge Runyon and their trial set down for Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

A month ago, it will be remembered, Mayor Rockfellow called the proprietors of several suspected "joints" before him and warned them to desist. John Venable was among that number. For several nights his club rooms were dark and then the old frequenters began to rally once more.

The police have watched the place carefully ever since. Saturday night a raid was planned as a number had been seen to assemble there. Sergeant Kiely, Roundsman Frederickson and Patrolman Saffron quietly made their way up the two flights of stairs at 9:30 o'clock. The hum of conversation was to be heard in the hall. The door was locked and Sergeant Kiely rapped.

"Who's there?" demanded the guard inside.

"Me," growled the Sergeant in gruff tones. "Lemme in."

The door opened and the little detachment of the police entered. The green baize table suddenly lost interest to the group that surrounded it. There was only one exit and the police controlled that. "Cack" Carter looked out of the window but the ground was too far off and he surrendered with the others. There was no resistance.

Besides the eight occupants, the police captured the table with its complete outfit of cards, dice, chips and several dollars in bills and coin. Patrolman Weinzenreid was called in to assist in escorting the prisoners to police headquarters where they were locked up for the night.

Yesterday morning John Venable, Harry Thomas, George Anderson, Samuel and Alexander Cuff were all released on bail for appearance this morning. Walter Carter, alias "Cack," Jerry Kincaid and Fred Taylor were locked up in default of bail. The prisoners were all colored men.

When arrigned this morning all except Carter pleaded not guilty. Carter changed his plea when he saw how the rest were going. Former Councilman Walter L. Hetfield appeared for them and at his request the hearing was adjourned until Friday morning. The men were released on their own recognizance.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Col. Hamilton Markley, of Camden, who was one of the most prominent men of New Jersey. TURNING MILL BURNED.

OVERHEATED PIPE STARTED FIRE IN JOHN HERMAN'S SHOP.

Out of the Borough Fire District, but Firemen Tried to Save the Building—Loss is $1,200.

A serious conflagration, involving a loss of $1,200, occurred a little after 7 o'clock this morning when John Herman's turning mill, located near Smalley Brothers' stone crusher, on Somerset street, was totally destroyed. The building caught from an overheated stovepipe, which ignited the roof and the flames quickly spread to all parts of the building. Mr. Herman and his employes had been at work only a short time when the fire broke out.

An alarm of fire was sent in from Box 145, corner of Somerset street and Hudson lane, and the department responded unusually quick. It was soon learned that the fire was out of the district for the borough firemen, but Mayor Smalley gave them instructions to proceed and do all they could to save the property. Twenty two lengths of hose was laid from the hydrant at Johnston's drive to the scene of the fire, and Warren Engine was stationed by the brook closer to the fire. The West End Hose Company also responded and did good work.

By the time the firemen arrived the building was enveloped in flames and there was little chance of saving anything. The water wheel was saved by allowing it to run. The machinery in the building was not damaged to any extent. The fire was an exceedingly hot one and the firemen had all they could do to get near the place. Otto Smith, who wore a celluloid collar, suffered the loss of his collar, and his neck was burned terribly. This was caused by a spark alighting between the neck and the collar.

The building was fully stocked and there was no insurance on the contents. There was $600 insurance on the building. This is the first fire under the new official, Chief Debele, and he is more than pleased with the way the firemen turned out and with the support given him. They responded quickly to his orders and everyone did good work.

A LIVELY RUNAWAY.

Horse Was Frightened by Women Waving a Tablecloth in Front of Him This Morning.

A lively runaway occurred this morning in the borough. A horse and wagon owned by C. Frank French, and in charge of George Nelson, was left standing in the rear of Thorn's building on Somerset, while Nelson went into a store. In the meantime a woman in one of the upper floors waved a tablecloth out of one of the windows. This frightened the animal and he ran through the alleyway to Craig place. In making a turn to get into Somerset street the wagon was thrown against a post, and thus saved the life of a woman, who would have undoubtedly been killed. The rig then proceeded up Somerset street and collided with Henry Uhrig's baker wagon, putting the wagon almost out of business. From there the horse turned into Somerset place, and running into a fence ripped the pickets off completely. He also ran into Harry Hann's new bicycle, wrecking it.

By this time the fractious steed was caught before doing any further damage. The wagon was a total wreck, but the horse escaped without any injury. Mr. French signified his willingness at once to stand the expense for all damage and he will also buy Harry Hann a new wheel.

Jubilee Singers Heard.

PLAINFIELDERS HURT IN A CENTRAL WRECK

Bad Smashup of Passenger Trains at Bayonne Last Saturdsy Evening.

DEFECTIVE FLANGE CAUSE.

SCOTCH PLAINS FIREMAN HAD HIS LEG BROKEN.

Plainfielders Were Shaken Up in a Lively Manner, But Were Not Seriously Hurt—Passenger Cars Turned Upside Down.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bayonne, April 9.—A broken flange on the wheel to the tender attached to a Roselle local train caused that engine to jump the track directly in the path of an approaching Scranton express near the East Thirty sixth street crossing Saturday evening and resulted in a serious accident. Although the express train rolled over into the ditch, no one was killed and only a few were seriously injured. The accident occurred at 6:50 o'clock.

Train No. 121 leaves New York at 6:30 o'clock for Roselle. Owing to the hurry there was not time to turn the locomotive around and it started out backward. At the Thirty-sixth street crossing the flange on one of the front trucks to the tender peeled off on account of a defect and the tender and locomotive swung around across track No. 2 and on to track No. 3.

Flagmen were hurried out in each direction but when the accident occurred, train No. 12, an express from Scranton that leaves Plainfield at 6:21, was already in sight, approaching at a speed of sixty miles an hour. Phillip Schuyler, the engineer of the express, put on the emergency brakes as soon as he saw what had happened, but it was too late. The express crashed into the tender of the local with a loud crash.

The express, locomotive and three coaches jumped the track and circled off to the right, missing the cars of the local. At the edge of the shallow ditch at the side of the tracks, the locomotive struck an obstacle and doubled up while the combination baggage and smoker and the two coaches rolled over, trucks uppermost.

There were very few passengers in the train, not over forty in all, and they heaped about in general confusion. Engineer Schuyler was thrown across one track into an embankment and escaped with slight injuries.

John H. Coles, of Scotch Plains, fireman on the express engine, received the most serious injuries of any one. His leg was broken and he was taken to the Bayonne Hospital.

Albert Schomp, of West Front street, Plainfield, and Harry Cuming, of Putnam avenue, Plainfield, were setting together in the second car when the accident occurred. Cuming was next to the aisle and clung to the arm of the seat when the car turned over. He dangled over the heads of his fellow passengers and then climbed down. Schomp and Cuming went to the assistance of Miss Anna May Brownell, of Elizabeth, who was badly cut about the face and hands, and were the last to leave the car. They were entirely uninjured.

Robert MacIntosh, of College place, a son of the Superintendent of Motive Power of the Central, had his nose broken and was cut about the forehead. A Mr. Edgerton, of Plainfield, was badly bruised. They were taken to the Bayonne Hospital for treatment. Other passengers had slight bruises and cuts but none of the injuries were serious.

Bernard Benson, of East Fourth street, Plainfield, night operator in the Jersey yards, was a passenger in the express. His shoulder was injured and he was badly shaken up.

Nathan Conover, of High Bridge, an uncle of Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, Plainfield, was on his way to visit his daughter in Jersey City. He bit through his tongue in two places.

Rev. George B. Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of New York city, was returning from Plainfield where he addressed a meeting in the afternoon. He was cut and bruised and pretty well shaken up.

The tracks were torn up for a distance of a hundred feet and traffic on the Central was greatly delayed all night. The repairs were completed yesterday afternoon.

Fireman Coles died this morning from injuries sustained in the wreck.

Fears Entertained For the Safety of Roberts.

FREE STATERS AGAIN IN ARMS.

Recent Events Show the Cleverness of the Boers and the Carelessness of the Imperial Troops—Colville Reached Reitfontein Too Late.

LONDON, April 9.—When it is borne in mind that all the dispatches from the front are severely censored there is little in today's news to bring satisfaction to England. Assurances that nothing need be feared even if the railways and telegraphs are cut and Bloemfontein isolated, together with the news that the ladies and other civilians are being ordered away, do not augur well.

There are rumors from Cape Town that the telegraph wires were already cut yesterday and also that the hussars who were sent to the relief of the Royal Irish rifles are also missing, although probably these are the outcome of Boer exaggerations, designed to encourage the burghers.

The attempt of General Colville to catch the Boer leaders in conference at Reitfontein failed probably, as usual, because of the lack of cavalry.

The result of these serious checks to the British arms is that the whole Free State is up again and that the Boers are full of activity over the entire field.

A belated Boer dispatch says that bayonets were being made for the foreign legion under the late General de Villebois Mareuil.

The Boers are boasting that the Colesberg and Stormberg commandoes, numbering 6,000, with ten cannon and 750 wagons, have got safely through, thus performing a "magnificent strategic feat."

A Boer account of the Bloemfontein waterworks affair says:

"Colonel Broadwood evacuated Thaba N'Chu owing to the advance of Commandant Olivier from the south. The federal troops found the British camp in peaceful slumber, without a sentinel or an outpost to give the alarm. General de Wet immediately placed guns and the commandoes in such positions as to surround the British, who did not have time to recover from their surprise."

The Cape Town correspondent of The Times, discussing the affair, says:

"All the details only serve to bring out clearly the marvelous cleverness of the Boers, no less than the marvelous carelessness and improvidence of the British officers, whom, it would seem, no series of disasters will ever teach to keep wide awake.

"The Boers in Colonel Broadwood's rear drove his force into the party at the drift exactly as partridges are driven to a gun. At the drift itself, as each wagon descended the hollow, it was shown which way to drive, so as not to block the convoy. When the guns arrived, the trap was all clear again for their reception. As one who was present said: 'It was like a cloakroom. The Boers politely took your rifle and asked you kindly to step on one side. There was nothing else for you to do.'"

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing Friday and referring to the death at Boshof of General de Villebois Mareuil, commander of the French legion in the Boer army, says:

"He was a fine type of the French beau sabreur, brave, dashing, highly intelligent, loving war, yet a polished gentleman at home and a scholarly and almost brilliant writer. He was far too high a type to be understood by the Boers, who showed open contempt for his advice and disobedience of his orders.

"He it was who warned General Cronje that he was being flanked by Lord Roberts. Cronje replied angrily, 'The British will never leave the railway.' The French officer persisted, saying it was obvious that the British meant to outflank the Boers. Then Cronje shouted: 'Boy, keep still! I was a soldier before you were born!'"

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch dated Friday, says:

"All is quiet here. Remounts and reenforcements are arriving, and preparations are being made to deal with the enemy. Last Tuesday many of the historic regiments, like the Scots Grays, the Enniskillen dragoons and the lancers, could not muster 100 mounted men, while artillery horses were very scarce.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily News, telegraphing Friday, says:

"Owing to a lack of horses and to the sufferings of the men from pneumonia due to thin clothing Lord Roberts has decided not to make a big move until the troops are provided with thicker uniforms."

The Ninth division, under General Colville, marched Wednesday in the direction of Rietfontein, but arrived too late to disperse a gathering of Boer leaders who had assembled there for conference. The division returned here.

The Boers have shot a Free State burgher named McCaskill who was employed by the British as a conductor of the wagons which the Boers captured at the Bloemfontein waterworks.

General Gatacre has retired to Bethany on orders from headquarters to guard the railway.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Morning Post, telegraphing Friday, says:

"No anxiety need be felt as to the security of Bloemfontein, although the enemy may succeed in destroying telegraphic communication and even in cutting the railway for a brief period.

"A number of civilians, including Lady Bentinck and Lady Edward Cecil, who arrived here recently from Cape Town, left today in compliance with a general order issued by the authorities."

THE SWAZIS IN ARMS.

General Unrest and Lawlessness In the Absence of White Rule.

LOURENCO MARQUES, April 9.—A runner who has just arrived here from Sebobo's kraal, Swaziland, says Sebobo has been killed and his women have been tied up with ropes. Unrest is increasing in the country, which is in a most unsettled state, bordering on a reign of terror, in the absence of "white man's law." Many natives have been threatened, and in one district they have been completely killed off.

A messenger from Bromersdorp, Swaziland, says the Boers are making presents to the queen and are seeking permission to pass through Swaziland armed.

M'queie, the famous old Swazi chief, and two women of his household, with their infants, have all been assagaied at M'queezie's kraal. The kraal was sacked and burned and the chief's son captured.

Numerous bands are marching out, natives and Swazis, and marauding in every direction.

A correspondent found M'queezie's son in charge of two natives, who admitted the killing of the chief, but said they had followed the orders of the Swazi queen.

Gatacre's Quest Vain.

BETHANY, April 9.—General Gatacre's force has returned here without having found any trace of the ill fated British column captured by the Reddersburg commando. It is impossible to estimate the British losses, but as the men fought stubbornly it is probable that these were large. The five companies of British infantry which were surprised by the Redderburg commando while marching across the country via De Wet's dorp made a plucky stand, but as the Boers had three field guns and the British none the latter were compelled to surrender. General Gatacre arrived too late. Reddersburg was already reoccupied by the Boers, and the enemy is now threatening the lines to the south.

The Basutos May Revolt.

MASERU, Basutoland, April 9.—The reoccupation of Ladybrand, Thaba N'Chu and the Bloemfontein waterworks by the Boers, in the very sight of the Basutos who recently witnessed the expulsion of the Boers by the British, is far the most important aspect of the situation here, in view of its probable effect upon the native mind. Already the natives are arguing that the British have suffered reverses, and should the British evacuate Wepener the results, so far as the natives are concerned, are likely to prove disastrous. All hope to see General Brabant steadily advance and drive the enemy before him.

Boer Victories Reported.

PRETORIA, April 9.—It is officially announced here that at the Bloemfontein waterworks the republican forces captured 11 officers and 362 men, with 11 guns, 2 ammunition wagons, other wagons and mules. It is reported that General De Wet attacked and defeated a large force of British cavalry at De Wet's dorp, southeast of Bloemfontein, capturing 450 prisoners and a large quantity of ammunition and camp stores and inflicting heavy loss. The federal loss was two killed and four wounded.

Boer Prisoners Escape.

SIMON'S TOWN, Cape Colony, April 9.—It now appears that no fewer than 30 Boers escaped from the old camp Friday evening. Nine have since been recaptured. The prisoners effected their escape by cutting a fence under the sentry bridge while the sentry was above. A driver of a sanitary cart was offered £200 ($1,000) to carry off the prisoners. A new tunnel has been discovered in the direction opposite to the former one. It had been completed to within five feet of the point for a breach.

Boers Threaten Roberts' Force.

BLOEMFONTEIN, April 9.—The Boers are reported in force to the south, threatening the railroad, which, however, is strongly protected. British pickets at Springfield, eight miles distant, were attacked Saturday by Boers advancing from the waterworks. Remounts are rapidly arriving. The British are in high spirits and anxious to advance. Another of Mr. Steyn's brothers has been captured near Karee Siding and has arrived here.

Frenchmen Among the Prisoners.

BOSHOF, Orange Free State, April 9.—The prisoners captured by the British Thursday and brought in the following day include many Frenchmen. They presented a wet and bedraggled appearance. Lord Methuen has complimented his men on their behavior. Captains Boyle and Williams of the yeomanry and General de Villebois Mareuil were buried Friday with military honors.

The Pattison Boom.

PHILADELPHIA, April 9.—Ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison, when seen regarding the story telegraphed from Chicago to the effect that preparations are under way to boom him for the vice presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket, said that he had never been informed that such a movement was on foot and added that he did not know who was back of the proposition. He felt grateful, he said, toward those who had considered him in connection with the nomination. He declined, however, to say whether he would accept if the honor was conferred upon him on the ground that he could not accept or decline anything that had not been offered to him.

A Shortage of Yellow Pine.

TIFTON, Ga., April 9.—The Georgia Sawmill association, representing some 300 yellow pine mill plants in Georgia, South Carolina and Florida, at a meeting has decided by a practically unanimous vote that on and after May 10 all mills belonging to the members of the association would be run on two-thirds time. This will affect thousands of operatives and decrease the output of yellow pine in this state nearly one-third. It is understood that the limited supply of yellow pine timber in sight is largely the cause of this action.

Peck's Sun Ceases to Shine.

MILWAUKEE, April 9.—Peck's Sun has ceased to shine. In yesterday's paper the announcement was made editorially by ex-Governor Peck that this issue will be the last. Governor Peck said that the paper was on a paying basis, but that years of labor and large capital would be required to make it the success he desired it to be. He says that the cheapness and completeness of the modern daily newspaper and the low price of magazines have left no place for the weekly newspaper.

A Youthful Suicide.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 9.—John Lane, 11 years old, son of Thomas Lane, a blacksmith living at 115 Canterbury street, in this city, hanged himself in the cellar of his home yesterday afternoon. The lad had just returned from Sunday school and went to the cellar to do some chores, as it was supposed. About 20 minutes later his stepmother found him hanging from a rafter in the cellar. In the opinion of Medical Examiner F. H. Baker it was a deliberate suicide.

Costly Fire at Ballston Spa, N. Y.

SARATOGA, April 9.—The Sans Souci Opera House block and the Schaffer building at Ballston Spa were burned yesterday. Loss $150,000, insurance $50,000. It was one of the largest fires that ever visited that village.

BRIDGE WORK
In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. Too Much Jamaica Ginger.

MACHIAS, Me., April 9.—The fatal effect of overindulgence in Jamaica ginger in lieu of spiritous liquors among the drinkers of Maine has been emphasized twice of late. Last week two men in a logging camp died after drinking a large quantity of the fluid, and a whole crew were made very ill from the same cause. A fortnight ago two loggers in a camp near here died, and Saturday night a coroner's jury sitting on these latter cases made its report ascribing the deaths to Jamaica ginger.

Big Fire In Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—For the second time in three years the extensive department store of Joseph Horne & Co., at the corner of Fifth street and Pennsylvania avenue, is in ruins. Policeman Sylvester Doyle discovered flames issuing from the windows of the fifth floor, and inside of an hour the big eight story structure was completely gutted, entailing a loss of over $1,000,000.

Hardware Store Burned.

FITCHBURG, Mass., April 9.—A bad fire, with losses a little under $90,000, occurred yesterday in the hardware store of the Damon & Gould company. The three story wooden building will be a total loss. It is owned by E. N. Choate and heirs of H. M. Choate and is insured for $3,000.

Fire In a Piano Factory.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Fire yesterday partially destroyed the piano and organ factory of M. Schulz & Co., corner of Morgan and Superior streets, entailing a loss of $50,000; covered by insurance. The cause is thought to have been spontaneous combustion.

GREAT LOSS BY FLOOD

Colorado River Breaks Its Dam at Austin, Tex.

LIVES DESTROYED AND CITY DARKENED

A Vast Extent of Town and Country Submerged—Great Damage to Farm Crops and Destruction of Live Stock.

AUSTIN, April 9.—Fully 30,000 people gathered yesterday at the dam and power house station north of this city to witness the ruins of the plant which cost this city $1,750,000 a few years ago. The waters of the Colorado river were still plunging and foaming around the wreck, eating away the big pile of granite which once formed the dam as though it was nothing more than chalk rock. So fierce was the current that great bowlders were carried half a mile from the dam, being rolled over and over by the turbulent tide.

The power house which succumbed to the terrific wash of the water at 2 o'clock yesterday morning lies a mass of wreckage on the edge of the river, all the valuable machinery either having been thrown into the river or badly damaged by the falling timbers of the power house.

In addition to the vast loss to property interests it is calculated that between 30 and 40 lives have been sacrificed, and the reports coming in from the tributary country do not tend to improve matters. The flood is not unlike the disastrous Johnstown flood some years ago in that a raging river already swollen far beyond its capacity bore too heavily upon an immense dam spanning the river here, breaking it and letting loose a reservoir of water 30 miles long, half a mile wide and 60 feet deep to aid in carrying destruction down the valleys of the Colorado river.

The great dam in the Colorado river gave way from the enormous pressure of water and debris and with a roar and crash swept the valleys below the city, wrecking the immense light and power plant and drowning eight workmen.

The wreck of the plant is complete. The situation in the city is most serious. The wreckage of the plant means that it will take several weeks to secure even a temporary water and light system if it can be made possible even then. In the meantime the city will be in a bad sanitary condition. All the hotels, private residences, stores and the like are without water, and there is no fire protection. Churches were unable to hold services for want of light, and all public meetings were abandoned. The daily newspapers are handicapped in their publications, being deprived of their electric power.

Reports from the neighboring country are to the effect that everything is under water. In Williamson county, north of here, railroad bridges and trackage have been laid waste and all trains have stopped running. Hundreds of head of cattle have been drowned and miles of fencing torn down and washed away. In Bastrop county and in the southern portion of this county similar conditions prevail, everything being under water, and much loss of property is reported.

The country tributary to the Colorado river all the way down its course is being inundated, and while it is believed the worst is over the loss as estimated will exceed some $3,000,000, counting Austin as the largest loser. The list of drowned, according to reports up to last night, is limited to those reported in the press dispatches, all of whom lost their lives here when the dam broke.

A mass meeting of citizens has been called for today in order that some steps may be taken to relieve the situation.

There were no trains operated on the International and Great Northern, as much of its track and quite a number of bridges were washed away during Saturday night.

THE WATERS RECEDING.

Crops Greatly Damaged Over a Wide Extent of Territory.

HOUSTON, April 9.—As a rule the Texas rivers are now falling, and there is not much danger of a general flood. The crops have been damaged over a wide area, but there is still time for farmers to replant if they can get the seed. Corn has been planted over once and will have to be planted the third time. The farmers, as a rule, have not planted much cotton because the heavy rains have kept them out of the fields. The railroads have lost many small bridges, and it will be a week before traffic resumes its normal condition.

Smithville reports that tremendous rains have fallen throughout that section, the main flood in the Colorado from the break in the great Austin dam reaching there last evening. The river was on a 38 foot rise at 7 p. m. and rising one foot an hour. It is estimated that over 5,000 acres of growing crops in the bottom lands within five miles of town have been inundated by from 10 to 15 feet. The loss will reach over $50,000. The stock has been drowned. No deaths have been reported in that section so far from drowning.

Cameron reports the flood in Little river now equals that of last July. The waterworks and power house have been overflowed. People were warned, and no loss of life is reported.

Brushy, San Gabriel and Little rivers are all overflowed, causing the entire destruction of all crops. The rivers are still rising.

Reports from points on other rivers are of damage to crops, but no loss of life.

A Plate Mirror Company.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—The American Plate Mirror company was chartered at Harrisburg on Saturday with a capital of $50,000,000. This company is composed of well known plate glass men who are identified with the Pittsburg Plate Glass company, the Pennsylvania Plate Glass company, the Standard Plate Glass company and the Ford Plate Glass company. The new combine is looked upon as the beginning of a determined move on the part of the American plate glass men to wrest the trade in this country for plate mirrors from foreign manufacturers.

Big Gift to a Hospital.

AKRON, O., April 9.—Ohio C. Barber, president of the Diamond Match company, has offered to give $100,000 to the Akron City hospital to be used as an endowment fund providing the citizens of Akron raise $15,000 additional for the purpose of paying off the debt now hanging over the institution. The money must be raised by July 15.

YOUNG AND BELL WANT MORE TROOPS

Their Stations In Northern and Southern Luzon Need Fresh Men to Fill the Places of Those Worn Out With Ceaseless Vigilance.

MANILA, April 9.—Reports of encounters between the American troops and the insurgents continue to arrive from many points. On Friday Captain Sturgis, while reconnoitering, struck an insurgent outpost on the Novaliches road, five miles distant from Manila, killing two and capturing ten. All were in full uniform. Unfortunately Captain Sturgis' force was not large enough to pursue the main body.

A detachment of the Forty-second infantry, while scouting in Laguna province, was pursued by the insurgents and obliged to take refuge in a church at Paete, where the Americans repelled the rebels until re-enforcements arrived.

Lieutenant Gordon, with a company of the Sixteenth infantry, while scouting near Aparri, Cagayan province, engaged 250 insurgents. Lieutenant Gordon was wounded.

A sergeant and a corporal of Company I, Eighteenth infantry, were killed in a severe fight in Capiz province, island of Panay.

The insurgents made a night attack upon Calbayon, island of Samar. They killed the sentry, swarmed into the town and searched the house of Major Gilmore of the Forty-third infantry, who was absent. They killed his cook. Ultimately the Americans drove them out of the town, killing four and capturing 12.

General Young, commanding in north Luzon, has made several requests for re-enforcements, representing that his force is inadequate, that the men are exhausted by the necessity of constant vigilance, that he is unable to garrison the towns in his jurisdiction, that the insurgents are returning to the district and killing the amigos and that it is necessary for him to inflict punishment in several sections before the rainy season begins.

General James Bell, who is in command in southern Luzon, has made similar representations. He says his forces are inadequate and that he merely holds a few towns, without controlling the territory.

The president of the town of Samal, province of Bataar, Luzon, and another prominent native have been assassinated because they were known to be friendly to the Americans.

The president of another town has joined the insurgents because they had threatened to kill him if he did not.

Rural Free Delivery Increases.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—The rural free delivery system of the postoffice department has grown to such proportions that it has been found necessary to create two new divisions to properly handle it. An order just signed by the postmaster general establishes four divisons—the eastern divison, with headquarters at New York, including in its territory New England, New York and Pennsylvania, with Special Agent E. H. Hathaway in charge; the middle division, headquarters Indianapolis, comprising Ohio and all states west to the Missouri and southern states down to and including Louisiana, with F. M. Dice in charge; the western division, comprising states west of the Missouri and Iowa to the coast, headquarters Denver, with William E. Annin in charge; the southern division, including 11 southern states, headquarters at Washington, with H. Conquest Clarke in charge. This order will go into effect May 1.

Mexican Finances.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 9.—The finance committee of congress has submitted a report on the budget prepared by Finance Minister Limantour slightly increasing appropriations, the total for the ensuing fiscal year now amounting to $56,629,764. In the fiscal year ended June last the total receipts of the treasury were $60,139,212, leaving a surplus of $6,639,670. Finance Minister Limantour is always conservative in his estimates of income, and it is expected that the coming fiscal year will show a handsome surplus. His policy of accumulating surplus against all contingencies and as a guarantee to holders of government bonds is praised by the best bankers here, who consider the financial position of the government extremely strong.

Kentucky Investigation to Continue.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 9.—The grand jury will continue the investigation of the Goebel assassination during this week. About 40 witnesses have been examined so far, and it is said that more than that number are on the list of those summoned who have not yet been heard. No report is expected before the latter part of the week. It is said that the names of several of the most important witnesses who have testified so far have not been disclosed, and the evidence has been jealously guarded.

Forest Fires on Long Island.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The worst forest fires that have visited Long Island for years have been burning for 36 hours on the outskirts of Lindenhurst. The dry grass made good fuel for the flames, which have been fanned by a high wind. Citizens of the entire town have been working hard to extinguish the flames, as they would catch on to buildings. A number of small buildings have been burned. The Shredwelder homestead on the outskirts of the town took fire and was destroyed.

Quaker Evangelist Dead.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 9.—John Wright Dean of Washington, well known throughout the United States as the Quaker evangelist, who came here Feb. 28 to conduct a series of meetings, died yesterday from pneumonia following an attack of the grip. He was born in Hamburg, N. Y., April 23, 1830, and had been engaged in evangelistic work ever since 1875. A widow and two sons survive him.

Railway Wreck.

LAREDO, Tex., April 9.—The north bound passenger train which left here over the International and Great Northern railway was wrecked by the spreading of the rails near Twohi yesterday. The entire train except the engine went into the ditch. Mail Agent S. E. Bright was seriously injured and several others less seriously hurt. Further details have not been received here.

A PLEA FOR THE BOERS.

Hon. Webster Davis Tells His Experiences In South Africa.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—An immense audience gathered at the Grand Opera House last night to listen to an address on the war in South Africa from the Hon. Webster Davis, ex-assistant secretary of the interior, who has just returned to the United States from that country. Every available bit of standing room in the Opera House, the largest auditorium in Washington, was filled with auditors who paid close attention to every word uttered by the speaker and manifested their appreciation of his telling points with frequent and generous applause. Simple decorations of the United States flag and the red, white and black bars with the field of green, the emblem of the Boers, were suspended over the stage. A score or more of public men, mainly senators and representatives in congress, occupied seats on the stage and in the audience. Mr. Davis was introduced by Mr. P. T. Moran, the chairman of the executive committee, who made a few introductory remarks. Mr. Davis delivered his lecture in an offhand, easy style, referring to his notes only occasionally and mainly when it was necessary to read an extract from some document or speech. He spoke for about two hours and at its close was warmly congratulated.

He closed his earnest appeal for sympathy and recognition for the Boers in the following eloquent language:

"These men have the same spirit that prompted the farmers to face death for liberty at Lexington; that nerved the arms of Americans at Saratoga, Bunker Hill and Brandywine; that warmed the hearts of Washington and his shivering patriots at Valley Forge and at New Orleans, where Jackson and his men taught old England that easier were it to hurl the rooted mountain from its base than to force the yoke of slavery upon men determined to be free.

"Then why should we not sympathize with them? Why should not the greatest republic in the world assist the smallest of republics? Is the word 'liberty' to become obsolete in our national lexicon? Must this greatest republic of the world's history chain its destiny to the chariot wheels of the British empire in her mad race for land and gold? Shall the fair name of this great republic, whose prowess on land and sea has been the marvel of the century, be used in Europe by British officials and the British press as a menace to other European powers who are anxious to assist the Boers in their brave struggle for freedom and independence?

"Let us not drift away from the principles and doctrines of our fathers. Let us listen to the cry for help from all who struggle for liberty and justice. Let it not be said by future historians that this great republic arose in splendor and grandeur that made the world stare, but it halted justice and liberty; it halted on its bright and shining march; it fell, and as it was going down the despotisms of earth, grinning from the tops of bloody thrones, shouted, 'We told you so, we told you so.' Oh, may the 80,000,000 of American freemen see to it that the world may know that their sympathies are not with Great Britain, but with the struggling Boers, and let it be known that they believe the cruel war waged in South Africa should stop, and stop at once."

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The dreaded San Jose scale has appeared in the orchards of Orleans county, N. Y.

Two women connected with prominent families fought a duel with pistols in the City of Mexico.

The building trades strikers of Chicago are said to be living on the co-operative plan and able to hold out a year.

Eastern capitalists have purchased 70,000 acres of land in northern Fayette county, Pa., for coal mining purposes.

Strange Poisoning of Soldiers.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Major Rogers, the superintendent of the New Jersey Home For Disabled Soldiers at Kearney, is investigating a remarkable outbreak of illness that happened in the home on Saturday. There are more than 400 inmates, most of them being over 60 years of age. On Saturday they ate a breakfast consisting of pressed beef, potatoes, coffee and bread. Within an hour 45 of the men were seized with violent retching. A physician worked for hours among the men. The symptoms were alike in all the cases and seemed to point to the presence of some irritant poison in the food. Thirty of the old men quickly responded to treatment, but 15 are still very ill.

A Bold Dash For Liberty.

TOMBSTONE, A. T., April 9.—During the noon hour, when the usual guards were at lunch, Billy Stiles, who recently turned state's evidence and gave information that led to the arrest of Bert Alvord and a man named Dowing for the robbery of the Southern Pacific train last September at Cochise station, held up Deputy Sheriff George Bravin, secured the keys of the jail and liberated Alvord and Bravo Juan, the latter being one of the robbers who held up the train at Fairbanks less than two months ago. All three started west on foot headed for the Dragoon mountains. A posse is in pursuit.

Captain Sigsbee In North Dakota.

FARGO, N. D., April 9.—Captain Sigsbee passed Saturday in the famous Red River valley, the guest of the municipality of Fargo. Captain Sigsbee addressed the school children, all of whom were assembled at the high school building with patriotic colors displayed. In the evening there was a banquet and reception at the Metropole.

Has Mrs. Dewey Left Her Church?

WASHINGTON, April 9.—A report was in circulation here last night that Mrs. Dewey had left the Catholic church and had become an Episcopalian, but no verification of the rumor could be obtained. Father Mackin, who married the admiral and his wife and who is rector of her church, refused to talk concerning the report.

BIG LAND CLAIM.

It Involves Eighteen Million Acres In Lower California.

MONTEREY, Cal., April 9.—A paper of considerable international importance has just been received from London from Jacob R. Leese of this city, son of the California pioneer, Jacob P. Leese. The paper is the original grant from the Mexican government made in 1863 to Jacob P. Leese and others of 18,000,000 acres of land in Lower California for colonization purposes.

At the time the grant was made Mexico was in a state of war which continued practically until after the accession of Diaz to the presidency, and Leese's associates found it difficult to induce colonists to go there. A further contract was made with the Mexican government by which Leese paid $100,000 for the land upon the condition that if he failed to colonize because of the war before the expiration of an allotted time the government was to return him $50,000 of the amount.

This amount has never been paid, and it is stated that the Mexican government absolutely refuses to recognize Leese's claim. J. R. Leese, eldest son of Jacob P. Leese, received a deed from his father shortly before the latter's death assigning him one-eighth of the entire 18,000,000 acres, and it is this as well as the $50,000 for which he is fighting. He intends to move at once through the state department at Washington for recognition of his claim and a restoration of his property and that of the other heirs.

Cold Blooded Murder.

COLUMBUS, O., April 9.—A special to the Ohio State Journal from Barnesville, O., says: "Saturday night two masked men entered the house of Mrs. James Warrack, an aged widow, five miles south of this place. Living with Mrs. Warrack were her granddaughter, another young lady and her grandson, Clarence Warrack. The women were terrified when awakened by the threats of the intruders, but young Warrack on hearing the men ordered them to leave. A scuffle ensued in which Warrack was shot and killed. The burglars then bound the three women and ransacked the house, but secured only 6 cents in money."

Lobster Catch Decreasing.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—Mr. W. de Ravenel, acting commissioner of fisheries, replying to a communication from Representative Fitzgerald regarding the lobster fishery of Massachusetts, says that statistics of the catch of lobsters in Massachusetts waters for a series of years show that between 1880 and 1898 the yield decreased more than 2,000,000 pounds, or nearly 70 per cent. In 1880 the yield was 4,315,416 pounds, valued at $158,229; in 1892, 3,182,270 pounds, valued at $205,638, and in 1898, 1,693,741 pounds, valued at $147,702.

The Time to Speak.

The hearing of the Common Council this evening on the project of building a City Hall should result in a large turnout of citizens. While hearings of this kind do not always result in displaying a true reflex of public sentiment, they prove a strong factor in determining the future attitude and action of the majority of the Council, and the advocates of the municipal building, who are undoubtedly in the majority, should not hesitate to appear before the Council and give expression of their opinion.

During the time that this proposed improvement has been under consideration—a period covering four years—many strong and salient points have been put forward to argue the necessity and demand for it. Many citizens, however, have good ideas in respect to the project that have not been advanced so that the general public and the members of the Common Council could become acquainted with them. These men should be on hand tonight to offer their arguments in favor of the City Hall.

The first step of the Democratic organization of the State looking to the work of the National campaign is observed in the call for the Democratic State Committee to meet in Newark Saturday next, when the date for the convention to choose the "Big Four" and their alternates, who will represent New Jersey in the Kansas City convention, will be fixed. At the same time the State Committee will elect the New Jersey representative in the National Committee. The present National Committeeman is ex-Senator Philip D Baker, of Vineland, who is a candidate for reappointment. Mr. Baker is a Bryan supporter from to stem to stern. In a public statement concerning the Dewey candidacy Mr. Baker has announced himself as for Bryan first, last and all the time.

It is now stated semi-officially that John Mortimer will not be granted his application for a wholesale license. What action the license committee has taken in considering the application will not be known publicly until the meeting of the Common Council tonight, but it is understood that if they make a report at all it will be adverse. With such a thing in view, however, the applicant will probably withdraw the application, and thus the Council will be relieved of offending the political influences that have been working unceasingly for favorable action. It would be a sorry day for Plainfield to have the liquor license policy of the city dictated by a political coterie whose interest in such things is of a selfish nature.

The action of Governor Voorhees in re-appointing the old board of governors of the State Industrial School for Girls as members of the new board under the law passed at the recent session of the Legislature, practically assures the retention of Mrs. Eyler as superintendent. This new law provides for the appointment of a man as superintendent, but there is nothing to prevent a woman from serving in the position, and in view of the official trend of events with reference to the school it is more than likely that she will be continued as the head of the institution.

Former Mayor Charles Place, of North Plainfield, chairman of the Third Congressional district Republican committee, has issued a call for the convention to choose delegates to the National convention to be held in Philadelphia in June. The district convention will be held in Asbury Park May 16th, when two delegates and two alternates will be elected to represent the bailiwick in the conventon that will renominate President McKinley and decide on a running mate whose name does not appear in the handwriting on the political wall.

According to the Elizabeth correspondent of the New York World Congressman Charles N Fowler, yesterday indignantly denied the truth of an interview attributed to him in which he was made to say Senator Kean had fought him every time he ran for the nomination, and was now opposing him for a fourth term in the interest of Frank Bergen. And thus the plot in this great political melo-drama thickens.

It is understood that Senators Kean and Sewell have been satisfied regarding Republicanism of L. D. Gallison, who was recommended by Representative Fowler for appointment as Postmaster at Orange, and his name will be confirmed by the Senate in the near future. Mr. Gallison was strongly endorsed by the Republican organization of Orange.

Out of 2 600 bills introduced in the New York Legislature only 300 were passed. This beats the New Jersey record.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plain fielders Can Witness.

Will E. Booth's big company will be seen tomorrow and Wednesday nights at Music Hall in that ever welcome drama "Ten Nights in a Bar Room." The company is a big one, numbering twenty-four persons, and carries the greatest novelty band on the road. Its orchestra is superb and the musical programme receives much deserved applause. The cast is an unusually competent one, every member being an actor of recognized ability. The little Hills as Mary and Benny Morgan make decided hits and win warm places in the hearts of all present. P. Aug. Perkins appears as "Joe Morgan;" Will E Booth in the role of "Mr. Romaine;" I. L. Livingston as "Simon Slade;" J. Alf. Ostorm as "Frank;" L W. Beckwith as "Sample," and C. A. Hill as "Harvey Green." The part of "Willie Hammond" is capably acted by Miss Bessie LeRoy, likewise "Mehitable" by Miss Leoto Hill, and "Mrs. Morgan" and "Mrs. Slade" by Miss E hel May and Miss M. Davenport respectively. Several high-class specialities are introduced between the acts, making it a continuous performance. The novelty band will parade at noon tomorrow.

* * * * * * *

David Belasco's "The Heart of Maryland," his latest and certainly so far as universal report goes, his most successful dramatic work, will, it is announced, have its initial presentation here at Music Hall Thursday, 19th inst. The play, has been greeted by an unlimited welcome of popular approval, and the unstinted commendation of the press. It is purely an American play; American in its locale, its story, its characters, its action and theme.

A WARNING.

Audubon Society Cautions Men and Boys About Shooting Certain Birds.

The Audubon Society of the State of New Jersey warns the men and boys who have been shooting and pocketing birds on our public streets that there is a law for the protection of night-hawks, whip poor-wills, thrushes, meadow larks, finches, martins, barn swallows, woodpeckers, robins, orioles, red or cardinal birds, cedar birds, tanagers or other insectivorous birds. The penalty for shooting or injuring such, or having them in one's possession, is twenty dollars.

Strikers Cry "We're Blacklisted."

The striking machinists in Paterson, who have been enjoined from doing picket duty or interfering with non-union men, claim they have been blacklisted and pursued to shops in other places, where they lost their jobs as soon as it became known that they were Paterson strikers. It was decided to engage outside men as pickets.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, April 9.—Much complaint is made because the cars of the New Brunswick Traction Company do not stop at the postoffice. Nearly every day people (especially women) wait at the postoffice for a car. The cars are sent flying through the street at such a high rate of speed that before passengers have an opportunity to hail them (particularly if the weather is stormy) they have passed. Many think it would be a good idea if all cars would come to a stop at the postoffice.

The street sprinkler is again in demand. The past week the dust along the line of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's road has been almost unbearable. It is impossible to keep it out of the rickety cars run on this line. Clouds of dust follow in the wake of each car and much of it sifts through the floors and windows, filling passengers eyes, ears and clothing, greatly to their discomfort and damage to their wearing apparel.

Rev Martin Sindall officiated at the M. E church yesterday in the absence of Rev E. S Jamison, who is at the conference. In the evening a large number of the members of the Daughters of Liberty attended service in a body.

Some improvements are soon to be made to the lighting of the streets by the addition of 25 candle power electric lights in place of those now in use, which are deemed inadequate.

Many of the friends of the late Mrs. Katherine Karl attended her funeral yesterday afternoon from the house. The interment was at Hillside Cemetery.

Rev. A. I Martine's next pastorate will be at Marlboro, Monmouth county, N J., and not Marlboro, Mass., as some New York papers have stated.

Some of the members of the Presbyterian church are rehearsing for an old folks' entertainment in the near future.

Rev. A. I Martine will preach his farewell sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday.

The schools of the borough resumed sessions this morning after a week's vacation.

The Gun Club enjoyed the first shoot of the season Saturday at their grounds in this borough.

Miss Edith Wilson left Saturday to visit her sister, Mrs. Cortez Clawson, at Salem, W. V.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 9—John H. Coles, who was injured in the wreck at Bayonne Saturday evening, is reported as doing very nicely and hopes are entertained of his recovery. But it will be a long time before he will be able to resume his position as fireman again.

Scotch Plains experienced another nearly dry Sunday yesterday. Several suspicious looking strangers in town during the morning had the effect of closing the doors to many who were not known as being all right.

Rev. George Angleman, a former pastor of the Methodist church, but now of Junction, occupied the pulpit of that church Sunday in the absence of Rev. Mr. Woodruff who is attending conference.

The heavy winds of yesterday afternoon interfered a great deal with the usual wheeling traffic through town Sunday afternoons. Those who braved the wind worked hard for their pleasure.

Charles Layton, who has been confined to the house several weeks suffering from inflammatory rheumatism, is able to be around again.

Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Shott entertained a party of friends from the North Baptist church, of New York, yesterday.

Mrs. G. M. Shott led an interesting Young People's meeting in the Baptist church last evening.

Miss Sadie Reger was the guest of her sister in Newark Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Susie Parse has returned from a pleasant visit with Newark friends.

WESTFIELD

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, April 9—The Township Committee has appointed Adam Hoffman road overseer. John M. C. Marsh sidewalk inspector and Edward Etgar health inspector. The salary of the road overseer was made at $300 a year and that of the health inspector $10 per month.

The members of the Social Club will tender a farewell euchre and dance to Mr. and Mrs. J. Dix Ritchie Tuesday evening of next week. Mr. and Mrs Ritchie are to move to Peekskill, N. Y.

A subscription dance will be given at the Social Club tomorrow evening under the direction of Messrs. Fred Winter, Roy Schoonover, Edgar Foster and Howard Waring.

A small brush fire on Prospect street yesterday afternoon called out the fire department, but the firemen were not needed.

SOMERVILLE.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Somerville, April 9—Rev Frank A. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist church, is on a visit in the New England States. His pulpit was filled Sunday by George W. Peck, Jr., of the Senior Class in Crozier Theological Seminary.

An odd accident happened at the Bridge street crossing of the Central Railroad Saturday. Abram Disborough was driving to town with several cans of milk and a big basket of eggs. He also had a horse tied to the rear of his wagon. This horse became scared at the cars and jumped in the back part of the wagon, his fore feet landing in the basket of eggs and scrambling them nicely. He also upset the milk cans, spilling the milk all over the ground. The gateman remarked that the ingredients of a good many egg-nogs were shamefully spoiled.

Representative Howell has been in conference with the officials of the Postoffice Department relative to the establishment of free delivery at Somerville May 1st. He submitted the names of three men for carriers and one for substitute carrier, recommended by George W. Cooper, the postmaster. The appointments will be made within a few days, when the names of the fortunate candidates will be announced.

An article in a recent issue of a local paper has caused several severe family jars in Raritan. One prominent citizen was compelled to secure the services of a Somerville lawyer to make things right with his better half, another was compelled to leave home and board at a hotel for a week while several others have had most uncomfortable times. The article exposed a little social gathering.

The County Board of Chosen Freeholders meet in regular monthly session at the Court House tomorrow. This is the last session of the old Board. The new Board will meet for organization Wednesday.

Max Schwed, son of Charles Schwed, who is attending a military school at Nazareth, Pa., came home Saturday afternoon to spend the Easter vacation.

William Kenney Terriberry, a student at Yale College, is at home for the Easter vacation.

The Town Commissioners hold their regular monthly meeting at the engine house tonight.

A. Cohen, of Yonkers, N. Y., has opened a clothing store in the Yawger building.

D. N. Messler spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. J. S. Garwood, in Brooklyn.

"Ten Nights in a Bar Room" will be given at Somerset Hall tonight.

A RATHER BAD CASE.

I am thirty years of age and work in the wood-working shop of the Burlington Venetian Blind Co.'s works, where I have been six years. My work is at a bench, and it is very tiresome to the whole body to stand in nearly one position all day and receive the jar of machinery constantly. It is very close work for the eyes, and for the past six months I would have a headache one or two days every week and was so very nervous I could hardly work at all. At noon I would feel so weak I could hardly go to dinner. After eating I would feel as if I were full of gas, and if I walked fast I would have very severe pains in one side of the stomach. Sundays, when I was not at work, I would feel so bloated after eating I could hardly move at all, and Monday I would feel as if I had been on a great spree, all broke up and nervous with headache, although I never drink at all. Ripans Tabules first came to my notice in this way: The engineer of our shop sent for me one day and asked if I had ever used Ripans Tabules. I told him I had not, and ask d him why. He said he had dyspepsia and had been taking medicine right along, which did him no good. He asked me to buy him some Ripans Tabules at the drug store, which I did—one dose of them. A couple of days after I asked him how they worked. He said they stopped the sour rising in his mouth, and was the best thing he ever used. He asked me to send for one dozen cartons, which I did, and I kept one-half of them. I began to use the Tabules, and found them so good that I was continually buying them, so I gave away half of what I had, and had to order more. I find it is a great help to me. I have had headache but once since I began to take them, two weeks since. Everything I eat acts well now, and even a crust of bread tastes good to me.

NOT A SINGLE RELIGION.

Hindooism Includes a Multiplicity of Sects with Only Caste in Common.

Hindooism is not a single religion, but a huge encyclopedia of distinct and independent worships; it is not a unity either of thought or custom, but an immense multiplicity of sects and their observances. It may be described as the amalgam of all the religious ideas and usages of all the Indian peoples through all their past. To no two classes in no two places is it exactly the same thing. Its one permanent and distinctive feature is its social order; where caste is Hindooism is, where caste is not, Hindooism will not condescend to be. Grant this fundamental institution, and it will be tolerant beyond the wildest oriental dream of toleration. It spreads not by the conversion of individuals, but of tribes or peoples. Its unit is not the person, but the family; for the individual it has no place, with him it can do nothing, and for him it does not care; but the family, or the aggregation of families which we term caste, is to it all in all. It is more by his fulfillment of his domestic duties, his fidelity in his paternal functions and obligations, than by his ritual conformity, that a man's orthodoxy is judged.

Hindooism is neither a philosophy nor a particular worship, nor a belief, nor any specific theology, but simply caste. Of course, caste may carry with it most of these other things, but not in any uniform or authoritative shape. There are various philosophies, but they are concerns of the school; there are many worships, but they are affairs of the temple or the shrine; there are an infinity of beliefs, but they are conditioned by time and place; there are a multitude of theologies, but they belong to the sect.

The one thing inviolate and universal is caste; it fixes the lines within which a man must walk, the customs he must observe, the social laws he must obey, the means by which he must earn his living. It is at once ubiquitous and invincible, has lived amid the laws and divisions of states, keeping the people one while the kingdoms were a multitude; it has continued and spread in the face of linguistic and racial differences, and has thriven by means of agitations and controversies that have in Europe created heresies and schisms. But the one thing caste will not allow to be touched is the family; its omnipotence lies in its power to isolate the individual and to reduce him to a condition of more absolute helplessness than could ever be experienced by any solitary in a teeming world which has no place for him, and where he is known of no man. This is a power which may grow, but which could not be made; which the conversion of individuals may do more to confirm and define than to change; and which can be dissolved only by a process as gradual and as inexorable as the process which formed it.—Contemporary Review.

BEAUTIFUL FIGURES.

How a Woman May Acquire and Retain Symmetrical Development.

A beautiful figure is the most precious gift, after perfect health, that any woman can possess. It is of far more value than a pretty face. It lasts much longer, and it does not betray the years, as must eventually even the most perfect features and the most lovely skin. With a perfect form, smartly gowned and well set up, a woman cannot fail to look charming.

There are three classes of women from an artistic standpoint, who may lay claim to beauty of form. In the first class belong all the daughters of Juno. They are great, tall, magnificent looking creatures, whom some men describe as "full bodied" women. In the second class are the daughters of Venus. These women usually give the impression of ideality. They are always well-developed, graceful and generally good to look at. In the third class are gathered the children of Psyche. Under this class come the women and maidens usually described as having fragile, girlish looking figures. Of the three classes, some admire one and some another, but very beautiful women are found in all three.

A woman who desires to make the very most of herself should study her own figure. She should find out its good points, its better points, its bad points and its very bad points.

She should then take it in hand, and by means of exercise, diet, gymnastics, a good tailor and a first-class corset maker, set herself up to the best possible advantage.

A woman can really do more with her figure than she can with her face.

If inclined to be too stout she should rigorously abstain from everything that encourages embonpoint, such as late hours, over indulgence at table and leading in general a lazy, indolent existence.

If she has not the courage to make these sacrifices she must say good-by to beauty of form. She will then join the overflowing ranks of women who, when they have passed the age of 30, make no further pretensions to beauty of figure.

If, on the contrary, her trouble be an unsightly leanness of body and limb, which makes it impossible for her ever to appear in either becoming evening gown or smart tailor frock, she should, with the aid of both diet and gymnasium, set about developing her form to the utmost. It is her duty to cover, with soft, firm curving flesh, the harsh outline of her angles. Some thin women think it useless to try to put on a little flesh. They say, hopelessly: "Oh, it's not my nature to be fat." They appear never to have learned that it is of the very nature of a human being to possess a healthy, well-developed body.

When they lack this gift of nature, their birthright, there is something wrong somewhere. They should find out what it is, and remedy it.—N. Y. Herald.

COLLEGE TRAINING.

Does Not Always Increase a Girl's Stock of Common Sense.

It has been remarked that modern methods of education, whatever may be their merits, do not markedly increase that most valuable of all endowments, common sense. As the development of that somewhat indefinable but absolutely necessary quality, if one would lead the most useful life, should be more aimed at than anything else, thoughtful mothers have suggested that there must be serious defects in our modern schools and colleges. One of the directions in which common sense is most likely to be shown is in the care of the health. Neither young men nor young women appear to realize the value of health, and our colleges do not seem to instill into them the precepts which aid in securing this greatest of earthly benefits. Wealth, learning, beauty, wit—all are of little comfort without health, while with it almost anything may be borne cheerfully. Not long ago a college girl graduate sat reading a book at a considerable distance from the lamp which was her sole dependence for light. Not satisfied with sitting at least three times as far from the lamp as she ought, she had carefully interposed her head between it and her book. One of the foundation facts of education is that one should always get the best possible light upon one's work, being careful never to let the sun shine directly upon it, and that the light should come over one of the shoulders, preferably the left. Under the most favorable conditions the life of a student furnishes more than enough business for the oculist.—Kate Upson Clark, in Woman's Home Companion.

Ironing Shirt-Waists.

When ironing a colored waist, either of silk or of cotton fabric, one should not use too hot an iron, and yet it must be hot enough to iron smoothly, without blistering or sticking to the starch. An overheated iron injures bright colors as much as do hot water and poor soap. In ironing a silk waist place a piece of cheesecloth over the garment, and iron as any ordinary article. By doing this the natural appearance of the silk is preserved, and this would be impossible if the iron were brought in direct contact with it.—Fannie Malin, in Woman's Home Companion.

Olive Omelet.

An omelet often served at the Havana tables, and one that is much relished by American visitors to that city, is evidently an importation from Spain. In it are folded olives that have been stoned and cut into halves. Sometimes to the olives are added blanched almonds and a few seeded raisins, but the most delicate flavor is present when the olives are used alone.—N. Y. Post.

STRUGGLE FOR PERSIA.

Russia Is Said to Plan the Annexation of the Shah's Dominion at an Early Date.

While England is busy in South Africa Russia, it is reported, is getting ready to annex Persia, for the control of which, in one way or another, the great nations of Europe have been struggling for years. Whether the shah, who is the most absolute monarch now reigning, would peacefully consent to annexation is extremely doubtful. He has an army of more than 100,000 men, who have been drilled for years by officers of different European nationalities. And even if the question of India were not involved, it is certain that Great Britain would resist to the utmost the consummation of the plan ascribed to the czar. Including the Imperial Persian bank, which is an English corporation, the English investments in Persia, which include all the iron, copper, coal, lead and other mines in the country, amount to many millions of pounds sterling. The only steamboat line in Persia and the principal telegraph lines are also under English control. The shah, who has absolute control over the lives and property of his subjects, has a private fortune of $30,000,000, much of which is invested in diamonds and other precious stones. At present he enjoys a revenue from the state of nearly $1,000,000 a year, though, as his wives number several hundred, this allowance is not so extravagant as it might seem.

WASHINGTON STATUE.

To Be Erected in the Place d'Iena, at Paris, by a Number of American Women.

Paris will receive in a few months, as a gift from a society of American women, a beautiful statue of Washington, for which a prominent site has already been selected. The statue is the work of Daniel C. French and E. C. Potter, and was ordered by the Association of American Women for the Presentation of a Statue of Washington to France. The work of the sculptors has been completed, and the casting is now being done by the Henry-Bonnard company, New York. When completed the statue will be 15 feet high from the top of the base to the top of the head, but the arm and the uplifted sword extend six feet higher, making the work from the lower line of the base to the sword top about 22 feet.

It shows Washington in full dress uniform, mounted on a fine charger.

WASHINGTON STATUE.
(Head and Horse of Monument to Be Erected at Paris.)

He holds his sword high over his head in his right hand, dedicating it to the service of his country, while the left hand grasps the bridle of the horse, which is impatient and anxious to move, but stands obedient to the master rider. The face was modeled after the bust by Houdon and other recognized portraits of Gen. Washington.

When the statue is completed it will be erected in the Place d'Iena on a pedestal which has been designed by McKim, Mead & White.

A Suggestion to Farmers.

Director of the Census Merriam suggests to the agriculturists of the country that they use some of their spare time between now and June next in thoroughly preparing themselves to answer promptly and accurately the questions relative to the acreage, quantity and value of crops; the quantity and value of all farm products, animal and vegetable; the cost of fertilizers and farm labor, and, in fact, all the items of farm operations for the calendar year 1899, which the census enumerators are by law compelled to ascertain. This, he says, will result in a full and accurate census.

Sponges Made to Order.

Artificial sponges are now made in Germany from a mixture of pure cellulose with zinc chloride and sodium chloride. These sponges will absorb water in the same way as the genuine article, and when allowed to dry they become just as firm in substance.

GERHART HAUPTMANN.

Famous German Dramatist and His Work Discredited by Emperor William's Veto.

Gerhart Hauptmann, the German dramatist, has just experienced a combination of good and bad fortune that is likely to deepen his pessimism. His latest play, "The Sunken Bell," has been awarded the Schiller prize at Berlin, the great literary distinction bestowed every three years upon the author of the best drama produced in that period. Unfortunately for the dramatist, Emperor William has refused to sanction the award, and the prize is expected to go to some less gifted author who has put more patriotism and less art into his work. Three years ago the emperor also withheld his sanction from the verdict of the jurors and gave the Schiller prize to a mediocre poet, who had won the royal favor by dramatizing Prussian and Hohenzollern history.

GERHART HAUPTMANN.
(German Dramatist Who Is Persona Non Grata with the Kaiser.)

Whether the emperor's judgment will be regarded as better than that of the jurors is likely to depend upon one's taste for Hauptmann's style of drama. "The Sunken Bell" is an excellent piece of symbolism, with much genuine poetry in its lines, but at once mystical and pessimistic. Heinrich, the bellmaker, casts a bell which he considers so perfect that it is worthy to stand upon the highest mountain top. When he attempts to take it thither the wood sprites throw it down, and it nearly crushes him as it rolls down the mountain side into a lake and disappears forever.

The rest of Heinrich's life is spent in the vain attempt to cast a still more perfect bell, and he breaks with the creeds, theories and superstitions of society to pursue his ideal. He ignores love and all the ties of human nature. His life is a protest against the conventions of the church and the home. Yet in breaking with these he misses the good of life as well as the bad, and finally ends his quest for the ideal in suicide.

As many meanings may be put upon the play as there are persons to interpret it, but its mysticism and essential gloominess are no more to be denied than its literary and dramatic merit. As a drama its sequence of action is almost perfect. Hauptmann's skill and artistic power are beyond question. He is the most famous German dramatist of the day. His experience in being denied the high honor of the Schiller prize after seeing it so nearly within his grasp is not likely to make him any less pessimistic. Heinrich's lost bell, sunk in the dark mountain lake, becomes symbolic in a new sense for the dramatist.

GRAVE-FILLING DEVICE.

It Conceals as Far as Possible the Actual Throwing of Dirt Upon the Coffin.

A device for use in constructing graves, the invention of Henry D. Cameron, of Burlington, Ia., described in the Cincinnati Commercial, is designed to fill the grave with earth after the coffin has been lowered, and to conceal as far as possible the actual throwing of the dirt upon the coffin, the most trying termination of the grave ceremony to the bereaved mourners. It consists of a receptacle, with detachable sides and bottom, and a gate in the latter so arranged as to be capable of being opened to allow the contents to fall. The front is a flexible curtain, extending from the top to the gate, and designed to prevent the earth within from being seen. This receptacle is filled with earth previous to the ceremony and carried to a convenient point. When all is over and the grave is to be filled, the receptacle is placed over it, and the gates opened, thus gently closing the last sad scene in a much more fitting manner than the seemingly cold-blooded return of the earth with a spade.

Microbes in Old Wine.

The changes that occur in wine are due to living organisms. Wines contain many microbes—some of them dead, but most of them able to sit up and look cheerful.

A Common Excuse for Neglect of Household Responsibilities That Is Reprehensible.

Lack of time has become an almost universal excuse. The world suffers from duties left undone because time to do them could not be found, or we thought it could not. There is not one among us who does not know of many things which we wanted to do—which we know we ought to have been done—but which were neglected because of lack of time. We make the excuse without a blush, not stopping to think that we have all the time God meant we should have, and that it is quite sufficient, if properly employed, for all He meant we should do.

It would be impossible to estimate the good that would result if all the wasted moments could be gathered up and devoted to some useful purpose. If compelled to give an accurate account of our time, how much of it do you suppose we should each be obliged to enter under the head "Wasted?"

"Not one moment," we hastily reply, driven almost to desperation by the torturing pains of our overworked bodies; "we are killing ourselves by inches in the vain attempt to do the work that has fallen to our share."

We believe what we say, and do not see that a large part of the work that is killing us consists of self-imposed tasks that are of no consequence, because they do not add to the comfort or happiness of ourselves or anyone else. We are suffering needlessly from wasted energy and wasted time, and although we crave pity, we deserve censure.

It is not lack of time that renders our lives either comparatively useless or a maddening round of important duties, so much as a lack of knowledge of the proper use of time. It is usually considered commendable to have work at hand which may be picked up and done in the odd minutes, but it is quite as likely to be reprehensible. It depends upon the work and the necessity there is for that particular woman to do it at all, and whether something of greater importance might not be done instead. The woman does wrong who overworks herself to complete a task not absolutely essential to the welfare of someone dependent upon her. She does wrong when she takes up work that her children could and should do. She does wrong when she does work that she is abundantly able to hire done, and that many poorer women need and could do as well. She does wrong when, at a risk to her life and health, she insists upon accomplishing any task, no matter how important it may be, except to save the life of another.

A woman is very foolish who draws too heavily upon her reserve force. She is not excusable because ignorant, for in these days any woman of average intelligence may get a fair idea of her own physical condition, and know just how much she can do with safety. She will then plan her work according to her strength, discarding all that her good judgment tells her is not worth doing. She will remember that unless her life is lived to some purpose, someone must suffer the consequences; that there is a certain amount of the world's work belonging to her, and that someone else must do what she neglects.—Housekeeper.

HOMEMADE DRESSING TABLE.

A Dainty and Useful Piece of Furniture Constructed Out of a Packing Box.

A young student, having a slender purse and some ingenuity, constructed a pretty dressing table out of a large packing box. She lined the box with pink cambric, pink being her favorite color, tacking it smoothly on the four sides and the bottom. The outside was covered in the same way, excepting the side that was intended to rest upon the floor.

At the height of the box from the floor a square of pink cambric the same size as the length of the box was fastened neatly on the wall. In the middle of this square a mirror was hung, whose shabby frame was concealed by a binding of the cambric. White Swiss muslin, four times the square in length, was then tacked around the square, and the fullness near the center drawn to make a puffing over the mirror frame. A bunching of narrow pink ribbon gave a tasteful finish to the plain edge of the muslin.

A plaited ruffle of the muslin, reaching to the floor, was tacked around the ends of the box, whose uncovered top had become the front, the bottom being placed against the wall. A separate curtain of muslin over pink cambric was arranged over the front, thus leaving the box freely accessible to hold many small articles. The top was covered smoothly, and a narrow ribbon ruching fastened around the edge, with tiny tacks hidden in the fullness.

At a picture frame store the student procured four strips of pink enameled molding, four feet long, two strips each the length of the table and two as long as the width. The four-foot strips she tacked upright on the four corners of the box, and connected them at the top by the other pieces, thus making a light but sufficiently firm frame, on which she fastened a "roof" of muslin-covered cambric extending on both ends far enough to reach the floor. These long ends were taken softly back to the back corners of the table, and there caught under large pink bows. Narrow ribbon ruching edged the top of this little canopy, and was ingeniously used to cover the unenamelled side of the molding, which was turned outward.

If one did not wish to hang the mirror flatly against the wall, the muslin's fullness could be drawn to a central point and fastened under a rosette of ribbon or cambric. The mirror then could be draped and hung separately.—N. Y. Tribune.

NOVEL APPARATUS.

Bicycle and Automobile Tires Inflated Automatically by a Clever Slot Machine.

An interesting and novel form of apparatus for inflating pneumatic tires, such as those used on bicycles and the heavier ones used on automobiles, designed to work on the penny-in-the-slot system, is shown here. The most novel feature of this device, the invention of John Fay Wilson, of Jetmore, Kan., is the mechanism for controlling the air pressure, which is produced by means of an electric motor and compressor. This is set in operation by the insertion of a penny in the chute shown, and the operation of the plunger is as usual in coin-controlled mechanism. After the tires are connected to the tubes shown the pointer is adjusted to the proper point on the dial, the figures of which represent pounds of air pressure desired. The coin is then dropped in the slot and the plunger pushed home. As soon as the pressure required to force the air into the tube becomes so great as to indicate that they are properly inflated the electric contact is broken, the motor stops and the pressure is cut off.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS.

Under No Circumstances Should Novices Attempt to Ride on Muddy Roads at Night.

Cyclers must be graduated in the school of experience ere they can be considered thorough masters of their machines; and in no particular, perhaps, is experience more necessary than in the matter of riding on muddy roads. Until this experience is gained, beginners should be very chary of venturing among traffic when the roads are wet, for then a sudden side-slip might mean the ending of their earthly career. Old riders can tell at a glance the condition of surface conducive to side-slip; but novices are apt to rush along the really dangerous places and to crawl along where it is really safe to ride at speed. Experience of road surface cannot be gained, of course, in riding schools; and, therefore, before indulging in town riding, beginners should make it a practice to put in a certain amount of riding in quiet thoroughfares when the roads are wet and muddy. By so doing they will speedily become acquainted with the conditions of surface dangerous to ride over in traffic. Nervous riders are troubled with side-slip to a far greater extent when cycling at night than during daylight; one of the reasons for this being that they are continually easing up and steering all over the road in endeavors to avoid imaginary muddy stretches. Do not ride in the dark when the roads are muddy is the best advice to nervous riders.—Golden Days.

Puncture-Closing Compound.

Take 13 ounces of pure scrap rubber, rubber cuttings, or the like, place it in a suitable utensil and submit it to heat over a fire until it has dissolved into a thick mass, taking care to stir the whole briskly and constantly, but no longer, or it will become too fluid. Then remove it from the fire, take its temperature, which will be 280 degrees Fahrenheit or thereabouts, and set it aside to cool till its heat has fallen 20 degrees Fahrenheit below the temperature last taken. Then add 1¼ ounces of white resin and stir until thoroughly mixed. Then add one ounce of boiled linseed oil and three-quarters of an ounce of dextrose (the two last-named ingredients may go in together), and well mix the whole and stand it aside till its temperature shall have fallen another 60 degrees Fahrenheit or thereabouts, when it will be ready for use.

Women Like Winter Riding.

Women have taken to winter riding this season, and are quite as persistent and enthusiastic as men. Heavy skirts, with long top riding shoes, thick woolen gloves, a soft hat without feathers to catch the wind, and a stout coat or jersey constitute the apparel of the determined ones. A new style of sweater, especially designed for women, is being considerably favored now. It is made with sleeves that fit tightly about the wrists and forearms, but are full and puffy about the upper arms and shoulders. They are minus the roll collar and the tightly knit elastic neck, but button across the shoulders in front, and instead of looking rough are somewhat dressy.

Combination Automobile.

Recently a motor carriage has been introduced in France which combines many novel features. It is normally propelled solely by an oil engine, but on hilly ground is helped by an electric motor. The oil engine works at constant speed, and when the vehicle does not absorb all the engine power the excess drives the motor as a dynamo and charges the accumulators. Then the accumulators are used only occasionally, and they are kept fully charged. The engine is directly connected to the dynamo motor, which is shunt wound, and this is in turn used to start up the engine. The changes in speed are effected mechanically.

HENRY CLAY FRICK.

Coke and Iron Magnate Who Is Now at Outs with His Former Partner, Mr. Carnegie.

Henry Clay Frick, the coke magnate of the world, did not start life from such absolute poverty as did his business confrere, Carnegie. He is of German descent, and when he first saw the light of day in Westmoreland county, Pa., December 19, 1849, he was born into a thrifty family. He enjoyed such education as the schools of his neighborhood afforded until he reached the age of 20 years, but he was precocious in business enthusiasm and spent his vacations clerking in a store. When he came out of school he went into the flouring mill and distillery owned by his grandfather and was employed as bookkeeper. On the side, he toyed with a small railroad venture which proved profitable and permitted him to amass a small capital. With this he experimented with the coking possibilities of the Connellsville coal, in which region he was located. In company with a few farmers, he got control of Broad Farm and built 50 coke ovens. Success was immediate and the capacity was soon doubled. Then more territory was secured and the number of ovens was once more doubled. The panic of '73 came on and swamped some of his partners. Securing aid from influential friends, he bought up the discarded interests and also got control of a large number of additional coking properties at the low panic prices. His faith in the future was sublime; he stemmed the tide of business depression and came out victorious. Soon after the revival of business the profits of a single year amounted to more than the purchase price of the new properties. The immense industry to-day operates on 40,000 acres of coal in the Connellsville region, owns 12,000 ovens, with a daily capacity of 25,000 tons of coke, and employs 11,000 miners and operatives. Upon the death of Thomas Carnegie, Andrew admitted Frick into the Carnegie company because of his admiration for the business capacities of the comparatively young man. Mr. Frick was made chairman of the company in 1889, but a few years ago divided the responsibilities of the onerous office by having a president elected, he retaining the chairmanship. Mr. Frick has spent large amounts of money in charitable work, but has done it so modestly that the world does not know much about it.

HAS NO EXPERIENCE.

Gen. Kelly-Kenny, Who Is After Cronje and His Army, Has a Barren Army Record.

Maj. Gen. Thomas Kelly-Kenny, who is reported to be in pursuit of Gen. Cronje and his army of 10,000 in their flight to Bloemfontein, is now engaged in the most important work he has had to do since he entered the army, 42 years ago. The general is 60 years old, but he has had comparatively little experience as a fighting soldier. As a raw lieutenant he was attached to one of the regiments that took part in the Chinese war, and he was one of the officers in Napier's expedition to Abyssinia in 1867. These were the only two warlike affairs in which Cronje's pursuer ever engaged. He was promoted to the rank of major general in 1897. His intervening years had been spent in administrative work, but when he was promoted to his present rank he was made inspector general of auxiliary forces and recruiting. He is now the commander of the Sixth division of Gen. Buller's army corps.

GUTTA-PERCHA RICHES.

A New Source of Wealth Discovered in the Philippine Islands by a German Scientist.

Rich as the Philippines were known to be, it is in one product that they promise to be of the greatest value. In a monograph just published in Germany it is shown that the Philippines are among the few places on earth in which the trees from which gutta-percha is procured will flourish. The value of this statement is not to be underrated, for two reasons. One is that gutta-percha is an indispensable material for the making of submarine cables and golf balls; the other is that the trees in Sumatra and Borneo, from which the chief supply has hitherto been drawn, are almost entirely exhausted. The cause of this destruction lies in the primitive and destructive methods which were formerly employed for gathering this valuable commodity. The natives, who never have any thought for the morrow, have ruthlessly cut down whole forests of trees, so that they might scrape the gutta-percha, which is nothing but the sap, from inside the bark. This wholesale destruction, carried on for years, has greatly lessened the annual crop, but the discovery that these trees grow and can be successfully cultivated in the Philippines offers hope that a new mine of wealth has been found for American enterprise as soon as the islands are pacified.

The discovery of gutta-percha goes back to the year 1847, when Sir William Jackson Hooker and Dr. Ernest Werner von Siemens announced not only the discovery of this valuable product, but that it was adapted to the insulation of wires along which electric currents were to pass. When it is considered that without gutta-percha all of the progress of the last half century in drawing the ends of the earth together by the lightning's flash would have been impossible, the importance of this discovery is easily appreciated.

While the chief use of gutta-percha is, of course, for the insulating covering of electric wires, a large quantity is used for the manufacture of golf balls, for which no other material seems so well adapted. Its hardness, after having been submitted to the proper pressure, and its toughness make it the only golf ball material yet discovered. The amount of cable laid since 1856 is some 41,853 knots, representing a cost for the cables alone of millions of pounds sterling, and as the prospects are that during the next 50 years many more cables will be required and laid, the demand for gutta-percha is almost unlimited. The wealth which gutta-percha in the Philippines holds out to American enterprise is in proportion to this demand.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

NOVEL INSOMNIA CURE.

It Is Certainly Worth Trying, Although It Seems Too Simple to Prove Effective.

A novel remedy for insomnia is to try to picture another person asleep. It is claimed that the more clearly the other person's sleep is pictured the stronger becomes the subjective feeling of drowsiness.

Give up trying to sleep. Nine times out of ten the blessings striven for in vain will come unsought, and that almost immediately, so that in looking back the next morning the last thing you remember will be your determination to lie awake. Directly you cease to strive for sleep—to wish ardently for it—the strain will be taken off the brain, the body will rest, because the mind is no longer preventing it, and sleep will be the happy result.

It is the anxiety for sleep and the worrying about its absence, far more than sleeplessness itself, that cause the feeling of prostration which follows a sleepless night. The man whose duty or occupation has forced him to give up a single night's rest is in far better condition the next day than the man who has spent a restless night in the vain and weary search for sleep.—N. Y. Journal.

Hunting by Automobile.

Among the hunting grounds of Maine for some weeks recently Mr. F O. Stanley has been making the best possible use of his automobile. It takes him to and from his hotel on his hunting trips, or from one hotel to his next stopping place. This is not a use to which our continental friends hold the exclusive right, although we haven't a story equal to that told of M. Rene de Knyff, who is said to make 40 miles on his automobile to a shooting lodge, put in a long day's shooting and then return for dinner.

Depth of Desert Sand.

It is supposed that the average depth of sand in the deserts of Africa is from 30 to 40 feet.

STONE OF GRATITUDE.

Pretty Legend Told by Roman Chroselers of the Topaz and the Emperor's Snake.

The topaz is called the stone of gratitude, and the old Roman books record the following legend from which the stone derives this attribute:

The blind Emperor Theodosius used to hang a brazen gong before his palace gates and sit beside it on certain days hearing and putting to right the grievances of any of his subjects. Those who wished for his advice and help had but to sound the gong, and immediately admission into the presence of Caesar was obtained.

One day a great snake crept up to the gate and struck the brazen gong with her coils, and Theodosius gave orders that no one should molest the creature and bade her tell him her wish. The snake bent her crest slowly in homage and straightway told the following tale:

Her nest was at the base of the gateway tower, and while she had gone to find food for her young brood a strange beast covered with sharp needles had invaded her home, killed the nestlings and now held possession of the little dwelling. Would Caesar grant her justice?

The emperor gave orders for the porcupine to be slain and the mother to be restored to her desolate nest. Night fell, and the sleeping world had forgotten the emperor's kindly deed, but with the early dawn a great serpent glided into the palace, up the steps into the royal chamber and laid upon each of the emperor's closed eyelids a gleaming topaz. When Emperor Theodosius awoke he found he was no longer blind, for the mother snake had paid her debt of gratitude.

DEVOTION OF A DOG.

Runs After a Railroad Train so as to Be Reunited with the Children He Loved.

On incident occurred at Perry, Okla., a few days ago which illustrates the devotion of a dog to children. Mrs. E. Butler, the wife of a groceryman, who mysteriously disappeared from Perry some weeks ago and who came from Atchison, Kan., last year, was leaving Perry for Ohio, a former home. The family dog was given to a neighbor. When the train arrived on which the Butler family was to leave the dog had broken a big rope with which he was tied at the home of his new master, and had appeared at the train. His new master and another man held the dog by a leather collar, but when the train started the dog bit both men and got away. He took after the train, barking at every jump, and for more than a mile he could be seen running after the car with all his might. The next morning when the next northbound passenger train rolled into Red Rock, a station 20 miles north of Perry, the dog was there, and made a spirited attempt to get aboard. He had to be fought off by the train crew. When the train started he ran after it, and as far as the train could be seen the dog was close behind it, barking as he ran.

The dog had not been away from the Butler children for any length of time for two years. He had followed the children by day and kept watch over the little beds by night.—St. Louis Republic.

INSEPARABLE FRIENDS.

Wherever This Dog Goes the Goose Which He Once Befriended Is Sure to Follow Him.

Animal friendships are curious at times. For example, look at the illustration, which represents a Canadian goose that is devoted to a dog. The goose lives at Vancouver, British Columbia, where it was being worried by several Indian dogs, when the large dog shown in the picture interfered and saved its life. Since then the goose cherished a warm attachment to the dog, who returned it. They did not separate, but slept in the same kennel and wherever the dog went the goose followed, and they were rarely, if ever, more than a few feet apart. The sequel of the story is rather sad. The owner of the dog had to leave and the goose was left to pine without its companion. The incident is described by a writer in the Field.

A Mammoth Apple Pie.

Probably the biggest apple pie ever baked was the big feature at a reception of Artie Phillips, a member of the Twentieth Kansas regiment, on his return to his home in Muvane. This soldier boy, in one of his letters from Manila, said he would give four years of his life for one of those apple pies such as his mother used to make. At the reception tendered him by the people of Mulvane he was presented with a pie, square in form, measuring five feet one way by two feet the other. In the pie were two and one-half bushels of apples, ten pounds of flour, ten pounds of sugar, six pounds of lard, two pounds of butter and a commensurate amount of other articles which go in this kind of pastry. The pie was properly baked and eaten with relish.

FERTILIZERS.

LAST year we aimed to convince the Farmers and Gardeners that it was unnecessary when buying Fertilizers to pay from thirty to fifty per cent more than they are worth, simply because some "other fellow" forgets to pay his bills, and it has become the habit of the fertilizer trade to make the good pay for the bad.

If you pay your bills we want to sell you and you will not have to pay for other customers who don't pay, as we dont have that kind.

The laws of this State protect the purchaser of Fertilizers, and all that is necessary is to see that he gets what he pays for.

CLOVER SEED.

We have the cheapest in result, but not in price. The same is true of our Timothy Seed. Ask those who bought it last Fall.

SEED OATS.

Oats raised for seed, absolutely clean and as cheap as a good article can be sold for.

If you have money to throw away don't come to us, as we cannot accommodate you; our prices being the same to every one, naturally must be made to fit the close buyer.

The uniform and equipment will be similar to that of the United States Signal Corps.

Funeral of Mrs. Depew.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Helen J. Depew were held yesterday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. August Kleinecke, East Ninth street, and were very largely attended. Rev. Dr. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church, assisted by the curate, Rev Floyd Appleton, were in charge of the services. The was a beautiful display of floral tributes. Interment was at the convenience of the family.

A young son of Mrs. Milne, of Washington Park, Mrs. Alex Milne and Cyrus Kinsman, were baptised yesterday morning by Dr. Yerkes at the First Baptist church.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND

Leal's School nine played its second game Saturday afternoon against an old rival, the Lincoln High School of Westfield. History repeated itself in part only; for although Leal's won by a score of 14 to 3, the game was free from any disputes. This was partly due to the just decisions of the umpires, Messrs. L. Darling and Bogart, and partly to the feeling of friendship that existed between the two teams. The visitors showed lack of practice. They played very well considering it was their first game. Brown, the captain of the Westfield nine, caught well and did effective stick work. Leal's made a good showing in the field, making only five errors. Crowe, at shortstop, covered his territory well and caught a high fly back of second base. Barcalow, who played second, was a little slow in catching his man stealing second, but he made several good plays and saved a run in the last inning by stopping a swift and difficult grounder. Millar, 3d, and Brown, 1st, did well also. The former was playing out of his position which is 2d. The three fielders McGee, W. Schoonmaker and Churchill did good work. Dupee proved himself a good pitcher. He struck out 11 men and only gave 5 men bases on balls. At the bat Leal's showed up pretty well. The hits were opportune and for the most part on the floor, either out of the infielders hands or difficult for them to field in. W. Schoonmaker brought in three men on a three-bagger, and Brown made a home-run with two men on bases. The teams batted as follows:

LEAL'S SCHOOL.	LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL.
Tilyer, c.,	Bows, 2b.,
McGee, lf.,	Pierson, rf.,
Dupee, p.,	Williams, lf.,
Churchill, rf.,	Tice, ab.,
Crowe, ss.,	Sauer, 3b.,
Millar, 3b.,	Green, ss.,
W. schoonmaker, cf.,	Foster, cf.,
Barcalow, 2b.,	Miller, p.,
F. Brown, 1b.	Hegeman, 2b.,
	Brown, c.

The score by innings was as follows:

Leal's School	2	0	2	3	4	1	2	0	x—14

The Arion baseball team defeated the North Plainfield High School Saturday by a score of 19 to 3. The game was played on the Arion's grounds, the old golf course on Plainfield avenue, near Stelle avenue.

RAID IN THE BOROUGH.

Two Men and a Woman Arrested in a House on Steiner Place Saturday Night.

On the complaint of neighbors living on Steiner place, in the borough, Chie Campbell and Marshals Winn and Emmons raided a house Saturday evening and arrested Benjamin Scribner, a friend name James and a woman. The latter occupied the house and followed the business of dressmaking. They were locked up and yesterday afternoon James and the woman were released after a deposit of $20 had been made for their appearance for a hearing this evening at 7 o'clock. Scribner is being detained as he could not furnish bonds.

It is understood that the disorder has been going on for sometime and that the neighbors have been annoyed very much. Affairs reached a climax Saturday evening and the attention of the police was called to it, when the arrests followed.

H. Crowe & Company Assign.

H. Crowe & Company, grain exporters, at No. 453 Produce Exchange, New York, made an assignment Saturday to Samuel F. Engs. The partners are Herbert Crowe, who lives in Plainfield, and Howard R. Howser, living at No. 239 West Eleventh street, New York. Estimates of the liabilities at the Produce Exchange were $6,000, and the assignment was attributed to the firm being on the wrong side of the corn market. The concern has been regarded as a Winnepeg house, and Mr. Crowe has been in New York since September, 1893.

His Little Home Saved.

Friends of James Burdick, of East Third street, and old and respected citizen of Plainfield, have raised sufficient money to pay off the back taxes on his property so that it will not come under the proceedings of the Martin Act. The little home of the old man will thus be saved for him, and he is correspondingly happy.

FOWLER IS BUSY WITH HIS CAMPAIGN.

Supporters of the Congressman Declare That They Will Beat Frank Bergen.

BATTLE ROYAL IT WILL BE.

FOWLER'S FRIENDS ARE ACTIVE IN HIS INTERESTS.

Plans to Checkmate the Bergen Boom are Matured and Will be Carried Out Aggressively by the Congressman and His Cohorts.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 10.—Congressman Charles N. Fowler arrived here Saturday night from Washington and later an important conference of his principal supporters was held at the Mattano Club, which is the headquarters of Mr. Fowler now whenever he comes to Elizabeth. Former Mayor John C. Rankin, William W. Ackerman, manager of the Crescent Iron Works, and other zealous advocates of the Congressman were present and the conference lasted for a couple of hours.

It said that the telephone wires were kept hot during the evening between Elizabeth, Orange and Bayonne, and the Congressman managed to get in close touch with the Republican leaders in the Essex and Hudson portions of his district. The aggressive nature of the candidacy of Frank Bergen was the all absorbing topic of the discussion, and plans to checkmate the growth of the Bergen boom, it is said, have been matured.

Congressman Fowler, when he left for Washington last evening, was said to be well satisfied with the result of his visit. One of those at the conference said yesterday:

"A battle royal is about to take place between Fowler and Bergen. It will be the hottest struggle ever witnessed in the Eighth district, and we have no fears as to what the outcome will be. The men who are backing Congressman Fowler in the fight are no inexperienced political campaigners, but are veterans of many a hard battle, and have nearly always proved victorious. We believe that a Congressman, to be of much service to his district, should, if a competent man, be continued in the office more than a couple of terms. Look, for example, at Congressmen Gardner and Laudenslager. Both are to be sent back by their constituents chiefly for this very reason, and why not Congressman Fowler?"

Congressman Fowler gave out yesterday afternoon the following statement defining his position regarding his candidacy for a fourth term:

To the Republicans of the VIIIth Congress District,

"Under the present circumstances it is highly proper, indeed, in justice to myself, I should say I have not authorized any statement whatever with regard to my candidacy for a renomination to Congress. Neither have I, nor shall I indulge in words of disparagement of any resident of this district who may, as he has a perfect right to do, aspire to a nomination for which I am myself a candidate.

"Throughout my life it has been an invariable rule of action, both in public affairs and private matters, to strive to succeed through exalted purpose, fidelity to duty, honest effort and upon my own merit, rather than by attempting to pull down others.

"In aspiring to a renomination, therefore, I shall rely upon my faithful performance of every public duty according to the best of my ability and the services rendered my country in the wider field of legislation, since I have had the honor of representing the Eighth district in the Lower House of Congress.

"Charles N. Fowler."

MISS LYON'S LECTURE.

The Fifth One in the Course Was Given Last Night.

The series of lectures on "Europe in Africa in the Nineteenth Century," which have been given during the last few weeks by Miss Dorothy Wilberforce Lyon, Ph. D., of Elizabeth, have been much enjoyed by those who have attended them. The subject is one which is of special interest at the present time, and the clear and interesting way in which Miss Lyon has presented the facts has added much to their value. The fifth lecture of the course was given yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. Hariot Burton Ford, of Watchung avenue, the subject being "The Establishment of French Power in Africa and the 'Hinterland' Question."

—The annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue church will be held tomorrow evening in the chapel of the church.

CONTRACTOR IS MISSING.

MECHANICS TAKE LEGAL ACTION TO PROTECT THEMSELVES.

William H. Carl the Missing Man—He Was Building a House for Frank H. Coward.

Several carpenters and a few other mechanics are at present interested in the whereabout of William H. Carl, a contractor, who is said to have abandoned a job and left the city, owing them various sums of money.

Mr. Carl had the contract to construct a residence for Frank H. Coward on Sycamore avenue near Rockview avenue. The carpenters were employed until the latter part of March when they quit work because they claim the contractor was indebted to them.

Recently the men tried to locate Mr. Carl but he could not be found and they decided to protect their interests. Yesterday they served the necessary legal notices upon Mr. Coward, notifying him of Contractor Carl's indebtedness to them, and stopping further payment to the contractor. It is understood that there is yet about $1,800 due the contractor, and this amount will be sufficient to pay all claims of the workmen who have served notices upon Mr. Coward.

The workmen who have served notices upon Mr. Coward, the owner of the house, claim that it will require at least $2,200 to finish the structure, which is but about two-thirds completed. Mr. Coward is a taveling salesman and has been in Plainfield but a few months. The name of the missing contractor is not given in the city directory.

Since the above was written it is learned that Contractor Carl lives in Elizabeth. Some of the mechanics have placed their claims in the hands of Robert M. Clark, of this city, who will attempt to procure what is claimed to be due them.

TRIALS OF A MISSIONARY.

P. G. Wyckoff Delivered an Interesting Lecture Before Trinity Church Endeavorers.

The meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church was along missionary lines last evening, and was in charge of Dr. Schenck, the pastor of the church. After the singing of a solo, "God's Lily," by Miss Mary Griffin, Pastor Schenck introduced P. G. Wyckoff, of Sandford avenue, as one who is not only interested in missions as a Christian, but from the fact that his brother was laboring in a foreign field, Tindivanam, India.

Mr. Wyckoff told of the trials of the missionary in India, where the people are satisfied with their gods, and how isolated the missionaries are, deprived of the fellowship of Christians. He told how Mrs. Wyckoff has been called upon to lay out her children for burial. Every so often tours are made through the country, the missionary carrying his tent with him by means of oxen, who are not very rapid, and an ox cart. It sometimes taking one hour and a half to travel one mile. Stops are made at the various stations and as soon as a crowd gathers preaching is begun by the missionary or some of his helpers. Once a year the hearts of the missionaries are made glad when a meeting of these workers from round about is held, when plans for work are discussed.

Education and Life.

A series of four lectures on "Education and Life," of special interest to both parents and teachers, is to be given in the Assembly Hall of the Franklin School this spring by Edward Howard Griggs, formerly at the head of the department of ethics and education at the Leland Stanford, Jr., University. The lectures will begin at 4 o'clock.

Hanover Swept by Fire.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Mt. Holly, April 10.—The little village of Hanover, about four miles from Brown's Mills, was destroyed by fire last night. Not a house was left standing. The fire was fanned by a high wind and enveloped the town on all sides. The loss is estimated at $25,000. There was but little insurance.

Anniversary of Missionary Society.

The anniversary of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church will be observed in Vincent chapel tomorrow evening, taking the place of the regular mid-week service. There will be several interesting reports and addresses. Refreshments will be served at 9 o'clock and a social hour will follow.

CITY HALL HEARING WAS NOT A SUCCESS.

Comparatively Little Real Sentiment Was Heard About the Municipal Project.

FEAR OF A HIGH TAX RATE.

THAT'S WHAT CAUSES MOST OF THE OPPOSITION MANIFESTED.

Lengthy Speech Against the Idea Made by Winfield S. Angleman—But One Spoke in Favor of the Improvement—Some of the Points Made.

The public hearing given last evening by the members of the Common Council for the purpose of ascertaining whether the people want a city hall erected at present, was largely attended, but so far as being a howling success against the project, the earnest devotees of the proposition to defeat it had little to crow over, for it was a flat failure. The Council failed to get a true expression of opinion on the subject despite the lengthy speeches of the few who spoke, and those who did speak against the project wandered so far from the subject that once during the hearing Mr. Buckle felt impelled to make a few remarks and bring the speakers back to the subject.

President Smith, in opening the hearing, stated by way of explanation that it was not the purpose of the Council to spend $100,000 according to the bill, but about $65,000 or $70,000 at the most. The meeting was then thrown open for discussion.

Former Assemblyman Roger F. Murray presented a communication for A. C. Marclay, of West Seventh street, who could not be present. The document was noted for one thing—length—and it required considerable time for Acting Clerk Wean to read it. The writer started in by saying that a city hall was not a necessity, the Mayor does not need one as his duties are not so many and arduous but what he can perform them in the customary way. He commended Plainfield for the absence of all feathers and fuss. He believed that a city hall and jail should be separate and advised this plan when the proper time for building arrived.

Mr. Marclay did not consider the American people mean, but he thought the present accommodations adequate for all needs. He cited that a City Hall must surely mean increased salaries amounting to at least $7,000, and he believed that the Council should give the taxpayers a breathing spell of five years before raising the tax rate. He spoke of the sewer system which Mr. Frost said would be run for $1,500 a year, but which was costing about $4,000 a year. He referred to the "plumage of the gay bird," meaning the furnishings for a City Hall, which would cost at least $50,000, and said it would be a shame to expend so much money to furnish "a resting place for a City Hall gang." He touched briefly on the Martin Act and said that if the present gait was continued there would be many lonesome homes on the line of the Jersey Central Railroad.

The next speaker was Lawyer Winfield S. Angleman, who evidently appeared on behalf of an opponent, as well as himself. He commenced by saying that all had the welfare of the city at heart however they might differ. He referred in a glowing manner to Plainfield as a good place to invest money and told of the pride felt by many for the enviable record made by the city and of her traditional policy of going slow in important matters. He considered it wise to hesitate in building a City Hall, which would involve an expense of $75,000 or $100,000. He said that Plainfield has the reputation of fostering substantial improvements, such as schools, which affect every family. He referred to the improvements of the streets, police, fire department as a benefit to all and where every dollar invested comes back with interest.

He wanted to know if the Mayor or Council would act any better in a City Hall than they do now. He then mentioned a town named Gilford in Connecticut, where the tax this year had been abolished for the reason that there was a balance of $7,000 in the treasury the first of January. This he thought was an admirable state to get into. He did not think Plainfield could very well afford to spend $75,000 in ornaments. Mr. Angleman then continued speaking for sometime during which he gave figures to show what an increase in expense a City Hall would make, and how hard it would come on the poor man who has to pay the burden.

At this point Mr. Buckle explained that from time to time the various messages presented by the Mayors of the city had always referred to a City Hall and jail and that this was nothing new. It was he who urged the action in the matter of building a City Hall and when the question was put to a vote Mr. Dumont was the only one to vote against it. He said that the only people he listens to regarding expenditures of city money are the persons who pay taxes. He did not consider the City Hall an absolute necessity, but thought there was a strong sentiment in favor of it, and if it wasn't for sentiment he did not believe there would be a church in the city. He said he was in favor of a City Hall if the majority of the people are, and he felt sure the city could build one if they want to and the tax rate would be no higher than it is in North Plainfield. He believed that the city is being run in an economical way. He then spoke of the recent action of the Council regarding the High School matter, and said that he could not resist the plea made for better and increased accomodations. He would not recall his vote if he could. He admitted that diplomacy was not shown in the action, but that he considered the only act against the work of the members in that transaction.

Mr. Dumont could not resist the opportunity to say a word, although he stated that the meeting was called to hear an expression and not for the members to give their views. He said the Board of Education showed conclusively that better and larger accommodations are needed, and as much cannot be said regarding a City Hall. Referring to the churches he said that if it was not for the Plainfield churches the city would not be where it is today. He considered them the bulwark of the city. He said most emphatically that no living man could say within $15,000 what a City Hall would cost Plainfield. He hoped the matter would be delayed until a proper time to go on with it.

J. W. Murray, Sr., followed Mr. Dumont and spoke at some length regarding the underground railway in New York that is now in course of construction. He favored schools that would give everyone as good an education as possible. He did not want to charge anything, but referred to the manner in which Tweed ruled New York, and while he did not liken him to anyone in the Council he considered that the charge of expense would be large if the hall should be built through the Council.

L. B. Woolston was impressed with the idea that Plainfield does need a City Hall, after hearing previous arguments. He said it would be a disgrace to let the outside world know that the city cannot build a suitable municipal building. He said that the people want a new station opposite the North Avenue station simply because the railroad would pay for it. If the city was to stand the expense there would be a howl such as is heard against the City Hall. He stated that brick, mortar, lime and labor is the same now as a year ago, and no one would feel the tax for sometime to come if a hall was erected. He thought Plainfield could afford it.

Mr. Woolston decried the idea of the poor man paying the expense. It is the poor man who benefits and does not have to pay much for what he gets.

Patrick Casey took Mr. Woolston up on this proposition and stated that in his opinion the poor man does pay big. He referred to the Martin Act and told how he had to pay $256.76 assessment levied upon his property. He thought if the rich man wanted to give his children a better education he could afford to send them to a paid institution, and not attempt to oppress the poor man with heavy taxes. He did not favor a City Hall at present.

In conclusion Robert Rushmore, Col. Dietrich, Isaac W. Rushmore and John Cory spoke against the proposition of building a City Hall and each one advanced one argument and another to support their positions. This concluded the hearing and the Council returned to regular order of business.

Hearing on Sidewalk Improvement.

An ordinance of special importance to every property owner in the borough of North Plainfield, which has been introduced into the Borough Council, was published yesterday in The Daily Press. The Council has fixed Friday evening, April 20th, for a public hearing of the arguments for and against the ordinance. The ordinance relates to the laying of proper sidewalks on the principal streets of the borough and making such action obligatory on the part of the property owners on the streets mentioned in the ordinance.

For Political Organization.

A meeting of the city executive committee of the Republican party will be held this evening when the committee on constitution will make its report. An amendment to the primary rules will also be considered.

GETTING READY TO OPEN PARK GOLF CLUB

The New Professional, Blair, Has Taken Charge of the Course.

WILL OPEN THE LINKS SOON.

COURSE IS IN EXCELLENT CONDITION AT PRESENT.

May Be Possible to Let the Players Use the Course Easter Week—Prospects for a Fine Season.

Very bright, indeed, are the prospects for the coming season at the links of the Park Golf Club. Last season saw the course a popular place and this year it will be more attractive than ever. The changes made in the methods of government of the club promise to work for the very best interests of the organization. Every pleasant day sees the course drawing nearer fit condition for play.

At the head of the greens committee this year is Councilman George T. Rogers, who was one of the most enthusiastic golfers of the club last year. On his appointment Mr. Rogers lost no time in getting at work, and is now able to promise his clubmates that the course will be ready to open informally by Saturday, April 21st. If the pleasant weather continues it may be possible to have the course in condition before that time and give the young people who are at home for the Easter holidays a chance to play. The fair greens are in good condition now.

Mr. Rogers and the new club professional, Andrew B. Blair, went over the course Saturday afternoon to see what would have to be done before it was ready for play. Besides being an excellent instructor, Mr. Blair is an expert green keeper and fully understands the care of the course. He will take full charge of that work and will look after the course during the season. Several capable men have been engaged to care for the course under his direction.

An addition is being built to the club house and as soon as it is completed Professional Blair and his wife will take up their residence there and remain at the club house throughout the season. Mrs Blair is an excellent cook and will act as stewardess at the club house. Arrangements will be made so that members can have light luncheons served there.

Professional Blair comes here from Cleveland, O., very highly recommended. Among his testimonials is a strong one from the golf department of A. G. Spalding's sporting goods establishment. He has just returned from a trip to his home in Scotland. He comes from Dunnestoun, Glasgow. Mr. Blair is a young man and is a fine player as well as teacher and green-keeper. Those who have met him have been very favorably impressed.

No schedule of events on the links this summer has yet been issued. There will be the usual holiday events and the plan of a weekly competition for a cup to last all the season, which proved so successful last year, is likely to be tried again this year.

HIS WORK RECOGNIZED.

Charles B. Brown Receives a Call to Become Associate Y. M. C. A. State Secretary.

Charles B. Brown, formerly of Plainfield, and now general secretary of the Jersey City Young Men's Christian Association, has received a unanimous call from the New Jersey State committee to become associate Y. M. C. A. State secretary. During the two years Secretary Brown has been in Jersey City the local association has been entirely reorganized, and the work brought to such a degree of development that a movement to erect a $75,000 building will soon be under way.

Secretary Brown has not yet accepted the new offer, and will not leave his present field unless some one is secured to take up the work, which has been started in Jersey City.

Will Do Military Duty in Cuba.

John Morely Campbell and his bride of a few weeks have been enjoying a short visit with Mr. and Mrs. S. R Struthers, of West Front street. Mrs. Campbell is a niece of Mrs. Struthers, and her husband, who has just been promoted to First Lieutenant in the U. S. Army, is a native of Texas. He has been assigned to the Fifth Regiment, and expects to be sent to Cuba. When the time appointed for the marriage arrived Lieut. Campbell could not leave his station in Texas, and his bride, accompanied by her father, who is a minister, went to where the groom was living and was married.

VOORHEES FOR DELEGATE

REPUBLICAN LEADERS THINK HE SHOULD BE HONORED.

They Want Him Selected as One of the "Big Four" to Attend the National Convention.

Governor Voorhees will probably be a candidate before the State Republican Convention, for the honor of representing his party as one of the Delegates-at-Large at the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in June. Sometime ago there was an announcement made that a slate has been fixed, by which the Delegates-at-Large chosen by the State committee should be Senators Sewell and Kean, Chairman Franklin Murphy of the State committee, and Franklin Gummere, of Trenton.

Just who was responsible for this selection was not known, but it was not known, but it was accepted for a while. The custom is to choose the two Senators and the chairman of the State committee as delegates, but it was not quite clear where Barker Gummere came in. Certainly it was not by custom, for he holds no official position which would entitle him to the honor. On the other hand, it is almost universally the rule that the Governor of a Republican State should be made of the Delegates-at-Large, and this is especially true of States like New Jersey, where a Republican Governor is more or less a rarity.

Last week a number of Republicans of prominence discussed the subject at Trenton, and it was the unanimous opinion that Gov. Voorhees should be one of the delegates unless he had objections. On the contrary it was said he would like very much to be one of the representatives, especially as other States are determined to confer the honor on their Chief Executives. The result was that the Governor was proposed as a candidate before the State convention, and he is expected to make the contest.

SPECIAL EASTER SERVICES.

Elaborate Preparations for Services in St. Joseph's and St. Mary's Churches Next Sunday.

Elaborate preparations are being made at St. Joseph's R. C. church for Easter. The service will be held next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. There will be a large chorus choir and they will be assisted by an orchestra under the direction of Martin Korff. The feature of the service will be the rendition of "Farmer's Mass," and there will be some solo work. Mrs. LaPorte will preside at the organ.

Similar arrangements are being perfected at St. Mary's R. C church, and the large choir will be assisted by an orchestra under the leadership of Joseph Sattela. "Farmer's Mass" will be sung and there will also be special solo work.

Fine Musical Talent to be Heard.

The Young People's Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will give their annual concert in the church next Thursday evening. This concert will be a grand treat for all who may be so fortunate as to hear it, as Miss Lillie d'Angelo Bergh, a leading voice-placer and teacher of New York, will sing. Miss Bergh has an unusually fine soprano voice. Dr. Waldo's family, of Stelle avenue, will favor the audience with several selections of their high-class music. Mr. Holmes and the best of our local talent will also appear, and the concert will be in every way the treat that these people usually give us.

Death of Mrs. Sherwin.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Sherwin, wife of Orren Sherwin, of 302 East Second street, died this morning with paralysis, which was brought on by a long illness. For a number of days past she was in a very critical condition, and her death was expected most any time. Mrs. Sherwin was a resident of Plainfield for a great many years and was a woman of exemplary Christian character. She leaves a husband, a daughter and a son. The latter is Horace J. Sherwin, the West Front street shoe dealer. The funeral services will be held from the late residence Thursday afternoon next at 2:30 o'clock.

Died After a Long Illness.

Patrick Rafferty, aged 53 years, a painter by trade, died this morning at his home, 334 East Fourth street, after an illness extending over a period of nearly four months. He was in the employ of Woolston & Buckle for nearly twenty years and was one of the best workmen in the city. He was taken ill Christmas Eve and since then had been confined to his home. He leaves a wife and three children. The latter are Mrs. William Feiring, of East Front street; Miss Maggie Rafferty and Joseph Rafferty, who reside home. The notice of funeral will be published later.

CITY WILL NOT ACCEPT UNIMPROVED STREETS

Action on Accepting Jackson and Johnson Avenues Was Postponed by Council.

NEW TELEPHONE COMPANY.

IT ASKS FOR RIGHT TO STRING WIRES IN PLAINFIELD.

Friday, May 4th, the Last Day on Which Settlements Can be Made Under Provisions of the Martin Act.

After the Common Council concluded the public hearing in the City Hall matter, last evening, the regular order of business was returned to, for the purpose of considering a few matters. A communication was received from J. Fred MacDonald stating that the site he offered for the City Hall was the most desirable, and urging that the city purchase it. It was referred to the City Hall building committee. A petition was received from W. T. Newman, of West Second street, asking the Council to act in the matter of macadamizing West Second street between Central avenue and Liberty street, as petitioned for several times. Dr. James Hayes, who owns property in the city upon which taxes were assessed for 1878, 1879 and 1880, asked that the interest be returned to him on the amounts which had been paid. The matter was referred.

Mr. Tolles introduced an ordinance accepting Johnston avenue from the northwest side of North avenue to the southwest side of East Front street. This caused discussion and Mr. VanHerwerden wanted to know if it was customory to accept a street before it was macadamized. Most of the members were in doubt, and the matter was laid on the table. It is the rule now not to accept streets until they have been macadamized, flagged and curbed, and it was Mr. Tolles who introduced the ordinance sometime ago making this the law.

D. H Lang, secretary of the State Telephone Company, petitioned for the right to construct telephone wires through Plainfield to connect with lines at Bound Brook and Trenton. The matter was referred to the street committee.

Mr. VanHerwerden moved to reconsider the vote on the resolution providing for the advertisement of delinquent taxes. He then offered a resolution that Friday, May 4th, be fixed as the last day when settlements can be made for property affected by the Martin Act. The idea of making a change in the advertising of taxes that are due is that the Council desires to treat all under the provisions of the Martin Act, and not under the regular State law. Council then adjourned.

A STORE FOR SISSER.

New Borough Saloon Will be Located on the Bridge on Somerset Street.

James Sisser, the man who was granted a liquor license for the place on the Somerset street bridge by Former Judge Bartine, has at last secured a place to open up. He has arranged to take the place formerly occupied by Mr. Springer, who kept a pool room, and the store adjoining, which has been used as a barber shop. The barber will take rooms over H. J. Martin's blacksmith shop. The two places will be thrown into one and improvements will be made.

McGee, Mrs. James C Peck, Mrs. Henry R Phillips, Mrs. Charles A Reed, Mrs George T. Rogers, Mrs Samuel Townsend and Mrs. Augustus VanDeventer.

A Lodge Invests Its Money.

A regular meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association was held last evening to consider such business as might come before them. Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., bought twenty shares of stock, which they believe to be the best investment after considering other similar organizations.

BRITISH HOPES FAIL

Lord Roberts Has Now Begun Defensive Operations.

LONG WINTER CAMPAIGN PROBABLE.

Boers Appear About Bloemfontein In Great Numbers and Grow Bold. The Wepener Garrison Isolated. Many Foreigners Prisoners.

LONDON, April 10.—Britons are now beginning, though reluctantly, to realize that Lord Roberts is in for a winter campaign lasting several months. This is the end, in a few words, of the high hopes based upon Lord Roberts' brilliant dash to Kimberley and Bloemfontein.

Preparations are being made to hold Bloemfontein against surprises. Lord Kitchener has been given an important duty, being responsible for the protection of the railway, while Lord Roberts is waiting for remounts and winter clothing for the troops, whose thin cotton khaki uniforms and boots are worn out.

General Brabant and General Gatacre are both at a standstill. Lord Roberts will probably for some time confine his operations to clearing the Free State behind him of raiders and to relieving Mafeking, for which purpose apparently the Eighth division, now arriving at Cape Town, has been ordered to Kimberley.

Lady Sarah Wilson and other Mafeking correspondents send diaries of the doings there, showing that the Boers have tried by abandoning their trenches to lure the besieged out into a mined ambush. Fortunately the British engineers discovered the mine, cut the wire communication and unearthed 250 pounds of dynamite and war gelatin.

What the changes are for an advance to Pretoria may be judged from the fact that only from 6,000 to 10,000 horses are on their way to the Cape and from the further fact that the military tailoring departments only within the last three weeks began making woollen khaki uniforms. It is said it will take at least two months to provide 200,000 uniforms.

The Times publishes the following from Wepener, dated Sunday, April 8:

"The Wepener garrison is practically isolated. However, the lines are enormously strong, and the force is fully provisioned.

"Desultory firing between outposts continues. A commando estimated at 2,000, with four guns, went into laager last night five miles from here in the direction of De Wets dorp."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Sunday, says:

"Two captured Boers agree that only 50 men remained unwounded out of the whole British column captured at Reddersburg.

"General Gatacre and his staff were fired on from inclosures while they temporarily occupied Reddersburg.

"Considerable movements of troops have occurred here with the object of preventing a surprise."

Advices from Kimberly, dated April 9, say:

"Fifty-two prisoners who were captured at Boshof have arrived here. Only three are Dutchmen, the others being Frenchmen, Germans and Russians."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, telegraphing Sunday, says:

"The railway and telegraph are working well. Works and trenches have been prepared in suitable positions around Bloemfontein. The greatest vigilance is exercised. Some of the troops sleep in the trenches.

"Confirmation has been received of the report that the Boers are in laager in considerable force, with guns, at Donkerspoort, 18 miles southeast. The British scouts report another body still closer. The Boer patrols have grown very daring, venturing much nearer our tents."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Morning Post, telegraphing Sunday, says:

"The movement of troops continues with bewildering frequency, brigades and divisions appearing and disappearing at brief intervals. No specific accounts of such movements are permitted.

"Some remounts were fired on yesterday on the railway while they were on the way here from the south. The enemy are reported to be in considerable numbers to the southeast of the line.

"The Boers are also apparently feeling their way frequently to the west of the line. A party has been thrown forward and has reoccupied the laager at Paardeberg, probably to search for buried arms and ammunition."

A dispatch from Aliwal North, dated April 9, says:

"Small bodies of the enemy have been seen across the river near the town of Odendoalstroom. The ferry has been destroyed. There is a Boer commando of 600 at Rouxville. A larger one has left Smithfield for Wepener. There are two commandoes around Wepener, but thus far there has been only outpost firing. A lieutenant of Brabant's horse has been captured at Rouxville by Boers who had previously surrendered. The landrost is also said to have broken his oath. A detachment of Cape artillery, with three guns, and a squadron of Queenstown mounted volunteers arrived today."

What British Victory Means.

BOMBAY, April 10.—The viceroy, Lord Curzon of Kedleston, replying to an address, eulogized the loyalty of the Sikh soldiers. He said the Punjab was interested because its people knew that British victory did not mean the extermination of the vanquished, but a new era of peace and prosperity for conquerors and conquered.

An Aged Embezzler.

MARSHALL, Mich., April 10.—A. O. Hyde, ex-superintendent of the poor of this county, has been bound over for trial on three counts charging him with embezzlement as a public official. His total alleged stealings amounted to $16,000, of which he paid back $4,000. He is 84 years old and had held the office for 30 years.

Reported Combination.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The World says: "Negotiations are in progress for a combination of the gigantic new Carnegie company and the Cramp shipbuilding concern. If the conference now going on in Atlantic City results in a satisfactory arrangement, the coalition between these two great interests will soon be announced."

Floods In Germany.

BERLIN, April 10.—Heavy rains have fallen during the last four days, and the Elbe and Oder have overflowed in extensive districts in Saxony, Brandenburg and Silesia.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Senate Fails to Fix Date For Vote on Quay Matter.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—After some further discussion the senate yesterday rejected the sectarian school amendment to the Indian appropriation bill offered by Mr. Jones (Dem.) of Arkansas by a vote of 30 to 16. As has been the practice for years, the "free homes" measure was offered as an amendment to the bill, but it was ruled out on the point of order that it was general legislation and therefore not germane to an appropriation bill. Without division the bill was passed. The measure carries about $8,414,000.

An unsuccessful effort was made to agree upon a date for a vote on the resolution relative to the seating of Mr. Quay as a senator from Pennsylvania. The effort will be renewed today.

During the last two hours of the session the Alaskan civil code bill was under consideration. An amendment offered by Mr. Hansbrough concerning the title to mining claims in the Cape Nome district provoked a warm debate.

It was a dull day in the house. The agricultural appropriation bill was under consideration and was made the vehicle of considerable debate on political topics, none of which was pertinent to the bill. Good progress was made with the bill after the close of general debate, 25 of the 37 pages being covered before the adjournment. Several minor amendments were adopted.

Representative Levy of New York introduced a resolution which, after reciting the statements that 30 officers and men of the army in the Philippines have committed suicide and that more than 400 are now confined in insane asylums and that serious charges have been made against officials in the transport, commissary and quartermaster's services, calls upon the secretary of war for information and authorizes the speaker to appoint an investigating committee if the house thinks necessary.

Former President Speaks to Princeton Students.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 10.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland delivered the first of his two lectures on "The Independence of the Executive" in Alexander hall last night before a large and enthusiastic audience. President Patton introduced the speaker with a brief speech, and as Mr. Cleveland rose to begin his lecture the audience greeted him with rounds of applause. The lecture throughout was listened to with marked attention, and at its close Mr. Cleveland was greeted with prolonged applause. A number of important points pertaining to the national government were ably discussed by the speaker, and his treatment of the president's chair as being pre-eminent the people's office was most warmly received by his hearers.

In his discussion of the popular government that is truly successful Mr. Cleveland said that its special factor should be an executive branch invested with power and responsibility. He made a strong point on the removal of an officer by the president, appointed by him, and with the advice of the senate. His description near the close of the lecture of the office act passed in 1887 and his comparison of it with the tenure of office legislation passed in 1869 were heartily applauded.

Appomattox Day.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—The medal of honor men residing in this city and vicinity last night observed Appomattox day by holding a banquet. The guest of honor was Major General Nelson A. Miles, who was called upon to respond to one of the toasts. After General Miles had concluded he was driven to Lulu temple, where he attended the banquet of the Union Veteran legion, which was also observing the anniversary of the surrender of General Lee to General Grant. General Miles made an extended speech on "Reminiscences of the Surrender."

Heavy Explosion of Dynamite.

NYACK, N. Y., April 10.—Burning leaves on the mountain at Rockland Lake set fire to the dynamite house of the Rockland Lake Trap Rock company, of which Conklin & Foss are proprietors. The house was blown to atoms. The ridge on which the house stood was shattered, and a stone weighing nearly 50 pounds was hurled half a mile and penetrated the Methodist parsonage, falling within two feet of the minister's wife and child. No one was hurt.

Heavy Clean Up of Gold.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 10.—A careful inspection of all the dumps on Hunker and Dominion creeks, Klondike, enables a Yukon paper to estimate that these two creeks, with their tributaries, will this spring clean up $4,500,000. Three individual claims have $500,000 to their credit. Water has already commenced running in the creeks, and the clean up has commenced.

Exiles May Return.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10.—Local Consul General Galicio of Guatemala has received official announcement from President Caberra of the latter country to the effect that a proclamation has just been issued by the chief executive of the republic granting amnesty to all political exiles and offering them special inducements to return to their country.

Found In the Canal.

COLUMBUS, O., April 10.—On March 3 W. T. Williams, a retired merchant of this city, disappeared. Yesterday his body, badly decomposed, was found in the canal. There were three deep cuts on the top of the head, and though there was no evidence of robbery the police believe that the man was murdered.

Woman Burned to Death.

OWATONNA, Minn., April 10.—The wife of Rev. R. L. Ludlam was burned to death near here yesterday. Her husband was at work on his farm at some distance from the house when he saw his wife running toward him, her clothing in flames. She fell unconscious and died despite all efforts to revive her.

Freight Handlers Strike.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Two hundred freight handlers employed at the docks of the Ocean Steamship company in Hoboken have gone on strike. The men claim to have a number of grievances, but the principal trouble grew out of a demand for increased wages, which was refused.

A Destructive Blaze.

NEW YORK, April 10.—A fire in Greenpoint yesterday threw between 1,200 and 1,500 men out of employment and destroyed several factories. The damage is estimated at from $500,000 to $600,000.

A Simple Question.

Plainfield People are Requested to Honestly Answer This.

Is not the word of a representative citizen more convincing than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this:—

Mr. Robert Love, of 44 Duer street, member of the firm of Love Brothers, grocers, of 257 West Front street, says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for eight or nine years—pain across the back and a lameness over the kidneys. Colds always settled there and aggravated it. At last my back grew weaker and any heavy lifting or too much standing or sitting gave me additional pain. In the morning my back bothered me greatly until I moved about and took some exercise when it became better to a certain extent. I doctored and used different kinds of so-called kidney cures but it was throwing money away. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our paper and being in bad shape at the time, I got a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. Before taking half of it my condition was greatly improved and continuing their use, all the pain left me."

BRIDGE WORK
in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. POLITICS IN CONFERENCE.

Methodists Have a Warm Debate on McKinley's Temperance Principles.

DANBURY, Conn., April 10.—The report of the committee on temperance presented at yesterday's session of the New York East M. E. conference evoked the warmest debate of the session, and national politics were involved in the discussion.

The chief interest in the report centered in the paragraph referring to the army canteen law, which has been discussed by the various conferences of the Methodist church all over the country this year. The action taken by the administration was denounced. The debate lasted two hours.

In the discussion many pleasant things were said about President McKinley, who was characterized by one of the speakers as "one of the best men that ever ruled the nation," while Rev. Dr. Couch of New York provoked a storm of angry protests when he asserted that if a Democratic president had acted in the same way in regard to the anticanteen law as President McKinley had done there would not be one supporter in the conference.

The conference amended the objectionable paragraph by voting that the conference "regrets the action of the administration in regard to the anticanteen law" and urges congress to pass a new law on the subject.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The New York presbytery accepted the resignation of Rev. Dr. A. C. McGiffert from the ministry.

The British North America and West Indies squadron will be strengthened by several more warships.

Admiral Dewey met the Chicago reception committee in Washington to arrange for his visit to the Illinois city.

In appealing to Chicago Hebrews to raise $500,000 for the Hebrew Union college of Cincinnati Dr. Hirsch hinted that it may become affiliated with the University of Chicago.

Captain Louis Ostheim, First United States artillery, was found dead in his room in a Chicago hotel with a bullet wound in his right temple. He was to have married Mrs. Eva Bruce Wood.

Fossils Found.

BOONTON, N. J., April 10.—The engineers at work on the construction of a waterworks plant at this place have a collection of fossils unearthed in a bed of sandstone on the site of the proposed reservoir. The fossils are believed to be the petrified remains of prehistoric fish. They look like hard coal and resemble in outline black bass, but are larger. Supervising Engineer E. W. Harrison thinks the fish lived in a great lake many thousands of years ago and were buried in sand in a great upheaval which formed the immense beds of sandstone at Boonton.

Three Burglars Captured.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., April 10.—In Great Bend, Susquehanna county, the Erie ticket agent, M. Bagley, and J. N. Cassiday, a traveling man, surprised three burglars who were breaking into the store of P. H. Lines and captured them at the muzzles of revolvers. The trio were handed over to the police, who took them to the county jail in Montrose. The identity of the men is unknown. They had a full set of burglar's tools in their possession. For a month burglars have been operating in the small towns between Carbondale and Binghamton.

White Folks In Negroes' Car.

LOUISVILLE, April 10.—Suit for $10,000 damages has been entered by Winnie Smith, colored, against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company for violation of the separate colored coach law. The plaintiff says that on April 3 she boarded one of the defendant's trains at Bardstown, being a first class passenger. She took a seat in the colored coach, and several white men entered the coach with a string of fish. She says they smoked, drank whisky and cursed, and that her protests were ignored by the conductor and other employees.

Freedmen's Schools Favored.

ATLANTA, April 10.—At a meeting of citizens of Atlanta held at the state capitol a movement was started to further the passage of the bill introduced in the national house of representatives by Richard A. Wise of Virginia to encourage the organization of industrial schools for the benefit of freedmen in the south. Associate Justice T. H. Lewis of the supreme bench presided. Resolutions were adopted congratulating Representative Wise for presenting the bill and Representative Grosvenor of Ohio for his attitude in support of it.

Hanna Sees Bliss.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Senator Marcus A. Hanna came over to this city from Washington yesterday and had a talk with the Hon. Cornelius N. Bliss, ex-secretary of the interior, at the Waldorf-Astoria. Senator Hanna returned to the capital in the afternoon. Mr. Bliss would not discuss Senator Hanna's visit. He said that he always saw the senator when he was in town. Asked whether he would accept or decline a nomination for the vice presidency, Mr. Bliss said that the subject was one which he would not discuss.

Immense Ore Shipments.

ASHTABULA, O., April 10.—All records for loading ore for shipment to the furnaces were broken by the Lake Shore company at this, now the greatest iron ore receiving port in the world. In all 467 cars were loaded. It is expected that a still better record will be made before the close of the week. A few years ago 200 cars a day was considered a large shipment from the same docks, but even shipments equal to yesterday's cannot now keep pace with the unprecedented demand in the furnace districts.

Kansas City's Enterprise.

KANSAS CITY, April 10.—Plans for erecting a new convention hall have practically been completed, and the work of removing the debris from the site is proceeding actively. The hall directors have on hand $235,000 available for the new building, which is to cost in the neighborhood of $300,000. Delegations continue to sign contracts for quarters at the different hotels.

Fish Hatcheries Report.

ALBANY, April 10.—The report of the state superintendent of fish hatcheries for the month of March shows that during that period 2,587,415 trout fry and yearlings were produced at the six state hatcheries.

Weather Probabilities.

FLOODS STILL RAGING

Great Loss of Property and Live Stock.

COLORADO RIVER RUNS WILD IN TEXAS

Probable Loss of Life In Rural Districts—Railroads Badly Crippled by Missing Bridges and Washouts—Cotton to Be Replanted.

AUSTIN, April 10.—The flood situation here is improving somewhat, but the reports from points below indicate that the full effect of the immense volume of water is being felt in Wharton and Lafayette counties, everything being inundated and much loss of property and live stock being reported. In Bastrop county the flood has caused much damage to property interests, and something like 50 washouts and losses of bridges are reported by the railways. Advices from the area surrounding the county seat of Bastrop county are to the effect that there has been some loss of life among the farming class, as their homes were inundated without warning by the tidal wave, but outside of an unconfirmed report that eight lives were lost nothing can be learned.

In the southern part of this county several people are missing, the number representing a family of six Italians and two negro families. It may be that they have escaped, but as their homes have been washed away it is presumed that they perished in the rushing waters.

The river is receding rapidly at this point and above notwithstanding that another heavy rise was reported yesterday morning on the Concho 125 miles north of here.

The International and Great Northern railway and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad have been seriously crippled by the floods. The first named road has had 500 washouts and lost bridges on its road from Hearne to the Rio Grande. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas is likewise a heavy loser, having to abandon much of its track altogether and use the International and Great Northern from Taylor to Milano and the Santa Fe tracks from there to north Texas points.

It is not believed that the damage to the cotton crop will be of great extent, as the season is yet early and all the crop can be replanted.

The citizens of this city held a mass meeting yesterday at which the consensus of opinion was that it was not feasible to rebuild the dam and power house, although no definite action was taken.

The Labor Troubles In Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Secretary Root has made public a telegram from General Davis, the military governor of Porto Rico, in regard to the recent labor troubles near San Juan, but beyond indicating his private opinion that there is no likelihood of a recurrence of the riots the secretary declined to discuss the matter for publication. General Davis' letter, which is dated San Juan, March 6, is as follows: "Civil disorders here beyond control of military police, thereby forcing the use of troops for the preservation of order. Have placed officer of the army in charge of the municipal police of San Juan. The trouble has been principally caused by assault by natives upon resident negroes from neighboring English islands. One native and one British subject killed."

Alleged Goebel Shooter Ready.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 10.—The report that it would take 1,000 men to arrest Jim Howard of Clay county, who is said to have fired the shot that killed Governor Goebel, is denied by Dr. H. R. Phillips, a prominent citizen of Clay county. Dr. Phillips arrived here and announced that he had seen Howard and had a long talk with him. Howard, he says, told him that whenever a warrant was issued for his arrest he would gladly go with the officer serving it and would not attempt to dodge or resist the law in any way. Howard is in Clay county at his home and told Dr. Phillips to inform any officer with a warrant for his arrest where to find him.

Imitation Butter In France.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—Consul Albion W. Tourgee at Bordeaux informs the state department of recent trouble about the sale of oleomargarine in France. In a trial before the civil tribunal of Bordeaux of persons charged with selling as butter an article composed of other fatty substances the defendants were fined 200 francs each. This was in the nature of a test case. The law upon this subject has been in force about three years, but not until recently have active measures been taken for its strict enforcement.

Displeased With New York.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 10.—James Brown Potter, formerly of New York, was granted a certificate of citizenship in Newport yesterday by Judge Douglass of the supreme court. Mr. Potter withdraws from New York because of dissatisfaction with matters of taxation there. He informed the court that he had removed the large estate of his father, Howard Potter, of which he was trustee, from New York to Rhode Island.

Died In a Cab.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 10.—John Geddling, a traveling salesman of Watertown, N. Y., who was taken ill two weeks ago at the Grand Central hotel, died yesterday while on his way to the poor farm. He was riding alone in a cab when death overtook him, and the cabman did not discover that his fare was a corpse until he reached his destination. The deceased was 50 years of age.

Irish Editor In Prison.

DUBLIN, April 10.—Mr. Arthur Griffiths, editor of The United Irishman, which was suppressed last Saturday, has been sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment or a fine of a sovereign for assaulting Mr. Ramsay Collies, proprietor of The Irish Figaro, in the latter's office. He decided to take the imprisonment.

Many Passports Issued.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The passport bureau of the state department yesterday broke all records by issuing 165 passports. The normal rate for this season is about 35 or 40 papers. The great increase is attributed by the officials to the Paris exposition.

The Plague In New South Wales.

THE PRESBYTERIAN MACHINE.

That Church Said to Be Under a System of Bossism.

CHICAGO, April 10.—Charges that the Presbyterian general assembly was dominated by a system of bossism and one man power worse than any political machine and that that great religious body was afflicted with packed committees were made yesterday at an adjourned meeting of the Chicago presbytery.

The question came up during consideration of an overture received from the Peoria presbytery recommending that the standing committees of the general assembly in the future be elected by the delegates instead of being appointed by the moderator, and after an animated discussion the recommendation that the proposition be indorsed and sent to the general assembly was adopted by a two-thirds vote.

Rev. S. M. Johnson, speaking in favor of the proposition, said, "We are suffering today from the rule of a species of bossism which has grown up in the church, and much of the petty jealousy and sectional dissension in the church can be traced to the domination of bosses and the injection of politics into the conduct of the affairs of the general assembly."

THE ASHANTI UPRISING.

Caused by the British Trying to Get the "Golden Stool."

LONDON, April 10.—Official reports received from Sir Frederick Mitchell Hodgson, governor and commander in chief of the Gold Coast colony, show that the Ashanti uprising was due to efforts by the British to obtain possession of the "golden stool of Ashanti," which King Prempeh was alleged to have concealed at the time of his submission to the British expedition led by Sir Francis Scott.

These efforts have been violently opposed by the Kumassi tribe, with the result that two British constables have been dangerously wounded and one has been killed. A third is missing, and 21 other casualties are reported. Most of the chiefs, however, declare themselves loyal and refuse to join the Kumassi tribesmen.

The governor hopes to secure peaceable settlement. He has sent for two additional companies of troops.

Not So Black as Painted.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—A defense of the administration of affairs at Manila is contained in a report just made to the war department by Chaplain Charles C. Pierce. This officer particularly antagonizes the ex-chaplain of the volunteers who has been so severely criticising the morals of the American troops in the Philippines, making the charge of wholesale intoxication and telling of the enormous increase in the number of liquor drinking saloons in Manila. The chaplain declares that the figures as to the number of saloons have been perverted, that the American saloon took the place of an untold number of native gin shacks which dispensed liquid poison with deplorable effect upon the American troops and that the substitution of the regimental canteen has resulted in an improvement in the sobriety of the troops.

Austrian Emperor's Proposed Visit.

BERLIN, April 10.—The intended visit here on May 5 of Emperor Francis Joseph, which is semiofficially confirmed by the Norddeutsche Allermeine Zeitung, engrosses public attention. The Berlin press variously interprets its significance. Most of the papers declare that it has an eminently political meaning. The Berliner Tageblatt says, "The fact that Count Goluchowski will accompany the emperor king indicates that Balkan affairs, which are now threatening, will probably occupy the attention of the two monarchs."

The Potomac Memorial Bridge.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The secretary of war has forwarded to congress the report of a board of engineers and architects in favor of the construction of a bridge across the Potomac river from this city to Arlington, "as a memorial to American patriotism," in accordance with designs submitted by Professor Burr, a distinguished bridge engineer of New York, at an estimated cost of $4,800,000.

Increased German Exports.

BERLIN, April 10.—The Frankfort consulate general reports $9,245,473 exports to the United States during the months of January, February and March, being an increase of over $1,000,000. For the whole of Germany except Dresden the figures are $27,352,397 for the first quarter of 1900, being an increase of $6,265,055 as compared with the figures for the corresponding quarter last year.

Large Sum For Mission Work.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 10.—The will of the late Miss Addie D. Mills, which has been filed for probate, bequeathed property worth about $300,000 to the Rev. James A. O'Connor of New York for mission work.

Actor Mansfield Ill.

CLEVELAND, April 10.—Richard Mansfield, the actor, who was to have opened an engagement at the Euclid Avenue Opera House here, is confined to his room at the Hollenden hotel, suffering from acute laryngitis.

MESSAGE TO KRUGER

A Rousing Send Off to the Boy Messenger.

SIGNED BY 22,000 SCHOOL PUPILS.

The Document to Be Personally Delivered—It Expresses the Earnest Wish That Boers May Triumph Over British Oppression.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—One of the greatest demonstrations of sympathy both in the number of participants and in enthusiasm displayed ever shown in this city for any foreign nation took place last night when the Academy of Music was jammed with people for the purpose of taking part in the Philadelphia schoolboys' pro-Boer rally. The primary object of the gathering was to send a message of greeting to President Kruger signed by 22,000 pupils of the schools of this city. So great was the crush, mostly of the younger generation, that many thousands were unable to get near the doors, and the mass of struggling people was entertained by music while the meeting inside was in progress.

Judge William N. Ashman of the orphans' court of this city presided, and those who addressed the meeting were Hon. Webster Davis, Hon. W. Bourke Cockran of New York, ex-District Attorney George S. Graham of this city, Hon. P. Louter Wessels of Bloemfontein, Orange Free State, and Thomas J. Meek, a pupil of the high school of this city. Edwin Markham, the poet, recited an original ode to Lincoln for the first time. Three hundred singers of the united singing societies of Philadelphia sang the Transvaal Volksleid and American patriotic songs.

After the speechmaking was over James F. Smith, a 16-year-old messenger boy of the American District Telegraph company, was called to the stage by means of the regulation call box and was given the message signed by the schoolboys, with instructions to proceed to Pretoria and to hand it personally to President Kruger. The messenger, accompanied by a committee of three high school boys, left for New York last night, and today they will be tendered a reception at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel by the students of the public schools of Greater New York. On Wednesday the messenger will sail on the steamship St. Louis, and before the vessel reaches Southampton he will be taken off by a French tender and landed at Havre in order to avoid English territory. The message to Kruger is as follows:

"We, the undersigned students of the public schools of Philadelphia, the city where our own forefathers enlisted in their splendid and successful struggle against English oppression, desire to express to you and to the fighting men of the South African Republic their great admiration for the genius and courage that has checked English invasion of the Transvaal, and the undersigned extend their most earnest wishes that in the end the South African Republic will triumph over England in a war in which the Boer cause is noble, the English cause unjust."

Delegations of schoolboys from New York and Boston attended the meeting.

Dry Tortugas Transferred.

WASHINGTON, April 10.—The president has signed an executive order transferring from the war department to the navy department the control of the Dry Tortugas islands, off the southern end of Florida. The islands include Fort Jefferson, which the marine hospital service was desirous of occupying as a quarantine station for the reception of persons coming from Cuba and other West Indian islands to Florida. But the navy department since the Spanish-American war has made the islands a coaling station and is at present under contract to spend about $750,000 in improvements, coal sheds, wharfs, railroads and defenses, and it was deemed best to provide the marine hospital service with other quarters.

Another Kentucky Muddle.

BARBOURSVILLE, Ky., April 10.—Circuit court began yesterday, but it is doubtful who will act as judge, John Henry Wilson or Judge W. S. Brown. When the time for opening court came, Judge Brown took his seat, and a few minutes later Judge Wilson appeared with a certificate from the election commissioners and signed by Beckham. Brown refused to evacuate. Several murder cases are on the docket.

Will Be Open on Sunday.

PARIS, April 10.—The French authorities have decided that all exhibits at the exposition are to be open to the publicon Sundays, and the United States exhibits are naturally within this regulation. These exhibits are under cover in buildings erected by the French government, over which the United States authorities have no control, and therefore they must abide by the rules established.

Car Repairers Killed.

HARRISBURG, April 10.—Foster Grubb and C. H. Sheaffer were killed and Samuel K. Clouses fatally injured last evening in the Pennsylvania railroad yards in this city. The accident was caused by a draft of cars colliding with a car under which the men were working. The men were car repairers, were all married and resided here. Clouses cannot live.

A Sympathetic Strike.

HOUSTON, April 10.—The building trades assembly has ordered a general strike of all the building trades in sympathy with the carpenters, and 1,500 men quit work. About 150 business houses and residences are left unfinished. The master builders say they will wait until Thursday for the men to work and will then proceed to fill their places if they can.

Mr. Bryan Fatigued.

LOS ANGELES, April 10.—William J. Bryan was greeted by immense crowds at Santa Ana and at San Diego last night. He criticised the national administration for its conduct of Philippine affairs, spoke against trusts and favored an income tax. Mr. Bryan was very hoarse and made himself heard with difficulty. He appeared to be greatly fatigued.

The Plague Reaches Australia.

PERTH, Western Australia, April 10.—A man has died from the bubonic plague at Fremantle. Fremantle is a town of Western Australia, at the mouth of the Swan river, 12 miles south of Perth. It has a convict prison and a government building and has a population of over 4,000 persons.

Hearing Was a Failure.

The public hearing on the proposition of building a City Hall in the immediate future, given by the Common Council last night, was a disappointment. In the first place it attracted a very insignificant number of citizens in comparison to what such a subject vitally interests. In the second place out of the hundreds of men in the city known to be advocates of the municipal building, only one took occasion to voice his sentiments.

In the third place many of the points made by the few who appeared in opposition to the idea were violently opposed to the true and practical condition of affairs that confront the city. And in the fourth place, Mr. Buckle, the Councilman who has been at the head of the committee in charge of the preliminary details up to the present time, made a grevious mistake in taking the floor and presuming to catechise the citizens who had come there to be heard as to what they should say and what they should not say.

In a public hearing such as that was intended to be last night it ought to be and is the privilege of citizens to express not only their sentiment in reference to the proposed expenditure of money, but to also dwell upon the points of what they believe will be the financial side of the question—a view that Mr. Buckle's conduct runs contrary to.

Considered as a true guide for Councilmanic action, the hearing failed of its purpose. It was far from being representative of the city at large, and leaves the Council in as much doubt as before as to the real desires of its constituents.

It is recognized that the majority of the Councilmen—as well as almost all the other city officials—who have studied the City Hall question in its various phases, are favorable to the project, but they are averse to undertaking an improvement involving such an expenditure of money without first being convinced, positively, that the majority of the people approve of such action.

The hearing having resulted in a fizzle, it is now left to the Council to determine a method by which they will be justified in going forward with the project. What the outcome will be cannot be told.

The Democrats of Union county have been really wondering if Thomas Lane, editor of the Summit Record, was going to Kentucky to accept that title of Colonel which Governor Beckham was reported to have conferred upon him, but from what Mr. Lane says in the last issue of the Record it looks as though there was more gossip than truth in his news sent out from Kentucky that he is to hie himself to the blue grass region as a permanent fixture of the militia. Quoting the editorial comments of The Daily Press about the prospect of the Summit editor leaving New Jersey, Mr. Lane adds the following:

While we appreciate the friendly spirit that actuated our esteemed contemporary in his expression of views set forth above, we cannot refrain from observing that he seems altogether too willing to accelerate the speed of our departure from New Jersey. We find life in this State too congenial and its associations have been too pleasant to permit us to think of turning our back on the home and friendships of a lifetime.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Democrats of Somerset county seem to be determined to work Samuel S. Childs, the New York restaurant man, into politics. They use his name as often as the year rolls around for some place or another. Mr. Childs has already achieved the distinction of having been defeated for the Assembly two years ago and of losing the nomination for Senator to James J. Bergen last year. The proposition now is to nominate him for Congress in the Third district against Benjamin F. Howell, to whom the Republican renomination is conceded. It is said that Mr. Gourley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, favors the nomination of Mr. Childs, who has the necessary equipment to put up what the Somerset Democrats call "a stiff fight."—New York Tribune.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Yesterday morning a fire broke out in the home of Jepp Ericson near the Netherwood station. "Jepp," as he is called, is a Dane and has been the faithful ticket seller at the Netherwood station for nearly twenty years. His duties compelled him to remain at his post, and as he has no assistant he was obliged to attend to his work as ticket seller and baggage master while the firemen were busy putting out what might have been a serious fire. Jepp Ericson knew that his wife and children were in danger, and serious loss to his house and furniture might occur but he stood faithfully at his post. Passengers waiting for the 7:55 o'clock express from Plainfield, which stops at Netherwood, were proud of their station master, but it could be easily perceived that he was greatly excited. He attended to his duties but it was noticed that he spoke more Danish words than English, and that he was in and out of the station, up and down the platform, his face covered with perspiration, and his features drawn in agony. Jepp is sure of his position if only for yesterday's faithfulness.

N. W. Rappleyea, of Brook avenue, had rather a thrilling experience with an Italian yesterday who must have been either crazy or laboring under a rank misapprehension. Mr. Rappleyea was at the postoffice, accompanied by a pet dog that he prizes highly. Suddenly the Italian approached him and in broken English gruffly accused him of stealing his dog, and asserted with considerable emphasis that he wanted the dog back. Mr. Rappleyea paid no attention to the scranger for sometime, but the latter continued to follow him uttering demands for the dog. Finally, on Grove street, becoming thoroughly exasperated at the persistence and impudence of the man, Mr. Rappleyea turned and grabbed the Italian by the shoulders and gave him a vigorous shake. Believing that he had rid himself of the man's attentions by this action, Mr. Rappleyea went on towards the house of a friend on Duer street, where he intended to call. He had not gone far when he noticed the Italian still following him. The stranger caught up with him and said that he proposed to have him arrested. Mr. Rappleyea entered the house of his friend on Duer street, and the Italian proceeded to jot down the number of the house on a piece of paper, presumably to notify the police and have the owner, whom he thought Mr. Rappleyea to be, arrested. Then he disappeared. Now the real owner of the house is puzzled as to the outcome of the incident. He fears he may be arrested for something he knows nothing about. In the meantime Mr. Rappleyea is pursuing the even tenor of his way.

The fact that the First Presbyterian church is in debt about $500 may make some difference in dissolving the relations between the church and Mr. Martine. For six years Mr. Edwin Middleton has been one of the most valued members of the Girard Avenue Theater stock company of Philadelphia, and during that time has played more than sixty parts, chiefly in character comedy. Speaking of Ripans Tabules, Mr. Middleton recently said: "I here are probably few employments that tax the nerves more than that of the actor. The man who follows the stage as a calling must be ready at all hours to execute his duties better than at other otherwise, and if his stomach or any other portion of his system is out of order he practically unfit for work. I do not know," continued he, "what I would have done on several occasions had it not been for Ripans Tabules. They have helped me along wonderfully at times when I was almost ready to give up the stage. I have long been a sufferer from a disordered stomach and very frequently have felt extremely nervous about the work I had in hand, but Ripans Tabules have served me as a medicine and stimulant in one." He says that he could name several of his fellow-professionals who could say as much as he for Ripans Tabules.

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, a trade mark, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples sent one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 50 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

MAKING OVER BLANKETS.

When They Have Been Used Two Seasons This Is a Good Way to Renew Them.

New blankets generally come in pairs, folded over at the bottom and the two upper ends generally bound with ribbon. Some housekeepers cover this ribbon binding with a fold of cotton, which can be ripped off when it is soiled and another basted on in its place. This, however, is only a temporary device. As soon as the blankets are washed the border must be replaced, as ribbon ordinarily will not bear washing. After bed blankets have been in use two seasons they should be washed, no matter how neat they look. They have by this time absorbed enough of those unwholesome fumes thrown out in sleep to be disinfected in some way, and the best way is by washing them. Cut them apart at the fold and rip off the ribbon binding. This makes two single blankets, which are much easier to handle in washing than a pair. Wash the blankets by themselves on a clear cool, sunny day in early spring, when the air is still, but is not cool enough to freeze the blankets. After sousing the blankets 15 minutes in soapsuds that are made with white soap and about a tablespoonful of ammonia to every gallon of water, lift them out into a new "suds" a trifle cooler, and souse them again for five or ten minutes. In the next water omit the soap, but put in ammonia. Wring them through a wringer screwed up as loosely as possible. If you have only a small wringer it is better to press out the water with the hands, as tight wringing is injurious to the soft texture of blankets. Hang the blankets while still quite wet evenly on the lines. It is better to stretch the lower edge on an even strip of wood, the size of the blankets before they were washed, and pull them the same length on the line. Let them hang until they seem dry, then hang them in a warm kitchen over night. When they are dry finish both ends of each of the blankets in blanket stitch. It should be done with an ordinary sized worsted needle with a sharp point, and Germantown yarn, the color of the stripes in the blanket.—N. Y. Tribune.

SHE KNEW HIM.

Why a Wayward Husband's Efforts to Square Himself Fell to the Ground.

The little hours had crawled up to the comb of the roof of night and fallen over until three of them were rolling down the far side toward the eaves of morning, when a solitary footman might have been seen slipping into his own house with his shoes in his hand.

How needless, oh, how needless are oftentimes the devices of man. How nugatory and void are oftentimes his most painstaking efforts.

His wife was wide awake and waiting for him when he entered the sanctified seclusion of their apartment.

"I was so afraid of waking you, dear," he stammered as he let the shoes fall from his nerveless grasp to the floor with a couple of dull thuds so close together they seemed as one.

She asked him in a stone cold voice where he had been to be getting in at that time of night.

He thanked heaven for an opportunity to explain, and he told her a harrowing tale of business and delayed trains and telephones out of order and telegraph wires down and no messengers that would have moved a heart of marble.

She never said a word as she looked straight at him.

"Do you doubt me?" he said, as if indignant at the implied suspicion of her silence; and then pleadingly: "Do you doubt me? Oh, Mary, how can you?"

Her face softened and the fixity of her eyes relaxed.

"No, William," she responded, almost gently. "No, I do not doubt you. At first there might have been some doubt in my mind, but now, thank heaven, there is none. Not a shadow, William, and I'm as sure that you are lying as that you are standing before me."

Then William bowed his head in shame and turned up the gas—at her request—so she could get a better look at him.—Washington Star.

A Pretty House Gown.

A house gown of sufficient dignity to serve as a little at-home dinner gown is very oddly arranged with a fitted bodice in slightly surplice effect, pouching ever so slightly over a buckle of jewels, the fabric extending down into a long front panel to the feet. The rest of the skirt is gathered with several rows of shirrings all about the waist line on the sides and back, making a very slender waist. The fabric of the gown is a lavender blue crepe de chine, lightly incrusted with white lace in bouquets over the sides and back of the skirt, in long trails down the front panel, and in even slighter motifs upon the bodice. The neck is slightly low, and has two tiny little revers turning over in the center of the front, these faced with orange panne velvet, of which, also, are the sleeves under their tight casings of white lace, which are arranged as mittens, drooping from the shoulders in entirely fashion.—St. Louis Republic.

Correct Attire for the Bridegroom.

The bridegroom at a morning wedding wears a frock coat, white duck or pique waistcoat, trousers of dark, striped cloth, patent leather shoes, gloves, and silk "Ascot" tie—white or pearl gray—and boutonniere of gardenias or other small white flowers. At an evening wedding he wears dress clothes, unless the bride is in a traveling costume, when he would wear a morning coat, a colored tie, and no gloves.—Ladies' Home Journal.

EXPERTS IN SHIRT IRONING.

Chicago Laundries That Make a Specialty of Doing Up New Shirts —Other Specialties.

Among the great number of laundries in the city there are about half a dozen devoted to the laundering of new shirts. It is harder work to iron a new shirt than it is to iron one that has been worn, and it takes more time; the new cloth is stiffer, and it doesn't take starch so well as it does after two or three washings, when the shirt works easier in all the stages of its laundering. But though the shirt is hardest to iron the first time, it must then be ironed its very best; the new shirt as it is laid down upon the counter for inspection, or, if custom made, as it is delivered, must be simply perfect, and it is.

It costs more to have a new shirt laundered than one that has been worn; ironers get more pay for ironing them, and, though it takes more time, they earn more money at it than in ironing old ones. Both men and women are employed in new shirt ironing, the women very likely on the finest custom shirts.

The ironing of new shirts calls for the most expert of laundry work. The collar and cuffs are brought out exactly in accordance with the design. The two parts of the shirt front are made to match perfectly, with the stud holes, or the eyelets, in one part exactly over those in the other. In pique shirt bosoms the lines of the pattern if vertical will be found to be drawn absolutely straight; and if the lines run crosswise, not only will they be found to be straight, but to meet true at the middle. The same may be said of fine colored shirts with patterns showing vertical or horizontal lines; if vertical lines, they are perfectly true; if horizontal, they are not only perfectly true, but perfectly matched at the center, and the entire bosom, though ironed on a flat board, is ironed into a slightly concave shield-like form that is graceful in shape and a model for uniformity. The perfectly laundered new shirt is something that must command the admiration of everybody that likes good work, and the ironing of it is the top-notch of laundry work.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

LIKE THE LITTLE ONES.

Contrary to the General Belief Men Are Fond of the Society of Children.

"There's a very general idea abroad in the land that men don't care to board in a house where there are children," said one of the sterner sex, "but that is, I believe, a great mistake, just as it is an error to imagine that men generally don't like the little ones. No doubt there are a few crusty old bachelors in the world who would be horribly annoyed by pattering feet and shrill little voices in the halls and on the stairs, but I must confess I like to hear these noises, and I find by questioning a number of my old friends—all young, unmarried men—that they do also. The children give a sort of home-y atmosphere that's very pleasant to even the most comfortless places.

"Taking one thing with another, I believe men are fonder of children than women are, anyhow. What I mean is that more men than women are fond of them. I know plenty of the gentler sex who wouldn't think of going to a boarding house where youngsters were admitted, and I know just as many men who seek out those places and obtain a certain amount of comfort and satisfaction in their lonely lives in making friends with the youngsters and spending valuable time repairing sundry broken toys or telling wonderful stories in which giants figure to an amazing extent.

"A child's affection is a very delightful thing, and most men feel flattered to be the object of even a mild liking on the part of the small tyrants. There are half a dozen little ones in the house where I board, and I am the familiar friend of every one of them. It's a very delightful and absorbing acquaintance, and I'm fast developing into a story-teller of such marked ability that I'll make a fortune in this way, no doubt, after awhile."—Detroit Free Press.

On a Slender Thread.

There is a man in Washington, who is a shining light in one of the prominent churches, who nearly lost his reputation the other night, all because of a child's innocent prattle. He called upon a friend who is handsomely "fixed" as to this world's goods, and who has a tiny golden-haired daughter of whom he is very fond. The friends adjourned to the smoking-room for a chat, and shortly afterward the daughter went to hunt them. She came down to her mother in the reception-room a little later and found her entertaining callers.

In a lull in the conversation the child volunteered the information that "papa and Mr. Blank were having lots of fun."

"What are they doing, dear?" asked one of the callers, idly.

"Playing poker," was the astounding answer.

"Poker!" exclaimed the astonished mother; "why, Jennie, your father never played a game of poker in his life."

"Well, mamma, they are in the room with the big green table, and papa pokes a little ball at Mr. Blank and he pokes it back again. Isn't that poker?"

Reputations often hang on just such a slender thread.—Washington Star.

Railway Carried on a Steamer.

A 25-mile railway for the Philippines was recently packed in the hold of a steamship at San Francisco. Everything needed for the railroad was sent except the ties, which will be obtained in the islands. It is said that the railway will be used to extend the 32 miles of railroad now controlled by the American troops.—N. Y. Sun.

UNLUCKY MEN.

Many Are Unfortunate from Natural Reasons, But Some Without Apparent Cause.

A man can certainly be unlucky in the proper sense of the word—that is, frequently visited by misfortune for which he is entirely irresponsible. Of course, in the majority of cases the ill luck is only apparent, the true explanation being some deficiency in the man himself of which he is totally unconscious. He knows his powers and he is aware of his weaknesses, but he is not aware of his causes of failure. He may, for example, be a really able man, with every capacity for success, except a certain inability to understand the character of other men or women. That has been often the deficiency which has ruined kings; it spoiled the career of Louis XIV., whose latest adviser, Mme. de Maintenon, was a good woman of the devotee type, with a decidedly inferior brain; and it was one cause of the fall of Napoleon, whose sub-kings and marshals were, with the possible exception of Eugene Beauharnais, never men of first-rate powers. That is usually attributed to his jealousy of rivals; but he chose inferior men in civil life, and never through his whole career had a private secretary or a controller of his household who was worth his salt; while of his two wives, one was a vain and extravagant person without a brain, and the other an arch-duchess who had not an idea beyond her claim to be considered on account of her birth, and who married her chamberlain. In private life the same defect is probably of all others the commonest cause of ruin—very able men, and still oftener able women, being led away in pecuniary affairs by persons of imperfect intelligence and positively untrustworthy character. Or the able man has a habit of procrastination, of which he is wholly unaware, which leads him always to miss the moment of opportunity, the commonest of defects in able yet unsuccessful generals; or he is liable to what the French call "entrainments" and the English "rushes," which lead him into blunders that all his intimates declare to be "positively inexplicable."

The ablest human being we ever knew had a way of dressing himself, always in unconsciousness, which twice cost him a great career; while another singularly competent man spoiled every chance by a temper which was in reality nothing but whimsical, but which caused all employers to pronounce him hopelessly "unreliable." We should say, indeed, that the really able were specially liable to one of the most ruinous of all vices or foibles, incurable indolence, while everyone knows a few quite competent men who never succeed because they lost opportunities through an indifference of which they were totally unaware. Still, though we recognize all these, and many more causes of failure, we cannot but admit that there are men who are genuinely "unlucky," with whom the current of events for some inexplicable reason always collides, who are always injured in an accident from which others escape, whose cabs break down when driving to important appointments, whose investments which seem most reasonable are always swept away, whose relatives are blisters, and whose friends causes of expense. The writer had once an intimate friend, who firmly believed of himself that the offchance of misfortune always happened to him, and always would happen, and it was exceedingly difficult for anyone who knew his history to doubt that he had reason for his superstition. And the writer knew well another man—indeed, he published an account of his adventures—who passed some eight times in life through accidents which would infallibly have killed anyone else, without a scratch, and who had, therefore, Clive's belief that he was destined to something—which turned out an illusion. We know that there are laws which regulate chance, and we know that there are long intervals when they seem to be defied, and there is no perceptible reason why a man's life should not be lived within the influence of one of the intervals, favorable or the reverse. If he can throw aces or deuces ten times running, why should he not come to grief in ten consecutive incidents of life? There is no reason perceptible why in the great providential scheme chance should be allowed to enter, but then there is no reason why insanity should, insanity involving that hardest of all things to conceive, irresponsibility; yet both do enter. We may humbly wait for explanation, but we see no use in denying the common experience of mankind.—London Spectator.

Consumptive Houses.

That consumption does not run in families, but does run in houses, is the theory of Sir Richard Thorne, who addressed the London Medical Society recently. "Refuse to live on a damp subsoil," was his advice; until people ceased to live under unfavorable conditions, they need hope for little diminution in the consumption death rate. The improvement of sanitary appliances had, in the last 45 years, reduced that rate nearly 50 per cent.—N. Y. World.

An Apt Illustration.

An inspector of schools has been giving in the Humanitarian a selection of the leading "howlers" of his acquaintance. The shrewdest of all the answers came from a very small boy, who was asked to give a text which forbade a man to marry two wives. Without a moment's pause he replied: "No man can serve two masters."—Household Words.

Another Kind of Lying.

If a man conceals the truth he lies in ambush.—Chicago Daily News.

SOUTHERN GAMECOCKS.

Breeding the Birds an Established Industry in the State of South Carolina.

The breeding of blooded gamecocks for the Mexican market mainly is an established industry in South Carolina. Of recent years the South Carolina gamecocks have become celebrated, and there are more orders standing now than can be filled from the present stock. The orders have to lie over until the young chickens are grown, and they always command the top prices when shipped beyond the border.

It requires years of close study to breed the finest gamecocks and then pick the cream of the stock for the pits. A well-known breeder in Barnwell county has won a national reputation on his Mugwumps and his War Horses. These gamecocks have left a string of victories in some of the richest mains fought in South Carolina, and many hundreds of dollars have been won on their prowess. Other breeds of fighting chickens are raised by men who never fight them, and some of the most prominent breeders have never wagered a dollar on any of their birds. They raise the champions for the profit to be derived from sales.

Cockfighting now is not so common in the south as it was formerly. According to the laws of South Carolina a main cannot be conducted within four miles of a church or a schoolhouse. Ten-Mile hill, a way station on the Southern railway above Charleston, has been the cockfighting headquarters for years. Recently a large pit was built, with rows of seats ranging above it, and crowds of sporting people have been drawn to this place when championship events between South Carolina and Georgia are fought. The law does not interfere with the mains. Soon after the pit at Ten-Mile hill was opened a sporting man from Charleston got up a main at $1,000 a side, and the lovers of cockfighting for miles around gathered for the sport. Books were made on the hacks, and this gave many plunging chances to people so inclined. After the main was fought two expert breeders arranged a match. There was a house filled with fine birds which had not been sent to the front, and the two pitters had the privilege of picking their chickens. They always figured for the best birds in sight, and their appearance at the ring was the signal for the betting to start. The bookmaker did not always find it profitable, but he did not kick. On one fight a business man from Charleston, who was recognized as the highest authority, went to the cockhouse and came back with a fine Mugwump chicken. The other man had a War Horse. The recognized authority heeled the birds himself. The gamblers watched him closely, and the betting was at a standstill until the birds had been prepared for the battle. After getting the gaffs securely fastened the business man went to the bookmaker and placed $500 on his Mugwump. This was the opening of a rush of men who placed big money in the same way, and the bookmaker was almost in tears when he saw that one lone man placed a small bet on the War Horse cock. More than $1,200 was bet on the Mugwump, and probably ten dollars on the War Horse. There was a moment of intense excitement when the birds were pitted. Both showed fight. They were not made of the stuff to run away, and they came together with a crash. The War Horse got a magnificent opening, and drove for it. With one good, clean drive he landed fair on the head of the Mugwump and shot the gaffs through the other's head at the first flop. It was one of the quickest battles in the history of the Ten-Mile pit, and the result made the bookmaker happy. It was one of the things, too, that go to show that there is a certain amount of luck in every fight, and that the opinion of the expert could not always be accepted as a sure thing.—N. Y. Sun.

A STRANGE ADVENTURE.

Aerial Flight of an Italian Woman Half a Mile Above the Earth.

An Italian peasant woman met recently with an extraordinary adventure. Near her home, in the village of Quarna, which nestles in a spacious valley, is a high and wooded mountain, and there it has been her custom to go two or three times a week for the purpose of collecting firewood. To bring this wood down from the precipitous mountain to her cottage was quite an arduous task. Therefore, she sent it down by means of a strong metal wire, stretched from the valley up to the mountain top.

A few weeks ago she and her two little daughters ascended the mountain, and after gathering three goodly bundles of wood prepared to send them down. Just, however, as the mother had fastened the first bundle to the wire and had launched it on its downward course her wedding ring became caught in the rope with which the bundle was tied, and in a flash she was carried off her feet and swept downward into the valley. Half paralyzed with fear, her little daughters watched her as she sped from their sight with amazing swiftness, and then they ran down the mountain, fully expecting to find her lying dead at the end of the wire.

And their fear was quite natural, since the mountain top from which their mother had been torn is 800 yards above the valley. Fortunately, their fear proved to be groundless. They found their mother entirely uninjured. Yet, miraculous indeed was it that her life was not crushed out of her at the end of her perilous descent. It would have been if her fall had not been broken as she was reaching the earth by some friendly branches. The bundle of wood, too, was in some measure a bulwark against the shock.—N. Y. Journal.

CHINESE EAT CATS.

A Traveler Says the Tales We Have Read About the Queer Dinners Are True.

Yes, they do. A traveler who has just returned from China says that all those stories which were in the geography, and which we seldom believe, are true. Chinamen, however, do not just pick up any old cat out of the street and have him stewed for dinner. Oh, dear, no; it is only the wealthy Chinamen who can afford the luxury of a cat or a dog for his table. The animals which are used for food have to be of an especial breed. Cats of brindle or yellowish color are preferred to all others. Then they must be kept in coops and fed on only certain kinds of food before they are considered good to eat.

Now, when you consider that the Chinamen of the working class seldom have room enough in their crowded dwellings for themselves and their personal belongings—that is, their wives and children—the matter of keeping a cat cooped is out of the question, to say nothing of the expense of getting the especially prepared food for its inmates. The Chinaman of the working class counts himself especially blessed if he has a single little closet-like room for himself and family—the most ambitious even never aspires to a front or back yard. He seldom gets paid over ten or 15 cents a day; so it takes nearly all of that to buy his own rice and tea, and no matter how much his appetite may crave cat or dog, he is too dainty a creature to partake of the animal which feeds from his neighbor's garbage barrel.

Now, from the point of view of the Chinese, a cat or dog or rat which has been brought up in a coop and fed on especially prepared food makes a much daintier dish than a chicken, for instance, which has been turned looso in the yard and allowed to indulge its appetite for bugs and worms and grasshoppers. The Chinaman argues that the flesh of the chicken is, in reality, but a changed form of the food which nourishes it, and he can't understand why a person who would enjoy eating such a chicken would not equally relish a dish of bug and worm and grasshopper salad! Now, on the other hand, the well-to-do Chinaman will tell you that he regards the cat or dog or rat which he eats only as a medium for conveying to his system the especially prepared food which he places in his cat coop. If you ask him why he does not eat this especially prepared food himself and economize on the time and labor of turning it into cat, he will tell you, being a rich Chinaman, he does not have to consider economics, and in the end, perhaps, will own up to having a taste for a little cat flavor to his especially prepared food!—Philadelphia Inquirer.

AT THE CITY LIBRARY.

Preachers Have Lively Disputes and Read Books About Prize Fights.

"I tell you, sir, a man who doesn't believe in 'free will' is a dangerous man in any community!"

It was in the reference room at the public library, and a smooth-faced fat man was arguing with a smooth-shaven, slim and serious man. Both wore white ties and long black coats.

"And I must insist that 'predestination' is as firmly taught in the New Testament to-day as it ever was, sir. You can't destroy one jot or tittle of Holy Writ, sir," said the thin man.

"And what's more, Winckelmann—" began the fat man.

"The idea!" thundered the serious man. "When I distinctly quoted to you that Misheim says in sup—"

Things went on from bad to worse, and finally the library policeman, who has never had a fight to settle since he came into the new building, hurried up, in the hopes of distinguishing himself.

"Never mind, let 'em alone," said an attendant. "It's nothing but the preachers arguing."

Monday is "preachers' day" at the public library. From 12 o'clock until four on Monday from two to a dozen ministers are sure to be found in the reference room. When the library had its headquarters at the city hall a few of the more determined club women sometimes made their way in, but as a general rule the ministers kept away. Now, with pleasant reading rooms and every facility at hand, nearly every Chicago minister consults the public library at least one day in the week. The reference room is their haunt, although they are often found skimming the magazines in the reading room.

"The class of literature that preachers read has changed wonderfully," said an old employe of the library. "I can remember when it was all doctrine and church history, and such things. Then we kept very little that they cared about, for it required a special line of reading. Now it's sociology and art and new novels and the scientific fad of the day, and even bicycles and automobiles that the preachers read about. The oddest thing in their reading that has come under my notice was a minister who spent three days in here reading up the stories of noted prize fighting bouts in the last ten years."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

DECIDED A CENTURY AGO.

The Century Question Discussed by Timothy Dwight, First President of Yale.

As will probably be the case a century from now, there were men 100 years back who could not agree as to when the new century began. In 1799 two men in New York disagreed regarding the matter, finally betting a pipe of wine, and agreeing to abide by the decision of Dr. Timothy Dwight, first president of Yale college, and Prof. Meigs, of the chair of mathematics in the University of Georgia, afterward president of that institution. Both these scholars, of course, decided that 1800 and not 1799 was the last year of the eighteenth century. Dr. Dwight's letter to one of the disputants was as follows:

New York, Jan. 23, 1799—Sir: In answer to the question which you proposed to me for decision I observe:

"1. That in reckoning centurially, we adopt a different phraseology from that which is used in all other accounts of time. In speaking of a man's age, we say: This is the thirty-first or thirty-second year of his age, or he is in his thirty-first year, etc.

"In speaking of the century year, or year of the Christian era, we say one thousand seven hundred and one, two, ninety-eight, nine, etc. Thus, we say A. D. one thousand seven hundred and one, two; ninety-eight year of our lord one thousandseven hundred and ninety-nine, and at times also in the one thousand seven hundred and ninety-ninth year of the Christian era—exactly equivalent.

"2. The Christian era began with the nativity of Christ.

"3. The phrases—the first year and the year one—are, I apprehend, exactly equivalent. Of course one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine and the one thousand seven hundred and ninety-ninth year, when applied to the present centurial year, are exactly equivalent.

"4. If these observations are true the present year will not complete the eighteenth century.

"5. In writing the date of the year we simply use the arithmetical figures, leaving the words in the year of our Lord to be understood, except in solemn and dignified transactions. No letter, day book or ledger, probably, ever contained these words, but all are dated merely with the arithmetical figures. From this elliptical manner of writing dates our phraseology, I presume, originated. From writing customarily 1700, 501, 602, it became the most natural language to say one thousand, seven hundred, five hundred and one, etc.

"6. As we have continually occasion to mark the day and month in our dates, as well as the year, we are necessitated to note the year from its commencement. Thus there is the same necessity to note the year, on 1st, 2d, 3d, etc., day of January, as in any preceding month, for instance, on the 31st day of December. Thus we write:

Day.	Month.	Year.
10th.	January.	1799.

"I. E.: The tenth day of the month of January in the year one thousand, seven and ninety-nine. Thus proclamations are written: 'Given under my hand on the tenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand, seven hundred and ninety-nine'—plainly equivalent to the one thousand, seven hundred and ninety-ninth year of the Christian era.

"7. In this manner those must have dated who wrote in the first year of the Christian era, if we suppose them to have dated at all. Otherwise they must have written and said January the 10th in the year cipher, or nought—January 10, 0. I presume this will not be supposed. Suppose the following divisions, thus marked:

to express the ten first years of the Christian era. Which mode of reckoning these divisions would be the mode naturally adopted by the common sense of mankind? I think it will be admitted that the lower series of figures must have been thus adopted and that the upper series could not have easily entered into any mind.

"There is not any series which begins with a cipher, unless where mere indices are intended.

"8. Blair's chronology is a complete exhibition of the mode of reckoning which I suppose to have been adopted from the beginning. Both the centuries before and the centuries after Christ are reckoned by

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND

The team from the Borough Public High School and the Plainfield High School will meet tomorrow afternoon and endeavor to settle the differences between them.

The Lincoln High School baseball team from Westfield will come to Plainfield next Saturday and contest with the Arion team on the grounds of the latter. An interesting game is looked for.

In Saturday's game several changes were made in the composition of the Leal School team on account of the illness of Ralph Schoonmaker, who usually plays third base. Millar was moved from second to third base, Barcalow was brought in from right field to cover the second bag while Churchill filled his place in the field.

The baseball team of Rutgers College is making a good showing for so early in the season and a strong team is expected before college closes in June. William A. Fisher, who graduated from the Plainfield High School last June, is now regularly playing shortstop on the team. Although only a Freshman Fisher has played in three regular games and has won his coveted "R." Ernest H. Rapalje, who attended the Plainfield High School several years ago, is now pitching for Rutgers.

Trenton, April 10 — Major Dennis Collins, of Elizabeth, was last night elected Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second Regiment, New Jersey National Guard, defeating Captain Otis A. Glazebrook, also of Elizabeth, and Major Louis N. Clayton, of Trenton. Lieutenant G. V. Packer was elected to succeed Colonel Collins as Major.

First Baptist Parish Meeting.

This evening at the First Baptist church the annual Parish meeting will be held when two trustees will be elected to the places of Alex. Gilbert and Harold Serrell, whose terms expire.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plainfielders Can Witness.

Little Lulu Hill is the youngest and most versatile child artist on the American stage this season. She is but five years of age and has one of the principal roles in Will E. Booth's mammoth production of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," which comes to Music Hall tonight and tomorrow night. This great moral play is one that appeals to all Christian people—pure and wholesome entertainment for young and old alike. It has been one of the greatest aids in the cause of temperance that was ever known, and it is a happy combination of mirth, pathos, comedy and sensation. Incidental to the play a number of specialties are introduced by some well-known artists, notably the Four Hills and the Columbia orchestra of soloists. There will be a grand concert in front of the theatre at 7 o'clock this evening and a second parade of the novelty band will be had tomorrow noon.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Melby, a missionary, will make an address at the First Baptist church tomorrow evening, and not Mrs. Crumley, as stated yesterday.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Peter Q. Merrill, of East Millstone, and Mrs. Brokaw, widow of the late Henry Brokaw, of Belle Meade.

Miss E. Vinginia Hantsch, of Staten Island, has returned home after spending the winter at the home of her uncle, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph.D., of West End Park.

V. W. Nash, grand overseer and supervising deputy of the A. O. U. W., will visit Westfield lodge this evening, and Thursday evening, in connection with Grand Master Workman Lambert, will pay an official visit to Plainfield Lodge, No. 48.

W. H. Crandall, treasurer of Alfred University, and his wife, have been guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Mosher, of West Fifth street. Mr. Crandall came to Plainfield to attend the meeting of the Seventh Day Baptist Memorial Board.

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Not a Dry Lecture.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The casual reader, noticing the subjects of Professor Griggs' lectures in the Franklin School, which you advertise for tomorrow afternoon in another column, would think they were ordinary, dry, educational lectures. This would be a mistake. I know of no speaker in recent years that has created such enthusiasm in his audience. At the end of an hour one wishes he had but just begun. He is a man with a mission to all who are interested in the future of the race, and has given up an enviable position in the great University of California to present that mission as widely as possible. During the past fourteen months he has delivered over four hundred lectures to ever-increasing audiences. H. M. Maxson.

WANTS MORE LIBRARIES.

SUGGESTIONS MADE BY STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

He Urges That Children Should Be Directed and Trained to Read Good Books.

State School Superintendent Baxter, who resides in this city, is making special efforts to interest the educational authorities of the State in two objects that he has warmly at heart. First, the establishment of closer relations between the public schools and public libraries. This is a National movement inaugurated by the National Educational Association, and outlined in a recent report of a committee of that association on that subject. The idea is that children should be trained and directed in their reading, and especially to read and love good literature. The formation in school of a correct reading habit, it is urged, is the most important work the school does. It lays the foundation of future development and places the pupil on the right road.

Superintendent Baxter has laid this matter before the county superintendents. He urges that these officials labor to secure the establishment of public libraries and to bring these and the schools in close touch with each other. The teachers should know the library, what it contains and what use the public can make of it. The librarian should also know the school, its work and its needs. They should be in close touch. The movement is taken hold of with enthusiasm, and will probably result in a great many new public libraries in this State. The State gives aid in the formation of these libraries, and also offers facilities in the same direction through the new traveling library system.

The other object Mr. Baxter has at heart is to make drawing a requisite accomplishment for teachers of all grades. It is now required only in the higher grades, but the State Superintendent thinks it very important that all teachers should possess this equipment. The order making this obligatory on the teachers would need to come from the State Board of Education.

History of Prudential Company.

In compliance with a request made by the United States authorities at Washington, the Prudential Insurance Company of America has just completed and forwarded to the Paris Exposition an exhibit to be incorporated in the section set apart for educational and social economy. As the pioneer of industrial insurance in the United States the Prudential was asked by the Federal Government to make an exhibit concerning industrial insurance as practiced in this country. The history of the Prudential being virtually the history of this system of life insurance in the United States, the exhibit is mainly confined to the history, statistics and experience of that company. The exhibit consists of eight large portfolios, seven of which contain the forms used in all of the various departments of the Prudential's field and office administration, illustrating fully the method of conducting the industrial life insurance business, while one portfolio contains a series of diagrams, charts, maps and statistics illustrating in particular the progress of the Prudential during the past twenty-five years.

REPUBLICANS WHO MAY BE DELEGATES.

It Is Expected That There Will Be But Little Contest For District Honors.

WHAT WILL MR. REED DO?

SOME THINK HE WILL LET THOMPSON BE A DELEGATE.

In This Way It Is Thought That the Factional Trouble in Somerset County Might Possibly Be Smoothed Over.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 11.—There is not much of a contest this year among the Republicans for the selection of delegates to the National Convention, which will be held in Philadelphia, June 19th. A Republican State Convention will be held in this city the 19th of the present month for the purpose of choosing four delegates-at-large and two for each Congressional district, making twenty altogether. The big four, who will head the list, will probably be General Sewell, Senator Kean, Franklin Murphy and Barker Gummere. That seems to be the slate and doubtless it will be ratified without opposition.

It is hard telling who the district delegates will be. Candidates are scarce and so far there are no contests. The cause of this indifference must be attributed to the fact that it is conceded all around that President McKinley will be renominated and consequently the National Convention will be a very tame affair. And besides the place for holding the convention being so near at home makes the attendance upon it on the part of the New Jersey delegates devoid of the interest and excitement of travel. Former Republican conventions, those for the last 30 years or so, were all held in western cities, and as in most all of them there were exciting contests for the Presidential nomination it was considered a great honor to be a delegate. It is an honor yet, but then not so much of an honor in the opinion of the politicians as if it was conferred after an exciting contest.

Those mentioned for delegates in the First district are Assemblyman Bradley, of Camden, and John M. Moon, of Clayton. In the Second district it looks as if State Comptroller Hancock and Samuel W. Beldon, of Bordentown, will be named. In the Third district Congressman Howell is mentioned as well as Senator Reed and former Senator Thompson. An effort is being made to adjust the quarrels of the Republican factions in Somerset county, and it is suggested that a good way to begin that work would be to reach an agreement by which Mr. Thompson should go as a delegate to the Philadelphia convention. Senator Reed, of course, is ambitious, but then for the sake of peace in his party he may make the concession by which his old rival for leadership may receive the honor which is desired for him by his friends. Then, perhaps, the Republicans of Somerset could settle themselves down as a happy family.

The Fourth district delegates will probably be Senator Pitney and John I. Blair Bailey. Congressman Stewart and Sheffield Phelps would like to represent the Fifth, and Congressman Parker and Col. Harry E. Potter the Sixth. The Seventh district, Col. Samuel Dickinson's own, he would like to have to himself, and for a colleague, Flavel Magee. The Eighth district will probably choose Congressman Fowler and Chas. N. Fisk, of Plainfield. It is noticeable that the New Jersey delegation will probably be made up in part of the two United States Senators and five Congressmen, all of whom are among the leading Republicans of the State.

A Dangerous Crossing.

Roselle Borough Council considers that the crossing for the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway over the Lehigh Valley tracks at Aldene is dangerous to horses and carriages, the iron being laid in such a manner that horses are liable to get their hoofs caught between the rails and guards, and carriage wheels liable to get jammed. Several members of the Council visited the crossing and freely expressed their disapproval. The crossing was made according to plans made by the engineers of the railroad, and under their supervision, and was put down by the railroad men, the company not allowing the street railway people to have anything to do with it.

A QUIET HOME WEDDING.

NUPTIALS OF MISS MAY STELLE AND D. K. SUTPHEN CELEBRATED.

Ceremony Performed at the Home of the Bride's Parents—House Prettily Trimmed for Occasion.

A quiet home wedding was that of last evening, when Miss May Stelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Stelle, of 426 Madison avenue, and David K. Sutphen, eldest son of Mrs. Fannie A. Sutphen and the late Dr. Sutphen, of West Second street, were united in marriage in the presence of the relatives of the couple and their friends.

The event took place at 5:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion. In the parlor the prevailing colors were green and white, and in the dining room pink and green. In the front of the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, there was a bank of flowers and palms artistically arranged, while smilax encircled the rooms and was caught up here and there with white ribbon.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin, with chiffon Duchesse lace trimmings. She was unattended. John Sutphen, brother of the groom, was the best man. During the early part of the evening Mr. and Mrs. Sutphen left Plainfield to enjoy a honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in this city. The groom is an employe of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, of New York. Mrs. Sutphen is also a popular young woman very highly esteemed by a host of friends. Many valuable and useful presents were received as tokens of esteem.

There were guests present at the wedding from New York, Brooklyn, Morristown, Newark, Jersey City, Dunellen, New Market and this city, many of whom were relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Sutphen will be at home to their friends after April 15th at 426 Madison avenue.

BAPTIST AFFAIRS.

Martin I. Cooley Elected a New Member of the Board of Trustees for the First Church.

The annual parish meeting was held last evening at the First Baptist church. Rev. Dr. Yerkes presided and there was a good attendance of the members of the church and congregation. The principal business was the election of two trustees, as the terms of Alex. Gilbert and Harold Serrell have expired. The election resulted in Mr. Gilbert being continued in his position, and Martin I. Cooley was elected trustee in place of Harold Serrell. The board now stands as follows: L. V. F. Randolph, S. St. John McCutchen, Alex Gilbert, T. S. Armstrong, John D. Runyon, M. I. Cooley. A meeting will be held the first of May when an organization will be effected.

In addition to the above the report of the treasurer was presented showing the church finances to be in excellent condition, and a balance was reported in the treasury. There are a few obligations to be taken care of, but these will be attended to in a short time.

THE CHANCELLORSHIP.

Chancellor McGill's Retirement and the Selection of His Successor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 11.—While Chancellor McGill has not yet resigned, it is probable that he will do so in a few days, and will probably never again act in court. He health is completely gone, and he may not long survive. The talk of his successor, in view of his probable resignation, has been pretty active of late. There is, of course, much ambition to hold the office, which is at the head of courts and bar of the State. Governor Voorhees will make the appointment. If Chief Justice Wm. J. McGee were younger he would undoubtedly be the man, but his health is not good, and he is too far advanced in years for the heavy duties of this office. The men toward whom attention is directed are Justices Wm. S. Gummere and Gilbert Collins, of the Supreme Court. Vice-Chancellor John R. Emeay is also mentioned. Of course, a Republican would be chosen, and those named belong to that party. Lawyers say that either of those mentioned would be satisfactory from a professional point of view.

Post-Lenten Society Affairs.

The Cotillion Club will resume its activity after Easter. The next meeting of the club will be at the residence of Councilman J. B. Dumont, of East Seventh street, Friday evening of Easter week.

MAYOR MACK WINS EASY IN ELIZABETH.

City Attorney Connolly, Democratic Candidate, Defeated by 1,263 Majority.

SEYMOUR WON IN NEWARK.

MIXED RESULTS IN MANY OTHER JERSEY TOWNS.

Summit, New Brunswick and Jersey City Democratic—Trenton Republican—Elizabeth City Council is Democratic.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, April 11.—The municipal election held here yesterday resulted in the re-election of Mayor W. A. M. Mack, Rep., by 1 263 plurality. Patrick J. Ryan, Dem., is re-elected Alderman at Large by about 534 majority.

Mayor Mack's plurality two years ago was 762.

The Aldermen elected are Martin Kenely, Dem., Second ward, by nearly 200 majority; George A. Ford, Dem., Fourth ward, 73 majority; Dennis F. Collins, Dem., Sixth ward, 154 majority; Harry A. Roth, Rep., Eighth ward, 11 majority; Edward S. Coyne, Rep., Tenth ward, 150 majority; Kimber C. Taylor, Rep., Twelfth ward, 15 majority. This will make the next Board of Aldermen stand, Republicans, 5; Democrats, 8.

The fight over the election of four Freeholders resulted in the Democrats electing three of them—McCandless, Brucklacher and Gerstung. This will give the Republicans a majority of one sure on the Board, and possibly two if Freeholder Adams, who was chosen as a Citizen in Cranford, should vote with them.

Jersey City, April 11—The Democrats made almost a clean sweep at the election in Jersey City yesterday. Only one Republican Alderman was elected, Stell, in the Ninth ward, and his plurality was only fourteen. The next Board will consist of twenty-three Democrats and two Republicans. Hauck and Nolan, Democrats, were re-elected to the Street and Water Board by about 4 000 majority. The Teachers' Salary act and Freeholders' act were ratified by large majorities. The vote was light. The total was 21,435; the total registry 35,066.

Newark, April 11.—The personal popularity of Mayor James M. Seymour obtained his re-election yesterday as Mayor of Newark by a plurality of 2,663 votes. His Republican opponent, Richard C. Jenkinson, was scratched badly all over the city. For Board of Works, Winton Garrison and Joseph S. Vinson, Republicans, were victorious over Charles F. Herr and William Dimond, Democrats by an average plurality of about 1,200. The Republicans elect their Alderman ticket, obtaining nine out of fifteen and thus getting a majority on the board. They were also successful in the election of members of Board of Education. They get a controlling voice in the board by electing ten out of fifteen candidates.

Summit, April 11—The Democrats were successful in this city. Both wards were carried by them. Only 747 votes were cast in the city out of a registry of 1,200. In the First ward John E. Sayre, Jr., Democrat, for Council, was elected by 6 majority over John Brewer, his Republican opponent. In the Second ward Geo. W. Baldwin, Democrat, for Council, received 189 majority over E. C. Holmes, the Republican nominee. This does not change the complexion of the new Council. The new Board will stand four Republicans and three Democrats. The Democrats elected the Commissioners of Appeals, the only city ticket in the field. The Prohibitionists cast thirty votes.

Rahway, April 11.—The election here was quiet and only about 60 per cent of the voters came out. The city remains Republican, and in the Board of Education the Republicans gain one member, their candidate-at-large having been elected to replace the former Democratic member-at large.

Paterson, April 11—The municipal election here resulted in the election of four Republicans and four Democrats to the Common Council. This makes that body a tie, and is a gain of one for the Democrats. The board will stand 8 to 8. The vote was light.

Trenton, N. J., April 11.—In the municipal election the Republicans elected ten of the thirteen candidates for Councilmen. The new board will stand 19 Republicans and 7 Democrats. The last board contained 11 Democrats.

New Brunswick, April 11.—The Republicans gained one Alderman in yesterday's charter election, electing two out of six. On the city ticket, however, the Democrats elected everything. Woodbury, Democrat, was elected Alderman at-Large by 1,000 majority; Florence, Democrat, City Collector by 1,300, and Dunn, Democrat, City Assessor, without opposition.

Bayonne, April 11.—The Democrats carried Bayonne by about 1 200 majority and gave an immense majority for the new Freeholder law.

THE RULES CHANGED.

ONLY A HALF HOUR FOR THE SELECTION OF DELEGATES.

But in Making Nominations for Officers the Old Murray System Will Continue in Use.

A slight modification was made to the primary rules, prepared by Roger F. Murray, at the meeting of the Republican city executive committee last evening. The Murray system has been in use for a year and has proved its usefulness and fairness. It was designed to prevent a "packed" primary and to give all factions an equal opportunity. The ballot box has been used and the polls of the primary kept open from 5 to 9 o'clock. The amendment to the rules reduces the time in the cases were delegates to the Congressional and State conventions are elected.

It is seldom that there is any fight over the delegates to the State and Congressional conventions. The amendment provides that at all primaries where delegates to county or city conventions are elected, the polls shall be open from 5 to 9 o'clock.

At other primaries the polls are to remain open from 8 until 8:30 o'clock. In both cases the business session is to begin at 8 o'clock.

The change in the rules will affect the Republican primaries in this city Monday evening when delegates to the Congressional and State conventions will be elected. Nominations for delegates will have to be in the hands of the ward clerks by Saturday evening to be posted for the primaries.

At the meeting last night, the city committee also adopted a constitution and by-laws. Heretofore, the committee has been governed chiefly by precedent and it was deemed best to put the rulings in proper form. The sub-committee on constitution reported and the report was adopted with but little debate.

FOR BETTER STUDY.

High School Students Will Have More Advantages in Using the Public Library.

A new plan was put into operation at the Plainfield High School yesterday whereby the pupils were given an opportunity to learn the practical help afforded by the Public Library in reference work. Through the co-operation of the faculty of the High School and Miss Adams, librarian of the Public Library, the pupils will be given instruction in the way to utilize the reference helps. Yesterday the pupils of one of the higher grammar grades went to the Library for the first period in the morning and Miss Adams explained to them the best methods for using the various indexes and cyclopedias. The members of the senior class assembled at the Library this morning for similar instruction.

MONUMENT TO MRS. A. A. PHILO.

It Was Unveiled Sunday in the Oheb Shalom Cemetery.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Newark, April 11—In the Oheb Shalom Cemetery in South Orange avenue at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon there was unveiled with appropriate ceremony a monument erected in memory of Mrs Rose Philo, wife of A. A. Philo, of Keyport, N. J. Mrs. Philo was Miss Rose Fleischer prior to her marriage in 1898. Her entire life had been spent in Plainfield and Newark, and in both places she had many friends and enjoyed an unusual degree of popularity. Her sudden death March 18th of last year, after a little less than a year of a particularly happy life, was a severe shock to all who knew her.

Bargain for the Borough.

The street committee from the Borough Council believe that they will be able to get a bargain on two watering wagons with which to sprinkle the streets of the borough, and the chances are that the prices quoted at the last meeting will be reduced considerably.

Pay Up Your Pledges.

Mayor Smalley desires The Daily Press to urge the payment of subscriptions to the opening of Duer street in the borough. The work will be started very soon and the money subscribed is needed.

THINGS NEEDED FOR THE "RUMMAGE SALE"

Everything of Little Value to Present Owners is Wanted for the Event.

NO MATTER IF OLD OR WORN

FIFTY VOLUNTEERS HAVE BEEN SECURED AS SALESWOMEN.

The Patrons Will Get Good Bargains and at the Same Time a Fair Profit Will be Made for the Benefit of the Hospital.

A host of young women are now making the rounds of the Plainfield residents soliciting articles for the "rummage sale," to be given for the joint benefit of the Muhlenberg Hospital and the Plainfield Relief Association. They are after everything that is of no particular value to the present owners. In particular, they want anything in furniture, china, bric-a-brac, even if somewhat broken, wearing apparel for men, women or child, although somewhat worn or old-fashioned, shoes, gloves, neckties, ribbons, hats, paper-covered novels, books, magazines, in fact they say anything will not come amiss.

This "rummage sale" is to be conducted somewhat on the same lines as the weekly sales of the Relief Association, which have proved such a success. Those in charge have been very fortunate in securing the large store on the Madison avenue side of the Jackson building. If it is not rented before that time James W. Jackson, owner of the building, has offered it free of charge. Otherwise, the sale will be held in the Schepflin or Stillman buildings on West Front street. It is expected, however, that the Jackson building location will be used.

It is intended to have the sale begin on the morning of Wednesday, April 25th and continue for ten days at least and longer if necessary. The store will open in the morning at 10 o'clock and close at 6 except Thursdays and Saturdays, when it will be open in the evening as well.

A meeting of the women interested was held in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church Monday morning when some fifty volunteers were secured for saleswomen at the sale. As many more will be chosen at a meeting of the young women to be held in the same place next Monday morning.

Nearly a week before the opening of the sale the various articles will be gathered at the store, classified and a price affixed. Special arrangements will be made to collect such articles as are not sent to the store.

By the sale it is hoped not only to benefit the organizations so needing assistance but everyone who buys, as the articles are to be sold so cheaply that every purchaser will surely get a bargain.

MONEY FOR ATHLETES.

Young Women Arranged an Entertainment to Raise Money for School Athletic Association.

The assembly hall of the Borough Public High School was well-filled last evening, when a pleasing entertainment was given for the benefit of the Athletic Association of the school to assist in purchasing uniforms and defraying expenses during the season. To Miss Sydenham and Miss Clara VanFleet is credit due for the success of the affair.

After the opening selection, consisting of instrumental music, a chorus rendered several selections. These were interspersed with a vocal trio by the Misses Katharine Dwight, Bessie Martin, Emma LaBoyteaux; vocal solos, Miss Ethel Reynolds and Miss Agnes LaBoyteaux; duet, Miss Edna MacDonald and Miss Florence Rickert, and violin solos by G. C. M. Smith, accompanied by Miss E. Vordemeier.

Part second consisted of a festival of flowers. A number of the smaller children appeared, representing various flowers, and each one made an appropriate speech. After all had assembled on the platform the little folks danced a minuet. The various steps were gone through with a delightful grace.

The Athletic Association will realize about $65 from the entertainment.

Too Much Dust.

It is the opinion of most everyone in Plainfield, except the management of the Trolley Company, that it is about time the Board of Health took a hand regarding the great amount of dust that is permitted to fly about the streets, particularly along the line of the trolley. This thing is beyond a doubt unhealthy and the matter should be attended to.

SECTION HAND KILLED.

ITALIAN MET DEATH IN A TRAGIC MANNER THIS MORNING.

Struck on the Head by Pilot of Locomotive West of Netherwood Station This Morning.

The pilot to the Jersey Central locomotive No. 307, attached to the Philadelphia express, No. 513, due in Plainfield at 8:14 o'clock, struck and instantly killed an Italian laborer just west of the Netherwood station this morning. The Italian was employed in the section gang, of which James Higgins is foreman.

Repairs were being made to the fourth track by the section gang this morning. Foreman Higgins had lifted one end of a rail and told one of the gang, named Luigi Climeli, to clear away a stone beneath the rail. Climeli did so and then stepped back. Higgins shouted to him to beware of the approaching train on track No. 3, but Chimeli did not heed the warning. He was so close to the passenger track that the projecting pilot of the locomotive struck the back of his head. The skull was fractured and the Italian fell to the ground. He was dead when his fellow workmen reached him. The train came to a sudden stop, backed up to the scene of the accident and took the body of the unfortunate man in the baggage car and brought it to Plainfield.

Luigi Climeli, usually called Louis, has been in the employ of the railroad for two months. He was forty-five years old. He left a wife and several children in Italy. The accident occurred east of Berckman street, opposite the plant of the Hygeia Ice Company.

The body was taken to Cole's undertaking establishment later in the morning where it is held, pending the completion of arrangements for funeral and interment. Climeli boarded with a family in Netherwood since he came to this city.

WEALTHY FARMER GONE.

Henry Mellick, of Oak Tree, Died Last Night—Lived Very Plainly Dispite His Great Wealth.

Henry Mellick, who was reported to be one of the wealthiest farmers in the vicinity of Avon Park, died at his home late last evening. He was seventy years old. He has been failing slowly for a long time and it was realized that the end was close at hand. A general wearing out of his system was the cause of death.

While Mellick had wealth far beyond that of most of his neighbors, he lived very plainly and without much regard for anything except the bare necessities of life. Through his severely plain habits, he acquired the reputation of hoarding his money. He and his brother, who died several years ago, lived all alone in the old homestead which is surrounded by a farm of 100 acres. His fortune is valued at over $100,000.

Clever Musicians.

The entertainment given by the Glee and Mandolin Clubs of the Brooklyn Boys' High School in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church last evening attracted a large audience. The programme displayed the talent of the boys well and won much commendation for William Howell Edwards, who trained the clubs in such a satisfactory manner. The selections by the Mandolin Club were worthy of any of the college organization. The players were all young, but played with a snap and unity that was very pleasing. The Glee Club did creditable work. William Dallas Campbell, concert whistler, showed much talent.

Two Years in Business.

John Powers, the Somerset street druggist celebrated the second anniversary of his business career for himself yesterday, and his many friends are showering him with congratulations. Since Mr. Powers started in business he has constantly and steadily won the confidence and patronage of the people. He has studied to please and at the same time has served his customers efficiently and accurately.

It is the intention of the committee to have the party go awheel to Bonhamtown, two miles south of Metuchen, after trailing arbutus. The party will gather at the church at 2:30 o'clock.

METHODISTS OPPOSE TIME LIMIT SYSTEM.

Newark Conference Adopts Resolutions Opposing Pastorates to Five Years.

PROVOKES SHARP DEBATE.

REV. G. W. SMITH PRESIDING ELDER OF ELIZABETH DISTRICT.

Bishop Vincent's Triumph—Spontaneous Outburst of Enthusiasm Testifies to Esteem in Which Presiding Office is Held.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Paterson, April 11.—There was a spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm at the close of the forty-third session of the Newark Methodist Episcopal Conference yesterday. It was a tribute accorded Bishop Vincent, the presiding officer, whose tact, eloquence and unbounded geniality were thus recognized when the time came to pass the farewell vote of thanks accorded by the assembled brethren.

Bishop Vincent, with his cabinet, had returned to announce the appointments for the year, and another disappointment was in store for the wise contingent. Interest had centered in the contest for the presiding eldership of the Newark district. Dr. Hammond, the incumbent, had served six years, and was not eligible for reappointment. Speculation in regard to those prominently mentioned had pointed to Rev. J. M. Meeker, of the Market Street church, Paterson, but a surprise was in store, Bishop Vincent naming Rev. Dr. Warren L. Hoagland, of Jersey City.

Presiding Elders John Krantz, of the Paterson district; George W. Smith, of the Elizabeth district, and J. R. Wright, of the Jersey City district, were reappointed. Rev. Dr. Hammond was assigned to a pastorate at Haverstaw, N. Y. Rev. Dr. A. H. Tuttle, of St. Luke's church, Newark, declined preferment for presiding elder, and will serve at Calvary church, East Orange. Dr. W. P. Ferguson, formerly president of the Hackettstown Institute, will officiate at St. Luke's.

The appointments for the Elizabeth district were as follows:

G. W. Smith, presiding elder.

Bound Brook, F. L. Rounds; Dunellen, S. E. Doolittle; Elizabeth, Fulton Street, J. H. Howard; Park church, G. Bloom; St. James, G. E. Wilding; Flemington, W. C. O'Donnell; High Bridge, J. I. Boswell; Metuchen, Albert Cain; Perth Amboy, S. T. Jackson; Plainfield, First church, W. C. Snodgrass; Grace, G. W. Gardner; Monroe Avenue, John McMurray; Quakertown, S. D. Decker; Rahway, First church, F. O. Mooney; Trinity, W. S. Galloway; Raritan, E. S. James; Roselle, R. W. Elliott; Scotch Plains, C. O. Woodruff; Somerville, J. R. Bryan.

Bishop Vincent, in his farewell address, said he would always cherish memories of the conference then about to close. The Newark district had, in fact, always been associated with pleasant reminiscences. The early days of his ministry had been passed at the Newark City Mission in 1852, and later at Franklin and Campgown, now Irvington, in 1855.

"I knew many of the older men here then," added the Bishop merrily. "They were not old men then, and they do not seem to know enough to be old men even now. It is wonderful the power and dominion of the spirit over the body. I sincerely trust that the outcome of this conference may be to profit of the church and satisfaction to the preachers."

During the morning session the resolutions petitioning the general conference to abolish the five-year time limit of pastorate and to revise the present system of itinerary were again taken up and provoked another lively debate. Rev. Dr. Bryan, who had championed the movement for the annual revision, declined to accept the substitute referendum offered by Dr. Falks, requesting the general body to submit the decision to the clergy and the laity. Dr. Bryan said his own measure met the emergency, and would let the new system adjust itself naturally to the existing conditions.

Rev. Dr. Boswell protested against the substitute on the ground that there were many members of the laity who had given no thought to the subject and ought not be called upon to render the final decision.

The final vote showed a majority for the referendum amendment, but later a resolution was passed memorializing the general conference to take up the time limit question at an early stage, so that it might be given due consideration.

BRIDGE WORK
In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

CUBAN AGRICULTURE

General Rivera's Plans For Testing Gardens.

FOREIGN INVESTORS SEEK ADVICE.

Not Thought Advisable to Increase Sugar Plantations In View of Probable Production In the United States.

HAVANA, April 11.—General Ruis Rivera, secretary of agriculture, has drawn up a scheme providing for four agricultural public gardens, where proposed improvements will be tried and various kinds of fertilizers tested. He said it is extremely important that measures should be taken to eliminate the flavor of Pinar del Rio tobacco from any fertilizer.

Many letters have been received by General Rivera from the United States asking particulars regarding land and the methods of investing money. He has also received from planters confirmation of his view that sugar cultivation should not be increased indefinitely, but that the foreign capital which is coming to the island should be diverted to other industries. His own argument he bases largely upon the official statement that the United States will soon produce all the sugar needed in the Union, in which event the sugar planters of Cuba would be in a bad way. He also points out that Cuba as an independent nation would be doubly at the mercy of the United States if she were to try to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with sugar as her principal industry. Nor would Cuba be able to resist if the United States should put an adverse duty upon sugar. The island would have to submit absolutely to the will of the United States.

General Maximo Gomes has sailed for Santo Domingo. Before leaving he addressed a letter to the president of the National party, saying that he was very grateful for the recent demonstration in his honor and that he would soon return to Cuba.

In the course of an interview he denied that he had any intention of attempting to become the president of Santo Domingo, as had been intimated in an Havana paper.

A farewell banquet was given last night to Brigadier General William Ludlow, the retiring military governor of the late department of Havana.

Meeting of the Cabinet.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Nothing of importance was developed at yesterday's cabinet meeting. Secretary Root explained some of the features of the pending army appropriation bill and also the terms of enlistment of the troops now in the Philippines. It was stated that General Otis probably would leave Manila very soon and some time before the arrival there of the new Philippines commission. The reports from the Philippines during the last week or two, it was said, had greatly magnified the opposition that had been met with by our troops. The official reports, it was asserted, did not warrant the statement that the insurgents were becoming very active and were massing in various parts of Luzon to an extent which greatly concerned our generals. The situation, it was said, did not warrant the sending of more troops to the islands, for the present at least.

Another Kentucky Shooting.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 11.—Bud Lecompte, a young farmer living in this county, walked into the home of his brother-in-law, Hiram Stafford, yesterday afternoon and fired three bullets into Stafford, who had been sick in bed for a month past, killing him instantly. The neighbors believe Lecompte is crazy, though he had shown no previous evidence of insanity. Lecompte walked into the room where the sick man lay and said to him: "You are going to die anyway. I will just put you out of your misery." With this he fired three bullets from a Winchester rifle into Stafford's head.

General Miners' Strike.

FROSTBURG, Md., April 11.—A general strike of all the miners in the Georges Creek region has been ordered for today. Nearly 5,000 men are involved. The miners insist on an increase of from 55 to 60 cents per ton of 2,240 pounds. They claim that they requested the operators to meet their representatives to discuss this increase, but all of their six requests have been ignored. The Consolidation Coal company, employing 1,800 men, suspended or dismissed 75 of their men on Monday, the miners claim, because they took an active part in a mass meeting held on Saturday.

Noted Ethnologist Dead.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Frank H. Cushing, for years connected with the bureau of ethnology, is dead of hemorrhage. Mr. Cushing, who devoted his life to scientific research, was identified in the minds of the public with his work among the Zuni Indians. He had charge of the Smithsonian ethnological exhibit at the Centennial exposition of 1876 and later accompanied an expedition to New Mexico and lived there six years, being adopted as a member of the Zuni tribe. He was born in 1857 and was a graduate of Cornell.

The Bounty For Dewey's Men.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Argument has been begun in the United States supreme court in the case of Admiral Dewey and his men. The case grows out of their claim for bounty due for the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Manila and comes to the supreme court on appeal from the decision of the court of claims. The court awarded the men $100 each and the admiral $9,570. They claim double that amount in all cases on the ground that the enemy's force was superior to the American.

Trial of the Stringham Postponed.

NORFOLK, April 11.—The official trial of the torpedo boat Stringham was to have taken place Monday, but owing to an accident to the machinery of the boat it was postponed to Wednesday, April 18, at the request of Admiral Rodgers. The trial on the 18th will be to determine whether the Stringham can show the 30 knots speed stipulated in the contract.

Melba's Husband Gets Divorce.

GALVESTON, April 11.—Charles F Armstrong, husband of Mme. Melba, the grand opera singer, obtained a divorce in the state district court last Thursday. The proceedings were conducted very quietly, and every effort was made to keep the matter from the reporters. Armstrong filed his petition for divorce on Dec. 12, 1899.

RUMORS OF DISASTER

Reports of a Third Boer Victory Doubted In London.

HEAVY BRITISH LOSS IS CLAIMED.

Colonel Plumer's Fight Before Mafeking Waged Under Great Difficulties—Half the British Officers Wounded.

LONDON, April 11.—But that the war office has issued no news from Lord Roberts during the last three days there would be little disposition to place any credence in the Boer reports of another British disaster. The unexpected rallying of the Free State commandoes, however, leaves the public in a nervous condition, fearing everything.

Dispatches from Pretoria as late as Monday did not mention any further Boer victory. On the contrary they said all the commandoes were quiet, and, as Lord Roberts has hitherto never failed promptly to report mischances as well as successes or to allow the newspaper correspondents to report them, until some confirmation is received there is justification for regarding the Meerkatsfontein rumor as only an exaggerated account of the Reddersburg affair. At the same time the Boer reports have so often proved correct that the greatest anxiety will be felt.

No further news has been received of fighting either at Wepener or in Natal. Boer reports seem to indicate that Lord Methuen is advancing from Boshof toward Hoopstadt.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Brandfort, dated Sunday, by way of Lourenco Marques, says:

"Yesterday General De Wet inflicted the third defeat of the British within a week at Meerkatsfontein, killing and wounding 600. He captured 900, with 12 wagons, losing five Boers killed and nine wounded."

A dispatch from Gaberones, dated April 3, says:

"Saturday's fight in the environs of Mafeking was conducted on Colonel Plumer's side under great difficulties, being in the proximity of the Boer laagers, whence re-enforcements could be promptly sent to the burghers, and there was little cover available for the British when the fight began, the plane being but sparsely wooded and the railroad embankment, the chief protection, being only two feet high. The men behaved gallantly, however, and the officers were exceptionally conspicuous in the affair.

"With the exception of a few rounds fired by the British Maxim at Ramathlabama the fire on both sides was entirely by rifle. Half of the British officers were more or less seriously wounded.

"Colonel Plumer's wound was in his right arm. His horse was shot. Colonel Bodle and Captain Rolt were wounded. Colonel Plumer's orderly is missing. Sergeant Major Maning of the Fifth Dragoon guards, who took up the duties of orderly, did excellent work.

"Captain Fred Crewe was shot dead while covering the retreat of others.

"Captain Maclaren was severely wounded and Lieutenant Milligan, the famous Yorkshire cricketer, fatally, while tenaciously holding an assigned position. Lieutenant Milligan rode unassisted to Ramathlabama.

"Medical Orderly Wanaford worked pluckily on the field, which afforded little cover."

The correspondent of The Times at Lourenco Marques, telegraphing Monday, says:

"Trustworthy refugees assert that the Boers recently obtained at least 30 pieces of artillery, some of large caliber, which were brought overland as machinery from a west African port. Eight of these guns were dispatched to the Free State a week ago. The Boer officials openly boast that they have succeeded in smuggling ammunition through Portuguese territory.

"In the course of the Dempsey trial State Engineer Munnik admitted under pressure that, acting on the instruction of State Secretary Reitz of the Transvaal, he had bored holes in 25 mines."

A dispatch from Aliwal North, dated April 11, says an engagement took place Monday at Wepener. The Boers' Vickers Maxim did considerable execution at first, but the British guns soon got the range and did great havoc.

The Rouxville commando has gone to Wepener.

The fighting at Wepener was severe and lasted all day long. The Boers received a check. The casualties were rather heavy on both sides. Another commando is advancing toward Wepener from De Wet's dorp.

Heavy fighting was continued at Wepener this morning. Three Boer commandos are attacking the town.

The Daily News has the following from Pretoria, dated Monday, by way of Delagoa Bay:

"It is officially announced that a battle has been fought south of Brandfort, in which 600 British troops were killed and wounded and 800 taken prisoners.

"Lord Roberts is declared to be finding great difficulty owing to the scarcity of water."

The Daily Mail publishes the following, dated Tuesday, April 10, from Lourenco Marques:

"The Netherlands Railway company professes to have received a telegram reporting a Boer victory near Kroonstadt, the Boers capturing 900 British."

Commenting upon this The Daily Mail remarks:

"There is a Meerkatfontein about 25 miles southeast of Kroonstadt, but if the report be true this can hardly be the place."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Morning Post says:

"The water supply continues satisfactory. Intrenching is proceeding vigorously on the hills commanding Bloemfontein. Civilian labor is to be utilized. Sickness among the troops is somewhat diminishing."

Heavy British Losses.

PRETORIA, April 11.—The British casualties in the fight at De Wets dorp were 100 killed and wounded and 430 captured. The Transvaal volksraad has been summoned to meet in ordinary session on May 7. Heavy cannonading is reported at Fourteen Streams. The British are using a naval gun. Lord Methuen is moving in the direction of Hoopstadt.

Boer Prisoners Landed.

CAPE TOWN, April 11.—The remainder of the Boer prisoners that were on board the transports off Simon's Town, about 2,000, have been transferred to the mainland. Mr. Rudyard Kipling and Sir John Henry De Villiers, chief justice of Cape Colony, sailed for England today.

DAY FOR QUAY VOTE.

Senate Finally Agrees—Tributes to the Dead.

COMMITTEE VOTES TO UNSEAT CLARK

Unanimous Decision Against the Montana Millionaire Senator—The House Passes the Agricultural Bill With Slight Changes.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Without objection from any source the senate yesterday agreed to take a final vote on the right of the Hon. M. S. Quay to a seat as a senator from Pennsylvania on Tuesday, April 24, at 4 p. m. During its session the senate paid tribute to the late Richard Parks Bland, long a representative from Missouri. The eulogies pronounced on the dead statesman were notable for their earnestness and eloquence.

The house passed the agricultural appropriation bill substantially as reported. An animated discussion arose over a series of amendments offered by Mr. Corliss of Michigan restricting the distribution of free seeds and free vaccine. Mr. Corliss maintained that the government distributions invaded the field of private enterprise. His various amendments failed, however, after extended debate. An amendment by Mr. Latimer of South Carolina was adopted increasing the supply of "farmers' bulletins" issued by the agricultural department and distributed by members of congress.

W. A. CLARK.

The senate committee on privileges and elections has decided by a unanimous vote to recommend the adoption of a resolution declaring that Hon. W. A. Clark of Montana is not entitled to occupy his seat as a senator from Montana. The decision was reached after a two hours' sitting, at which all the members of the committee were present except one. The absentee was Senator Caffery of Louisiana, and he wired his vote in opposition to Mr. Clark.

The ballot was not taken until all the members present had expressed themselves upon the question, some of them speaking at some length and all expressing different shades of opinion.

Winter Wheat Promises Well.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The April report of the statistician of the department of agriculture will show the average condition of winter wheat on April 1 to have been 82.1 against 77.9 on April 1, 1899, 86.7 on April 1, 1898, and a ten year average of 82.8. While the ravages of the Hessian fly in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana will probably result in not one of these three states producing more than half a crop, an exceptionally high condition is reported from the winter wheat states west of the Mississippi river and from the Pacific coast.

Kentucky Republican Delegates.

LOUISVILLE, April 11.—The Republican state central committee has issued a call for a state convention to meet here May 17. It is practically settled that Governor Taylor, former Governor Bradley, Senator Deboe and W. A. Gaines (colored) will be the delegates at large to the Philadelphia convention. If meanwhile the Republicans are defeated before the supreme court in the contest for state offices, they will renominate Governor Taylor for the November election.

Convention Hall Will Be Ready.

KANSAS CITY, April 11.—A $50,000 bond has been given by the Gillette-Herzog Manufacturing company of Minneapolis to insure the erection of the new Convention hall in time for occupancy by the Democratic national convention in July. The company agrees to have the ten immense steel trusses that will support the roof in place by June 15 under a penalty of $100 a day for each day it might be delayed beyond the time limit.

Tuskagee is in the path of the eclipse.

Train Wreckers In Texas.

HOUSTON, April 11.—An attempt was made yesterday to wreck an International and Great Northern passenger train near Taylor. An extra freight was ditched instead. Fireman J. J. Lyons was killed, and Engineer Ackerman and Brakeman J. S. Jacobs each had a leg broken. The sheriff is after the wreckers.

Flouring Mill Wrecked.

COLUMBIA CITY, Ind., April 11.—The large flouring mill of R. Tuttle & Co. was wrecked by an explosion yesterday, resulting in the death of Henry Landon, fireman, and O. S. Young, teamster. Several others in the mill were badly injured. It is believed natural gas was responsible for the explosion.

One Million Pounds Tobacco Burned.

PETERSBURG, Va., April 11.—Fire was discovered last night in the leaf tobacco factory of W. G. Dunnington & Co., in which was stored over 1,000,000 pounds of leaf tobacco which had been purchased for the Austrian government. The tobacco was destroyed. The loss is about $125,000.

CLEVELAND AT PRINCETON.

Delivers His Second Lecture—Will Speak Again Next Year.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 11.—Ex-President Grover Cleveland delivered his second and last lecture in Alexander hall last night before a large number of students, members of the faculty, their families and many others. At 8 o'clock President Patton and Mr. Cleveland appeared on the rostrum and were greeted with prolonged applause.

Dr. Patton expressed the thanks of the university to Mr. Cleveland for delivering the lectures and surprised the audience by announcing that Mr. Cleveland would deliver the Stafford Little lectures again next year and, he hoped, for as many more years as the ex-president would have strength to deliver them.

Naval Models Injured.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Eleven of the beautiful models of American naval vessels, worth in the aggregate about $100,000, were damaged, some of them severely, on the auxiliary cruiser Prairie, on which they were sent to the Paris exposition. The model of the Olympia, Dewey's flagship, was more severely injured than any of the others. The damage was caused by failure properly to secure the model cases during heavy weather. They are being repaired under Constructor Gillmore's direction at Cherbourg. A great many naval officers were opposed to sending these valuable and delicate models away from Washington to Paris and the several American expositions where they were exhibited. The Olympia's model was obtained only after an appeal had been made to the president.

Methodists and Amusement.

DANBURY, Conn., April 11.—A heated debate was occasioned at the forenoon session of the New York East conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which is being held here, by the presentation of a resolution by Professor W. N. Rice of Wesleyan university, Middletown, memorializing the general conference to amend that section of the discipline which prohibits certain specific worldly amusements. The resolution aims to abolish that part of the discipline which specifies the form of amusement in which Methodists must not indulge, leaving the question rather to the conscience of the members of the church. A vote was taken, resulting in a decision that the resolutions be submitted to the general conference.

Strikers Cause Coal Shortage.

PITTSBURG, April 11.—With 10,000 miners on a strike and many of the mines operating on half time and with no immediate prospect of a complete resumption the condition in the coal trade locally has assumed alarming proportions. Coal yards in Pittsburg and Alleghany are short of fuel, and yesterday domestic consumers were given only half of the amount they asked for in order that the supply may be made to go around until more is obtained. This condition exists not only in the two cities, but in most of the important boroughs of the county and has affected many towns farther away which depend on Pittsburg for their supply.

Another Tangle In Kentucky.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 11.—The appointment of Dr. J. G. Furnish of Boone county as superintendent of the Lakeland asylum by Governor Beckham to succeed an incumbent appointed by Governor Taylor will add another tangle to the complication of the situation in Kentucky. The Republican officers will refuse to recognize the appointment, denying the right of Governor Beckham to make such an appointment, and the matter will result in another suit to recover possession. Other similar appointments to fill places in the state institutions will shortly be made by Governor Beckham.

Noted Character Dead.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 11.—A dispatch to The Express announces the death of Colonel J. H. Lifford, one of the most noted characters in Texas, at his home, near Beeville, aged over 80 years. Colonel Lifford was a native of Illinois and a personal friend of Abraham Lincoln. He served through the civil war with the Union forces and came to Texas at its close. He brought colonists from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio to his adopted state and was probably the greatest colonizer Texas ever had. For years he had been living the life of a hermit on a little farm which he personally cultivated.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Governor Roosevelt signed a bill prohibiting gambling on New York state fair grounds.

Queen Victoria notified the Dublin authorities of her delight at the reception accorded her.

It was rumored that Lebanon, in Bee county, Tex., was completely demolished by a tornado.

The rising in Ashanti, British West Africa, continues to spread. Kumassi was invested.

Judge Johnson's departure for Nome left the Alaska territory without a judge or judicial officer.

A complete steel house was shipped from Philadelphia to Prince Yoshihito at Tokyo, and 31 locomotives and tenders were shipped to Russia.

The United States government awarded to the Oceanic Steamship company a ten years' contract at $2 a mile for carrying the Australian and English closed mails across the Pacific.

While a priest was administering the last sacrament to a dying man in the presence of relatives near Corunna, Spain, the floor of the room collapsed, and five persons were killed and 14 injured.

Ohio Bank Forced to Suspend.

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—The bank of Reinhard & Co., founded in 1858, has suspended business. The bank was closed at noon yesterday, and about the same time John G. and Henry A. Reinhard filed deeds of assignment to Thomas J. Abernathy, who qualified by giving bonds aggregating $325,000. John G. Reinhard, cashier of the bank, made the following statement: "The suspension was caused by persistent rumors which have been afloat for about four weeks reflecting on the financial condition of the bank and its owners. In one month's time our deposits have dwindled down from $350,000 to $98,000, and there were scarcely any new deposits."

Big Verdict For Engineer.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 11.—In the case of John Lee against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company, which has been on trial before Judge Forbes in the supreme court of Tompkins county, the jury has rendered a verdict of $11,000 for the plaintiff. This amount is the largest ever awarded in the county. The plaintiff was injured two years ago in crossing a bridge constructed by the railroad company over the highway near Groton. He was in charge of a traction engine, and the bridge gave way under its weight.

Corn and Cotton Lands Flooded.

ROCKDALE, Tex., April 11.—Thousands of acres of corn and cotton have been destroyed in this county by the floods of the past few days. Lower Little river was four miles wide this morning and lacked only eight inches of being as high as in June last. The engineering corps of the Santa Fe railway reports the rise as being one and a half feet higher than last year. San Gabriel river and Brushy creek have been out over the lowlands, but are receding.

Tin Plate Mill to Resume.

PHILLIPSBURG, Pa., April 11.—The tin plate mill of the American Sheet Iron company located here will resume operations within a week or ten days. The mill has been idle for more than two years. Orders sufficient to keep the mill going to its capacity for the balance of the year are now on hand. The company contemplates the erection of another mill in the near future.

A Deserved Political Honor.

The friends of James E. Martine are still quietly energetic in their efforts to secure for him the distinction and honor of representing the New Jersey Democracy at the Kansas City convention as one of the delegates-at-large. It is recognized that there is no more popular, more honest and more able Democrat in the State than Mr. Martine has proven himself to be by years of devotion and loyalty to the party. And the political condition of things today make it especially fitting and right that he should be accorded the honor which his friends are associating his name with. Undoubtedly the movement that has been started in his favor will be brought to the attention of the members of the State Democratic committee when they meet in Newark next Saturday, and their aid and influence will be sought to induce his selection as one of the "Big Four" when the State convention is held. The Democracy that is characteristic of Mr. Martine is worthy and deserving enough from a partisan standpoint to throw great influence to the candidacy that has been inaugurated in his behalf, and if it succeeds, as it is likely to do, it will be of inestimable strength and value to the party.

The municipal elections held in many towns in New Jersey yesterday afforded plenty of reasons to argue the necessity of holding local and State or county elections on seperate days. The campaign in every community that voted yesterday was conducted upon strictly local issues, as it should have been. Had the selection of municial officers been carried out on the same day when candidates for State and county officers are voted for, as a small coterie of politicians were urging the Legislature to put into effect by the passage of a law abolishing the spring elections, the real issues concerning the local government would have been lost sight of in the general shuffle to secure political advantage. Such a condition of affairs would have been deplorable. Local and general elections should always be kept seperate.

The election of D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth, as Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second Regiment, National Guard of the State, was a surprise to many, who had expected that his fellow-townsman, Rev. Otis Glazebrook, would be accorded the honor. Col. Collins well deserves the military honor and advancement that is his, as his record in the State militia is a highly creditable one. He has many friends in this city who are pleased and gratified over the outcome of the military contest in which he figured.

The News seems greatly elated and consoled over the bearing on the City Hall question. It is wonderful what little things will please some people.

Thus far April showers seem to be a case of April snows.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Miss Cora Laire, of Richmond terrace, is mourning the loss of her pet dog, "Major." The canine had a great habit of following one of the neighbors to the station every morning. One day last week the dog followed the neighbor's wife to the station, and this time went on board the train. He was not discovered until the train was under way. The next stop was Fanwood and there the dog was put off. The last seen of him he was trotting away in the direction of Plainfield. He never reached home, however, and it is not known whether he was stolen or came to an untimely end under the wheels of a passing train.

THEATRICAL.

Current Dramatic Attractions That Plain Selders Can Witness.

"The play is the thing wherein to catch the conscience of the king," says Hamlet, and it is the same thing that catches the public's attention when it is an entertaining play and such a one as "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" which was given at Music Hall last night. The specialty act given by the Hills and the two children was excellent. The performance will be repeated this evening. The play itself is an old-fashioned one, having years ago been looked upon as the greatest temperance lecture and plea against the use of liquor ever written.

The individuality and social nature of the Northern and Southern American are shown in vivid contrast in the various and strongly portrayed characters that crowd the scenes and animate the story of David Belasco's drama of "The Heart of Maryland," which will be seen here for the first time at Music Hall Thursday, 19 h inst. The locality of the action is in Maryland; the dominant character in the play is a young Southern girl whose heroic and finally triumphant struggle to rescue her lover from the death of a spy, it is said, arouses and maintains the most intense interest and sympathy of the audience. Reserved seats can now be secured at box office.

FERTILIZERS.

LAST year we aimed to convince the Farmers and Gardeners that it was unnecessary when buying Fertilizers to pay from thirty to fifty per cent more than they are worth, simply because some "other fellow" forgets to pay his bills, and it has become the habit of the fertilizer trade to make the good pay for the bad.

If you pay your bills we want to sell you and you will not have to pay for other customers who don't pay, as we dont have that kind.

The laws of this State protect the purchaser of Fertilizers, and all that is necessary is to see that he gets what he pays for.

CLOVER SEED.

We have the cheapest in result, but not in price. The same is true of our Timothy Seed. Ask those who bought it last Fall.

SEED OATS.

Oats raised for seed, absolutely clean and as cheap as a good article can be sold for.

If you have money to throw away don't come to us, as we cannot accommodate you; our prices being the same to every one, naturally must be made to fit the close buyer.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, April 11—There are many members of the congregation of the Presbyterian church, as well as citizens generally, who will regret the departure of Rev. A. I. Martine. During his residence of several years in Dunellen Mr. Martine has made many friends. He is a man of much ability and has displayed a Christian spirit and a degree of fortitude in times of trials that is highly commendable. Those who have opposed Mr. Martine it is safe to assume are largely in the minority.

Some excitement was occasioned among the members of St. John's Roman Catholic church last Sunday over the sudden disappearance of the silver plate and communion service. At first Rev. Father Bogard suspected certain parties and a search was instituted, but without finding the service. Monday the plate was found on the altar. Evidently the silver had been mislaid.

A German tea will be held Thursday evening at Apgar's Hall under the auspices of the United Order of the Golden Cross. Supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock. An entertainment consisting of musical sketches, songs, etc., will be the feature of the evening. Fifteen cents will admit to the hall and include supper.

Harry Apgar, who has been employed as a clerk in the drug store of Dr. P. W. Bakeley for about two years, has been offered a situation in the general office of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. It is understood that he has accepted the position.

Miss Mamie Smith, a former resident, who has been living in Newport, is visiting friends in town. It is understood that the Smith sisters are soon to occupy the old Smith home, opposite the Whittier School building.

Rev. S. K. Doolittle, of Orange, has been assigned by the Methodist conference to the pastorate of the Methodist church at this place to succeed Rev. E. S. Jamison, who is transferred to the Raritan Methodist church. Rev. Mr. Doolittle will assume his new duties at once and preach for the first at next Sunday's services. Mr. Doolittle comes well recommended and is a man of much ability. Many friends of Rev. Mr. Jamison will regret his departure. Before severing his relations with the Methodist society Mr. Jamison was largely instrumental in relieving the church of debt.

T. C. Bodine, one of the trustees of the Presbyterian church, denies that that congregation owes as much as $500 in the way of pastor's salary and other debts. Mr. Bodine told a Daily Press reporter that the amount of the church debt was but $375 and that that sum would be paid before Rev. A. I. Martine left town.

William Smith, of New Market, who has been driving a baker's wagon, is soon to start a bake shop in one of the new stores recently erected by Adam Dealaman.

At Monday evening's meeting of the Choral Union it was decided to disband for the season and divide among the members the money in the treasurer's hands.

The regular Wednesday evening prayer meeting at the Methodist church this evening will be led by J. Emmons Henry.

Special services will be held at Holy Innocents' Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

It is understood that Rev. E. S. Jamison will be transferred to the Raritan M. E. church.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley is again acting in the capacity of a grand juror at New Brunswick.

There are letters advertised at the post office for Adam Lark and Ella R McGraw.

Isaac Titsworth left yesterday for a short visit with friends in Colorado.

Health Inspector Peters has supplied himself with a new bicycle.

Rev. A I. Martine will preach his farewell sermon Sunday.

SOMERVILLE.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Somerville, April 11.—The Town Committee met on Monday and passed on second reading the ordinances fixing the salaries of the treasurer at $200 and the township physician at $120, the latter to furnish all medicines required. Frank A. Dunster was appointed Road Overseer to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas Hardgrove. The application of the Pluckamin trolley for right of way over the the Township Farm was received, but no action taken. The Board desire commissioners appointed to condemn the land.

The Town Commissioners met on Monday night at the engine house, but transacted little business. The time for holding the annual meeting to hear the report of the treasurer and to nominate seven commissioners to be elected for the coming year, was fixed for Saturday night, May 5th, at 8 o'clock, at the engine house. Theo. J. Hoffman was appointed Judge of election, and W. R. Sutphen Clerk. A surprise was sprung when Hon James J. Bergen, President of the Board, announced that he would decline to serve again. Mr. Bergen has been on the Board twelve years and has made a most excellent official. During his term of office a complete sewer system has been built, nearly all the streets have been macadamized, the fire department improved, trolley road built, and numerous other improvements made. The town is free from debt and the tax rate low. Mr. Bergen has always opposed bonding the town and it is mainly through his efforts that the town is in such good financial condition.

Plainfield seems to draw residents from this place every year. The following families have recently removed from this section to the bustling city at the foot of Watchung Mountain: Elias Vanneman, C. R. Knapp, Chas. Messenger, Abram VanCleef, Benj. Fritts and Mrs. John Thompson. And there may be others.

Daniel S. Doty, aged 92, died Monday on the mountain back of Pluckamin. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the house, and the remains will be interred in the Pluckamin cemetery.

The team of Adam Hummer, from Millstone, created considerable excitement yesterday by trying to back into Terriberry & Kenney's store. A broken whiffletree was the result.

Mrs. Tunis Mulliner, aged 43, of Raritan, was interred in the new cemetery here yesterday afternoon.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Germersheim. Von einer in Germersheim abgehaltenen Versammlung von Vertretern der tabakbauenden Gemeinden der Pfalz wurde einstimmig beschlossen, an das bayerische Staatsministerium das Ersuchen zu richten, beim Bundesrathe seinen Einfluß dahin geltend zu machen, daß, um der schlimmen Lage der tabakbauenden Bevölkerung abzuhelfen, der Eingangszoll auf ausländischen Tabak wesentlich erhöht werde.

Neustadt a. d. H. Des Landfriedensbruchs, Aufruhrs u. s. w. hatten sich vor einiger Zeit eine Anzahl junger Leute hierorts schuldig gemacht. Nach einer blutigen Schlägerei in der Herberge „Zum Rossen" haben sie den Wirth und dessen Helfer, die ihnen in den Weg traten, mit Prügeln und Messern niedergeschlagen. Mehrere Polizeibeamten wurden mit leeren Biergläsern bombardirt und zum Rückzug gezwungen. Erst dem Aufgebot der gesammten Neustadter Schutzmannschaft und Gendarmerie war es möglich, die Ruhestörer zur Raison zu bringen. Die Strafkammer hat die Angeklagten nunmehr zu Gefängnißstrafen bis zu fünf Vierteljahren verurtheilt.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Im Etatsjahr 1898 haben die Gesammteinnahmen des Württembergischen Eisenbahnbetriebs 52,685,933 Mark ergeben, die Gesammtausgaben 33,604,231 Mark. Der Post- und Telegraphenbetrieb ergab an Gesammteinnahmen 13,461,567 Mark, an Gesammtausgaben 10,968,348 Mark. — Anhier schoß der Schlosser Schiense aus Eifersucht auf seine Frau, verwundete sie tödtlich und erschoß darauf sich selbst.

Altensteig. Hier wird durch die Firma W. Reißer, Stuttgart, im Auftrag der Stadt ein Elektrizitätswerk ausgeführt. Die Betriebseröffnung soll im August d. J. erfolgen.

Herrenalb. Hier ist nach einer warmen Quelle gegraben worden, welche für die Zukunft Herrenalbs vielleicht von großer Wichtigkeit sein kann. Eine Aktiengesellschaft hat sie zur Ausnützung erworben. Vor rund 80 Jahren wurde eine warme Quelle hier entdeckt, die Regierung aber erhob damals Einsprache gegen ihre Ausbeutung, da angenommen wurde, sie stehe in Verbindung mit den Quellen in Wildbad.

Tuttlingen. Hierorts legten 2500 Schuhmacher in Folge von Differenzen die Arbeit nieder.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Die Erste Kammer lehnte einstimmig den von der Zweiten Kammer durch Mehrheitsbeschluß angenommenen Antrag auf unbeschränkte Zulassung der Klöster und Orden ab; sie lehnte ferner mit Mehrheit den ebenfalls von der Zweiten Kammer angenommenen Antrag ab, die Regierung möge von dem ihr zustehenden Recht der Zulassung einzelner Klöster Gebrauch machen.

Heidelberg. Der altkatholische Sterbekassenverein „Charitas" hielt kürzlich hier seine elfte Generalversammlung ab. Der segensreiche Verein zählt in 70 Gemeinden Deutschlands 1800 Mitglieder und entrichtet bei 12 Pfennigen wöchentlichem Beitrag im Sterbefall an seine Mitglieder 180 Mark. Im letzten Jahre wurden nahezu 7000 Mark ausbezahlt, seit elf Jahren 77,700 Mark. Trotzdem hat der Verein ein Vermögen von mehr als 14,000 Mark.

Mannheim. Der Hochstapler Styba, der unter der Anklage stand, mehrere Diebstähle begangen zu haben, wurde von der Strafkammer zu 5½ Jahren Zuchthaus verurtheilt.

Salem. Der Kassirer Helff von der Sparkasse in Salem ist flüchtig. Es wurde ein Fehlbetrag in der ihm anvertrauten Kasse entdeckt.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. An der Straßburger Universität gibt es noch einzelne Professoren, die weniger Gehalt beziehen als Oberlehrer. Die Regierung forderte nun für Gehaltserhöhungen für diese Professoren die Summe von 9000 Mark. Die Forderung wurde jedoch vom Landesausschuß mit großer Mehrheit abgelehnt.

Deutsch-Oth. Nachts zwischen 12 und 1 Uhr sollte eine Maschine mit Packwagen nach einem benachbarten Orte fahren. Die Weiche am Ausgang des Bahnhofs war nicht richtig gestellt, und die Maschine rannte auf einem Nebengeleise mit solcher Wucht in den Maschinenschuppen auf eine dort leerstehende Maschine, daß diese die Wand durchstieß, in das Schlafzimmer einer angebauten Wärterwohnung drang und das Bett, in dem die zwei ältesten Mädchen des Bahnwärters Schönmann schliefen, zertrümmerte. Das eine elfjährige Kind wurde getödtet, das andere 13jährige so schwer verletzt, daß man an seinem Aufkommen zweifelt. Das Maschinen- und Zugpersonal kam mit dem Schrecken davon.

An unsolicited testimonial to the value and excellence of Ripans Tabules comes from one of the best known stenographers in Philadelphia, a gentleman who for a number of years has been connected with one of the largest brokerage firms in that city. "Stenography," he says, "has been my life study. To it I have given all my time and attention. I occupy a position of trust and in order to merit the confidence reposed in me I have to give very close attention to my duties. I would be unable to do this were it not for the use of Ripans Tabules, which I consider the only successful remedy for ills of the stomach and liver, and furthermore the nerves. About a year ago I became a sufferer from nervous dyspepsia and indigestion to such a degree that I was in constant dread of falling behind in my work. It was a friend who first told me of Ripans Tabules and advised me to make trial of them. I did so and the relief was absolute and immediate, and in a month I was practically as free from the trouble as I was before it began. I have continued to take the Tabules, at intervals, ever since, because I find them not only excellent for keeping the general system in tone, but for the purpose of occasional slight stimulation. I can sincerely recommend Ripans Tabules. The duties incumbent upon an expert stenographer and practiced typist are severe and exacting. To be able to take dictation at a rapid rate and from men who are entirely different in their methods requires a steady hand and a clear head. The ordinary stenographer will tell you that he cannot do his work properly unless his physical condition is good."

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

NEW COLORS.

The Latest Shades Are More Subdued in Quality.

The majority of shades now in favor are soft, the reign of crude colors being almost at an end. In materials intended for tailor made gowns in particular these veiled tones predominate. Covert cloth is beginning to dispute pre-eminence with smooth finished cloths and is used for the newest costumes of the severer type. The mixture of colors in the covert cloth is very fine, so that at a short distance the mixture effect is lost. Grays of all shades, dull blues and beiges are the favorite tones, and the decoration is kept subdued.

Gray predominates. From iron gray to a gray so light as to be merely a shadowed white it is seen in an immense variety of shades and is used for all sorts of gowns. Many silk waists are seen in tones of gray, the paler ones being extremely refined and elegant in appearance, especially when trimmed with white or cream.

TAFFETA GOWN.

The cut illustrates a costume of periwinkle blue taffeta. The skirt is plain. The tight bodice has a short basque, with revers continuous with the collar of white satin, upon which is an application of blue velvet. The plastron is of guipure on white satin and is crossed horizontally by little bands of blue velvet, which form a corselet and yoke and encircle the collar. The tight sleeves have three tucks running lengthwise, across which are crosses formed of blue velvet. The cuffs match the plastron. The large hat of periwinkle blue straw is trimmed with blue velvet and three white plumes, and white flowers are placed under the left side of the brim. JUDIC CHOLLET.

STREET COSTUMES.

Covert Cloths and Other Goods For Tailor Made Gowns.

There are some extremely pretty covert cloths among the new importations. They are fine and silky and are to be had in red, blue, purple and other decided colors, as well as in gray and mode shades.

The skirt of the tailor made gown may be perfectly plain—except that it is no longer without any plaits at the back—or it may have clusters of plaits at the side. For the bodice a tight corsage may be shown, a little coat or a bolero, either open or closed. Variety is obtained by the shape of the revers and collar, method of cutting the basque and elongating the front, and choice of buttons, as well as by the chemisette or plastron accompanying the gown. For trimming, besides plain stitching, stitched straps may be used, braided decorations of applications of cloth.

The illustration shows a street costume of silver gray cloth. The skirt has a cluster of three plaits at the right side and is mounted with a double box plait at the back. The bodice is plain behind, while at the right side are three plaits which seem to continue those of the skirt. The corsage closes at the left side by a tab and passementerie olive. The yoke is of gray panne. The plain sleeves have three plaits across the top. The gray panne belt is closed by a gold buckle. A lawn cravat, with applications of guipure, is worn. The hat of gray straw is trimmed with ostrich plumes and a gold buckle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

DEXTER MASON FERRY.

Detroit Capitalist Who Wants to Succeed Pingree as Governor of Michigan.

Dexter Mason Ferry, republican candidate against Gov. Pingree, is a man of power in the political life of Michigan, and is widely influential in the business circles of Detroit. He is vice president of the First national bank, one of the organizers and officers of the Wayne County savings bank, a director of the Union Trust company and head of the seed house of D. M. Ferry & Co.

Mr. Ferry served as chairman of the state republican committee during the last national campaign, and it was due largely to his management that the state was carried for President McKinley. It was during the national campaign that Mr. Ferry's name was first mentioned as a possible candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. In 1898 his friends urged him to make the race against Gov. Pingree. He refused to do so and his name was withdrawn.

Mr. Ferry was born at Loweville, N. Y., August 8, 1833. His ancestors came to this country in 1678 and settled in the Massachusetts colony. When young Ferry reached the age of 16 family reverses compelled him to shift for himself, and he worked for a time as a farm hand. He was ambitious, and managed to attend the district schools during the winter terms. When still a boy he had absorbed all that the teachers of the district schools were able to give. He took a position in Rochester mainly for the educational advantages offered.

Mr. Ferry came to Detroit in 1852. He worked for a time for S. D. Elwood and managed to save a little money out of a very meager salary. He formed a partnership with M. T. Gardner in the seed business in 1856. The firm continued in business for many years, and eventually Mr. Gardner's interests were secured and the present firm of D. M. Ferry & Co. was organized. Mr. Ferry's judgment and financial aid have been utilized in forming many of the leading enterprises of the city. Among them may be mentioned the National Pin company, the Detroit Copper Rolling Mill company and the Gale Sulky Plow company.

Mr. Ferry was married to Miss Addie E. Miller, of Unadilla, N. Y., in 1867, and they have four children. In social life he is pleasant and unostentatious.

GEORGE ESCOL SELLERS.

Original of Mark Twain's Famous Col. Mullberry Was a Quiet, Scholarly Gentleman.

Until a little over a year ago there lived in a comfortable home, just south of the tower which marks Bragg's headquarters during the battle of Missionary Ridge, one of the most interesting characters.

His name was George Escol Sellers, and he was born in Philadelphia in November, 1808.

More than 50 years ago he was engaged in civil engineering in Tennessee, and knew more about the state, its past history, its anthropology, archaeology, etc., than most of the most intelligent natives, although he had been a citizen only about ten years at the time of his death.

After we had talked for half an hour about those old days, writes a Philadelphia Press correspondent, my friend informed him that I would like to look at his curiosities.

"All right," said he, "I will go with you to the other room."

And such a den it was as one seldom has opportunity to enter. It was a combined student's room, artist's studio, engineer's office and anthropological museum.

It was evident that Mr. Sellers had been accustomed to wealth, and his circumstances were apparently easy at the time of my visit.

Mr. Sellers was the original of Mark Twain's Col. Mullberry Sellers; but that was a rather sore experience to him, and he did not often refer to it. Sometimes, however, when talking to friends he recurred to it in very plain terms.

JOHNSTOWN SPECTER.

Spirit Is Said to Visit the Scene of the Great Flood on the Morning of May 31.

Johnstown, Pa., will ever be remembered for its awful flood of May 31, 1889. That fearful disaster left many sorrowing people, who look with subdued horror on the shallow river known as the Conemaugh. Last summer while visiting that city a Chicago Times-Herald correspondent gathered many interesting facts and reminiscences of the great disaster, but probably the most weird, if not altogether fanciful, was that of the "Ghost of the Great Flood," as it is called. This spirit is said to visit the scene each year on the morning of May 31 just before sunrise, and, standing upon the rock in the above illustration, which is reproduced from a photograph, takes a long and sorrowful look at the valley of the Conemaugh and Stony creek and the beautiful hills which surround the city as it now stands. The rock is a little over three-fourths of the distance to the top of Green Hill and about 100 yards from the road which winds around the hill leading to Daisy Town. There is a pathway by which the laborers and miners working for the Cambria Steel company cut off considerable distance in going to and from their work, and it was by taking this pathway that Herman Schultz, who resides in Daisy Town, happened to get a good view of the ghost on the morning of May 31, 1894. This was the first time the spirt had been noticed, and each year since that time there have been several persons who claim to have been fortunate enough to get glimpses of the sorrowing figure.

The young lady in the illustration is not the ghost. She kindly consented to play that part while I took a "snap shot" at the situation. There is certainly enough sorrow connected with that beautiful valley to cause many spirits of the departed to return. It is estimated that hundreds of bodies were never rescued from the debris, and were thus left without Christian burial.

STRANGE SEPULCHER.

The Child of an Indian Chief Buried Literally "On the Knees of the Gods."

This strange looking object is at once a tombstone, a grave and a guardian of the dead. The curious little box you see on the figure's knee is the last resting place of the child of a chief of the Simpsheau Indians of British Columbia. The Simpsheaus, in common with most northern tribes, usually place their dead in the tops of trees, or else lay them out flat on the ground. In either case a shelter is built over the corpse. As the Indians are now rapidly taking up the usages of the white man, the queer object seen in the illustration may be looked upon as a happy compromise between the Indian burial in a tree top and the more conventional method adopted by the white man. The gentleman who took the photograph from which this picture is made was unable to discover whether the figure represented one of the deceased child's relatives or not. It is possible it may be a model of one of the Simpsheau gods, on whose knees the loving father has placed his dead little one in order that its future welfare may be assured.

Turkeys' Heads as Targets.

A favorite Boer sport is to dig a hole in the ground and put a turkey into it. Then they cover the pit with a cloth with a hole in it just big enough to let out the turkey's head. The head of the unfortunate bird is used as a target.

Coeducation in Germany.

Experiments made in Baden, Germany, in regard to coeducation have convinced the authorities that there is no harm in it, and that it has advantages, especially in the smaller towns.

GEORGE N. WISWELL.

Wisconsin Man Appointed Sergeant-at-Arms of the Republican National Convention.

George N. Wiswell, of Milwaukee, who has been appointed sergeant-at-arms of the republican national convention to be held in Philadelphia next June, is a man of acknowledged ability for organization and executive work. In the handling of political conventions he is already experienced, having been assistant sergeant-at-arms of the republican national convention at Chicago in 1888, in Minneapolis in 1892 and at St. Louis in 1896. His choice has proved very satisfactory to his party in Wisconsin. Mr. Wiswell is a Wisconsin man by birth and is now 48 years old. Reared on a farm, he grew to a strong and healthy manhood, and gained a good school education. After learning the tinner's and plumber's trades he established himself in business as a hardware merchant, continuing it for ten years. In 1886 he was elected sheriff of Walworth county, and during his term founded the state organization of sheriffs. In March, 1889, President Harrison appointed him United States marshal for the eastern district of Wisconsin, and he held the office until 1893. During this term of office he effected the breaking up of several notorious and dangerous gangs of robbers and counterfeiters, especially the "brush hunters" gang in the neighborhood of Hurley. Since 1893 he has been secretary and general manager of the Fraternal Alliance Insurance company. He is a member of several of the most prominent Milwaukee clubs.

BARD CHOSEN SENATOR.

California Legislature Elects a Well-Known Business Man to Succeed Stephen M. White.

Thomas B. Bard, who has been elected by the California legislature to succeed Stephen M. White in the United States senate, was born in Chambersburg, Franklin county, Pa., December 8, 1841, the son of Robert M. Bard, a prominent lawyer of that place. When the civil war broke out he was in Hagerstown, Md., which was on the border between the north and south, and in constant danger from raids. Although scarcely of age, young Bard enlisted in the federal army, taking part in the battle of Antietam and other engagements. His ability was recognized by Col. Thomas A. Scott, assistant secretary of war, who took him into his command, where he rendered valuable service in the transportation department. In 1865 Col. Scott induced him to go to California to take charge of his (Scott's) large interests in Ventura and adjoining counties. He looked after a tract of more than 277,000 acres of land until Col. Scott's death, when he became administrator of the estate and closed out the property. He gave a bond of $1,500,000 for faithful performance of this task.

Mr. Bard is largely interested in the petroleum industry of southern California and is one of the chief executives of the Union Oil company. He is president of the Bank of Hueneme and organizer and director of the Simi and Las Posas Land and Water companies.

The Georgia legislature has passed a bill providing for county police protection in all counties of the state having a population of more than 75,000.

The Age of Silk Industry.

A book published in Japan 1,000 years ago notes that at that time good silk was already produced in 23 provinces of that country.

AFTER BEING WOUNDED.

That Is the Time, Says Maj. Ransdell, When a Soldier Feels Thoroughly Uncomfortable.

Maj. Ransdell, the new sergeant-at-arms of the senate, who was one of the most popular officials of the Harrison administration, enlisted as a lad in the Union army against the wishes of his clergyman father, an ardent democrat and opposer of the war. Young Ransdell was a fierce and valiant soldier, always in the thickest of the fight, but escaped unharmed until the battle of Reseca, fought on May 14 and 15, 1864, where he lost an arm. This accident, of course, fixed the details of that historic action firmly in his mind and when in a reminiscent mood Maj. Ransdell tells many interesting stories of that engagement.

"We had reached the enemy's line, in some cases coming to hand to hand conflict, when I was struck by a minie ball, which shattered my right hand," said Maj. Ransdell, telling of his wound, to a New York Tribune correspondent. "At that moment I experienced what every soldier has at some time felt. While we were engaged I knew no fear, but the moment I was disarmed the great danger overpowered me. It would be impossible to describe the awful feelings of the next half hour and until I got under cover. Friends falling on all sides, the death shrieks of my schoolmates resounding in the air, blood and carnage everywhere, made a scene I can never forget. We lost one-half of the company to which I belonged, five were killed outright, 21 were wounded, some of them dying afterward, and two of us lost an arm. But that was the last of the fighting at Reseca; the enemy retreated that night."

SHOCKS THE ENGLISH.

An Ingenious and Amusing Yankee Trick Arouses the Ire of a Cranky British Editor.

The ordinarily dignified British Journal is horrified over the fact that in Boston there is being manufactured and sold an "X-ray camera" which is nothing but a fraud. The camera, with pneumonia ball, is placed in position before a sitter, in front of whose body is placed a sheet, apparently of white paper, without a mark upon it. Behind the body is placed a lamp. The exposure is made by pressing the ball. Gradually the paper loses its whiteness, the various organs of the body quickly depict themselves, first in faint color, then almost immediately in brilliant reds for the lungs, a duller red for the heart, green for the stomach and intestines, and blue for the veins; other parts in black. This result, however, says the Journal, is only a trick. The white piece of paper has previously been painted over with strong and diluted sulphocyanide solution, ferrocyanide solution, weak and strong, and finally with tannin, the details being supplied by an anatomical drawing over which thin paper is placed while the organs are being painted by the various solutions named. The squeezing of the bulb does not, as imagined, open the lens—it simply ejects an invisible spray of solution of ferric chloride from a concealed source upon the paper, the well-known reaction of this salt with the chemicals named producing the various colors. So long as it is understood to be a trick the idea is ingenious and amusing.

Blond Hair for Royalty.

Teutonic peasants were the providers of blonde hair for rich Roman princesses, who loved the contrast of its flaxen hue with their black eyes. They even had morning wigs, small and tightly curled, of any color, and kept the beautiful, fair evening ones to wear when receiving their admirers in the evening.

Water Hard to Heat.

Water is the hardest of all substances to heat, with the single exception of hydrogen gas. The easiest two are mercury and lead, which stand in this respect on nearly the same footing.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

There are in all Spain only 3,230 children in the Sunday schools.

The membership of chartered Epworth leagues now reaches 233,015.

Bishop Hendrix, of the Methodist church, South, has dedicated 139 churches.

Aaron French, of Pittsburgh, has added $3,500 to his previous gifts of $12,500 to the Georgia school of technology.

In Chicago 111 schools have adopted the penny-savings system. The children in these institutions saved $9,214 during the month of October.

Connecticut figures from its recent state school census that it has 20 per cent. more inhabitants than it had in 1890. The population of the country on this basis is 75,150,000.

St. Bede the Venerable's feast day is to be observed by Catholics all over the world as well as in England from 1901 on according to a recent decree of the sacred congregation of rites. His day in the calendar will be May 27, his birthday.

When the men now under orders have reached their destination there will be 15 army secretaries of the Young Men's Christian association in the Philippines. Miss Helen Gould has contributed the larger portion of the money for the maintenance of this special work.

James M. Munson, of Philadelphia, will build a college for girls on plans like those of Girard college, for the benefit of native-born American girls who have no relatives upon whom to depend for support. Industrial training will be the leading feature. He will spend $2,000,000 in establishing the plant.

POWER OF EXPLOSIVES.

The Effect of the Most Energetic Is Not So Terrible as Generally Supposed.

There is a widespread misapprehension in regard to the devastating effect of these high explosives, for when unconfined the effect even of large charges of them upon structures is comparatively slight. At the naval ordnance proving ground, so long ago as 1884, repeated charges of dynamite, varying from five to one hundred pounds in weight, were detonated on the face of a vertical target consisting of 11 one-inch wrought-iron plates bolted to a 20-inch oak backing, until 440 pounds of dynamite had been so detonated in contact with it, and yet the target remained practically uninjured; while at Braamfontein the accidental explosion of 55 tons of blasting gelatin, which was stored in railway vans, excavated but 30,000 tons of soft earth. This last may seem a terrible effect, but the amount of explosive involved was enormous and the material one of the most energetic that we possess, while if we compare it with the action of explosives when confined its effect becomes quite moderate. Thus at Fort Lee, on the Hudson, but two tons of dynamite placed in a chamber in the rock and tamped, brought down 160,000 tons of the rock; at Lamberis, Wales, two tons and a half of gelatin dynamite similarly placed threw out 180,000 tons of rock; and at the Talcen Mawr, in Wales, seven tons of gunpowder, placed in two chambers in the rock, dislodged from 125,000 to 200,000 tons of rock. We might cite many such examples, but on comparing these we find that the gunpowder confined in the interior at the Talcen Mawr was over 42 times as efficient as the explosive gelatin on the surface at Braamfontein, while the dynamite at Fort Lee was over 90 times as destructive.—Prof. C. E. Munroe, in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly.

WHERE GOLD GROWS.

Localities Where Fresh Deposits of the Precious Metal Crop Out Every Year.

There are localities where gold may be said to grow every year, or, in other words, where fresh deposits of the precious metal are to be found annually.

One such district is in the Edmonton country, in the Canadian northwest, where, after the spring floods from the same banks and "benches" of the Saskatchewan river, there are taken every year considerable quantities of gold by a few diggers, who make their living out of the business.

But the most conspicuous and interesting case of this sort is to be seen near Ichang, in the province of Hupeh, in China. For many centuries past each year gold has been washed from the banks of coarse gravel on both sides of the River Han, and in the midst of the auriferous district there is an ancient town called Ulkutien, which means "Gold Diggers' Inn." Its inhabitants subdivide the gold-bearing ground among themselves annually, staking out their claims with partitions. They pay no royalty and appear to earn no more than a bare subsistence, but this may be doubted, as John Chinaman is an adept at "layin' low and sayin' nuffin'."

The annual river floods bring down millions of tons of mud and sand from the mountains, and this mud and sand, which is charged with gold, both "fine" and in flakes, is deposited to a depth of six inches or more on the banks of gravel. It is in the winter that the gold is washed, and it is said that seven men work about 20 tons of the "pay dirt" a day.—London Answers.

Feudal System in Sweden.

There is a special class of farm laborers in Sweden who are given so many acres of land for their own use, in consideration for so many days' labor during the period for the owner of the farm. They are a sort of fixture to an estate, and their like exists in no other country.—N. Y. Sun.

HENRY CLAY CALDWELL.

Arkansas Judge Who May Be Candidate for Vice President on the Bryan Ticket.

Judge Henry Clay Caldwell, of Arkansas, now conspicuous as the probable running mate of William Jennings Bryan in the next presidential election, has a long record as a federal judge, and seems to suit the taste of many in those characteristics which are generally presumed to be prerequisites of an ideal candidate for the vice presidency. He was appointed to the United States bench for the district of Arkansas by President Lincoln in 1864. That post he held continuously for 26 years. He was then appointed by President Harrison to be judge of the Eighth United States circuit—a circuit embracing the state and four territories. This important trust was accepted by Judge Caldwell with reluctance, but it is one which he still occupies. His politics has been described as that of a free silver, anti-trust republican. His opinions in the matter of corporations and monopolies have found vent in the unequivocal utterances of his decisions and addresses. The judge was born in West Virginia in 1832. When he was four years old his parents took him to Iowa, and it was there he was educated and studied law. In response to Lincoln's call for volunteers he organized a company of cavalry and joined the Third Iowa horse, of which he was afterward the colonel. He was still in this command when President Lincoln appointed him to the federal judiciary. His capacity as a jurist was described by the late Justice Miller, who told President Harrison that Judge Caldwell would grace the supreme tribunal of the country.

The judge is picturesque in his attire. He wears a hat of ancient vintage of the style affected by the Mennonites and Shakers. But he looks and indeed is cold and austere. His broad-brimmed hat is No. 7¾; his forehead is square and expansive, his eyes dark brown and set in peculiarly shaped orbits. With the big teeth of the comb he combs to the left his brown hair, now rapidly growing gray. His eyebrows are heavy and a reddish beard covers most of his face.

HELIOGRAPH SIGNALS.

How the Light of the Sun Is Used to Convey Intelligence to Points Far Distant.

The heliograph has played an important part in the Anglo-Boer war since Gen. Methuen reached the Modder river and since Buller's relieving force arrived in the neighborhood of Ladysmith. The illustration shows Col. Hamilton, of Gen. Buller's staff, operating the little instrument by which the light of the sun is used to convey intelligence to points far distant. Communication between places 25 miles apart can be set up by its use. The mirror used has a small eyehole cut into the quicksilver, through which the distant station is located. The mirror disk is turned by means of a Morse key, and in answering the key a dot or a dash in the way of a long or short flash, is sent out. These flashes are read by the person at the receiving end with the ease of a telegraph operator taking a message. The heliograph was invented in 1821 by Gauss, who used it as a signal in the measurement of angles. The longer the line the larger must be the disk. The longest line thus far observed is 192 miles, which was observed in California, and required a mirror of 77 square inches in area. Ordinary heliotropes used on lines less than 50 miles in length are only about two square inches in area. For its successful operation clear atmosphere is necessary. Two hours before sunset is the most favorable time.

Enough Money to Pay Mechanics.

Jacob Wind, Jr., of Elizabeth, the architect who drew the plans for the new residence of Frank H. Coward on Sycamore avenue, called at The Daily Press office this morning and stated that the reason William H. Mr. Wind states that there is a sufficient amount of money still in the hands of Mr. Coward, within the appropriation set aside for building the house, to finish the structure and pay all claims of the mechanics. Mr. Cole's whereabouts are still unknown.

DEADLOCK IN COUNCIL ON QUESTION OF SITE.

That May Delay Realization of City Hall Project For Some Time.

GOES BACK TO COMMITTEE.

NO IMMEDIATE ACTION ON PART OF COMMITTEE IS EXPECTED.

Majority of Council Favor a City Hall But Can't Agree on a Site—Question of Permanent Pavements to be Considered Soon

Although a majority of the members of the Common Council favor the erection of a City Hall for Plainfield this year, it is becoming more and more manifest that the project will be held up for a time owing to the failure of the Councilman advocating the municipal building to agree on a site. While it has been conceded from the first that there is some opposition to the plan, as represented in the Council by Mr. Dumont, the believers in the City Hall plan are confident that a majority of the tax payers of the city are behind them. As they don't seem to be able to agree at all on a site, however, the City Hall scheme is out against an obstacle that threatens considerable delay.

The public hearing is over. The Councilmen are just as much in the dark as ever regarding the trend of public opinion on the subject of the new City Hall. It was admitted, when Mr. Buckle suggested to the committee that a date be set for a public hearing, that it was not likely to be very satisfactory. It proved to be, however, more of a farce than was generally supposed. A few men spoke against the plan and some of the arguments were worse than others. As it happened the Councilmen had been aware of the opinions of those who spoke before the hearing.

Now the hearing is over, the question goes back to the committee, of which Mr. Buckle is chairman. Mr. Buckle owns considerable property in the city, but has said that he will vote for a City Hall if the taxpayers of the city wish it. He believes from what he has heard that they do. This deadlock on the question of a site is unfortunate, but none of the Councilmen seem willing to change their stand on the question, so it may be that Mr. Buckle will be in no hurry to call the committee together.

One Councilman, who has been a steady advocate of the new City Hall, expressed himself yesterday as willing as ever to stand by the project if it came up. He was of the opinion, however, that the troublesome question of the proper site would hold up the scheme for a time. There were several of the Councilmen who have frankly told their friends that they would vote against a City Hall if it was not located in the place they considered the only feasible one. As these same Councilmen have different ideas concerning the proper place, the trouble is evident.

Then comes the question of permanent pavements for the streets in the business section of the city, continued this same Councilman. While not an absolute necessity, some change was greatly to be desired this year if possible. With a new City Hall on the hands of the Council, he said it would hardly be possible to provide permanent pavements as well.

With the deadlock in the Council over the question of a site, immediate action on the City Hall question does not seem probable. A little time may bring some new site to the front that will please all factions, or else there may be an ultimate change of ideas. With the Council united on a site a municipal building would be assured for the city in the immediate future.

INCOME EQUALS EXPENSE

WELCOME NEWS FOR THE PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Annual Election Held Last Night—New Trustees Elected for the Year.

The fact that the income of the church now equals the expenses was the most important as well as the most welcome news announced at the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church and society last evening. The meeting was held in the church parlors and was well attended.

It was called to order by the secretary, Thomas A. Cuming, and Rev. J. W. Richardson was chosen moderator. J. Wesley Johnson, A. D. Thompson, R. C. Treadwell and F. T. Ostrom were re-elected trustees for a period of two years. Mr. Johnson, president of the board of trustees, presented the yearly report showing that the church expenses has decreased during the past year and were now within the receipts. The report of the treasurer, R. C. Treadwell, gave the figures.

A supper under the charge of the Ladies' Aid Society was held in the parlors on the second floor of the chapel at 7 o'clock. There were 125 who partook. The reception committee consisted of Mrs. J. Wyckoff, Mrs. John H. Doane, Mrs. David Smalley, Mrs. J. W. Johnson, and Mrs. A. D. Phillips, president of the Ladies' Aid Society. The refreshment committee was Mrs. T. I. Runyon, Mrs. John Dunham, Mrs. Nelson Runyon, Mrs. Walter Freeman, Mrs. A. D. Thompson and Miss Elizabeth Runyon.

Mrs. W. S. Lowry was in charge of the waitresses who were Mrs. Charles VanWinkle, Miss Peterson, and the Misses Etta Cuming, Florence Goldsack, Laura Runyon, Adelia Runyon, Emily Runyon, Helen Cuming, Lottie Suydam, Elizabeth VanWinckle, Ada Runyon, Mary Giles, Emma Fish, Julia Wyckoff, Charlotte Tennant, E. May Tennant, May Thompson, Martha Wagner, Jennie Giles, Florence Hawkins, Bessie Giles, Louise Whitney, May Kelly, Cora Brokaw, Elizabeth Runyon and Annie Wyckoff.

An informal entertainment and reception was also held. Philip Neider gave several violin solos, accompanied on the piano by his sister, Miss Neider. Thomas A. Cuming sang twice, accompanied by Miss Etta Cuming and by Miss Emma M. Fish. A phonograph, under the charge of Wesley Brokaw, assisted in the entertainment.

MORAL EDUCATION.

Some of the Characteristics That are Needed in Those Who Train the Young.

The first of a series of four lectures on "Education and Life," by Professor Edward Howard Griggs, was given yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Franklin School. A large audience was present, being composed chiefly of teachers and others particularly interested in child study. The subject of this lecture was "The Parent and the Teacher in Moral Education," and the topic was treated in a manner at once clear, entertaining, thoughtful, and practical.

Mr. Griggs proceeded to show that certain characteristics are needed in those who train the young. Children are not to be regarded as the personal property of parents, to be treated as they may choose, but as a sacred responsibility, to be trained into the men and women God intended them to become. Sincerity, he said, was absolutely necessary in dealing with children, who detect hypocrisy even more readily than their elders, and lose all respect for the person displaying it. Honesty is another necessary quality; parents and teachers should not claim to be infallible, but acknowledge mistakes and lack of ability to answer questions, the effect being an increase rather than a lessening of respect on the part of the child. Justice should also be shown toward children. In order to do this, punishment cannot usually be administered to all the members of a class in the same way. The teacher should try to see a matter from the child's point of view, whatever that may be. Punishment should never be revengeful, but given as moral medicine, exactly in the form which will best help the child to do better things. And justice should always be accompanied with love and with the expression of love, which is courtesy. Those having the care of children should remember that whatever qualities they show will be reflected in the children, who are born imitators.

BUSINESS AFFAIRS OF PRESBYTERIANS.

Crescent Avenue Church Has Received and Expended $39,000 During the Year.

THE MEMBERSHIP IS 1,411.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN SOCIETY ALSO IN FLOURISHING CONDITION.

There is a Slight Deficiency, but it is Expected to Raise the Necessary Sum at the Meeting Next Sunday—Officers Chosen.

The annual meeting of the Crescent Avenue church was held last evening in the chapel of the church, when officers were elected and the various reports were received. The election resulted in Silas Yerkes, A. W. Duxbury and Frederick H. Andrews being chosen elders, and Samuel F. Kimball and S. H. Whitney as deacons.

The reports of the Ladies' Aid Society, including all the benevolent branches of the church, was very encouraging. The contributions to the benevolences amount to $18,000, which includes $8,600 to home and $4,200 to foreign missions. A. W. Duxbury, for Superintendent S. A. Ginns, of Bethel chapel, presented a report showing the membership to be 50 and the contributions satisfactory. The report was supplemented with remarks by the pastor, Rev. F. D. Tildon. Superintendent H. C. Squires presented a review of the work at Hope Memorial chapel. The membership here is 299, and the contributions large. Mr. Squires presented the need of a gymnasium with baths at this chapel, and suggested the organization of a baseball team for the coming season. The suggestions were favorably received. Following the above Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor, made a few remarks.

Superintendent Frederick H. Andrews, of Warren chapel, gave a report which was encouraging. The membership of this chapel is 138 and the contributions have been liberal. Remarks by the pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey, followed. George A. Strong presented the report for the home Sunday-school. S. H. Whitney reported for the board of deacons, and Charles Place, president, for the board of trustees.

Dr. E. W. Hedges was clerk of the session, and he gave a review of the entire work of the church, together with membership and contributions from all sources. The actual expenses of operating the Crescent Avenue church for the past year amounted to $12,256, and that of the chapels $13,000. The membership of the church is 924, making a total membership in church and chapels of 1,411. The trustees reported receipts of $25,000, including a $5,000 legacy for Hope Memorial chapel. There have been received from all sources and expended about $39,000. An increase was reported in every department both as to membership and contributions and the new year is started with a most gratifying condition of affairs.

The annual meeting of the First Presbyterian church was also held last evening when various reports were received and officers were chosen for the ensuing year. A most gratifying conditions of affairs were found to exist. The most interesting thing was the report of the treasurer, William H. Shotwell. The receipts for congregational expenses are divided as follows: From envelope system, $1,978 14; pew rents, $752 75; sundry collections, $796 08; subscriptions and donations, $1,187; rent and interest, $145 96; total, $4,859.93. The disbursements were: Paid pastor, organist and sexton, $3,041.04; fuel and light, $403; paid church debt in full to April 1st, 1898, $694 75; repairs on church property and cemetery, $721.14; total $4,859.93; bills due and payable, $700. It is expected to raise this amount next Sunday.

The sum of $1,850 was given to the different boards for mission work. The members decided to fix the pastor's salary for the coming at $2,500, and $650 was voted for music.

Following the reading of the above report the election took place. L. H. Gates was chosen elder for three years; E. D. George deacon for two years, and Charles M. Hummer deacon for three years. John Abbott and R. V. Cadmus were elected trustees for three years.

Sociable for Men.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

MARRIAGE OF MISS SUSAN HELEN BOSS TO LOUIS M. HUMMER.

Nuptials Celebrated Yesterday Afternoon Amid Pleasant Surroundings at Home of Bride's Parents.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Boss, of Craig place, was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when their second daughter, Miss Susan Hunt Boss, was married to Louis Mulford Hummer, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hummer, of Somerset street, in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

The home was prettily decorated with palms, pink and white roses and southern smilax, the prevailing colors being pink and waite. In the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, flowers and palms were banked in one corner, and it was in front of this that the couple were made one by Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. Loyd Randolph, of Westfield, played the wedding march.

The ceremony was a very impressive one. Then followed the wedding supper, which was served in the dining room. This room was also decorated in pink and white. In the centre of the table there was a large pyramid bridal cake, surrounded with smilax and roses.

The bride's gown was white organdie over white silk and duchess lace. She carried bridal roses. Her attendants as brides maids were Miss Lottie Wilson, of Lebanon, Hunterdon county, and Miss Grace Teller, of this city. The former wore a gown of white organdie over pink, while Miss Teller's gown was pink mousseline de soie over pink. Both bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink roses. The flower girl was Ida Ramsey, niece of the bride, also of Lebanon. She was dressed in white organdie trimmed with white satin ribbon. She carried a basket of roses, and as she preceded the bridal party she strew the path with them. The groom was unattended. The ushers were Philip Kirch, of this city, brother-in law of the bride, and George Hummer, of Easton, Pa., cousin of the groom. The groom's gifts to his ushers were solid gold stick pins set with pearls. The bride's gifts to her attendants were white lace fans and corsage bouquets of lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Hummer were the recipients of a large collection of useful and costly gifts including furniture, cut glass, silverware, lace, and many other things useful in keeping house.

After supper was served the bride and groom left their relatives and friends and started on their honeymoon with all the good signs and omens one could wish for. Upon their return they will reside in the borough. The groom is an employe in the office of The Evening Sun, New York, and both he and his wife are popular young people in a large circle of acquaintances.

Among those who were present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Hummer, of Annandale, uncle and aunt of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Cramer, of Annandale, uncle and aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Oping, of Somerville; Mr. and Mrs. Clark, and Miss Susan Hunt, aunt of the bride, of Lebanon; Mrs. Fishbaugh, of Easton; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hummer, parents of the groom; Mrs. Samuel Boss, Miss Stella Boss, mother and sister of the bride, W. H. Brokaw and family, Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Pope, Miss Blish, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Baker, Rev. SISSER AND BOCK ARE IN SERIOUS DISPUTE.

Trouble Caused by Former Declining to Take Latter Into Partnership With Him.

THE COURTS WILL SETTLE IT.

PRIORITY OF LEASE IN THE QUESTION TO BE DECIDED.

Yesterday Bock Took Forcible Possession of Premises Which it is Desired to Use for a Saloon—Constable Now in Charge.

All is not peace and harmony regarding the question as to who shall have the saloon on the Somerset street bridge for which place James Sisser was granted a license by Judge Bartine before the latter went off the bench. The trouble is between James Sisser, who is represented by Alvah Clark, and Chris Bock, who has for his counsel Craig A. Marsh. Mr. Sisser secured a license, and Mr. Bock owns the building that Mr. Sisser wants. As stated a few days ago the owner wanted to go in partnership with Mr. Sisser, but the latter does not care for a partner, hence the owner has no desire to let the man have the place.

The principal question that enters largely into the difficulty is that of two leases, one held by Chris Bock, owner of the building, and the other by James Sisser, who secured a license. It appears that in September of last year the building adjoining the one occupied by the Plainfield Bottling Association was sublet by the latter to Mr. Bock, with the understanding that he could have the place if he got a license. The lease was to hold good until May 15th next. Two weeks ago the Plainfield Bottling Association leased the same place to James Sisser, who secured a license, and it is thought that the two parties wanted to freeze out Mr. Bock.

It was understood that Mr. Sisser was to get a license, but that he was only to be a figure-head, the real proprietor to be Mr. Bock. Yesterday noon the latter went to the place while the carpenters were at dinner and threw the lumber and materials used for repairs, as well as the tools, out on the sidewalk and locked up the place. He then secured the services of Special Marshal Baglin, who is now in charge and will remain there until the courts decide who has the legal right to the store. It seems to be a question of priority of lease, and this will be settled in court.

TO PROTECT LABOR.

Congressman Fowler's Plea in Reference to Why He Supports the Porto Rican Tariff.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, April 12.—When asked what effect the Puerto Rican tariff question would have in his district, Representative Fowler said that he had received but a few letters objecting to the bill that was passed by the house. He said in his opinion when the people of this country realized the fact that the tariff was for the protection of American labor, and its adoption with Puerto Rico was the forerunner of similar action with the Philippines, he believed they would see its advantages, because it would save the American workingmen from being placed on a level with the cheap Malay labor of the Philippines.

Teacher Has Resigned.

Miss Lizzie Southworted, a teacher in the primary department of the North Plainfield Public Schools, has resigned to accept a similar situation in one of the public schools at Binghamton, N. Y. Miss Southworth left this afternoon for the "parlor city," which is the home of her parents.

Miss Mabel Hare, of New York state, has been appointed to the vacancy caused by Miss Southworth's resignation. She will assume her new duties after the Easter vacation.

Thieves At It Again.

Thieves entered the home of William H. Terry at Fanwood on Friday night last, and stole a gold watch, and a coat and vest. Mr. Terry was attending a Township Committee meeting, he being a member of the Fanwood Committee. Mrs. Terry left a window unlatched for him to enter the house upon his return, and it is thought the thieves entered by this window. The stolen articles were not missed till the following day.

Big Time for A. O. U. W.

A big time is being arranged for the meeting of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., this evening. It will be the occasion of the annual visitation of Grand Master Workman Wm. S. Lambert, of Newark, and the members of his staff. All the local Workmen have been invited and a large attendance is expected.

WORK OF A DEACONESS.

IT IS ONE OF SACRIFICE AND DEVOTION TO THE WORTHY.

The Noble Duties Described by Miss Helen Spratt, Who Receives Aid From Plainfield.

Those members of the First M. E. church who last evening attended the anniversary of the Women's Home Missionary Society, held in Vincent chapel, were much interested in the short addresses made by Miss Helen Spratt, the deaconess of the Vesey Street mission, Newark, and Mrs. John Perrine, the president of the Deaconess' Bureau, also of Newark, but formerly a member of the First Methodist church, of this city. There was a fair attendance of those interested in the work. Mrs. D. E. Davis, of this city, president of the Home Mission Society, presided at the meeting.

Miss Spratt was the first speaker. She told how the deaconess was a woman who relinquished wholly all other pursuits after two years of careful training and testing, and having been found blameless in character and skillful in service, has received the sanction of the church and been set apart for the holy work. She really becomes an ambassador for Christ. In His name she visits the sick, prays with the dying, cares for the orphan, seeks the wandering, comforts the sorrowing and saves the sinning. In other words the deaconess goes about doing good work.

The first Deaconess Home in this country was established about two years ago in Jersey City. Several months afterward a similar home was opened at Newark which is in this conference district. It was of the home in Newark that Miss Spratt talked.

Miss Spratt said that the Deaconess and probationers who reside in the home give their services without compensation, receiving only their board, car fare and a small monthly allowance for clothing and incidentals. The money for this comes, in homes carried on by the Woman's Home Missionary Society, from the auxiliaries of this society and from the general donations of individuals and churches.

Mrs. Perrine told how the work had been prosecuted in Newark. Supplies to aid in supporting the home were secured from the various churches in the Newark district by dividing the churches in groups. In May the Plainfield churches will be asked to send a basket of eatables (or cash if more convenient) on each Thursday of the month.

At Mrs. Perrine's suggestion it was decided to ask the men of the church to contribute something toward the work and thereby co-operate with the women. It was decided to name the men's organization "Helpers League, No. 1."

As the Newark home is much in need of furniture to help make the new quarters presentable, Mr. Perrine made an urgent appeal for help in this direction. Mrs. Perrine also said she hoped the time was near at hand when the First Methodist church would send to them for a Deaconess to work in Plainfield.

At the close of Mrs. Perrine's address a collection was taken to aid the work. The ladies afterwords served light refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

JILTED SUES FOR $20,000

Plaintiff Alleges That Steward of Westfield Club Broke His Promise and Will Marry Another Girl.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, April 12.—Club circles are experiencing a mild sensation. Albert F. Williams, steward of the Westfield Club, is made the defendant in a suit for alleged breach of promise of marriage.

Miss Louisa Brown avers in her declaration that Williams on several occasions asked her to marry him and promised to marry her; but later, when she had expended $500 in hard cash in providing her trousseau, the said Albert F. Williams refused to marry her. To add insult to injury, she says, he publicly announced his engagement to Miss Effie Owens, also of Westfield.

Miss Brown alleges that she is still single owing to Albert's perfidy and deception, and she asks for $20,000 as a balm to her injured feelings and prospects.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS MET ON THE DIAMOND

Plainfield and North Plainfield Teams Played, the Borough Boys Winning.

A COLORED BOY PITCHED.

LEAL'S SCHOOL TEAM DEFEATED PINGRY BOYS AT ELIZABETH.

Poor Base Running Seen in the Game Played in This City—Leal's Team Found it Easy to Win in the Game at Elizabeth.

The nine of the Plainfield High School opened its season yesterday afternoon by meeting defeat at the hands of the boys of the North Plainfield High School. The game was played on Martine Common and was witnessed by several hundred people.

The North Plainfielders played a fairly steady game, batted well, but ran bases in a woefully poor fashion. Teddy Overton was a pleasing exception. Although the smallest member of the team he played a great game. The pitcher of the borough team was Crite, a colored lad. He pitched a speedy ball, which the city High School batters did not find much difficulty in hitting.

The Plainfield team managed to put up a fair game at times but there were moments of agony that proved disastrous. It was the first game for the Plainfielders, however, and they may brace up after a little more practice. Davis pitched his first game. He was naturally a little nervous for the first few innings but then he pulled himself together and showed much improvement. Squires caught him well. Fred Mason and the Monihans were the only boys that ran bases anything like good form.

The game was fairly won by the nine from the borough and, but for the poor base running of the victorious team, the score would have been even larger.

The umpire was Arthur Smith, of Rutgers College. G. C. M. Smith and Rogers kept score. The teams were as follows:

Elizabeth, April 12.—The baseball nine of Pingry School, of this city, proved an easy thing for the team from Leal's School, Plainfield, yesterday. The Leal School team came to this city and had no trouble at all in winning by a score of 18 to 9.

Dupee, the Plainfield pitcher, did excellent work and was at no time batted freely. In the second inning the visiting infielders became suddenly wild and five runs came in before they steadied down. After that the Elizabeth boys were unable to do anything.

Wait proved an easy mark for the visitors and they hit him frequently. They kept the hits on the ground and placed them well. When Wait was withdrawn in the sixth inning Leal's had scored eleven runs. Miller, a former student at Leal's, was then put in the box. He was worse than Wait and the Plainfielders batted his curves all over the field, making seven runs in the three innings.

The teams were as follows:

GATACRE SENT HOME

Much Comment In London as to the Reason.

MAFEKING'S COMMANDER DEAD?

General Brabant Confident of His Ability to Hold Out—Large Force of Boers Concentrating Between Kroonstadt and Winburg.

LONDON, April 12.—There is little fresh intelligence from the seat of war in South Africa. It looks as though Lord Roberts may be preparing to take a strong force to clear the Boers from behind him. A Cape Town dispatch says he will not move for another week owing to the necessity of gathering stores and supplies.

Sir William Gatacre's sudden removal is the theme of much speculation. The curt manner in which it is announced causes much comment. The general impression is that it is connected with the Reddersburg affair, although there are many who consider that there must be something much more serious, as General Gatacre is not the only general in South Africa who has been retained in command after blunders more formidable than Gatacre's.

The war office has received no news of the death of Colonel Baden-Powell and utterly discredits the rumor.

The operations in Natal have not yet been fully explained. There appears to have been an attempt to outflank the British at Elandslaagte and to sever them from their base at Ladysmith.

The Duke of Marlborough has arrived at Bloemfontein.

There are now 15 grandsons of the

GENERAL BRABANT.

Duchess of Abercorn serving with the British forces.

It is announced from Bloemfontein that Colonel Inigo Jones has been appointed to the command of the guards brigade, Colonel Maxwell to the command of the Fourteenth brigade, Colonel Knox to the command of the Twenty-third brigade and Major Brazier-Creagh of the Indian staff corps to the command of Roberts' horse.

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Wednesday, says:

"It is announced in general orders that General Sir Herbert Chermside has been appointed to the command of the Third division, vice General Sir William Gatacre, ordered home to England.

"General Brabant's force is confident of being able to hold out. The Boers, after showing considerable dash, have wavered when it came to the final issue and have struck at the least vital point, where they are greatly handicapped by their proximity to the Basuto border.

"Owing to the strategical concentrations since the enemy's movements became defined there need be little anxiety as to the safety of the Cape border."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Morning Post, telegraphing Tuesday, says:

"The Boers to the southeast are exhibiting indecision of movement, possibly in consequence of our occupation of the railway.

"Bodies of the enemy are still moving from Winburg southward through Thaba N'Chu. Their destination has not been ascertained. The Boers in the neighborhood of Paardeberg show no disposition to interrupt our communication with Kimberley, from which point civil convoys are still arriving."

The Bloemfontein correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, in a dispatch dated Tuesday, says:

"The permanent defenses are nearing completion, so that the town can be held by a relatively small garrison.

"A British scout who has visited the Bloemfontein waterworks reports that the machinery and dams are intact. Only a few Boers remain in the neighborhood. The enemy has treked six miles north and formed a laager near Watervil.

"News from General Brabant at Wepener shows that all is going satisfactorily there. The troops are getting new khaki serge uniforms and boots."

The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Lourenco Marques, telegraphing Wednesday, says:

"The departure of the Chicago ambulance corps for Pretoria was delayed on suspicion of filibustering. The members left by special train this afternoon, accompanied by a motley following of Germans and French, 100 in all. The departure only occurred after many stormy interviews with the Portuguese authorities.

"The members have no passports and no credentials beyond a letter from Miss Clara Barton to the effect that she knows some of them personally and believes them to be genuine, but many have openly expressed their intention of fighting. The Boers are paying from £30 to £40 a month for such recruits.

"Thirty-five thousand Boers, with 90 guns, are concentrating on the range of hills between Kroonstadt and Winburg. The whole line is fortified and is almost impregnable."

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts:

"Bloemfontein, April 11.—Methuen reports that the party (of Boers) defeated April 5 made a good resistance for four hours and only gave in when our troops, with fixed bayonets, were within 15 yards of them. Seven of the enemy were killed, 11 were wounded and 51 were made prisoners. Besides Lieutenants Boyle and Williams Sergeant Patrick Campbell was killed, and ten of our men were wounded. Williams was killed deliberately after the white flag had been held up. The perpetrator of the crime was at once shot.

"Methuen speaks in high terms of the intelligent manner in which the imperial yeomanry and Kimberley mounted corps behaved.

"Buller reports that the enemy attacked his right flank yesterday while he was engaged in changing his position, but our artillery silenced their guns, and they did not press the attack. Our losses were four men killed and eight men wounded.

"There is no further news yet from Wepener."

A dispatch from Ladysmith dated April 10 says:

"The Boers opened fire this morning, sending shells into the British camp at Elandslaagte from three positions widely separated. The shells did no damage. The troops moved out to reconnoiter and found the Boers in strong force and well fortified. A naval 4.7 inch gun replied to the Boers, who have again placed a 'Long Tom' in position."

MILNER BLAMED BY BOERS.

Peace Commissioners Say Cape Colony Governor Brought on War.

ROME, April 12.—The Naples correspondent of the Tribuna telegraphs an interview he has had with Mr. Fischer, one of the Boer peace commissioners, who has just arrived there.

Mr. Fischer said he was convinced that Sir Alfred Milner when appointed governor of Cape Colony and British high commissioner in South Africa went to Cape Town with a fixed intention, with a mission, to bring about the war, and this was proved by the fact that Milner had systematically opposed the Transvaal's "generous efforts and concessions to avoid war," as though he had received precise instructions to follow this line of policy.

"While the Transvaal was making concessions," said Mr. Fischer, "Great Britain was gathering troops along the frontier."

The Boer envoy accused Mr. Milner of falsifying dispatches. In fact, according to the commissioners, accusations against Sir Alfred Milner constitute one of the principal features in the peace negotiations which the commissioners seek to carry through. The Boer envoys left Naples yesterday, going by way of the St. Gothard pass and without stopping here.

Mafeking's Commander Dead.

PRETORIA, April 12.—It is reported here that Colonel Baden-Powell, the British commander at Mafeking, is dead.

The latest news from the front is that fighting is continuing at Elandslaagte, Natal, and De Wetsdorp, Orange Free State, but no particulars have been received.

Kipling Sails For Home.

CAPE TOWN, April 12.—Mr. Rudyard Kipling and Sir John Henry de Villiers, chief justice of Cape Colony, sailed for England yesterday on board the Tantallon Castle. Mr. Kipling said he was sorry he was not able to remain longer, as his health had been greatly benefited.

American Engines In Egypt.

LONDON, April 12.—The report of the consul general of Egypt and the Sudan for 1899 was issued in a blue book last night. Summarizing the financial situation, Lord Cromer, the British minister plenipotentiary and consul general, says: "The figures are sufficient to show the treasury is strong enough to meet any further loss arising by reason of the low Nile." Referring to the use of American locomotives, Lord Cromer says: "They have done well, but as they differ in many respects from our standard types the men required some time to learn their peculiarities and may not have been able to get their best results. The action of the board in ordering the locomotives and wagons from America has been criticised. It is simply due to the fact that American firms while not in a position to tender more favorable terms than others on our designs almost invariably offer us engines or wagons built on standard designs of their own at lower prices and in less time."

Big Gift to Cooper Union.

NEW YORK, April 12.—By the will of John Halstead, a retired tea merchant, who died last May at his home, 153 West Seventy-seventh street, Cooper Union is the residuary legatee and devisee of nearly all of his estate, which is valued at fully $300,000. The donor was never even heard of by the trustees of Cooper Union. They did not know until they read in his will, a month after his death, that, having missed in his boyhood the advantage of an institution where the working classes could get a free education in such branches of instruction as might qualify them to rise above their surroundings, he had determined that practically his entire fortune should eventually be given to this cause.

Macrum Still Insists.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., April 12.—Charles E. Macrum, ex-consul to Pretoria, when seen yesterday regarding the statement that Consul Adelbert Hay has failed to find any evidence of the consular mail being tampered with during Mr. Macrum's stay at Pretoria, said: "While I do not take much stock in newspaper reports, this is such a palpable perversion of the truth that it is impossible to allow the matter to pass unnoticed, as it seems to have come from the state department. This statement is on a parallel with the malicious misrepresentations which came from the same department before I reached this country. In short, I want to say that the statement published today is a lie, nothing more nor less. I have been slandered and maligned until I have become tired of it."

Switchman Killed.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 12.—Michael Holleran, head switchman in the employ of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad company, was killed last evening at 6 o'clock at the Washington avenue crossing of the road. He attempted to jump from a supply car and fell beneath the wheels and was crushed to death.

A Simple Question.

Plainfield People are Requested to Honestly Answer This.

Is not the word of a representative citizen more convincing than the doubtful utterances of people living everywhere else in the Union? Read this:—

Mr. Robert Love, of 44 Duer street, member of the firm of Love Brothers, grocers, of 257 West Front street, says: "I suffered from kidney complaint for eight or nine years—pain across the back and a lameness over the kidneys. Colds always settled there and aggravated it. At last my back grew weaker and any heavy lifting or too much standing or sitting gave me additional pain. In the morning my back bothered me greatly until I moved about and took some exercise when it became better to a certain extent. I doctored and used different kinds of so-called kidney cures but it was throwing money away. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in our paper and being in bad shape at the time, I got a box from L. W. Randolph's drug store. Before taking half of it my condition was greatly improved and continuing their use all the pain left me."

BRIDGE WORK!
In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. ANTS AS STRATEGISTS.

Armies of the Insects Are Maneuvered with Military Precision and Effect.

From a military standpoint, the methods employed by ants to provide food for an ant colony are almost perfect. Their foraging parties are faultless, both in planning and execution, and are almost uniformly successful. A resident of this city who is at present in business in South Africa, has sent home a description of a foray of an army of ants.

The army which he estimates to have numbered about 15,000 ants, started from their home in the mud walls of a hut and marched in the direction of a small mound of fresh earth but a few yards distant. The head of the column halted on reaching the foot of the mound and waited for the rest of the force to arrive at the place of operations, which evidently was to be the mound of fresh earth. When the remainder had arrived and halted, so that the entire army was assembled, a number of ants detached themselves from the main body and began to ascend to the top of the mound, while the others began moving so as to encircle the base of the mound.

Very soon a number from the detachment which had ascended the mound, evidently the attacking party, entered the loose earth and speedily returned, each bearing a cricket or a young grasshopper, dead, which he deposited upon the ground and then returned for a fresh load. Those who had remained on the outside of the mound took up the crickets and grasshoppers as they were brought out, and bore them down to the base of the hill, returning for a fresh load. Soon the contents of the mound seemed to be exhausted, and then the whole force returned home, each carrying his burden of food for the community.

Here, then, was a regular foray, planned and executed with military precision, the country surveyed, the depot of provisions known accurately before the march was made, and at the mound prudential division of labor and care taken that none of the victims should escape.—N. Y. Herald.

CHINESE INQUESTS.

Their Established Code Embraces Some Peculiar and Absurd Practices.

Coroners' inquests are well known among the Chinese. One of the chief differences between their system and ours is that the Chinese doctors never dissect. In fact, Chinamen have a perfect horror of dissection.

There are few things more absurd than the code of rules laid down for the Chinese coroner. In the first place he is bidden to make sure that he has a dead body before he begins his inquest. That however is less ridiculous than it sounds, for the heathen Chinee is tricky and may demand an inquest on a sham deceased with a view to extorting money from some person who may be denounced as having caused the death.

The preposterous part of the code comes in with the alleged signs which show the cause of death. If the deceased is supposed to have been poisoned rice is put into his mouth and then taken out and given to a chicken. Its effect on the fowl decides the question. Most of the other methods adopted are even more absurd and fanciful, and as a result inquests in China do very little to prevent crime.—Chicago Evening News.

TROUBLE IN CHINA.

Empress Dowager Warned by Provincial Governors.

PERSECUTIONS MAY CAUSE REVOLT.

Peking Government Said to Have a List of Three Hundred Who Are Proscribed, and Many of These to Be Killed When Captured.

LONDON, April 12.—Late advices from Shanghai give a full account of the meeting on March 5 at Peking between the empress dowager and the grand council. Protests were read from the viceroys and governors of nine of the 18 provinces against the policy of the empress dowager. These officials are the greatest provincial authorities in China. They declared unitedly that if the empress dowager persists in persecuting the reformers and continuing her reign of terror policy the Chinese under them will rebel against the Manchus. The viceroy at Nanking says he has 140,000 Hunanese troops who are anxious to fight the Manchus, and he fears he cannot control them.

The viceroys who united in this remarkable step represent the provinces of Kiangsu, Anhui, Kiangsi, Hunan, Hupeh, Chekiang, Fookien, Qwangsi and Kwangtung, with an aggregate population of about 180,000,000.

Until this protest was made the dowager empress had been having things her own way. Though she had desisted from her purpose to set up a new emperor, yet her wrath toward those who opposed her has shown no abatement. It is unbounded. Kin Lien-shan has been captured in the Portuguese colony of Macao, off the south China coast. Li Hung Chang's detectives caught him. Mr. Kin fled from Shanghai last month. He is the manager of the national system of telegraphs in China and headed the petition signed by 1,200 notables against setting up a new emperor. Probably he will be decapitated. An English law firm has been retained to defend him. The government has trumped up charges of defalcation against Mr. Kin, who is really a very able and enlightened man.

On March 1 instructions were wired from Peking to Soochow, capital of Kiangsu, to arrest and put to death the reformers Weng T'ung-ho and Shen Peng. These men had been in very important positions in Peking, but were easily captured in Soochow. The chief reformer, Kang Wu-wei, has fled to Singapore. The empress dowager has offered $100,000 for his body dead or alive.

Kang Wi, who is the dowager's "high extortioner," has announced his purpose to visit the Yangtze ports at an early date. We shall probably hear that many a reformer who cannot buy his freedom will be killed. Old Chang Chi-Tung, viceroy of Wuchang, has recently been publicly reproved in scathing terms by the dowager, and he may lose his viceroyalty on the arrival of Kang Wi.

It is said that there is an official list prepared by the Peking government of the names of 300 reformers who are proscribed. A special list of over 35 names exists of those who are to be killed as soon as they are captured.

The Plague In Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—A report on bubonic plague conditions in Hawaii up to March 31 has been received by the marine hospital service from Surgeon Carmichael, stationed at Honolulu. The total cases to date number 70, of which 60 died, nine recovered and one is in the pest hospital. Of those who died 32 were Chinese, 8 Japanese, 16 Hawaiians and 4 whites. The active part of the disease, the surgeon says, seems to have passed, and if a crusade against the rats is carried on in conjunction with other sanitary measures, the surgeon hopes for a speedy cessation of the plague.

Prof. Andrews Called to Nebraska.

OMAHA, April 12.—Professor E. Benjamin Andrews, formerly president of Brown university and since 1898 superintendent of the Chicago public schools, has been chosen chancellor of the University of Nebraska. The choice was reached on the first ballot by the board of regents at a meeting in Lincoln last night, the vote standing four to two in favor of Andrews. It has been understood for some time past that Andrews was the leading candidate for the position, hence his choice was no surprise to those who have been watching the trend of events.

Bank President's Strange Death.

FORT DODGE, Ia., April 12.—The body of Truman Harker, president of the First National bank of Storm Lake, was found in about 10 inches of water on the lake shore, near that city, about midnight. After the bank closed he took his gun and started duck hunting. Not returning at a late hour, the family became anxious, and searching parties were organized. There were no marks of violence on the body, and the gun had not been discharged. His accounts are in excellent shape.

Tried to Blow Up the Dam.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., April 12.—An attempt has been made to blow up with dynamite the big dam at the mouth of Otter Tail lake. The lake has been used as a reservoir to regulate the water power here, and the destruction of the dam would be a serious matter to the manufacturing plants here. Some of the residents on the shores of the lake whose land was flooded have threatened to destroy the dam. A charge of dynamite was exploded under the apron, but did little damage.

Standard Oil Office Robbed.

RICHMOND, April 12.—Three masked men entered the office of the Standard Oil company's plant in Manchester, just across the river from Richmond, at an early hour yesterday, stunned the watchman, J. N. Sewell, by striking him on the head with a hammer, bound and gagged him, blew open the safe and robbed it of $120 in money. The burglary, it is supposed, was the work of professionals.

Bonds For Exchange.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The amount of bonds so far received at the treasury for exchange for the new 2 per cents is $231,408,900, of which $31,347,950 was received from individuals and institutions other than national banks.

Virginia Town Suffers Loss.

RICHMOND, April 12.—A fire in Bowling Green, the county seat of Caroline county, swept over the business part of the town, only one house being left standing. The loss is put at $60,000. An accident caused the fire.

THE NICARAGUA UPRISING.

Revolutionists Under Herrarra Have Landed In Colombia.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—In regard to the revolutionary expedition under command of General Herrarra which issued from Nicaragua, sailed down the western coast of Costa Rica and landed at David, a point on the Pacific side of the strip of Colombian territory which forms the isthmus of Panama, both Senor Calderon, the Colombian minister, and Senor Calvo, the Costa Rican minister, agree upon the fact that the movement was not made as a means of attacking Costa Rica on the south, as was assumed, but rather that the invasion is directed at Colombia.

The fact that the invading band sailed down to David in a boat loaned by the government of Nicaragua, the Momotombo, is regarded as significant, particularly as the boat was returned to that government after the landing of the expedition. Senor Calderon has heard nothing of the invaders since their appearance on Colombian soil, but believes that they contemplate the acquirement of the entire isthmus.

General Herrarra, the leader of the invading force, Senor Calderon says, was formerly a musician in one of the Colombian military bands, who left that country for Venezuela and afterward went to Nicaragua, where his rise in military affairs evidently has been very great.

SIBERIAN GOLDFIELDS.

Reported Rich Fields and Extra Inducements Not Upheld by Facts.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Consul General Holloway at St. Petersburg writes to the state department that he is the recipient of numerous inquiries from Americans as to the veracity of a recent report of an enormously rich gold belt in Siberia which is said to be an extension of the rich goldfields at Cape Nome, Alaska. The report stated that the emperor of Russia had issued a ukase giving permission to and expressing preference for American miners and capital in the exploration of the mineral wealth.

Upon investigation Consul Holloway finds that while the Russian government is taking steps to ascertain the conditions on the western coast of Siberia, where the gold find is reported to exist, the emperor has issued no ukase on the subject and that not until the government has made a thorough investigation could permits be had for prospecting. Furthermore the consul believes the value of the find to be greatly exaggerated and says that extensive examinations of gold mining conditions in Siberia of late years by expert mining engineers have brought no very encouraging developments. As to the reported discrimination in favor of our countrymen, Consul Holloway says that no additional advantages are offered Americans engaged in this or any other pursuit in Russia.

Texas Floods Recede.

AUSTIN, April 12.—The waters are receding rapidly, and no further damage is expected from the flood. There is a hot political wrangle on in this city because of the loss of the dam and power house. The city is without water, and the old water company has come forward with a proposition to buy all the property interests and good will of the city's plant. This proposition has its supporters, but it is believed that the majority of the taxpayers of Austin are against it. Advices from Leander say that the floods have subsided, and the aftermath presents an appaling loss to the farmers and stockmen of that section. Fields are washed almost beyond recognition, and fencing has been washed off from places heretofore considered beyond the reach of any flood. Stock of all kinds was drowned in great numbers.

Belgium's King Gives Up His Estates

BRUSSELS, April 12.—The king, in a letter, has announced that he desires on the occasion of his sixty-fifth birthday (he was born April 9, 1835) to present the country with all his estates, which will contribute to the beauty and charm of the localities where they are situated. He pointed out the necessity for open spaces and gardens near growing cities for the benefit of hygiene and artistic effects and expressed the hope that these naturally adorned spaces would not be allowed to deteriorate. A bill has been introduced in the chamber to permit the country to accept his majesty's offer.

A Warehouse In Calcutta.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The establishment of a warehouse at Calcutta for the display and sale of goods of American manufacture would bring forth large trade results in India, according to a report from Consul General Patterson to the state department. Warehouses of like nature, says the consul, have been established in Caracas, Venezuela, and Shanghai with great success, and he strongly urges the adoption of this method of extending our foreign trade.

General Brooke Reports.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Major General Brooke has returned to Washington from a visit of inspection of the military posts along the southern seaboard. He reported his return to Secretary Root in preparation for the early assumption of the command of the military department of the east, which is to be vacated by Major General Merritt.

FROM MANILA.

Army Has Plenty to Do In the Philippines, but Navy Is Idle.

BOSTON, April 12.—Letters received in this city from a naval officer stationed at Manila say that great activity is necessary on the part of the troops to prevent the ravages of armed bands of insurgents who constantly harass the inhabitants at many points. A recent letter says:

"We are in hopes that some decided stand will be made to control the disaffected class so that they may be prevented from preying upon their own people as they are doing. We are still keeping up a large force in Manila, and the guards are still doubled in almost every block of the city to assist the native police. Outside towns are occupied by strong detachments, and scouting parties cover the surrounding districts wherever there are bands of ladrones or robbers."

The writer says that the navy now has little to do except to patrol about some of the smaller islands, and some wonder is expressed why it is considered necessary to maintain a large squadron in Philippine waters. Complaints also are heard in some quarters because many of the men and some of the officers have seen 20 months' continuous service in the islands.

Sickness among the naval force, the writer says, has increased to an alarming extent, the per cent of those who are ill being three times as great as under ordinary conditions. He says the naval hospital at Cavite is badly located and that in many instances the lives of men who have died during the last six months might have been saved had the necessity for change of climate been recognized in time.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

At the municipal elections throughout New Jersey the Republicans were successful in most of the towns.

James F. Smith, the A. D. T. messenger boy, sailed on the St. Louis with a message from Philadelphia schoolboys to President Kruger.

At Belleville, Ills., a skipping rope contest has caused the death of 11-year-old Freda Pergnee and occasioned the serious illness of two other children.

Twelve master plumbers, whose aggregate wealth amounts to millions, went to work in a new bank building in Chicago where union men went on strike.

Fitz-Hugh Lee's New Command.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The president has issued an order merging the departments of Havana and Pinar del Rio, Cuba, under the command of General Fitz-Hugh Lee, with headquarters at Quemados. The change will take effect May 1. At present General Ludlow is in command of the department of Havana, which is to be amalgamated with Pinar del Rio. Quemados is the present headquarters of the department of Pinar del Rio and is the site of the camp where the major part of the American garrison is quartered.

New York Hospital Funds.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Charles Lanier, treasurer of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday association, reports that the collection for 1899-1900 now foots up over $74,000, nearly $4,000 ahead of last year. Of this amount over $9,000 was collected by the woman's auxiliary, and up to date the woman's fund, made up exclusively of the gifts of women, is over $2,000 ahead of any previous collection. In a few days the books will close and the full collection disbursed among the hospitals by the distributing committee.

Election Returns Too Much For Him.

TRENTON, April 12.—John Dickinson of this city dropped dead while reading the returns from Tuesday's municipal elections in a newspaper. He was a night watchman and returned home at an early hour. He breakfasted and then sat down and read the paper. His wife saw it fall from his hand and going to him found him dead. Dickinson was a Democratic ward worker, and it is believed by some of his friends that the shock of the city being carried by the Republicans brought on an attack of heart disease.

Newark Elections.

NEWARK, N. J., April 12.—As a result of Tuesday's elections in Newark the Republicans will be in control of every office in the city government next year except that of mayor and those conducted on the bipartisan system. The common council will stand 18 Republicans to 12 Democrats. The re-election of Mayor Seymour by 2,669 plurality was a personal victory, as he ran ahead of his ticket in all parts of the city. The Socialists polled about 1,000 votes.

County Clerk Ingersoll Arrested.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 12.—A dispatch has been received here by the chief of police from the chief of police at Philadelphia announcing the arrest of a man supposed to be Charles Ingersoll, the fugitive treasurer of Tompkins county. A reward which was offered for Ingersoll's arrest will be paid if the man arrested in Philadelphia proves to be Ingersoll. Ingersoll's action in jumping his bail bond has cost him all sympathy here, and he will be fully prosecuted.

Successful Wireless Telegraphing.

BERLIN, April 12.—It is announced officially that the tests with the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy between the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and other steamers and the lighthouse on the island of Borkum, at the mouth of the Ems, have proved successful, Morse writing being perfectly reproduced at a distance of 18 miles. New tests have been ordered.

Cannot Break the Deadlock.

WELLINGTON, O., April 12.—The Fourteenth district congressional convention last night took 117 ballots, making a total of 331. The last ballot was: Kerr, 101; Johnson, 71; McElroy, 38; Barry, 24. The convention recessed until today, when it is probable a final adjournment will be taken, as there appears to be no possibility of breaking the deadlock.

No Triple Alliance.

LIMA, Peru, April 12.—The Comercio, in an editorial last evening, denies the existence of a triple alliance between Peru, Bolivia and the Argentine Republic. It expresses surprise that the Peruvian government has not issued an official denial.

LONG STRUGGLE OVER

Porto Rican Bill Concurred in by the House.

COMPLETE SCHEME FOR GOVERNMENT

The Vote Taken After a Five Hours' Debate of Great Interest and Excitement—Will Become a Law at Once.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The long and bitter struggle over the Porto Rico tariff bill ended yesterday, when the house by a vote of 161 to 153 concurred in all the senate amendments. The bill now requires only the signature of the speaker of the house and the president of the senate before going to the president for his approval. These signatures will be attached, and before nightfall today the bill probably will be a law. As the bill originally passed the house it was a simple bill, imposing 15 per cent of the Dingley rates on goods going into Porto Rico from the United States and coming from Porto Rico into the United States. As amended by the senate and agreed to by the house all restrictions on goods coming into the United States from Porto Rico are eliminated, and certain foodstuffs and other articles which heretofore have gone into Porto Rico free by executive order are excluded from the operation of the 15 per cent duty imposed on goods entering the island from the United States. A complete scheme of civil government for the island is also attached to the measure. Upon the final vote nine Republicans voted against the bill, Messrs. Heatwole of Minnesota, Crumpacker of Indiana, Lane of Iowa, Littlefield of Maine, McCall of Massachusetts, H. C. Smith of Michigan, Warner of Illinois, Fletcher of Maine and Lorimer of Illinois.

Two Democrats, Messrs. Davey and Meyer of Louisiana, were paired with Democrats in favor of the bill, and one Democrat, Mr. Sibley of Pennsylvania, voted for it outright. Mr. Devries, the other Democrat who voted for the original bill, voted against concurrence. Mr. Stallings (Dem.) of Alabama was the only member on either side absent and unpaired. The vote came at 5 o'clock after a very interesting and at times exciting debate of five hours which covered not only the bill, but the special order under which the house acted.

One of the most dramatic features of the day was the reading by Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, of the original opinion of Charles E. Magoon, the legal adviser of the war department, in favor of the view that the constitution extended over Porto Rico ex proprio vigore. Mr. Dolliver of Iowa in reply termed Mr. Magoon a clerk who tried to overrule the great lawyer at the head of the war department. Messrs. H. C. Smith of Michigan, Warner of Illinois, Crumpacker of Indiana, McCall of Massachusetts and Lorimer of Illinois, all Republicans, made speeches against the motion to concur.

With little debate of importance the senate passed the Pacific cable bill, a measure appropriating $3,000,000 for the construction of a cable line between San Francisco and Honolulu. The bill was unanimously reported by the committee on naval affairs and that it was passed without serious objection is regarded as a compliment to the committee.

During the greater part of the session the District of Columbia appropriation bill was under consideration. As passed it carries nearly $8,000,000.

Naval Movements.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Word has been received at the navy department of the arrival of Admiral Kautz's flagship, he Philadelphia, at San Juan del Sur, where she was ordered from San Francisco for the protection of American interests said to be endangered by political uprisings in Nicaragua and Costa Rica. The Chicago and the Montgomery have arrived at Maranham. The Alliance is at Jamaica. The Scorpion has sailed from Colon for Caledonia and Cartagena. The Adams has reached Santa Monica. The Monongahela is at Charleston.

An Exile For Twenty-five Years.

ROCHESTER, April 12.—After evading the authorities and suffering an exile from home and friends a quarter of a century Gustavus Bates has returned to voluntarily give himself up to the law and suffer whatever penalty might be imposed on him for the self confessed crime of forgery. The indictment to which Bates pleaded guilty was forgery in the third degree, brought in by the Monroe county grand jury on Jan. 10, 1876.

Vermont Democrats For Bryan.

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 12.—The Vermont Democrats are considering plans for the state and district conventions which will probably be held early in June. The present leaders of the state organization claim that the convention will not consider Admiral Dewey's name in choosing delegates to the Kansas City convention and that the eight votes from Vermont will be cast for William Jennings Bryan for president.

Columbia Will Have Crew.

NEW YORK, April 12.—Columbia students held a mass meeting yesterday at the university and definitely decided to have a crew. They have backed up their determination with money, subscribing more than $1,500. This amount was exclusive of graduate subscriptions which, it was rumored, would be forthcoming on the signification of a real student feeling for a crew.

Four State Conventions In One Day.

PORTLAND, Or., April 12.—Four state conventions—Republican, Democratic, Populist and Silver Republican—met in this city at the same hour today. The officers to be nominated are one justice of the supreme court, food and dairy commissioner and four presidential electors. Each of the state conventions will also elect four delegates to its national convention.

Velvet Weavers Strike.

CROMPTON, R. I., April 12.—About 100 weavers employed in the velvet weaving department at the Crompton company's mills have struck because of what they allege to be abusive and underhand methods of the overseer. Five hundred of the 550 velvet looms are stopped, all but 15 of the weavers having quit work.

Chicago Millionaire's House Robbed.

CHICAGO, April 12.—The residence of Orrin W. Potter, the multi millionaire ex-president of the Illinois Steel company, was robbed by porch climbers last night while the family was at dinner. Jewelry and other valuables worth from $25,000 to $40,000 were taken.

Mr. Smith Out of Politics.

Former United States Senator Smith, who has held a powerful position in the councils of the Democratic party in New Jersey for many years past, announces that he is "out of politics." He says that hereafter he will not take any part in the management of the party. His formal statement is as follows:

There are good reasons for this course, and they are personal. My health requires that I should avoid the constant worry and trouble which political management brings. My physical condition has been seriously impaired and my medical advisers tell me I must stop. My ordinary business is as much as I can bear, and in addition the interest in which I am connected have nothing to do with politics, and it is only just to those interests that I should have no alliances that would jeopardize the fortunes of others with whom I am connected.

Mr. Smith has been recognized as the leading spirit of the Democrats in this State for the last few years, and his retirement from politics will mean the passing to the rear of the last of the powerful coterie of politicians whose word was law unto the Democrats, so far as party affairs went, for the years when Democracy was regarded as almost invincible in New Jersey. For the past five years, however, Mr. Smith's political road has been filled with many obstacles, and doubtless realizing that he has had his day in politics he is now ready to retire to the rear in favor of younger blood.

Considerable Democratic gains are shown in the results of Tuesday's municipal elections in New Jersey outside of Essex county, though in some of the cities the Republicans increased their majority. As a general rule, the vote cast was unusually light and the results were mixed. In New Brunswick, while the Democrats made a heavy gain in the total vote, they lost an Alderman. In Elizabeth, Mayor Mack, Republican, was elected by a good round majority, while the Democrats carried the city for Aldermen-at-Large without any trouble. Summit, for the first time in eight years, went Democratic, while the Republicans made a clean sweep in Passaic. In Trenton the Republicans made notable gains, while in Paterson the Democrats added an Alderman to their credit. The results in the other cities were as expected, Jersey City giving its usual Democratic majority.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Victims of the Miller Syndicate swindle appear to be springing up all over the country. Plainfield is not to be left out of the game altogether, either. One young woman of this city is said to have been victimized to the tune of $400 of her hard earnings. Printed blanks have recently been sent out to the creditors of the Syndicate for the purpose of securing a statement and affidavits from those who put their cash into this get-rich-quick concern that was to pay 520 per cent. on the alleged earnings of the depositors. It is suspected that there are many other women in this vicinity who were innocent victims to Miller's alluring financial bait, to say nothing of the men who have pocketed their losses and remain silent.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, April 12.—Manning Randolph, a well known farmer of Piscataway township, living about two miles and a half from New Market, died while sitting in his chair about 8:20 o'clock yesterday morning. Death was due to heart disease. The deceased was about seventy years of age and has lived at Piscataway for many years. He is survived by his wife but no children. His brother, Louis Randolph, lives at Plainfield, and a nephew, Albert N. Randolph, is a resident of this place. Mr. Randolph was a prosperous farmer and is believed to have left a handsome competence. For many years Mr. Randolph attended the First Baptist church at Stelton. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

The trustees of the Piscataway School have under consideration the complaint made against Miss Imogene Smith, of Dunellen, who is charged with too vigorous discipline of Grace Parker, a pupil at the Lincoln School. It is alleged that owing to a severe shaking given by Miss Smith that the former has been ill for about two weeks. Miss Smith made a statement in which she outlined the methods she employed to preserve order. She alleges that she did not use unnecessary harshness in correcting the Parker girl. The trustees at the meeting Tuesday at New Market heard both sides of the case, but reserved decision. Miss Smith has always been considered an efficient teacher and many of her friends in this place decline to believe that she would cruelly ill-treat any of her pupils.

Harry Apgar, formerly a clerk in Dr. Brakeley's drug store, has accepted a situation as messenger in the freight department of the Central Railroad at the New York office. He assumed his new duties today. His place in the drug store has not yet been filled. Harry's many friends will be pleased at his good fortune.

Miss Birdie Gaskill, a teacher in the Maple Grove school, has taken the place of Harry Pattinger, who becomes principal of the New Market school, while H. Cathers has been appointed superintendent of the Piscataway school.

Brush fires still prevail hereabouts. Yesterday afternoon the woods south of the Central Railroad tracks, opposite the roundhouse, were in a blaze.

A kinetoscope exhibition is to be given at Friendship Hall, New Market, next Wednesday night for the benefit of the school.

The Dunellen Banjo Club will meet on Friday night at the home of Mrs. William E. Terry.

Firman Gise is building a new house at Westfield for a daughter of T. C. Bodine.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, April 12—Rev. Hervey, former pastor of the old Mac Dougal Street church of New York city, but now prominently identified with the anti-saloon movement which is sweeping throughout the country, addressed the Sacred Literature Society meeting in the Baptist church last evening. Mr. Wood proved to be a very interesting and able speaker along the line of temperance work, presenting arguments and facts to his hearers which were backed up by statistics. He urged the people to unite with the anti-saloon movement and thus help the temperance cause along. His address was thoroughly enjoyed by all and should he return again at some later date he would no doubt be greeted by a much larger audience.

The many friends of John H. Coles, who was so badly injured in the wreck at Bayonne Saturday night last, are pleased to learn that he is improving very nicely. Mr. Coles is in the Bayonne City Hospital and will remain there until all danger is past, and then will be brought to his home.

The many friends of Rev. C. C. Woodruff, of the Methodist church, are pleased to learn that he is to continue his pastorate of the church for another year.

The Misses Hayes, of Fanwood, have returned from an extended visit with Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Braker at Waltham, Mass.

Mrs. Dodge and daughter, of Providence, R. I., is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Marsh.

Onward Council, L. A., met in their rooms last evening. Routine business was transacted.

SOMERVILLE.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Somerville, April 12.—The Board of Chosen Freeholders met Tuesday at the Court House and all the members answered to the roll call. W. S. Potter called the attention of the Board to Senate Bill No. 101, which became a law, creating a County Board of Commissioners to equalize assessments for taxes. The matter was laid over until the next meeting. A communication from the Middlesex Board requesting a committee of the Somerset Board to meet a similar committee from the Middlesex Board, to take action on macadamizing the road from Franklin Park to New Brunswick, was referred to the standing committee. Richards' brothers offered the Board $150 for their road roller. The Board decided to sell provided they could get what they paid for it, $175. A petition for the construction of a stone road from Liberty School House, near South Somerville, to the junction of the Amwell road, near Millstone, was received and placed on file. A claim for $100 damages to E. B. and J. V. D. Bergen, for injuries received by tumbling down an embankment near Duke's farm on a dark night, was read, but no action taken. The Board adjourned to Friday, when they will go over the Union avenue road and meet at the River bridge at Bound Brook.

E. B. Dungan, aged 56, father of ex-Prosecutor Nelson Y. Dungan, died at his home at Harlingen yesterday morning from tuberculosis, with which he had been afflicted for years. Mr. Dungan was Assessor of Montgomery township at the time of his death. He was a Democrat, but was elected in a Republican stronghold. He was also postmaster. A widow, son and daughter survive him. The funeral will be held Saturday at 11 a. m., from his late residence. He will be buried at Somerville.

The classis of Raritan met in the Reformed church at Peapack Tuesday, the following from this place attending: Revs. E. G. Reed, D. D., W. S. Cranmer, A. McWilliam and M. Swick, and Messrs. Philip Case and M. P. Lane.

Mrs. Abram Williamson, of North Bridge street, is very ill.

Mrs John D. Bartine is quite ill.

South Plainfield, April 12.—The school board held a meeting yesterday at New Market and decided to call a special election to vote a bond on the township to build a new school house here. They decided to ask for $6 000 for the purpose.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Rose Laine, formerly of this city, but late of Brooklyn, tripped over a piece of carpet at her home and fractured her hip. Her condition grew worse rapidly and she died three weeks ago tomorrow. She was the mother of Eugene Laine, of South Plainfield. Tuesday Mr. Laine's wife received a telegram that her mother, Mrs. John O'Reilly, of Brooklyn, is very ill, and she has gone to her home in Brooklyn.

The scholars of the advanced room in school had a shrt day yesterday. The teacher went to New Market. They will make up the time later.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. Der Stadtrath beschloß einstimmig, die Erbauung eines Elektrizitätswerkes zur Abgabe von Strom für den Betrieb der städtischen Straßenbahnen, sowie eines Werkes für Abgabe von Licht und Kraft für anderweitige Zwecke an die Firma „Oesterreichische Schuckertwerke" zu übertragen. Die Werke sollen bis Ende 1901 fertiggestellt werden.—Bei dem Komite für die in der Donaustadt zu erbauende Kaiserjubiläums-Kirche sind bis Ende Februar d. J. 500,391 Kronen an Spenden eingegangen.

Budapest. Das verstorbene Magnatenhausmitglied Paul Luczenbacher vermachte testamentarisch 5,000,000 Kronen zu gemeinnützigen Zwecken. Darunter befinden sich unter anderen folgende Widmungen: für ein in Budapest zu errichtendes Findelhaus 250,000 Kronen, für vier Waisenhäuser je 100,000 Kronen, dem Verein vom Rothen Kreuz 500,000 Kronen, den Stipendienfonds der Seminare von Gran, Budapest und Tyrnau je 100,000 Kronen.

Kremsmünster. Hier starb jüngst ein gewisser Robert Simon, der im Jahre 1894 sich hier ansässig machte und sich als pensionirter Lehrer für moderne Sprachen aus Köln ausgab. Nun aber hat sich herausgestellt, daß der Verstorbene nicht Simon, sondern Robert Graichen hieß, in Ziegelheim in Sachsen geboren, als Postkassier in Essen nach Unterschlagung von 30,000 Mark seit 6. September 1894 flüchtig war, und daß auf dessen Ergreifung eine Belohnung von 1200 Mark ausgesetzt war.

Lemberg. Der Unterrichtsminister hat telegraphisch die Verfügung des Rektors der hiesigen Polytechnik, womit aus Anlaß von Demonstrationen polnischer Studenten gegen Professor Thullie die Kurse geschlossen und neue Inskriptionen angeordnet wurden, als illegal aufgehoben, da die Schließung höherer Unterrichtsanstalten ausschließlich zur Kompetenz des Unterrichtsministeriums gehöre. Dagegen ordnete das Unterrichtsministerium die vorläufige Schließung der Vorlesungen des Professors Thullie an.

Mödling. Der Senior des Niederösterreichischen Gartenbauvereins, David Schwarzrot, feierte neulich sein 75jähriges Jubiläum als Gärtner. Der greise Jubilar, welcher im 90. Lebensjahre steht und heute noch in voller Geistesfrische die Gartenarbeit verrichtet, wurde von allen Bezirks-Gartenbau-Vereinen Niederösterreichs durch Deputationen beglückwünscht und mit Ehrengeschenken ausgezeichnet.

Oedenburg. In Csorna hat eine Feuersbrunst bei heftigem Winde mehr als 80 Häuser eingeäschert; 100 Familien sind obdachlos. Zwei Frauen kamen in den Flammen um. In dem Dorfe Devallo sind 35 Wohnhäuser nebst Nebengebäuden abgebrannt.

Repczi-Szentgyörgy. Anhier wurden der Kaufmann Lichtenstern und seine Frau ermordet. Während das Ehepaar beim Abendessen saß, drangen vier Männer in die Wohnung, durchschnitten dem Manne den Hals und tödteten die Frau durch Messerstiche. Das Ehepaar war erst seit zehn Monaten verheirathet. Von den Mördern fehlt jede Spur.

Wöllersdorf. Major Franz Waneck, Kommandant des 2. Feldbataillons des Deutschmeister-Regiments, hat sich erschossen. Das Motiv des Selbstmordes ist nicht bekannt.

Schweiz.

Bern. Die bundesräthliche Bewilligung zur Erwerbung des schweizerischen Bürgerrechts erhielten im Jahre 1899 925 Ausländer, wovon 463 Deutsche, 228 Franzosen, 148 Italiener, 49 Oesterreicher, 20 Russen, 9 Nordamerikaner, je 2 Belgier, Spanier und Türken und je 1 Engländer und Holländer; 45 Bürgerrechtsgesuche von Ausländern wurden abgewiesen.—Der außerordentliche Professor in der protestantisch-theologischen Fakultät der Berner Hochschule, Dr. E. Blösch, Oberbibliothekar der Berner Stadtbibliothek, ist gestorben.

Zürich. Der Große Stadtrath in Zürich hat ein durch die städtische Exekutive mit dem dortigen Feuerbestattungsverein getroffenes Abkommen genehmigt, gemäß welchem das Krematorium durch die Stadt übernommen wird. Die Feuerbestattung wird fortan für in der Stadt verstorbene Personen unentgeltlich sein, geradeso wie es die Beerdigung schon ist.

Luzern. Oberst Bindschedler in Luzern hat dem Schwesternhaus vom Rothen Kreuz in Fluntern ein Legat von 10,000 Francs hinterlassen.

Solothurn. Gebhard Hongler, gewesener Kassier der Solothurnischen Kreditbank und Geschäftsführer der Handelsmühle Oensingen, wurde vom Schwurgericht der Unterschlagung und des Betrugs schuldig befunden und zu einer Einsperrungsstrafe von fünf Jahren verurtheilt.

Aargau. Die Stauung des Rheins oberhalb Laufenburg zum Zwecke der Errichtung eines Elektrizitätswerkes durch eine schweizerische Gesellschaft wird eine der schönsten Sehenswürdigkeiten des Oberrheins, den Laufen-Fall, beseitigen. In den Kreisen der Naturfreunde ist daher eine Agitation entstanden, welche diese Schädigung des Rheins und seiner Anwohner verhindern will; insbesondere hat sich der Schwarzwald-Verein nach dieser Richtung bethätigt.

It can not be disputed that druggists, more than other persons, are in a position to authoritatively state which is the most widely used remedy for a certain class of ailments. It is through their hands that the medicine passes to the consumer—the patient. That Ripans Tabules are the most widely and extensively used remedy sold in Philadelphia, and the one most productive of beneficial results, is illustrated by the following story of a prominent and well-known apothecary of that city. He says: "Pharmacy has been my life work and I have spent the greater part of my time in the study and preparation of medicine. Since opening my establishment fourteen years ago, I have kept a statistical list of the most popular medicines sold over the counter, and I find that Ripans Tabules leads by a considerable percentage. From inquiries of my customers I learn that they derive great benefit or permanent cure from ailments of the stomach, constipation and nervousness by using Ripans Tabules, and they pretty generally assert that for regulating and toning up the system the Tabules have no equal. I may add," said he, "that at my personal experience with Ripans Tabules has resulted in my deriving great benefit from them as an invigorator. I take one regularly after meals. It helps digestion wonderfully. I always recommend them as a sure cure for nervousness, headaches and any and every irregularity contingent upon a deranged stomach. A trial always convinces the doubtful."

JEWELRY.

Pretty Accessories For the Costume of the Period.

A pretty idea for securing the long cravat often worn with shirt waists is to encircle it with a chain bracelet. These bracelets consist of a gold link chain with an enameled or jeweled ball at each end, and a gold slide through which the chain may be drawn and readjusted to any size. When it is put around the cravat, the slide is pushed up closely and the ends of the chain hang down their full length.

Long chains continue in unabated favor. They are at least a yard and a half in length and are seen in every style from simple beads of various kinds to gold, jeweled and enameled affairs of great expense.

Steel beads and gold embroidery upon black cloth gowns are a spring novelty and are calculated to attract attention, although they are not used to excess. Revers and a small border for the tunic are sufficient. Black cloth is to be much worn.

A picture is given of gown of satin cloth. The skirt is laid in plaits which are stitched down to within about 15 inches of the foot. The tight bodice is fitted by means of stitched plaits instead of darts. It has a yoke of plaited nile green silk, framed by a wide band of heavy white guipure. There are small gold buttons down the middle of the yoke, and the collar is of nile green silk. The narrow belt of brown velvet is fastened by a gold buckle. The tight sleeves are plain. The turban of beige silk is trimmed with feathers.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE FASHIONABLE FIGURE.

What Out of Door Exercise Has Done For Women.

Wasp waists are no longer fashionable. They have fallen from the high esteem in which our ancestresses held them, and now an artificially, exaggeratedly small waist is never seen among women of the refined and elegant class. The increasing favor in which outdoor exercise is held for women has much to do with this commendable change, and the result is an increase in gracefulness and in clearness of complexion. The skin in particular is strongly affected by tight clothing, which impairs digestion and circulation.

Moire, satin and broche silk are much used for corsets, which usually match the petticoat in color, if not in material. There are also corsets composed entirely of wide ribbons, held together by whale-bones at the side. Elaborate trimmings of lace, bows and plaitings, although pretty in themselves, are undesirable because they form lumps under the bodice of the gown, and the woman who wants her corsage to fit perfectly will wear an entirely plain corset.

The costume illustrated is of mauve bengaline. It has a tunic which is short in front and bordered with applications of pansy velvet. Below this is a plaited skirt. The close bodice has a bolero front and a vest of velvet application. The wide collar, which passes under the bolero, is also covered with applications of velvet. The plastron is of plaited white surah, the waist of white tulle. The plain sleeves are stitched at the wrists. The white straw hat is trimmed with a drapery and knot of mauve tulle, with mauve ostrich plumes.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

RUSSIAN MERCHANTMEN.

Number and Size of the Ships Employed in the Ocean Traffic.

Twenty years ago Russian merchant ships were so few that they were insufficient even for the coasting trade, and participation in the carrying trade abroad was out of the question. In 1877 the volunteer fleet was commenced by voluntary subscriptions, and four German vessels were purchased and used first as transports in the war with Turkey, and afterwards in maintaining a service between the Black sea and the Russian ports of the Pacific, calling at various far eastern ports on the way.

A little more than ten years ago the fleet consisted of seven ships, with an aggregate tonnage of 21,152, the largest vessel being 3,500 and the highest speed 13½ knots. Now, however, the fleet numbers 14 vessels of 127,895 tons, while a new vessel is in course of construction. The passenger accommodation is said to be equal to that of the best liners. The fare from Odessa to Vladivostok has been reduced from 50 to 28 guineas. There is steerage accommodation for about 2,000. The ports of destination are Vladivostok and Port Arthur, the first-class passengers consisting largely of army officers and business men enticed by prospects of commercial activity. Emigrants are carried in considerable numbers. They mostly belong to the agricultural class, and settle in eastern Siberia, the resources of which are being developed with great rapidity.

An exodus from European Russia has also recently commenced of artisans and trained factory hands, who are attracted to the east by a considerably higher wage, in consequence of a scarcity of skilled labor there. Of the outward cargoes last year 50,400 tons consisted of government stores, railway material, and munitions of war, and 26,048 tons of ordinary merchandise. On the return voyage these vessels brought about 28,200 tons of merchandise, consisting of tea, copra, etc. In the last eight years the annual cargoes have increased from 16,000 to about 100,000 tons, and the passengers from 6,000 to 26,500. The occupation of Port Arthur and Ta-lien-wan by Russia has already produced an effect on Russian trade with the far east, and it is believed that the enforcement of the decree restricting the carrying trade between all Russian ports to vessels under the Russian flag will give a great additional impetus to this exchange of commodities between European Russia and eastern Siberia. The most important Russian shipping enterprise in the Black sea is the Russian Steam Navigation and Trade company, whose fleet numbers 69 steamers with a displacement of 151,758 tons, exclusive of small craft. The activity of this company, which is likewise subsidized by the government, increases annually.—London Times.

BIBLE WITH A HISTORY.

It Was Found on the Plains Long Ago and Used on Many Ceremonial Occasions.

The Bible which was used in the ceremonies beginning the celebration in this city of the fiftieth anniversary of the state of California has a history that is very interesting. In 1849 a young man in coming across the plains found a pile of books by the side of the road with a stick stuck among them bearing a note telling travelers to help themselves. The young man in searching through the old volumes found a handsome Bible, which he considered a shame to be left upon the dreary desert. He placed it in his pack and carried it to Sacramento. He presented it to Dr. R. H. McDonald, who at that time conducted a drug store in that city.

Some time after the advent of the Bible into Sacramento a meeting was called in that city for the purpose of founding a lodge of Masons. That was on January 8, 1850, and the lodge was to be known as Connecticut lodge, No. 75. It chanced that the meeting place was adjoining the premises occupied by Dr. McDonald. When it was convened it was found that there was no Bible at hand with which to conduct the ceremonies, and Dr. McDonald presented the book that had been given to him by the young man for the lodge's use.

On the 19th of the following April the grand lodge of Masons was formed and the Bible again played an important part in the ceremonies. After the formation of the grand lodge the name of Connecticut lodge was changed to Tehama Lodge, No. 3, but ever since its establishment on January 8, 1850, the Bible has remained in the possession of the lodge.—San Jose (Cal.) Mercury.

Divorced Thirty-Five Times.

The case is mentioned in a Chinese paper of a native, aged 40, who has married and divorced 35 wives, and is now married to the thirty-sixth. He was first married at 18, and the reason assigned for this extraordinary example of inconstancy is that he has a younger sister of extremely jealous and rancorous disposition, who, from the moment that a bride enters the house, institutes a system of persecution, which soon drives the unhappy woman to ask her husband for a divorce. — N. Y. World.

Chinese Cooks Next to the French.

Second only to the French are the Chinese when it comes to culinary skill, and with simple materials they will contrive to put together a meal which would shame an ordinary American cook. In peasant families the wife or daughter does the cooking, but in the larger establishments the cooks are invariably men.—Chicago Chronicle.

LOST TRIBE OF ESKIMOS.

The Strangest Anthropological Find That Has Been Recorded in Recent Times.

The strangest anthropological "find" recorded in the last decade of the nineteenth century will soon be announced by the American Museum of Natural History. It is nothing less than the discovery, on a lonely island in Hudson bay, of a lost tribe of Eskimos, a community which has been without intercourse with other representatives of the human species for centuries, and whose members never saw a white man until a few months ago. They are still in the stone age, knowing no metals; they grow no plants and their houses are built of the skulls of whales.

The home of this strange tribe is on Southampton island, a piece of watergirt terra firma nearly as big as the state of Maine, situated at the north end of Hudson bay. Apparently the people have dwelt there ever since pre-Columbian times, and to-day they live and subsist in exactly the same way as they did then.

Having been isolated for so long a period, it is natural they should exhibit many peculiarities. A superb collection of utensils, weapons of the chase and other objects, made through the agency of Dr. Franz Boas, has been brought to New York in a whaling vessel and deposited in the Museum of Natural History.

The houses of skulls, more properly described as huts, are built by putting together the great jaws of right whales, which are covered over with skins. In the middle of this primitive dwelling is an elevated place on which stands the inevitable stone lamp, employed for lighting, heating, cooking, melting snow, drying clothes and in certain arts. It is nothing more than an open dish of whale oil or seal oil, with a wick of dry moss soaked in fat.

The whale is the chief means of subsistence of these strange people. They use the whalebone in a variety of surprising ways, making even their cups and buckets of it by bending it into rounded shapes and sewing on the bottoms. Many of their implements are of whalebone, and from the same stuff they manufacture toboggan-like sleds.

The tribe comprises only 58 individuals, about equally divided between the sexes. Its members speak a dialect peculiar to themselves nad quite unlike that employed by any other Eskimo. A strait about 30 miles broad separates Southampton island from the western shore of Hudsoh bay, where there is a colony of Eskimos, and once in a very long while the strait freezes over. This happened, it is said, 75 years ago, and then a few hunters came over from the island to the mainland, where they were much surprised to encounter other human beings like themselves, having doubtless imagined that they were the only people in existence.

On Southampton island there is no soapstone, which among the Eskimos elsewhere is the favorite material for pots and kettles. Hence the people of the lost tribe are obliged to make such receptacles out of slabs of limestone, glued together in rectangular shapes with a mixture of grease and deer blood. In the same way they manufacture their lamps, and this fact is another evidence of the prolonged isolation of the community described, inasmuch as Eskimos, when they can obtain no soapstone in their own neighborhood, will pay any price to get it from some other more fortunate tribe.

Sometimes they will make trips lasting several years in quest of this material, which is rare and not often discovered in pieces large enough for lamps or pots.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

ODD TOWN OF CULLODEN.

The Liquor Element "Engineered" the Anti-License People Out of the Village.

"I reckon we've got the oddest town in our state that there is in the United States," said a West Virginia man at the Aquarium. "Ever hear of Culloden? I don't mean the clans of Culloden, described by the poet Campbell. I mean Culloden, West Virginia. Well, sir, about half the population of the town doesn't live in the town and can't vote in the town, although they are right in the town.

"I'll explain. The good people, and they are in the majority, too, are down on saloons and liquor in any shape. They got up a temperance meeting and purposed to drive the liquor men out of town. When you find a West Virginian who believes in liquor you find a man who is ready to fight for it. The liquor people got together and in some way got the confidence of the town engineer. I don't know whether he was a liquor man or not, but they got him on their side. The engineer discovered that the town was not laid out right and he got authority to change the metes and baunds. When he finished the job the temperance people found out that they lived just outside of the line of the town, no matter what part of the town their houses were in. A man could stand in his back yard and talk to the man whose place was right up against his place, and who was a voter, but the first man had lost his vote.

"The lines of the engineer excluded, as I have said, the temperance people. It took in the license folks all right. The map of Culloden as it is now looks a good deal like a sheet of paper after a fly with ink on its feet meanders across it. You can tell how a citizen of Culloden stands on the liquor question by the place where he builds a house, if he builds one, which doesn't often occur. In spite of its zigzag boundaries, however, Culloden is a contented community."—N. Y. Sun.

PATHWAYS TO FAME.

A Comparison Between the Distinguished Careers in 1865 and 1899.

An article has just appeared in a London magazine in which an interesting comparison is made of the avenues through which fame is reached at the present day and a generation ago, by the aid of two publications, Galton's "Hereditary Genius," given to the public in 1865, and the well-known English publication, "Who's Who," for 1899. Dr. Galton in his able treatise mentioned the names of Englishmen in all professions and lines of business who had attained distinction of whatsoever sort at the date of his writing. "Who's Who" in the same way presents a list, according to professions and lines of business, of Englishmen who, in 1899, had gained a title to fame.

The following tabular statement shows the number, per million of the population, of her majesty's subjects who had earned some sort of a reputation at the two dates in question, 1865 and 1899:

	1865.	1899.		1865.	1899.
Actors	21	5	Military	56	112
Agriculturists.	2	6	Miscellaneous ..	4	0
Antiquaries	23	4	Metaphysics	2	0
Architects	6	4	Musicians	17	22
Artists	40	36	Nat. Science ..	22	0
Athletes	0	6	Naval	12	21
Authors	216	120	Official	0	39
Col. Legist's...	0	18	Philanthropists	0	8
Commerce	12	44	Philologists	13	0
Contractors	0	2	Political economists	20	0
Coun. Gent'men.	0	29	Political career.	0	51
Diplomatic and Consular Ser.	0	27	Railways	0	6
Divines	130	74	Scientific	51	42
Educational....	0	51	Sculptors	0	10
Engineers	13	10	Sovereigns	21	0
Engravers	3	0	Statesmen	125	7
Finance	0	21	Titular	0	114
Lawyers	44	71	Travelers	25	8
Medicals	31	28

One of the interesting things in the table, it will be noticed, is the extraordinary decrease in the number of "authors" of repute and in the number of "statesmen" of repute, when the years 1865 and 1899 are compared. This falling off is remarkable; and, if the standard of criticism of "Who's Who" be not of a severer kind than that of Dr. Galton, we are confronted with the peculiar fact that, though the number of authors and of statesmen has greatly increased during the last generation, far fewer of them have obtained any sort of distinction.

There are other classes in which this same tendency is shown, though to a less extent. But, on the other hand, in 1899 fame came to many Britishers through avenues which were scarcely recognized a generation ago. In 1865, for example, no athlete, no colonial legislator, nor country gentleman, nor consular agent, nor educationist, nor financier, nor contractor, nor railroader, nor person in office, nor person following a political career, nor person bearing a title, had attained sufficient prominence to entitle him to have his name recorded among the distinguished men of the year; whereas in 1899 these avenues to fame were almost all well filled. Twelve men only in commercial life were in the ranks of the distinguished in 1865, in 1899 44 of the distinguished were engaged in commerce; there were only 44 lawyers of prominence in 1865; in 1899 there were 71.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

CALIFORNIA'S MINING.

Old Claims Are Being Worked Over and New Places Developed—Wealth of the Golden State.

The opening of mines that have been for a quarter of a century or more idle, is one of the notable features of the times in California mining. Most of these are quartz properties, which, under old methods of mining and milling, were not profitable to work. Modern methods have, however, made them available. Many of them have ore in sight that will make them productive from the time they are reopened and their reduction works are started, for the methods now in vogue are so economical that a good margin of profit is present in ore that would not pay expenses by the old-time processes. Cheap power, cheap light, more effective and less costly explosives, improved appliances for breaking out the ore from the slopes, hoisting and pumping machinery capable of reaching to greater depths and lifting greater weights more expeditiously and economically and chemical processes that arrest all the gold contained in the rock, combined with a more intelligent knowledge of the gold-bearing veins, are the agents of modern success. These methods and appliances have thus unconsciously, as it were, raised the business of quartz mining largely out of the domain of speculation.

But a new interest is also being taken in the placers. Discoveries have been lately made at various points which encourage exploration for gold-bearing gravel deposits whose existence had not been suspected before. Gravel mines that have been worked for nearly half a century have thus been given a new lease of life. A disposition is also being shown to work by unobjectionable methods, many of the deep gravel mines which were forced by the courts to discontinue hydraulicking. In these properties it is intended to mine only the richer strata of gravel lying on the bedrock. Some of them are now being prepared for drifting. Preparations are also being made to open several big gravel properties in Calaveras and other counties, which have not yet been prospected, but in which capital has lately become interested. Other minerals, besides gold are also receiving a liberal share of attention from prospectors and claiming the notice of mining investors. New borax ledges of great promise have been lately opened in the Mojave basin, and a large body of zinc ore is reported to have been found near San Vicente, San Diego county.

The increasing confidence of capital in California mines is noticeable. It is not obtrusively paraded. But wherever a promising mine is for sale there is not the same difficulty in finding a purchaser for it that existed a few years ago. Eastern capital in large amounts has thus been quietly invested. Boston is credited with having placed at least $10,000,000 in California and Arizona mines, and a large proportion of the investment has been made in the former. Experts are scattered all over the mineral belts examining properties in the interest of this class of investors, and, as a result, sales are becoming frequent each succeeding week, and the initiative taken for elaborate developments which will add to the general wealth of the state.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE EARTH A PYRAMID.

An English Scientist and Eminent Official Advances an Astounding Theory.

Since the earth was first formed many theories have been advanced as to its shape and the process of its formation, but no one until our day ever maintained that its form was that of a huge pyramid. Centuries ago Pythagoras and Aristotle declared that it was spherical, Anaximander that it was shaped like a column, Democritus that it was a concave disk and very much resembled a huge porringer, Empedocles and Anaximenes that it was a plane disk, and Zenofanes that it had roots like a tree, which spread in all directions far into the infinite.

Now comes Mr. J. Greene, an English scientist and a government official in the Sandwich islands, with the bold announcement that all these ancient theories, as well as the modern ones, are utterly baseless, since, according to him, the earth has the form of a triangular pyramid, or, in other words, of a regular tetrahedron, with the apex at the south pole and the base at the north. An extraordinary theory this may seem to all of us who are so familiar with the earth as pictured on papier mache globes, and yet it is attracting the attention of European geologists, and, among others, of M. De Lapparent, who seems by no means inclined to reject it hastily.

Tergioni Tozzetti, a writer of the last century, said: "If we can suppose all the water of the seas to be annihilated we would find that the solid earth was of a most rugged form."

According to this hypothesis, say geographers of the old school, there ought to be a spacious sea opposite every continent. The new theory, however, as has been said, seemingly eliminates the waters of the earth altogether and cares not a jot as to their location. If we admit that the earth is now completely solidified, even in its central parts, we must, it is asserted, also admit that it was at one time in a state of fusion, and that after a crust was formed the hot substances gradually cooled. In time the earth would present an appearance as harmonious and as free from unsightly protuberances as possible.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Burning Question.

A query as to fire insurance is a burning question.—Chicago Daily News.

PRETTY WHITE HERON.

How a Little Bird Helps the Elephant to Rid Himself of an Annoying Enemy.

What are these birds doing on the elephants back? What is their object in pecking and clawing at his hide and seemingly trying their hardest to annoy and distress the great brute? 'Tis rather an impudent and dangerous proceeding, one would naturally think, for, with one sweep of his powerful trunk, the elephant could whisk them all from his back and crush them to nothingness. There are a few curious facts which will answer these questions.

You must all know what parasites are. Your dictionary or encyclopedia will tell you that they are of two great classes—those of the vegetable kingdom and those of the animal. In the first division, or botany, as it is otherwise named, parasites are plants which live directly on other plants, and through their roots take their nourishment from the larger growth, and not from the ground. The orchids, a wonderful species of flower, of which there are several hundred varieties in the United States and several thousands in the tropics, answer this description partially, but though they live on trees and other plants which are rooted in the ground, their roots in turn are not fastened into the tree, but are exposed to the air and absorb food from it.

The mistletoe, the flower which, with the holly and other evergreens, is used for decorations at Christmas time, is, however, a complete parasite, and inhabits the oak tree usually, growing in the crotches of its great branches. The mistletoe brings us to the kissing bug, which is not of botany, but of entomology (insectology), which is a division of zoology; and now we are getting near to the elephant and the birds. Naturalists tell us that every living creature or growing thing has its parasite. Even the flea, they say, which is in itself a parasite, has smaller fleas to keep it scratching and annoyed. If this is a fact and the theory correct, and susceptible of further application, then parasite No. 2 must have his troubles, and so on, multiplied into infinity. Where does it stop? and what a terrible case of "flea eat flea" it must be! And what a source of satisfaction it would be to the poor dog to know how his tormentors were being tortured! From the flea to the elephant is a big jump, but we will make it, to the one with the birds on his back. The birds are there after parasites; and that is the answer to the first question. One would think that the elephant with his wonderful endurance, his comparative ignorance of pain and with a hide that is inches thick to protect him, would be above being annoyed by little things; but he isn't.

In the deep forests of Africa, where the elephant roams, there lives also an insect called the "wood-tick," and he is his most hated and feared enemy. Against lions and tigers, against the great rhinoceros even, the elephant is as well fortified as a battleship against a rifle ball, but the tick is too small to be fought. The tough, thick hide, which is proof against the claws of the lion and the thorns of the jungle, is easy to the tick, and he just bores it full of holes. He gets down into the crevices or wrinkles of the elephant's back and there he stays and gnaws and chews and wriggles and scratches. No amount of rubbing against rocks or trees will relieve the smarting. But the elephant has a friend, a little bird friend. No sooner is the tick comfortably situated than a pair of bright, piercing, yellow eyes seeks him out, and a long, slender, graceful beak plucks him forth from his hiding and feasting. The owner of those eyes and that bill is a beautiful white heron. He is small of body, long of leg and large of heart and purpose, and in northern Africa he is said by the natives and hunters to be the elephant's guardian angel. The elephant seems to judge him so, too, for, ugly tempered as he often is, he is never cross with the heron, or ibis, as he is called in the Nile country. When the long, slender bill sinks deep into his sore flesh, as it sometimes does, he is Suspended Sentence With a Warning.

Spencer Scribner, and his friend, Mr. James, together with Mrs. Bearsford, who were arrested last Saturday evening at the home of the latter in Steiner place, on a charge of disorderly conduct, were arraigned yesterday before Mayor Smalley. Lawyer Walter Hetfield appeared on behalf of the defendants. Inasmuch as there were no witnesses to appear against the alleged violators of the law, His Honor decided to suspend sentence this time with a warning that if they ever appeared before him again for a similar cause they would be dealt with severely.

Thomas Martin's Daughter Dead.

Gertrude, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Thomas H. Martin, died at the home of her parents on East Fourth street yesterday afternoon after four weeks' illness with pneumonia.

STAIRWAY WENT DOWN

J. D. RUNYON AND J. D. SPICER SERIOUSLY INJURED

Latter Had One of His Legs Broken, and Former Was Badly Cut and Shaken Up.

A stairway in the large shed of Boice, Runyon & Co., on Park avenue, gave way this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, as John D. Runyon, of 502 Park avenue, one of the firm, and Joseph D. Spicer, of 125 West Fifth street, were crossing it. Both men fell a distance of twenty feet and were seriously injured.

No one witnessed the accident, although there were several men working in the immediate neighborhood. The stairway leads from the lower gallery on the north side to the upper gallery on the central superstructure. The two men had evidently gone to look at some lumber and had started to cross the gangway when it fell.

The men in the building heard the crash and hurried to the place to find Mr. Runyon and Mr. Spicer lying on the ground and the wreck of the stairway close by. Both were bleeding from cuts about the face and head.

Chief Doane was passing when one of the workmen hurried out with the news of the accident. Physicians were summoned and a hurry call sent for the ambulance. Dr. Zoglio was the first to arrive. Then came Drs. Long and Rushmore.

Mr. Spicer was placed in the ambulance and taken home. He was cut about the face, one leg was broken and he may have received internal injuries. As soon as the ambulance returned Mr. Runyon was taken to his home. He was budly cut about the head. The further extent of his injuries were not ascertained in the brief examination made.

CHOOSE OFFICERS.

Meeting of Plainfield Association for American Girls in Paris Held Yesterday Afternoon.

Officers were elected and other details completed at the meeting of the Plainfield Association for American Girls in Paris, held in the parish rooms of the Grace P. E. church yesterday afternoon. Rev. E. M. Rodman presided and Mrs. W. L. Patton gave some interesting information concerning the Washington Home in Paris. The Plainfield association has already sent $170 to aid in paying off the mortgage on the Home. Mrs. Patton told of the urgent demand for funds to enable the Home to make some provision to care for the host of American girls now going to Paris.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Honorary president, Rev. E. M. Rodman; first vice president, Mrs. W. L. Patton; vice-presidents, Mrs. W. E. Lowe, Mrs. Howard Fleming, Mrs. John Doull Miller, Mrs Dexter Tiffany, Mrs. Isaac Rushmore, Mrs. W. D. Murray, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. W. D. Wadsworth, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, Mrs. John T. Baker, Mrs. Joseph H. Howell and Miss Anthony; secretary, Mrs. Robert Rushmore; treasurer, Miss M. Buxton. The president was given power to fill vacancies. A lookout committee, with Rev. E. M. Rodman as chairman and a hundred young women as members, was appointed.

It was decided to hold a porch party, the first of the season, as soon as the weather will permit. Miss Edith Clapp, was appointed chairman of the committee in charge.

Surprise for a Little Girl.

A surprise party arranged by Clara Knight was given last evening to Cecil Rockafellow in honor of the seventh anniversary of his birthday. The usual games were played and the little folks had a jolly good time. Among those present were Ella Laplin, Helen Galbert, Olive Kinsey, Florence and Charlie Matanan, Ethel Lorton, Violet Knight, Clara Knight, Walter and Edward Glaentzer, Willie Knight, Harold and Raymond Rockafellow and Mrs. Glaentzer. During the festivities refreshments were served.

Told of Work Among Emigrants.

Last evening at the First Baptist church, Miss Melby, a missionary whose work is at Ellis Island, gave a bright and intensely interesting talk concerning her work among emigrants. She related many pathetic incidents of families being separated and how they had to be helped. Miss Melby excited considerable interest and enthusiasm among those present and no doubt she will receive assistance in a substantial way in her work.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Emma Muenle, of Somerville, an experienced milliner, has taken a position at Bonn's, of West Front street.

The condition of I. A. Connett, 303 East Fifth street, is such that his family and friends are very anxious about him. He is suffering from heart trouble.

To Be Illustrated.

The lecture to be given this evening by Prof. Apgar on birds at the Crescent Avenue church will be illustrated with pictures and charts, and as the professor stands very high as an authority on birds, the lecture will be of considerable interest.

—Rev. G. W. Shott, of Scotch Plains, will lead the East Third Street mission meeting this evening.

ALLEGED CRUELTIES AT THE EYLER SCHOOL

Another Important Page of the "Punishment Book" is Said to Be Missing.

DAMAGING STORIES HEARD.

MRS. EYLER IS CHARGED WITH RELIGIOUS DISCRIMINATION.

Probing of the Legislative Committee is Again Resumed and More Sensational Testimony is Offered by Various Ones.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, April 13—The Legislative investigating committee opened up the Eyler School inquiry again yesterday and gathered considerable more information on the now generally acceded incompetency of Mrs. Myrtle Eyler to manage the institution. Among the new discoveries was that another important page of the school punishment book, from which eight pages were mysteriously torn, is missing. The newly-missing leaf covers the dates from July 30th to Aug. 3d, 1899, and the committee apparently means to find who mutilated the book at so important a period. The committee has also been quietly at work on the clue given them by Miss Frances Day that Mrs. Eyler has been paid $25 by a man in Hoboken for the release of his daughter from the school. They want to find out if the money was turned over to the overseers.
